President, The Honourable the—

Rulings of—

Adjournment Motion—

No statement regarding an adjournment motion can be made when notice to the President of that adjournment motion has not been given according to the Rules and Standing Orders .. .. .	823
--	-----

Bills—

Amendments—

A provision or amendment making the framing of rules subject to the approval of and revision by the Legislative Council, is not ultra vires , and is in order .. .. .	132-37, 170
--	-------------

Amendments for omission of the whole clause are negative amendments. They are therefore no amendments and the mover of such amendments has no right of reply .. .. .	287
--	-----

An amendment different in form but identical in purpose to a disallowed amendment cannot be allowed .. .. .	455
---	-----

An amendment proposing the re-committal of a bill to select committee for making an additional provision in the bill making it a statutory obligation upon Government to make to the University an annual grant of not less than three lakhs of rupees is out of order under section 80-C of the Government of India Act .. .. .	188-90
--	--------

An amendment to an amendment can only be accepted by the mover of the original amendment with the permission of the House. Mere permission of the Chair is not sufficient .. .. .	344
---	-----

If the House is possessed of a section which is sought to be amended by a certain bill, then it is within the power of any honourable member to move an amendment further to amend the original section .. .. .	1150
---	------

Documents or references or correspondence regarding—

When documents or references or correspondence are relied upon by Government members in the Council, it is the privilege of the House to have those documents or correspondence before them .. .. .	211
---	-----

Select Committee—

Reference to what happened in select committee should be avoided 308, 325, 326

Debates—

Action of the Government of India should not be brought under discussion and should not be challenged whether right or wrong. .. .. .	180
---	-----

Members should not be personal about an honourable member, the more so when he is absent .. .. .	1266, 1278
--	------------

The expression "licking the boots of Government" is not a right expression .. .. .	1262

The word "false" is very defective .. .. .	292
--	-----

Use of an expression to mean "sorry" with reference to any ruling or order by the President, is in very bad form .. .. .	733, 740
--	----------

When an honourable member makes a statement in explanation, the House has to accept it .. .. .	517
--	-----

When the President calls the House to order, honourable members must resume their seats .. .. .	991
---	-----

Amendment—

An honourable member's saying a word or two in connection with an amendment or motion before the House does not deprive him of the right of speech on that amendment or motion .. .. .	348
--	-----

A particular amendment may suggest itself to an honourable member at any stage of the debate and that amendment may be suggested without a speech .. .. .	343
---	-----

Point of order—
If there is a point of order, the honourable member addressing the House will have to yield .. .. .	573
Right of reply does not mean a second speech, but it affords a member an opportunity of replying to objections raised ..	282
Right of reply—
Negative amendments are no amendments and the mover of such amendments has no right of reply .. .. .	287
Vote—
An honourable member directly connected with a matter under discussion would be entitled to speak and take part in the discussion but he cannot vote .. .. .	832-833
Divisions—
Tellers—
Tellers must be very careful because a correct return is of the utmost importance for the fullest reliance of the House on them ..	192
Questions—
Honourable members wishing to ask questions must be in their places at the proper time .. .. .	438
Supplementary questions—
It is not fair on the part of Honourable Members on the Government side to refer an honourable member asking a supplementary question to a Minister who is not in charge of the Department ..	1078

X. DISCUSSION OF MATTERS OF GENERAL PUBLIC INTEREST.*

Resolution † by Mr. K. F. Nariman, M.L.C.

“ This Council recommends to Government that a committee consisting of the following gentlemen be appointed to examine in all its aspects the primary and secondary education now prevailing in the Presidency with a view—

- (a) (i) to co-ordinate and reorganise the same on modern lines ;
- (ii) to reduce the number of years taken up by the courses of primary and secondary education ;
- (iii) to consider these courses with the object of removing the duplication of studies in vernacular and English ;
- (iv) to introduce manual and vocational courses ; and
- (v) to consider the steps for introducing compulsory medical inspection and physical training in primary and secondary schools ;
- (b) to consider the question of the cost of the revised schemes with special reference to the funds available at present, and to explore the ways and means to raise further funds ;
- (c) to report on such other matters germane to the above questions as may be considered necessary :—

1. Dewan Bahadur Harilal D. Desai, Minister of Education.

* Resolutions are arranged according to the order determined by ballot.

† Adjourned at the last session.

Resolution by Mr. K. F. Nariman, M.L.C.

1. "This Council recommends to the Governor in Council to appoint a committee with a non-official majority to inquire into the grievances and the present condition of the aboriginal tribes in this Presidency and to suggest means for their uplift and amelioration."

Resolutions by Mr. V. N. Jog, M.L.C.

1. "This Council disapproves of the resolution issued by Government on the report of the Land Revenue Assessment Committee and recommends to His Excellency the Governor in Council that the Bill for the amendment of the provisions of the Bombay Land Revenue Code, 1879, relating to the principles of revising the assessment of land revenue should be drafted in consultation with non-official members of this Council before it is submitted to the Government of India for sanction."

2. "This Council recommends to Government to move the Government of India to create a new linguistic province for the Karnatak, uniting the Kannada speaking parts of the Bombay and Madras Presidencies and Coorg."

3. "This Council recommends to Government that 2 lacs of rupees should be provided for minor irrigation works and sinking of wells in those parts of the Dharwar District such as Navalgund and Nargund where scarcity of water for drinking purposes is felt and where on account of want of or deficient rain, frequent failure, total or partial, of crops occurs."

4. "This Council recommends to Government that a committee with a non-official majority and with a non-official Chairman be appointed to enquire into the economic condition of the members of the co-operative societies under the Co-operative Societies Act and to suggest remedies for its improvement, and to enquire further whether sound co-operative principles are observed in working the societies and to suggest ways and means for improvement."

5. "The Council recommends to Government that steps should be taken forthwith to give full effect to the recommendations made in the minority report of Sir M. Visvesvaraya's committee on technical education and that the necessary provision be made in the next year's budget for that purpose."

6. "This Council recommends to Government that in order to enable the cultivators to sell their produce without undue haste and to secure proper price for it, the dates of revenue payments in the various talukas of the presidency be shifted forward by one month."

7. "This Council recommends to the Governor in Council to take immediate steps to introduce legislation to give effect to the recommendations contained in the Arthur-Bodas Report on the Deccan Agriculturists' Relief Act."

8. "This Council recommends to Government to represent to the Government of India that two more elective seats should be assigned to the Dharwar Non-Muhammadan Rural Constituency."

Resolutions by Dr. M. K. Dixit, M.L.C.

1. "This Council is of opinion that the rules regarding the use of text-books in recognized schools in the Bombay Presidency have been found unsatisfactory and recommends that Government be pleased to modify them on the following lines :—

(1) Headmasters should be allowed full discretion in the selection and use of text-books, library and prize books in their schools, the Education Department having a veto, which should be exercised on moral and political grounds and should state the objections against any book in detail.

(2) As regards the suitability of a book from the educational point of view, the Department should have the power of recommendation only.

(3) That the headmasters of recognised schools should not be required to make a declaration, in their annual return to the Department, to the effect that they use only sanctioned books."

2. "This Council recommends to Government that the revised land revenue assessment in the Chorasi and Bardoli talukas of the Surat District, sanctioned by Government, shall not be given effect to."

3. "This Council recommends to Government to raise a sufficient loan to give grants and loans to the various local bodies for the construction and improvement of drainage works, water works, road and bridges."

4. "This Council recommends to Government to remit the land revenue in all the flood-affected areas of Gujarat for the year 1927-28 and to make an early announcement to that effect, so as to afford relief to the feelings of the affected agriculturists."

5. "This Council recommends to Government to instruct their revenue officers to regard the soil damaged on account of floods as uncultivable waste land and free it from all assessment charges until reclaimed."

6. "This Council recommends to Government to appoint a committee consisting of officials and non-officials, with a non-official majority, to thoroughly investigate the economic evils caused by the floods to the agriculturists for the purpose of assessing the extent and nature of the various kinds of damage suffered by them and to suggest concrete measures for rehabilitating their economic power."

Resolutions by Mr. H. B. Shivdasani, M.L.C.

1. "This Council recommends to Government that the revision settlements recently introduced in the Chorasi and Bardoli talukas of the Surat district should not be given effect to until the principles of revision settlements are put on a statutory basis by the amendment of the Bombay Land Revenue Code to be brought before the Legislative Council shortly, as it will lead to great injustice to the poor cultivators of these two talukas if action is taken on revision settlement proposals based on the old principles."

2. "This Council recommends to Government that the work of the revision settlement of the Chikhli taluka of the Surat district should be suspended till the principles of revision settlements are put on a statutory basis by the amendment of the Bombay Land Revenue Code."

3. "This Council recommends to Government that the work of land revenue revision settlements should be entirely suspended till the principles of revision settlements are put on a statutory basis by an amendment of the Bombay Land Revenue Code and that till this is done no fresh revision settlements should be introduced anywhere in the Bombay Presidency."

4. "This Council recommends to Government that the portion of the Provincial road from Sisodra to Matwad (Chikhli taluka) which is entirely Katcha should be metalled immediately."

5. "This Council recommends to Government that the portion of the Bombay-Ahmedabad road lying within the Surat district be completed within one year by metalling all the Katcha portions of this road and by constructing bridges and causeways over all the unbridged rivers and channels on the road."

6. "This Council recommends to Government that in view of the bad state of the roads in the Surat district and of the fact that the financial circumstances of the District Local Board, Surat, do not permit it to maintain the roads in a good condition, Government should give a special grant of rupees one lakh in each of the next five years for the purposes of construction and improvement of the roads in the Surat District."

7. "This Council recommends to Government that in view of the agricultural, commercial and industrial importance of Gujarat and Ahmedabad and in view of their contribution to the Provincial and Central exchequer a Provincial road be constructed from Bombay to Ahmedabad by completing all the gaps in this road and by constructing bridges and causeways over all the unbridged rivers and channels within the next five years."

8. "This Council recommends to Government that looking to the importance of Gujarat from an industrial, commercial and agricultural point of view early steps should be taken to provide a good net work of roads in all the districts of Gujarat."

9. "This Council recommends to Government that an amount of Rs. 3,66,400 which represents the difference between the receipts from himayat assessment on tanks in the Surat district for the ten years 1913-14 to 1922-23, viz., Rs. 4,37,166 and the amount spent on the repair of those tanks in the same period, viz., Rs. 70,766, be spent in the next three years on the special repair of tanks in the Surat district."

1. Sir Leslie Hudson.
2. Mr. B. G. Pahalajani.
3. Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad.
4. Mr. N. E. Navle.

I have next to announce the Acts which have received the sanction of His Excellency the Governor General since the close of the last session : They are as follows :—

- (1) An Act further to amend the City of Bombay Improvement Trust Transfer Act, 1925.

(2) An Act further to amend the Aden Civil and Criminal Justice Act, 1864.

Questions.

TOBACCO LICENSE

Dr. B. R. AMBEDKAR : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether one Narayan Sakharam had applied to the Superintendent of Excise, Tobacco Department, for license to sell tobacco ;

(b) whether his application was refused although the applicant was a military pensioner and was recommended for license by the Officer Commanding the 117th Rajputs ;

(c) the reasons why his application was refused ;

(d) whether the application was refused on account of the fact that the applicant belonged to the depressed classes ;

(e) whether they make any caste discrimination in the matter of issuing licenses ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes.

(b) Yes.

(c) Tobacco licenses are only granted to persons in really indigent circumstances who are unable to earn a livelihood by any other means. The person referred to by the honourable member was reported to be quite fit to earn his livelihood in other ways. He was therefore refused a license.

(d) No.

(e) No.

Dr. B. R. AMBEDKAR : Is this in accordance with the rules laid down by the department in the matter of tobacco licences ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I do not think that there are any specific rules on the subject, but that is the practice.

Dr. B. R. AMBEDKAR : May I know whether this particular question refers to the honourable member's department or to the department under the Excise Minister ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : This refers to the Revenue Department. Tobacco licences are given out by the Collector of Bombay.

CROPS : FAILURE IN WEST KHANDESH

Mr. M. G. BHOSLE (West Khandesh District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware of the fact that there is a failure of rabi crops in West Khandesh ;

(b) if so, what remissions or suspensions of revenue they have granted there ;

(c) what other measures of relief they intend to take ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Owing to lack of rain in October in part of the district the crops were not good, but they cannot be said to have failed. Wheat suffered most, but Jowari on the whole was very fair and in places up to the normal standard.

(b) No remissions or suspensions of land revenue were given, as in no rabi village was the final annewari below six annas.

(c) No relief measures were necessary and none was taken.

LABOUR RECRUITS FOR ASSAM FROM WEST KHANDESH

Mr. M. G. BHOSLE (West Khandesh District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(1) whether they are aware that agents of European tea planters from Assam have been active to secure labourers in West Khandesh for some months past ;

(2) whether they are aware that complaints have been made in the local papers about the methods by which these recruits are induced to go to Assam ;

(3) how many such labourers have been so far obtained by the Agents from West Khandesh ;

(4) to what castes they belong ;

(5) whether they or the Collector of the District have received any complaints from the recruits themselves ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL V. MEHTA : (1) Yes.

(2) No.

(3) 245.

(4) Bhils and Mavchis.

(5) No.

REVISED PENSION RULES

Mr. M. G. BHOSLE (West Khandesh District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that revised pension rules have been recently sanctioned for the subordinate services ;

(b) if so, whether they have been communicated to the establishments concerned ;

(c) if not, when the necessary orders will be issued ;

(d) if no revised rules have yet been sanctioned, when the sanction is likely to be given.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : (a) No.

(b) Does not arise.

(c) and (d) No definite date can be given.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : May I inquire whether this matter is under the consideration of Government ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Yes.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : Since when ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : It has been under the consideration of Government for the last three or four months. I may inform the honourable member that there is a suggestion that the pension rules of all the provinces might be considered in Delhi in November next. That is why delay has taken place.

GRANTS TO TEMPLES

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Will Government be pleased to publish a list of the temples to which a grant is paid by Government with the nature and amount of grant paid to each such temple ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : The honourable member is referred to the question put by the honourable member Mr. Pawar in the last session of the Council.*

LIQUOR SHOP, DADAR

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware of the public meeting of the residents of Dadar held on 4th June 1927 protesting against the extension of time granted to the foreign liquor retail shop near the junction of Dadar Road and Naigam Road, Bombay, and urging upon Government to remove the shop from the locality ;

(b) if so, what steps they have taken in the matter ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) Yes.

(b) The matter is under consideration.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Since when ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Since the report of the resolution was received.

RAILWAY STATION AT KASUDI

Mr. DAWOODKHAN SHALEBHOY (Northern Division) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware of the fact that the President of the Timber Merchants Conference of Godhra applied to the Railway authorities for opening a station at the Inami village of Kasudi in Godhra Taluka for loading and unloading goods ;

(b) if answer to (a) is in affirmative, how this application has been disposed of ;

(c) whether they are aware of the necessity for opening this station for loading and unloading ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Enquiries are being made.

* Printed in the 10th List of the last session. The following question with its answer was printed in the 10th list of the last session :

DEVASTHANS

1. Mr. S. J. PAWAR (Poona District) : Will Government be pleased to furnish a list of temples of devastthans getting jahagirs, inams or cash allowances for their maintenance from Government ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : The compilation of the information would involve an expenditure of time and labour incommensurate with its possible utility from the public point of view. Government therefore regret they are not prepared to obtain the information. If the honourable member specifies in a fresh question any particular devastthan or devastthans in respect to which information is required, efforts will be made to obtain it.

REVISION ASSESSMENTS

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to give the following information as regards the revision of assessments made after 15th March 1924—

(a) the date of notification in the form of appendix XVI to the Land Revenue Code as required by Government Resolution No. 7447, dated 21st October 1886;

(b) the date of notification in the form of Appendix XVII to the Land Revenue Code as required by Government Resolution No. 7447, dated 21st October 1886;

(c) the year of expiry of the old settlement;

(d) the date and year of the introduction of the survey settlement under section 103 of the Land Revenue Code as required by Government Resolution No. 8057, dated 22nd December 1900;

(e) the year of levy under section 104;

(f) the year of announcement of the new assessment made number by number as required by Government Resolution No. 6593, dated 19th October 1900;

(g) whether any such announcement was made in the Satara district?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) As field operations (measurement or classification) are no longer carried out, whilst the settlements of talukas are being revised, no such notification is now issued.

(b), (c), (d) and (e) The appended statement gives the information required.

(f) and (g) The year of announcement is the same as that given in the statement in answer to clause (d), but the announcement is not now made survey number by survey number. A notice is given to the whole village that the present rates of all fields are raised or lowered, as the case may be, by so many annas in the rupee. Hence no announcement was made number by number in the Satara District.

WATER-RATE REMISSION : SARAJPUR

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether remission on account of pat bandhara water-rate was given to the villagers of Sarajpur in taluka Javli, district Satara, in the years 1924-25 and 1925-26;

(b) what was the total amount due on account of such water-rate;

(c) what was the amount that was remitted;

(d) whether any local cess was collected on the water-rate that was remitted;

(e) what was the total amount of local cess so collected?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) Yes, but only in the year 1925-26.

(b) Rs. 573-8-0.

(c) Rs. 511-12-7.

(d) No.

(e) Does not arise.

REGISTRATION : SUPPLY OF COPIES

Dr. M. K. DIXIT (Surat District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether copies of documents were allowed to intending parties before they were copied in the Register Books before copying by photography was introduced in the Registration Department ;

(b) whether there was a provision under the old rules and orders of the department and there is a provision in the new rules and orders contained in the Manual of the Department for the grant of such copies :

(c) whether there is any order of the department subsequent to the publication of the new manual forbidding the grant of such copies, if so, whether that order was issued after the introduction of photo-copying system ;

(d) if so, why is this right and facility given to the public from old times taken away from the public ;

(e) whether there is any legal objection to grant copies of documents before they are copied in Register Books, and, if so, what and whether that objection came to the notice of the department after the introduction of copying by photography ;

(f) whether the grant of such copies (before documents are copied) is forbidden on account of the absence of original documents (which are sent to the photo office) in the sub-registrar's office ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) Before the year 1926 copies of documents tendered for registration were granted prior to registration.

(b) There was a provision for the grant of such copies under the old orders of the Registration Department which have been repeated in the Bombay Registration Manual, 1925.

(c) and (d) The orders were withdrawn in February 1926, as they were found to be illegal. The withdrawal had no connection with the introduction of the photo-copying system.

(e) There is no provision in the Indian Registration Act empowering a registering officer to give copies of documents tendered for registration before they are registered.

(f) Does not arise.

SCHOOL BOARDS AND LOCAL AUTHORITIES

Dr. M. K. DIXIT (Surat City): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that a difference of opinion exists between Local Authorities and their school boards in some places ;

(b) whether they have inquired into the matter with a view to find out the real causes of such differences ;

(c) if so, what the causes are ;

(d) what action they propose to take to rectify this unhappy state of affairs ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) and (b) The answer is in the affirmative.

(c) The difference of opinion in question is chiefly in regard to the interpretation of the term "general control" occurring in section 4 (1) of the Bombay Primary Education Act, 1923. Some Local Authorities apparently wish to exercise a detailed check over their School Boards and to interfere with their administration either on financial grounds, or on the strength of this "general control" vested in the Local Authority by section 4 (1) of the Bombay Primary Education Act, 1923. In the informal conferences of Chairmen and Administrative Officers, etc., held in August and September last, there was a strong consensus of opinion that it was necessary to give full powers to the School Boards and to secure them from undue interference on the part of their Local Authorities.

(d) Copies of the opinion of the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs explaining the nature of the general control which a local authority can exercise over its School Board have been communicated to all Local Authorities. In the present state of the law no further action is possible.

PLATFORM AT SHELARWADI STATION

Mr. N. R. GUNJAL (Poona District) : Is Government aware that there is no platform at the Shelarwadi station for the convenience of the pilgrims to Dehu ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : There is no high level platform but the Railway authorities state that arrangements are in progress to build such a platform at this station.

CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETIES : HELP TO AGRICULTURISTS

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether their attention has been drawn to leaflet No. 15 issued by the Registrar, Co-operative Societies, Burma, giving an abstract of provisions of the Civil Procedure Code and of the Provincial Insolvency Act which protect agriculturists from harassment from their creditors ;

(b) whether any action has been taken by the Registrar, Co-operative Societies, Bombay, for issuing a leaflet on the same subject ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) and (b) A copy of the leaflet has been obtained by the Registrar of Co-operative Societies, Bombay Presidency. He does not consider the publication of a similar leaflet to be necessary in this Presidency.

ROYALTY TREES : SALE TO KHATEDARS

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to give the names of the districts in which, and the year of their order by which, their right to teak, black-wood and sandal trees standing in occupied lands was sold to the khatedars ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Information has been called for.

DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION'S OFFICE STAFF

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of gazetted officers in the Director of Public Instruction's office and to state how many of these belong to the Hindu intermediate or backward communities ;

(b) the number of non-gazetted clerks in the office of the Director of Public Instruction and how many of them are Muhammadan and how many from the Hindu intermediate or backward communities ;

(c) whether it is a fact that in a temporary vacancy a Deccani Brahmin from Sind was imported to fill it ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) and (c) Already replied to.

(b) The first part of this question has already been answered. As regards the latter part, two of the total number of clerks are Muhammadans and two are Shimpis.

SCHOOL BUILDINGS, PITHORO

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the district local board of Thar and Parkar had constructed a building for a Madressah and Muslim boarding house at Pithoro some years ago ;

(b) whether the Madressah was subsequently taken over and removed by Government to Mirpurkhas ;

(c) the amount spent on the buildings of the institution by the board and by Government ;

(d) the rent, if any, now received by the board for the buildings ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) and (b) Yes.

(c) Rs. 20,369 were spent by the Board and Rs. 21,698 by Government ;

(d) The building of the Madressah was let out at a monthly rent of Rs. 25 from 1st May 1925 for a period of 12 months. The building remained occupied for 10 months. No rent has however yet been received by the Board.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : May I enquire to whom this building was let out on rent ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I will require notice of that question.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : Have any steps been taken to recover this rent ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : It is for the local board.

SIND JAGIRDARS : ZAMINDARI TENURE

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of Jagirdars in each taluka in Sind who have been granted land on Zamindari tenure in each of the last ten years ;

(b) how many of these were Hindus and how many were Muslims ;

(c) the total acreage of land in each taluka thus granted to Hindus and Muslims (separately) during the last ten years ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a), (b) and (c) The appended statement furnishes the information required.

PAD-IDAN-NAUSHAHRO ROAD

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the Pad-Idan-Naushahro road has latterly gone out of repair;

(b) whether it is a fact that there is a large amount of motor traffic on that road;

(c) whether any proposals for the improvement of the road is under the consideration of Government;

(d) when do Government expect to undertake the work of improving this road?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN HIDAYATALLAH: (a) The road is not out of repair excepting in certain soft portions which are being repaired.

(b) Yes.

(c) Government have sanctioned an estimate amounting to Rs. 33,000 for improvements to the road.

(d) The improvements referred to in (c) are being carried out.

PROVINCIAL SERVICES : SELECTION COMMITTEES

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind): Will Government be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that selection committees have been constituted for some of the Provincial Services in the Presidency;
- (b) what is the composition of each of these committees;
- (c) what is the tenure of office of the members of these committees?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: (a) Yes.

(b) and (c) (1) The Selection Committees for the Judicial Branch of the Bombay Civil Service consist—

(i) in the Presidency proper of not more than five members, three being ordinary High Court Judges, with the senior Judge as Chairman, and two Sub-Judges or Practising Barristers or Advocates or Pleaders;

(ii) in Sind. of not more than five members appointed by the Judicial Commissioner in Sind who is an ex-officio member and Chairman of the Committee. Out of the remaining four members—two are ordinary additional Judicial Commissioners and two are District Judges, or Sub-Judges or Practising Barristers or Advocates or Pleaders.

(2) For the Bombay Police Service the selection committees are—

(i) in the Presidency proper five members comprising—

LLOYD BARRAGE : ENGAGEMENT OF AN EXPERT

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) what stage the negotiations for bringing out an expert to advise Government as to the methods of construction of the Barrage have reached ;

(b) when they expect that the expert will commence his work ;

(c) what is estimated to be the cost of the employment of such expert ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : The matter is still under consideration.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : Is it suggested that the question of the appointment of an expert is under consideration or the question of his selection ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : In the affirmative.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The question was whether the question of the appointment of an expert is under consideration or that of his selection.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : What is the honourable member's question ?

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : I thought the Honourable the President had made it clear. My question was : Is the question of the very appointment of an expert under consideration or only the matter of selecting a proper person is under consideration ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : The latter.

PROHIBITION : KAY COMMITTEE REPORT

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind): Will Government be pleased—

(a) to state whether they have finished the consideration of the report of the Kay Committee regarding the financial aspect of the Prohibition policy ;

(b) to place a copy of the report of the Committee on the Council table ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) No.

(b) Copies of the Report have been furnished to all the Member of this House.

DISTRICT LOCAL BOARD, HYDERABAD : PROFESSIONAL TAX

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of non-official Hindu and Muslim members (separately) of the district local board of Hyderabad ;

(b) whether it is a fact that the district local board of Hyderabad has recently resolved to impose a professional tax ;

(c) whether it is a fact that some Hindu members of the board objected that the tax was deliberately intended to fall on Hindus and that it was besides open to other objections ;

(d) whether it is a fact that a number of professions mostly followed by Muslims was exempted from the tax ;

(e) whether it is a fact that several hundreds of Hindu shopkeepers sent in objections to the proposed tax ;

(f) whether it is a fact that when the tax proposals came up before the board for final sanction the Hindu members moved for the adjournment of the question but the motion was defeated by Muslim majority ; that they then moved that the tax be not put in view of the objections received but they lost the motion ; that they then moved for the reduction of the scale of taxation from Rs. 10, 5 and 3 to Rs. 5, 3 and 1 but the motion was thrown out ; that they then moved for the reduction of the scale to Rs. 8, 4 and 2 but with no success ; that they also moved that a low rate of Rs. 2 be imposed on professions of Muslims, e.g., blacksmiths, carpenters, weavers and potters, but the motion was rejected ;

(g) whether it is a fact that the professional tax as originally proposed at the meeting was sanctioned, all Hindu members present voting against it ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : (a) 8 non-official Hindus and 21 Muslims.

(b) and (c) Yes.

(d) Yes, but some of the professions followed by Hindus have also been exempted.

(e) to (g). Yes.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : With reference to the reply to clause (d), will Government specify the professions referred to ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Hawkers.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : On what grounds were they exempted ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Because they do not earn much.

SCHOOL BOARD, SATARA

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) why it was thought necessary to make nominations to the School Board of the Satara city local authority, when different communities were already represented on the Board by election ;

(b) the educational qualifications of the members so nominated ;

(c) whether men of better and higher qualifications were not available for nomination ;

(d) whether the nominations were made on the recommendations of the President of the local authority or the Collector of the district, or the Educational Inspector, C. D. ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a), (c) and (d) Government are not prepared to specify the persons they consult or to state in detail the reasons which influence them in making nominations to a School Board since selection is at their discretion. Broadly speaking, their choice is governed by a desire to secure a Board which is truly representative of the area within the jurisdiction of the Board.

(b) The members nominated on the School Board of the municipality do not possess any special educational qualifications but all of them can read and write Marathi well. One of them, Mr. Ramchandra Malhari Shinde, had worked as a school master in his private school for about 20 years.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : With regard to (a), the answer is “ their choice is governed by a desire to secure a board which is truly representative of the area within the jurisdiction of the board.” May I know what is meant by truly representative ? In what sense, the communal sense ?

The Honourable Dewan HARILAL D. DESAI : Not only in the communal sense, but in every sense. Sir, the honourable member cannot expect me to define exhaustively the various grounds that occur from time to time. I say every manner of consideration is considered when considering the question whether a particular person is a representative of the area or not.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : With regard to answer (b), what standard did the teacher mentioned teach ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I would require notice of that question.

EXCISE ADVISORY COMMITTEE, SATARA DISTRICT

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether there are any, and if so how many, liquor contractors or liquor shopkeepers on the advisory local excise committees in the Satara District ;

(b) how many meetings were held of such committees in each year during the last five years ; and whether non-official and non-liquor contractor or shopkeeper members were given any voice in controlling the liquor shops within their jurisdiction ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) The number of Excise licensees on the Excise Advisory Committees in the Satara District is as shown below :—

(1) Excise Advisory Committee for the Satara City Municipality	..	..	..	..	2
(2) Excise Advisory Committee for the Satara Suburban Municipality	..	..	..	..	1
(3) Excise Advisory Committee for the Islampur Municipality	..	..	..	..	1
(4) Excise Advisory Committee for the Mahableshwar Municipality	..	..	..	..	1
(5) Excise Advisory Committee for the Khatav Taluka Local Board	..	..	..	..	1
(6) Excise Advisory Committee for the Walwa Taluka Local Board	..	..	..	..	2
(7) Excise Advisory Committee for the Karad Taluka Local Board	..	..	..	..	1
(8) Excise Advisory Committee for the Patan Taluka Local Board	..	..	..	..	1

(b) The following number of meetings of the Excise Advisory Committees was held in each of the last five financial years :—

1922-23	..	..	..	..	Nil.
1923-24	..	..	..	..	Nil.
1924-25	..	..	..	..	6
1925-26	..	..	..	..	3
1926-27	..	..	..	..	17

Non-officials and persons not interested in the liquor trade had every opportunity of being heard on all matters brought before the Committee for consideration.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : With regard to the last part of the answer, it is stated that non-officials and persons not interested in the liquor trade had every opportunity of being heard on all matters. My question was whether they had any voice in controlling the actions of the excise committees.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : I can tell the honourable member that the different committees consist of, first, Satara city municipality, 10 elected members ; Satara suburban municipality 9 ;

Mahableshwar municipality 9 ; Khatav taluka local board 12 ; Walwa taluka local board 12 ; Patan taluka local board 12. So, all these persons are not interested in the liquor trade and are non-official persons who are elected on the advisory committees.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : The question is : Are they able to control whether they are able to control, the actions of the excise committees ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : The representatives express their views.

POSTAL CASH CERTIFICATES UNCLAIMED IN SATARA AND NAGAR DISTRICTS

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to lay on the Council table a statement showing the amount of the postal cash certificates issued in the districts of Satara and Nagar prior to 1918 which have remained unclaimed after the expiry of the period of maturity mentioned therein ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : The amounts representing the face value of such postal cash certificates are as follows :—

	Rs.
Satara .. .. .	..	..	..	1,70,420
Ahmednagar .. .. .	..	..	..	54,670

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : Will Government be pleased to state how this amount is to be utilised ? To what account is it debited ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : That question concerns the Imperial Government.

FIRST CLASS MAGISTRATE, ISLAMPUR

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state -

(a) whether they are aware that there had been a first class magistrate at Islampur in the Walva Taluka in the Satara District for the last 30 years and that there has been no first class magistrate there for the last year or so and that the people of that taluka have been put to a great inconvenience on that account ;

(b) what steps they intend to take to remedy the grievance ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) and (b) Between 1910 and 1920 the Mamlatdar of Walva, whose headquarters are at Islampur, was a First Class Magistrate. In 1920 a Resident Magistrate was appointed at Islampur. In 1921 the Resident Magistrate was moved to Karad, where he has worked ever since. Karad is only 19 miles from Islampur, and a regular public Motor Service runs between the two places. Therefore since 1921 there has been no need to provide a First Class Magistrate at Islampur. Seven different Mamlatdars have served at Islampur since 1920 ; of these two only were First Class Magistrates.

A Resident Magistrate of the First Class at Karad is a greater convenience to the inhabitants of Islampur than a touring Magistrate (i.e., a Mamlatdar) of the First Class at Islampur itself.

Karad was selected as the location for a Resident Magistrate in preference to Islampur because it was on the Railway and was more centrally situated. The Resident Magistrate, Karad, takes the first class cases of Walva and Karad talukas.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : Are there any reasons why a first class magistrate was not appointed ? Was he not available at Karad ? My question is whether any person possessing the first class powers was not available and therefore he was not appointed, or whether Government had any other idea in view.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I am not fully aware of the facts, but I presume that it was owing to considerations of administrative convenience that a mamlatdar not possessing first class power had to be appointed to the Walva taluka.

POT-HISSA SURVEY FEES

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that the present system of assessing “ the pot hissa survey fees ” on the average annual work of the survey party as a whole throughout a particular tract presses hard upon the ryots of individual villages ;

(b) whether they propose to modify the present system so as to levy the cost incurred in each village according to the work done in that village, so that each village will be liable according to the benefit derived by it ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) The system of assessing pot hissa survey fees is not as stated by the honourable member. The method of assessing these fees is that the total cost for the season or work done in a particular block or tract of villages is first ascertained and the cost is then assessed or distributed over the hissass, not at a uniform rate, but according to the size and value of these hissass. The cost of survey fees does not, therefore, press unduly hard on any one.

(b) No.

PARASNIS MUSEUM

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that the Parasnisi Museum at Satara is not open to students of historical research and that even permission to peruse the manuscripts and documents in the Museum is refused by the Collector of Satara to visitors like the well-known Historian Mr. G. S. Sardesai of Baroda on the ground that there is no competent officer to accompany the gentleman into the Museum ;

(b) whether, having regard to the fact that a large amount has been spent on the building and equipment of the Museum and the annual grant of Rs. 200 per month sanctioned for the Parasnisi family in the last budget, they propose to make some provision for the employment of a suitable staff to look after the Museum so that such contingencies as referred to above may not occur in future ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Mr. Sardesai made no request himself to the Collector. A local gentleman verbally asked on his behalf whether Mr. Sardesai could be let examine the manuscripts. These are believed to be valuable documents. They are sealed up in bundles, the contents of which have not been yet accurately determined. No Curator has yet been appointed for supervising the giving out of the manuscripts for research and ensuring their safe return. Until the manuscripts have been examined and listed by an expert staff, and arrangements are made for their being inspected under regular rules and supervision, they cannot be allowed to be handled by students at present.

The Collector, however, has arranged to show any reputable person over the Museum building, where he can see old engravings, pictures, maps, books, etc., which are exhibited.

(b) This part has been replied to.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : There is no answer to my question whether Government are aware that the Parasnis Museum is not open to students of historical research.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : That matter awaits the final completion of the agreement between Government and the family of the late Rao Bahadur Parasnis.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : When is a curator going to be appointed ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : After the agreement is entered into with the Parasnis family.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : Will it take one or two years ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : That depends upon the heir of Rao Bahadur Parasnis. The deed has been drafted. Whatever time he takes in signing the agreement will be the time which will be taken.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Is not the Parasnis family in receipt of the pension ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : No.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : What are the restrictions placed upon visitors by the Collector ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : It is not a question of visitors but of allowing them to handle manuscripts. The manuscripts cannot be allowed to be handled without any responsible officer being present and until such an officer is appointed, no one can be allowed to handle the manuscripts.

ANNEWARI IN BIJAPUR DISTRICT

Mr. M. D. KARKI (Kanara District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that a deputation consisting of some influential and leading citizens of Bijapur waited upon the Collector of the district to represent to him the grievances of the people in the famine-stricken areas of the district ;

(b) if so, whether it is a fact that they represented to him that as the annewari made by the village officers was faulty, it should be newly made with the help of the Panch ;

(c) if so, whether it is a fact that the Collector replied that this was not permitted by the rules and so their request could not be granted ;

(d) what other representations were made to him by the said persons with regard to the prevailing famine and what replies were given to them by the Collector ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes.

(b) No ; but there was a suggestion that in future non-officials should be associated with officials in making the crop annewaris.

(c) The Collector replied that there were no orders permitting the association of non-officials with officials but added that their views would be carefully considered.

(d) They referred to the decrease of cattle, to the opening of relief works, to the scarcity of drinking water and to irrigation. The Collector explained to them what was being done. Large quantities of Kadbi have been stored in the Bijapur District ; three large public works have been started by way of expansion of the Public Works Department programme ; tagavi has been advanced liberally for works which are providing employment on an extensive scale ; employment is also provided by means of the District Local Board road grants ; proposals for irrigation schemes in connection with the Malprabha and Ghatprabha rivers have been taken into consideration ; and Government are allotting as much money as possible for village water supply.

SHOLAPUR STATION YARD REMODELLING

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR on behalf of Mr. N. G. MAJMUDAR (Sholapur City) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the plans for the reconstruction of the various sheds and buildings, etc., of the Railway Station Yard at Sholapur are ready ;

(b) whether the Municipality or merchants and other constituents had been consulted as regards these plans, and if so, whether any suggestions have been made by them ;

(c) if answer to (b) is in negative, whether the Railway authorities will be pleased to do so ;

(d) the estimated cost of remodelling the Sholapur Station Yard ;

(e) when does the Railway propose to start the work and when do they expect to complete it ;

(f) will Government be pleased to place on the Council table the plans and estimates of the proposal mentioned in (d) above ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a), (d) and (e) The Agent, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, states that a scheme for improving the railway facilities at Sholapur is under consideration but that the plans and estimates are not yet ready.

(b) and (c) The Agent, Great Indian Peninsula Railway, states that the part of the scheme referring to goods-shed accommodation has been discussed at several meetings between the local authorities and the Divisional Traffic Manager and that the former are therefore aware of the proposals.

(f) Does not arise.

WATER SUPPLY, SHOLAPUR: REPLY FROM THE NIZAM'S GOVERNMENT

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR on behalf of Mr. N. G. MAJMUDAR (Sholapur City): Will Government be pleased to state if they have received any reply from His Exalted Highness the Nizam's Government in connection with the scheme to carry water through the Nizam's territory for supplementing supply of the Ekruk Tank at Sholapur?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: No reply has yet been received.

TECHNICAL SCHOOLS, SHOLAPUR AND BIJAPUR

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR on behalf of Mr. N. G. MAJMUDAR (Sholapur City): Will Government be pleased to state whether any estimates have been prepared for starting a technical school either at Sholapur or at Bijapur or at both the places, and if so to place the papers on the Council table?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Detailed estimates of the cost involved in the opening of a technical school at Bijapur only have been prepared. Government regret their inability to place the papers on the Council table at present.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI: How long has the question of the Bijapur Technical School been before Government?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: About three or four years.

KARMALA MUNICIPALITY: WATER SUPPLY

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR on behalf of Mr. N. G. MAJMUDAR (Sholapur City): Will Government be pleased to state -

(a) whether there was very acute shortage of water supply this year at and near Karmala in the Sholapur District;

(b) whether it is a fact that most of the wells had gone dry;

(c) whether it is a fact that people had to go a long distance of about two miles to fetch water for drinking purposes;

(d) whether any scheme is under consideration for the improvement of the water-supply;

(e) if so, when was it investigated and what is the estimated cost of the same;

(f) whether they have sent any scheme proposed by the Sanitary Engineer to the Karmala Municipality for consideration and with what results;

(g) the annual income of the Karmala Municipality and the amount that the Municipality will have to provide annually as interest and sinking fund for the above scheme;

(h) what amount they have proposed to give as grant for the early adoption and execution of this scheme of water supply ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : (a), (b), (c) and (d) Yes.

(e) The scheme was under investigation from the year 1909 and its estimated cost is roughly Rs. 1,80,000.

(f) The scheme was sent to the Karmala Municipality for consideration in 1923 and that body only recently replied that it was willing to finance the scheme. The scheme is yet to be examined and the Sanitary Engineer to Government has been asked to say whether the estimates require to be revised in view of the long time that has elapsed since they were framed.

(g) About Rs. 27,000. Unless the scheme is considered in details it cannot be said what the Municipality will have to provide annually for sinking fund and for payment of interest charges.

(h) This cannot be stated until the scheme is received by Government.

GOVERNMENT ORDERS ON QUESTIONS

Sardar G. N. MUJUMDAR (Deccan Sardars and Inamdars) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether any Government Orders have been issued on any of my questions asked by me during 1924, 1925 and 1926 in the Bombay Legislative Council ;

(b) if so, to state the headings of those questions and to place copies of the Government Orders issued thereon on the Council table ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Questions are put in Council for the purpose of eliciting information and not as suggestions for action. If, however, the Honourable Member will quote any assurance that may have been given in reply to any of his questions that particular action would be taken, information will be furnished.

JEJURI MUNICIPALITY : TAX-INSPECTOR

Sardar G. N. MUJUMDAR (Deccan Sardars and Inamdars) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the tax-inspector of the Municipality of Jejuri, taluka Purandhar, district Poona, used to get an extra allowance of Rs. 8 for school supervision when the school was under the Municipality ;

(b) whether the same allowance is still being paid by the Municipality even though the school is no longer under it but under the Local Board ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : (a) Yes.

(b) The Municipality has stopped the allowance from 1st August 1927.

OFFICERS' CAMPS, DOHAD AND JHALOD TALUKAS

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that Patels are still taxed for the Bandobast of Officers' Camps in Dohad and Jhalod Talukas ?

• The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : These Patels were neither taxed in the past nor are they taxed now for making the arrangements for officers' camps.

HINDU-MOSLEM TENSION, DOHAD

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) if it is a fact that some Muslims from Northern India visited Dohad in May last with a view to foment Hindu-Muslim tension there ;

(b) whether it is a fact that the Mamlatdar of Dohad knew that the Muslims had come there with this purpose ;

• (c) whether the Mamlatdar informed the District Magistrate of this fact ;

(d) if the reply to (c) be in the negative, whether they have taken any action in the matter ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) No Muhammadans from Northern India visited Dohad in May last with a view to fomenting Hindu-Muhammadan tension.

(b), (c) and (d) Do not arise.

MALE TRAINING COLLEGE, AHMEDABAD

Mr. J. R. PATEL (Kaira District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that they intend to close the training class for males at Ahmedabad ;

(b) whether it is a fact that an order to that effect has already been issued by the Director of Public Instruction ;

(c) whether they have ascertained that there is no further need of trained teachers for the primary schools in the Northern Division ;

(d) whether they have suggested or adopted any other course for supplying such teachers ;

(e) whether in view of the universal protest against the proposed step, they propose to reconsider their decision ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) to (e) Attention is invited to Government Press Note No. 1994-F, dated the 14th July 1927. The whole question regarding the restriction on the output of trained teachers from certain training institutions in the Presidency is under the consideration of Government and pending their final decision on the above question the provisional orders issued regarding the closing of some of these training institutions have been held in abeyance.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Is the secondary training class at Ahmedabad continued ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Yes.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : That means that the number of trained teachers will be added to.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Will the Honourable Minister be pleased to consult the local bodies concerned before arriving at the final decision in the matter ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : There has been discussion outside, and wherever the local authorities have more than the number of trained teachers they need they will be consulted and wherever they are less, we are not going to close the classes.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Will the training college be continued permanently ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : As long as the financial stringency of Government continues. We have allowed the present arrangements to continue ; we have not taken any decision for the future.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : When is any decision about the future going to be reached ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I cannot say that. Until a decision is reached, I cannot give you the decision.

SUBORDINATE EDUCATIONAL STAFF, SOUTHERN DIVISION :
NOTICES ISSUED TO

Mr. J. R. PATEL (Kaira District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether their attention has been drawn to the notice or letter No. 12-M—1930, dated Dharwar, 13th June 1927, addressed to the subordinate authorities by the Educational Inspector, Southern Division, intimating that all clerks and menials serving under them are liable to be discharged from service with effect from 1st July 1927 ;

(b) whether they have received petitions from the servants affected by the said notice submitting their grievances and praying for redress ;

(c) what course they have adopted or propose to adopt to allay the fears or to guarantee employment to those unfortunate servants ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Yes.

(b) Yes.

(c) The attention of the honourable member for the Kaira District is invited to Press Note No. 3825/4312-F, dated the 29th June 1927, copies of which have been communicated to all Members of this house.

PROPOSED INCREASE IN LAND REVENUE ASSESSMENTS IN (BAGLAN)
SATANA (?) AND MALEGAON TALUKAS

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that notices have been issued to agriculturists in the talukas of (Baglan) Satana (?) and Malegaon, District Nasik, that the land revenue assessments will be increased in those talukas, and calling for objections, if any, to the proposed increase ;

(b) if so, whether any objections have been received ;

(c) on what grounds the rates are proposed to be increased ;

(d) whether they will be pleased to lay on the Council table the report or reports of the Settlement Officer proposing the enhanced rates ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes.

(b) Yes ; many petitions have been received.

(c) Government have not yet received the Settlement Officer's reports.

(d) Does not arise.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : Have these petitions been disposed of ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : No, they will be considered when the settlement officer's reports come in.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : When are those reports expected to be received ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I cannot say exactly when the reports will be received but the matter will probably be considered early next year.

DECREES FOR SHARES OF CASH ALLOWANCES

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that co-sharers of partible cash allowances, who have obtained decrees from Civil Courts before 1907, are paid their shares directly from the Treasury, and are not required to enforce their claims by means of execution proceedings ;

(b) if the answer to this is in the affirmative, why is a distinction made between such co-sharers and others who have obtained decrees since 1907 and who are required to enforce their claims every year by means of execution proceedings ;

(c) whether they are aware that great hardship is often caused to co-sharers of partible cash allowances, who have obtained decrees since 1907 by reason of the fact that such decrees cannot be enforced for the following reasons, viz., first, cash allowances under the Pensions Act become due for payment on the 1st May of each year, secondly, the prohibitory order of the Civil Court must be served on the Collector and not on the Treasury officer and, thirdly, owing to the Collector's absence on tour, he cannot order the Treasury officer to make separate payment to the co-sharer in time ;

(d) whether they have considered the desirability of removing the hardship mentioned in (c), by ordering separate registers of co-sharers whose shares in cash allowances are recognised in Civil Courts, to be maintained and direct payment to be made to them from the Treasury ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) Separate payment is ordered only in cases in which both the following conditions are fulfilled :—

(i) the applicant sub-sharer has produced a Civil Court's decree passed before 1907 and supported by a certificate under the Pensions Act ; and

(ii) the Collector had been making a separate payment every year up till 1907.

(b) In 1907 Government declared it to be their aim to prevent the multiplication of names on their records and the consequent great increase of work which, owing to the unlimited extent to which partition is admissible under Hindu law, would result from the separate registration of all sub-sharers in pensions and allowances. They accordingly issued orders that, while there should be no interference with the partibility of pensions and allowances, nothing should be done to encourage partitions, that sub-sharers should be left to take such remedies against the registered sharers as they might be advised, and that the Collectors should not issue orders for the separate payment of shares except where it was not inconvenient to do so. The procedure referred to in (a) above was adopted in pursuance of this policy.

(c) It is a fact that persons who have obtained Civil Court decrees in respect of their shares in cash allowances since 1907, or who may obtain them hereafter, cannot secure their share of the allowance as easily as those who receive separate payment at the treasury. This is inevitable in view of the policy of Government as stated above. Government cannot consent to their accounts being encumbered by the sub-division of these allowances.

(d) For the reasons indicated above Government do not contemplate any departure from the policy specified above.

TRANSFERS OF SCHOOL MASTERS IN THE NASIK DISTRICT

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that much dissatisfaction has been caused among the local board school masters in the District of Nasik on account of the frequent inconvenient and unjustifiable transfers of many masters by the school board ;

(b) if so, whether they have enquired into the matter and taken steps to remove the dissatisfaction ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) Government are so informed.

(b) Enquiry is being made.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT: WORKING OF RULE UNDER SECTION 19-A

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District): Will the Honourable the Minister for Local Self-Government, as Senior Minister, be pleased to state—

(a) whether he and his colleagues in the Ministry have experienced any difficulties in the working of the rule under section 19-A of the Government of India Act ? If so, what are those difficulties ;

(b) whether there have been any cases of intervention in the administration of the transferred departments by the Secretary of State for India which have not been covered by the rule referred to above ? If so, will the Honourable Minister lay on the Council table a statement giving full particulars of those cases ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : (a) and (b) None.

COMPULSORY STUDY OF HINDI IN PRIMARY AND SECONDARY SCHOOLS

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District): Will the Honourable Minister of Education be pleased to state—

(a) whether he has considered the question of making the study of Hindi compulsory in the primary or secondary schools ;

(b) if so, what conclusion he has arrived at ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) and (b) The question of providing instruction in languages other than the recognised vernaculars, particularly Hindi, is under the consideration of Government.

POLLING AGENT, MR. JUNNARE : NASIK

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that one Mr. Gopal Rakhmaji Junnare went to the bungalow of the Collector and Returning Officer of Nasik on the 9th November 1926, and told him that Mr. Hiranman Narayan Shindore, a bench magistrate at Nasik, had put under wrongful restraint Mr. Vishwanath Balaji Gulaskar, a polling agent of Mr. Madhavrao Parsharam Patil, a candidate for election to the Bombay Legislative Council for the district of Nasik, at the last elections ;

(b) whether the Collector and Returning Officer issued to Mr. Junnare a certificate as polling agent of Mr. Madhavrao Parsharam Patil on the strength of the allegation that Mr. Vishwanath Balaji Gulaskar had been put under wrongful restraint and therefore was unable to work as polling agent ;

(c) whether the certificate was issued at the request of Mr. Madhavrao Parsharam Patil, the candidate, or of the election agent ;

(d) whether, in view of the fact that the information given by Mr. Gopal Rakhmaji Junnare about the alleged wrongful restraint constituted a cognizable offence and that too, in connection with such an important matter as council elections, the Collector and Returning Officer, in his capacity as District Magistrate or Returning Officer, made independent inquiry, or ordered it to be made, into the allegation or complaint of wrongful restraint ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes.

(b) No.

(c) Does not arise.

(d) No complaint was filed before the District Magistrate. In this connection the attention of the honourable member for Nasik is invited to the reply given to his question printed in the July-August sessions of the Legislative Council, printed at page 1094 of Vol. XX of the Bombay Legislative Council Debates.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : As regards (b) am I to understand from the reply given that no certificate at all was issued to Mr. Junnare as polling agent of Mr. Madhavrao Parsharam Patil ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I must ask for notice of that question.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : With regard to (d), why did not the Returning Officer, both in his capacity as Returning Officer and as District Magistrate, make independent enquiries into the allegations of wrongful restraint ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I understand that he took no action because he knew that a complaint had been made in another court.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : Am I to understand from this reply that a complaint had been instituted at the time ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I believe that was so.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : Was it not the duty of the District Magistrate and Returning Officer to make independent enquiry into the matter ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Is it his duty ?

IMPROVEMENT COMMITTEE : DEVELOPMENT DIRECTOR

Mr. H. M. RAHIMTOOLA (Bombay City) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) when Sir Lawless Hepper resigned as a member of the Improvement Committee ;

(b) when Government nominated another in his place under section 14 of the Improvement Trust Transfer Act ;

(c) the reasons of the delay ;

(d) whether they have designated the Secretary, Development Department, as Director, Development Department, for the purpose of the Improvement Trust Transfer Act ;

(e) if so, their reasons for the same ;

(f) whether they could not have introduced an amending bill for the purpose ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : (a) 30th November 1926.

(b) 11th February 1927.

(c) The appointment of Sir Lawless Hepper on the Committee was made in his official designation as the Director of Development. It was therefore considered first that no fresh notification to appoint a member in his place under the City of Bombay Improvement Trust Transfer Act, 1925, was necessary. As the post of Director of Development was abolished afterwards, the nomination of Mr. Bell under section 14 of the Act designating him as Director of Development for the purpose of section 10 of the Act was considered essential.

(d) Yes.

(e) Government considered it desirable that the Development Department should continue to be represented on the Improvements Committee.

(f) Government were advised that an amending Bill was not necessary for the purpose.

SUB-REGISTRARS : RETIREMENTS AND PROMOTIONS

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of sub-registrars in each of the first three grades who are expected to retire in the next five years in the different divisions of the Presidency and in Sind ;

(b) the number of sub-registrars in the second, third and fourth grade at present waiting on the maximum pay of these grades ;

(c) how many of these are likely to be promoted to the next higher grade ;

(d) what will be the maximum period of waiting by sub-registrars on the maximum of the grade for sub-registrars in the second, third and fourth grades ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN :

(a)	Division				No.
	Gujarati	..	..	..	5
	Marathi	..	..	..	9
	Kanarese	..	..	..	7
	Sindhi	..	..	..	5
					II	III	IV
(b)	Division				Grade.	Grade.	Grade.
	Gujarati	..	..	..	2	5	7
	Marathi	..	..	..	4	12	34
	Kanarese	..	..	..	4	5	8
	Sindhi	..	..	..	..	7	16

(c) All, except one in the second grade in the Marathi Division who is expected to retire in November 1927.

(d) This cannot be stated, as it depends on many factors such as superannuation, death, illness, resignation, etc.

NON-AGRICULTURAL ASSESSMENT, WAPI

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the value of the land per acre and the rates of special non-agricultural assessment levied at Wapi in Pardi Taluka, Surat District—

- (i) 25 years back,
- (ii) 20 years back,

- (iii) 15 years back,
- (iv) 10 years back,
- (v) 5 years back,
- (vi) now ;

(b) what are the special reasons for raising the rates to their present high pitch ;

(c) whether they intend to revise the rates and, if so, when ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU :

(a) Value per acre	Special non-agricultural assessment
(i) Rs. 600 for land near Daman Road Station yard and on the Daman-Lavachha road within $\frac{1}{4}$ mile from the station yard. Ranging from Rs. 50 to Rs. 200 elsewhere.	Rs. 5 per acre or 5 times the agricultural assessment whichever is greater (the village was in class II).
(ii) Rs. 800 for land situated within 200 yards on each side of the Daman-Lavachha road and within $\frac{1}{4}$ mile from the Daman Road Station (West).	Rs. 32 per acre.
Rs. 600 for land situated within 200 yards on each side of the Daman-Lavachha road and within $\frac{1}{4}$ mile of the railway crossing.	Rs. 24.
Ranging from Rs. 100 to Rs. 200 for the remaining land.	Rs. 5 per acre or 5 times the agricultural assessment whichever is greater, the village being in class II.
(iii) Do.	Do.
(iv) Rs. 1,000 for land situated near the railway station and on the Daman-Lavachha road.	Rs. 40.
Rs. 750 for certain land, viz., Survey No. 266 to Rs. 275, etc.	Rs. 30.
Rs. 600 for land situated some distance from the railway station.	Rs. 24.
Ranging from Rs. 200 to Rs. 350 elsewhere.	Rs. 10 per acre or ten times the agricultural assessment whichever is greater, the village being in Class I.
(v) Ranging from Rs. 1,300 to Rs. 7,000 according to the situation of the land.	As in (iv).

Value per acre	Special non-agricultural assessment
(vi) Now— Rs. 7,000 near the railway station.	The rates shown against (iv) are in force but in individual cases higher rates are levied according to the situation of the survey numbers.
(b) Because the market value of the land has gone up considerably.
(c) The question is under the consideration of Government.

NON-AGRICULTURAL ASSESSMENT, MADHI

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the value of the land per acre and the rates of special non-agricultural assessment levied at Madhi, taluka Bardoli, Surat District—

- (i) 25 years back,
- (ii) 20 years back,
- (iii) 15 years back,
- (iv) 10 years back,
- (v) 5 years back,
- (vi) Now;

(b) what are the special reasons for raising the rates to their present high pitch;

(c) whether they intend to revise the rates and, if so, when ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU :

Value per acre	Special non-agricultural assessment
(i) Rs. 64.	Rs. 5 per acre or five times the agricultural assessment whichever is greater (the village was in Class II).
(ii) Rs. 832.	Rs. 16 per acre.
(iii) Rs. 455.	Do.
(iv) Rs. 935.	Rs. 20 per acre.
(v) Rs. 1,430.	Do.
(vi) Rs. 2,700 for land situated on either side of the Madhi-Valod road.	The rates shown against (iv) are in force but in individual cases higher rates are levied according to the situation of the Survey Numbers.
Rs. 1,400 for land situated on either side of the railway line.

(b) Because the market value of the land has gone up considerably.

(c) The question is under the consideration of Government.

HEADMASTERS : ATTENDANCE ALLOWANCE

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether attendance allowance is being given to headmasters ;

(b) whether this allowance is given to all headmasters or only to some of them ;

(c) if the allowance is only given to some of the headmasters, what are the reasons for not giving it to the other headmasters ;

(d) whether all the headmasters do the same kind of work ;

(e) if so, the reasons why they should not all receive the same allowance ;

(f) whether the committee appointed to consider the question of pay of primary teachers recommended the payment of the attendance allowance to all headmasters ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Duty allowance (now termed special pay) is given to headmasters.

(b) and (c) An allowance is given to all headmasters provided that no third year teacher with a total service of less than 10 years and no second year teacher with a total service of less than 5 years shall ordinarily be eligible for such allowance. The reason for this proviso is to prevent inexperienced teachers being appointed as headmasters.

(d) and (e) Yes. As the allowances depend upon the size of the school, the rates of allowances vary according to size. Moreover Urdu schools and schools for the Depressed classes have special scales.

(f) Yes, with the proviso as given in the answer to (b) and (c).

These allowances are not given in some cases, for instance, Ahmedabad Municipality, as special scales of pay have been fixed with the approval of Government for the teachers to be recruited by this body.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Is the Honourable Minister aware that there is great discontent among the teachers by the introduction of this system of attendance allowance ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Yes.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Is the Honourable Minister going to take any steps to reconsider the scheme and do away with it ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Yes. The question is being considered whether by the abolition of these allowances the whole scheme of the pay of primary teachers could be arranged satisfactorily.

Mr. H. J. AMIN : Has not the scheme come out yet ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I have called for the figures from the Director of Public Instruction. He is collecting them for the whole area of the Presidency, and therefore it is a matter which will take time.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : By the expressions "third year trained teacher" and "second year trained teacher," do Government mean teachers who have had three years' training and two years' training ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Yes ; those who have been trained in the training colleges for the first year, for the second year and for the third year.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM: Have Government realised the inconsistency of the present practice which places teachers with three years' training at a disadvantage as compared with teachers with two years' training?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: In some cases it may be so.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM: The rule stated is that where a teacher has three years' training, he must serve not less than 10 years before he comes in for a head master's post; whereas a teacher who has only two years' training can get the allowance with only five years' service?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: The third year trained teacher is put in charge of a larger school, but the second year trained teacher is put in charge of a smaller school in a smaller village or town. Consequently, there is no disadvantage.

SCHOOL OF PIPARIA

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether there is a school in the village of Piparia, taluka Mandvi, district Surat;

(b) whether the village people have applied to Government for opening a school in this village;

(c) whether there are 39 boys and girls fit for attending the school in this village;

(d) whether the village people are willing to give a building for the school free if a school is opened in this village;

(e) whether Government have considered the request of the village people for a school in their village, and, if so, what decision they have arrived at?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Information has been called for.

SCHOOL AT BAGWADA

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether there is a school in Bagwada, taluka Pardi, district Surat;

(b) whether the average number of pupils in this school is over 50;

(c) whether there is only one teacher to teach all the boys in the school;

(d) what is the Government scale for providing teachers in schools, with reference to the number of pupils in the school;

(e) what are the special reasons why a second teacher has not been appointed to this school;

(f) whether, owing to the absence of a second teacher, the quality of education imparted in this village is very poor;

(g) what steps they propose to take to improve the teaching in this school ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Information has been called for.

LILAPORE SCHOOL : SIXTH STANDARD

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether Government was lately pleased to order the opening of a sixth standard in the school in Lilapore village, taluka Bulsar, district Surat ;

(b) whether the Head Master was asked to open the sixth standard if six or more pupils could be had for this school ;

(c) whether the Head Master reported that six pupils could not be had ;

(d) whether at present six pupils from this village, viz. (1) Magan Gopal, (2) Chhotu Chhiba Kumbhar, (3) Chhiba Jivan Dhebaro, (4) Vithal Bhika Bava, (5) Gokal Ghela, (6) Jivan Ranchhod Koli are going to schools in other villages ;

(e) whether Government propose to take any action against the Head Master for sending a false report to his superiors ;

(f) when they intend to open the sixth standard in this school ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Information has been called for.

AMALSAD LANDS DAMAGED BY SALT WATER

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that lands round about Amalsad, e.g., in the villages of Amalsad, Kachholi, Saribujrag, Sarikhurad, Kalmatha, etc., have been spoilt by sea water ;

(b) what is the area of land in each of the above villages which has been so spoilt by sea water ;

(c) why was this area allowed to be spoilt by sea water ;

(d) whether any remission of land revenue is being given by Government to khatedars whose lands have been spoilt by salt water ;

(e) what protective works would be necessary to prevent sea water spreading on those lands ;

(f) what would be the estimated cost of these protective works ;

(g) when will these protective works be—

(i) taken in hand,

(ii) completed ;

(h) whether the khatedars will be given remission of land revenue till these protective works are completed ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) No ; but the garden crops in Amalsad and Saribujrag are being affected, as the subsoil water in the wells has become saltish on account of the percolation of sea water.

(b) The area of which the crops are affected is 104 acres of Saribujrag and 217 acres of Amalsad.

(c) Does not arise.

(d) No.

(e) An earthen bund to be constructed every year so as to prevent the salt water from entering the creek and so spoiling the water in the wells by percolation.

(f) and (g) Such bundhs if put up by the agriculturists themselves conjointly in their spare time cost nothing. If the bundh work were done by outside labour it would cost about Rs. 100.

(h) The reclassification of the land, with a consequent reduction of the subsoil water rate, may become necessary.

THAKOR OF SANAND : RENT FOR OTLA

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether Darji Budha Mohan got permission No. 26 from the Municipality of Sanand by the Municipal Resolution No. 70 dated 2nd June 1923 in response to his application dated 28th May 1923 for making a Pakka Otle in the place of a Katcha Otle of his house ;

(b) whether the said Darji Budha Mohan was prevented by the servants of the Thakor of Sanand from constructing the Pakka Otle and was dragged to the Darbargadh of the Thakor and was forced to sign an agreement of paying Rs. 2 as Sakar and annas 2 as yearly rent for the Pakka Otle by threats and intimidations ;

(c) whether the said Darji Budha Mohan repudiated the agreement which he was forced to sign under threats and intimidation and gave a regular notice to the Thakor through the pleader Mr. Dalpatbhai Popatlal Shah to cancel that agreement ;

(d) whether the Thakor is still threatening the said Darji Budha Mohan to pay the yearly rent of annas 2 in spite of the notice of cancelling the agreement caused to be made under force ;

(e) if so, what steps Government have taken to prevent such threats and harassment to the poor people by the Thakor of Sanand ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes.

(b) This is his statement. He has however produced no evidence in support of it, and he has made no complaint to the district officials.

(c) He has repudiated the agreement and given the notice referred to, but, as already stated, there is no evidence that the former was obtained as alleged.

(d) Darji says that he has been asked to pay the rent, but that no steps are being taken to enforce payment.

(e) The question of the levy of rent is of a civil character. If any threat or intimidation is used, it is open to the aggrieved party to approach the proper courts. The Otle in question forms part of the wanta land belonging to the Thakor.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Is not the wanta land of Sanand under the jurisdiction of the municipality ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I am not aware of the precise facts. I presume that the municipality might have jurisdiction if this land formed part of a public street, but I do not know whether that is the fact or not.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Are not Government aware of the High Court judgment which has given the wanta land to the Thakor, subject to all the rights of the municipalities being preserved in tact?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I am not personally aware of it.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Even after the municipality has given regular permission to make a Pakka Olla, how can the Thakor interfere in the construction of the Olla ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I am not aware that the municipality has given permission.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Yes, it has given permission. In reply to part (a) of the question, it is stated that the municipality did give permission.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : The permission of the municipality referred to the construction of the Olla, not to the possession of the land. It is qualified by the rights of ownership of the Thakor.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : This wanta land is under the jurisdiction of the municipality.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I can only suggest that the person concerned should seek his remedy in the civil court.

Mr. A. D. SHETH : Is it not the rule that when permission is being asked of the municipality for construction, any one who wants to contest it on the grounds of proprietorship, etc., should come to the municipality and state his objections to it ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I am afraid I must refer the honourable member on that point to the Honourable Minister for Local Self-Government.

Mr. A. D. SHETH : I make that request to the Honourable Minister there.

THAKOR OF SANAND : MARRIAGE TAX

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Thakor of Sanand has imposed a marriage tax at the rate of twenty-five per cent. of the rent on the cultivators of his estate and has recovered it from the cultivators by threats of evictions against their will on the occasion of the marriage of the Thakor in 1923 ;

(b) if so, under what law the said tax was imposed ;

(c) what steps Government have taken to prevent the recovery of that illegal tax and to have the recovered amount of the tax returned to the respective cultivators ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) The Thakor's marriage took place three years ago, and contributions at the rate of 25 per cent. of the rent in some villages, and at a lower rate in others, appear to have been received on the occasion. These contributions are commonly known as "Chanla or Presents". Whenever there is a marriage in a talukdari family, the leading people of the villages of the estate offer such contributions, which are accepted or not as the case may be. On this occasion it appears that in some villages such as Koth, Vataman, Bholad, etc., the Thakor Saheb refused to accept the Chanla, while in others he did accept it. There is no proof that it was collected by threats of eviction and against the will of the cultivators, and no such complaint has reached Government.

(b) The contributions are not collected under any law, but in accordance with the custom obtaining in the estate.

(c) Government do not admit that any illegal tax has been levied, and do not propose to take any action in the matter.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Is it true that of the villages referred to in reply to part (a) of the question, those who were sturdy enough to refuse such a demand were excused, and the poorer villages inhabited by poor people were compelled to pay the Chanla ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I have not the least reason to suppose that that is a fact.

THAKOR OF SANAND : ENQUIRY INTO TENANTS' GRIEVANCES

3. Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Mahalkari of Sanand called the leading cultivators of the villages of Sanand estate on 12th April 1927 to Sanand Kacheri for representing their grievances to the Assistant Collector who was deputed for the purpose by higher authorities of Government ;

(b) whether it is a fact that Imambax, the Karbhari of the Thakor of Sanand, remained present throughout the enquiry of the Assistant Collector and the cultivators could not speak out their minds on account of the fear of the Karbhari ;

(c) if so, why the Enquiry Officer did not make his investigation independently in the absence of the Karbhari of the Thakor so that the real state of grievances of the cultivators could be found out and determined ;

(d) whether it is a fact that the Enquiry Officer remained as a guest of the Thakor during his stay and used the carriages and the motor cars of the Thakor ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes.

(b) It is true that Mr. Imambax, the Thakor's Karbhari, was present during the enquiry, but it is not the case that the cultivators could not speak out openly on account of his presence. The people were questioned on different points by the District Deputy Collector and were told that if they had any grievances, they might also see him in private or in Ahmedabad, but they definitely stated that they had no grievances.

(c) The Karbhari was present to answer the allegations, if any, made by the cultivators so as to enable the enquiry to be finished promptly on the spot. An inquiry could only be impartial if both parties were given an opportunity of representing their case.

(d) No. The Deputy Collector proceeded at noon direct in a taxi to the Mahalkari's office where the people had been summoned and he returned the same evening to Ahmedabad.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Are not Government aware that the people of these talukdari villages are terribly afraid of the officers of the talukdars and how is it that they did not conduct these enquiries in private, from the cultivators themselves, in order that the true facts might be elicited ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I submit that it would be very unfair to carry on an enquiry behind the back of the person who is accused.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : The enquiry is to be made as regards the grievances of the cultivators. If Government officers would approach these cultivators in private, it is possible that the true state of affairs would be known to them.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That is no question. It is a suggestion.

GUJARAT COLLEGE SECURITIES

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the details of the Gujarat College Securities, referred to on page 88 of 1927-28 Budget of the Bombay Government as having been handed over by the Government of India to the Government of Bombay and the income derived from them ;

(b) the donor of the said securities, the date of donation and the purposes for which the donation was made ;

(c) how long the securities remained with the Government of India ;

(d) how long the income of those securities was merged in the general revenues ;

(e) the total amount merged in the General Revenue before the Government of India handed over the securities to the Government of Bombay ;

(f) whether they intend to spend the accumulated income and the future income from those securities in connection with various specific requirements of the Gujarat College like hostels, laboratory, equipment, Scientific apparatus, libraries, etc. ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) It is presumed that the Honourable Member for Ahmedabad District refers to page 88 of the Blue Book for 1927-28 and the securities referred to on that page. If so, their particulars are as follows :—

Description of securities	Face value of the securities	Rate of interest	Annual income
	Rs.		Rs. a. p.
Government Promissory Notes ..	1,07,900	3½	3,776 8 0
Government Promissory Notes ..	15,000	3	450 0 0
Bombay Port Trust ..	36,500	4	1,460 0 0
Total ..	1,59,400	..	5,686 8 0

(b) The above securities along with the other assets of the Gujarat College came into the possession of Government when the college was taken over by them on 16th July 1912 in pursuance of the resolutions passed by the Society for the promotion of higher education in Gujarat. They are to be utilised for the purpose for which the Society was originally established, namely, the maintenance and management of the college.

(c) and (d) From 1912 to 1926.

(e) About Rs. 2,05,338.

(f) As Government have undertaken to meet all the expenses of the college in question and as they actually incurred and still incur all the expenditure on the institution from their revenues the interest on the securities as it accrued was credited to provincial revenues. The securities transferred to this Government by the Government of India have also been transferred to the Sinking Fund of the Bombay Development Loan and their value credited to provincial revenues. There is therefore no question of any income accumulating for fresh utilization.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Why has the Minister of Education allowed these securities to be transferred to the sinking fund of the Bombay Development loan ? These securities were intended to finance the Gujarat college.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Government are spending not only the interest on these securities on the Gujarat College but they are spending much more. Consequently they are using the securities in any way they like.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Then why is not the income from the endowment put down under the Gujarat College but given away to some other department for reducing the deficit of that other department ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : It is not an amount given to any other department. It is as security only.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Will the securities when received back be restored to the endowment fund ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Certainly, they will.

POLICE FORCE : PATRI

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the police force stationed in the villages of the Inamdar of Patri is a part of the police force of the district under the District Superintendent of Police ;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, the grounds why the Inamdar is enjoying the power of appointing or dismissing the members of that police force ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Enquiries are being made.

EDUCATIONAL DEPARTMENT, SOUTHERN DIVISION : DISCHARGE OF CLERKS AND MENIALS

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Educational Inspector, Southern Division, served an immediate notice, dated 13th June 1927, on all the clerks and menials, serving in the Educational Department, to the effect that “they are liable to be discharged from service from 1st July 1927 ;”

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative whether the services of the clerks and menials, affected by the said notice, were intended to be terminated by Government for any fault of theirs ;

(c) if the clerks and menials affected by the notice had committed no fault, whether Government intend to see that innocent clerks and menials will not be sacrificed without any fault of theirs ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Yes.

(b) No.

(c) The attention of the Honourable Member for the Ahmedabad District is invited to Press Note No. 3825—4312-F, dated the 29th June 1927, copies of which have been communicated to all Members of this House.

HIGH SCHOOL, MODASA : GRANT FOR 1926-27

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether a grant of about Rs. 3,400 was sanctioned by the Educational Department in the month of June 1926 to be paid to the authorities of Modasa High School during the official year 1926-27 ;

(b) whether it is a fact that the said grant was not paid to the authorities of Modasa High School during the official year 1926-27 ;

(c) whether the authorities of the Modasa High School sent repeated reminders to the Educational Department, requesting the payment of the sanctioned grant during the official year 1926-27 ;

(d) whether they are aware that the failure of the Educational Department to pay the sanctioned grant placed a great strain on the finances of Modasa Education Society which has constructed a building for Modasa High School by public contributions ;

(e) whether they intend to make good by making a special grant during the current official year 1927-28 ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) No.

(b) Yes.

(c) No reminder was received by the Director of Public Instruction, but the case was considered by him in March, and no grant was paid for lack of funds.

(d) No.

(e) No.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Is it not true that the authorities of Modasa High School were given an assurance that a sum of Rs. 3,400 will be given to them by the end of that official year as grant ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : All assurances of Government are subject to "funds permitted."

OCCUPANCY RIGHTS : MEHLOL ESTATE

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the cultivators of lands in the Mehlool Estate of the Panch Mahals have been living in the villages of the estate and enjoying full occupancy rights over their lands from times immemorial before the advent of the present Talukdar ;

(b) whether the Mehlool Estate has been under Government management for more than forty years ;

(c) whether the survey settlement of the lands of the estate has been made and assessment which the cultivators have to pay to the Talukdars has been fixed ;

(d) whether the Collector of the Panch Mahals as manager of the said estate has been selling by public auctions the occupancy rights of waste lands of the estate and very heavy prices have been paid for buying the occupancy rights in public auctions ;

(e) whether, by a notification No. 764 dated 17th December 1910, the then Collector of the Panch Mahals recognised the rights of selling or mortgaging the occupancy rights of lands of Mehlool Estate on payment of money stipulated in that notification for various types of transactions ;

(f) whether the present Collector of the Panch Mahals has by an Order No. W.A.D.-458 dated 9th December 1926 rescinded the said notification ;

(g) whether the Collector of the Panch Mahals is endeavouring to give retrospective effect to his new Order No. W.A.D.-458 dated 9th December 1926 by resuming all lands sold or mortgaged before the issue of the new order and auctioning them to the highest bidder unless the existing occupants retain the same by agreeing to pay three times the assessment for a period of ten years ;

(h) whether the cultivators of Mehlo Estate have protested to the Collector of the Panch Mahals against the new order ;

(i) if so, what steps Government have taken in the matter ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) There is nothing to show that the cultivators have been living in the villages of the estate from times immemorial. They never enjoyed full occupancy rights over the lands cultivated by them. They are all tenants-at-will.

(b) Yes.

(c) A survey settlement has been made and assessments have been fixed under it, but it is not the case that the rents leviable from the cultivators (tenants) are limited to such assessments.

(d) The occupancy rights over waste lands have never been sold by the Collector. What he did was to dispose of tenancies-at-will by public auction in some cases realising large sums of money on account of the great demand for land, keen competition and the good quality of the land.

(e) The notification forbade the alienation of tenancies, declaring that any alienated tenancies would be forfeited. At the same time, it gave discretion for the regrant to alienees, on certain stated terms, of alienated tenancies after the latter had previously been forfeited.

(f) Yes.

(g) There is no question of endeavouring to give retrospective effect. Certain tenants had passed agreements not to alienate or encumber the land without the previous sanction in writing of the Collector. In case where these agreements had been broken, the Collector has ordered that the land should be forfeited and regranted to the alienees on condition that the latter agree to execute Kabulayats for ten years and to pay an annual rent equal to three times the survey assessment and, that if they do not accept this offer, the land should be given to the tenant who offers to pay the highest rent.

(h) Some of the tenants have requested the Collector to reconsider the matter.

(i) The tenants appealed to the Commissioner, Northern Division, who has rejected the appeals, informing them that the execution of the Collector's order will be stayed for one month more to enable them to appeal to Government.

P. R. TRAINING COLLEGE, AHMEDABAD

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they decided to close the Premchand Roychand Training College for men in Ahmedabad and issued orders not to admit fresh students in the month of June 1927 ;

(b) whether the said orders were issued by the Director of Public Instruction ;

(c) if the answer to (b) is in the affirmative, whether the said orders were issued by the Director of Public Instruction under the instructions of the Honourable Minister of Education ;

(d) the reasons why Government were led to decide on the closure of the only training college of Gujarat and strike at the very root of primary education in Gujarat ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) to (d) Attention is invited to Government Press Note No. 1994-F, dated the 14th July 1927. The whole question regarding the restriction on the output of trained teachers from certain training institutions in the Presidency is under the consideration of Government and pending their final decision on the above question the provisional orders issued regarding the closing of some of these training institutions have been held in abeyance. The institutions are running at present.

CULTIVATORS' RIGHTS TO TREES : KUJAD VILLAGE

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that in paragraph 9 of the survey settlement report of Kujad, a village in South Daskroi Taluka of Ahmedabad District, the Inamdar has not been given any rights over the trees in the lands occupied by the cultivators ;

(b) whether, in spite of the rights over the trees having been given to the cultivators in the said survey settlement, the Inamdar of the village is obstructing the cultivators from taking the fruits or dry wood of the trees in the lands occupied by the cultivators ;

(c) if so, what steps they have taken to save the cultivators from the obstructions and harassments of the Inamdar ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) It is presumed that the reference is to paragraph 9 of the Jahernama dated 3rd February 1913 published in the village of Kujad. This paragraph did not declare that the Inamdar has no rights over trees in occupied lands, but declared that he should have no rights over any such trees over which he did not previously have rights and the produce of which had hitherto been enjoyed by the occupants. The previous records show that the Inamdar used to enjoy the produce of all trees in the occupied lands of the village.

(b) and (c) Do not arise.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Will they run throughout as at present ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The honourable member may ask the question when they stop.

BOMBAY PORT TRUST : INCOME AND EXPENDITURE

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the earnings of each of the three main departments of the Bombay Port Trust during the years 1924, 1925 and 1926 ;

(b) the expenditure of each of the three departments during the last three years ;

(c) whether any of these departments is working at a loss ;

(d) if so, how is the loss made up, and from what department ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangir : (a), (b), (c) and (d). A statement showing the income and expenditure of the Bombay Port Trust under the Account Sections maintained is appended.

With the exception of the Pilotage Account, which, under the Bombay Port Trust Act, 1879, must be kept separately from the General Account, the income and expenditure of the Port Trust must be considered as a whole, as it is not possible to divide the receipts or expenses, especially general and debt charges, accurately between the various departments, several works being constructed for the benefit of the port as a whole.

The working result of the Port for the last 3 years has been as follows :—

		General Account		Pilotage Account
		Surplus	Deficit	Surplus	Deficit
		Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
1924-25	.. ..	39,844	....	16,330	....
1925-26	.. ..	7,10,291	....	50,032	....
1926-27	.. ..	....	11,47,082	41,439	....

The deficit in 1926-27, which was due to depression in trade, was met from the Revenue Reserve Fund, which is the accumulation of surpluses of previous years.

BOMBAY PORT TRUST STAFF

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the total number of hands employed in the Bombay Port Trust from the Chairman down to the peon in all departments and their offices considered—Land and Bunders, Railway and Docks ;

(b) the number of these employees according to nationalities and grades ;

(c) the number of employees who are non-British subjects :

(d) the highest post held by each community ;

(e) how many outsiders were employed in the various departments, and on what starting posts and scales during the last three years ; and

(f) the reasons for giving to outsiders higher posts in the establishments ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : (a), (b), (c), (d), (e) and (f) Information has been called for.

BOMBAY PORT TRUST : BACKWARD COMMUNITIES

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) how many men (i) of the backward communities, and (ii) of other communities, were given appointments in the Bombay Port Trust services during the last three years ;

(b) how many of the senior or deserving men, belonging to the backward communities, were given promotions to higher ranks, during the last three years ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : (a) and (b) Information has been called for.

CLERKS IN THE BOMBAY MUNICIPAL DEPARTMENTS

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact there are 750 clerks in the various municipal departments of the Bombay Municipality ;

(b) if so, how many of these are Hindus, how many Parsis, how many backward class people, how many Muhammadans, depressed classes and others ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN HIDAYATALLAH : (a) and (b) The following table gives the information required :—

Hindus			Parsis	Christians	Muham- madans	Jews	Total
Advanced Class	Backward Class	Depressed Class
596	75	1	106	59	44	14	895

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR : Do Government consider this distribution of appointments equitable ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : That is a matter of opinion.

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR : Have Government taken steps to give effect to their resolution that 50 per cent. should be recruited from the backward classes ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : I do not think that they are bound by that resolution.

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR : Are not Government contributing towards the pension and provident fund of that body ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : No.

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR : Can not Government compel that body to give effect to their resolution ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Unless we are given that power we cannot do so under the Act as it stands at present.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Will the Act be amended in that direction ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : It is for the honourable member to bring in an amending bill.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Will the Honourable Minister support it ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : It will be considered when the honourable member brings in the bill.

Mr. N. E. NAVLE : Was this resolution circulated to all the local bodies ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : The resolution has nothing do with them and concerns only Government employees.

Mr. N. E. NAVLE : Is it desirable that local bodies should disobey Government ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : It is not meant for the local bodies.

GRAZING FEES, WEST NASIK DIVISION

Rao Saheb R. V. WANDEKAR (Nasik District) : Will Government be pleased to state whether fire protection has improved in Vani, taluka Dindori, district Nasik, and 15 other villages of West Nasik Division and whether they propose to reduce the grazing fee to 4 annas per head of cattle as in other villages ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : There has been a distinct improvement in the matter of fire protection at Vani this year and the grazing fee has accordingly been reduced to the rate of 4 annas per head of cattle. As regards the 15 other villages a grazing fee of 4 annas per head of cattle will be levied in all the villages except in the following six in which a reduction is not yet justified :—

- Nasik Range*
- (1) Anjanneri
  - (2) Chakora
  - (3) Dudgaon
  - (4) Ganeshgaon Nasik

- Dindori Range*
- (1) Hatnore
  - (2) Nalegaon.

WATER-RATES, WELL-IRRIGATION .

Mr. G. A. D. WASIF (Central Division): Will Government be pleased to state the reasons why the water-rates on well-irrigation on the Godavari river bank in Niphad Taluka are charged at Canal Irrigation rates ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : It is presumed that the Honourable Member refers to the water-rates levied for lift-irrigation from budkis on the banks of the Godavari River above the Madhmeshwar weir in Niphad Taluka. By their Notification No. W.I.-1815, dated the 17th February 1913, issued under section 5 of the Bombay Irrigation Act, 1879, Government have already declared that the water of the Godavari River and its tributaries lying above the weir at Nandur-Madhmeshwar would, after the first day of June 1913, be applied and used by them for the purpose of the Godavari Right and Left Bank Canals and consequently the portion of the Godavari River and its tributaries above the weir at Nandur-Madhmeshwar form, for all purposes of the Irrigation Act, parts of these two canals and therefore irrigation from budkis above referred to is charged at full-flow rates sanctioned for these canals for the following reasons :—

(1) that the budkis or lifts erected on the banks of the river above the head-works of the canals have the effect of withdrawing part of the supply to the canals, as they draw off water impounded for the use of these canals ;

(2) that the demand for water on these canals is great and that the whole of the supply available for them can be utilised for irrigation at full rates and consequently there is no reason why the canal revenue should suffer by permitting lift-irrigation at lower rates ;

(3) that in the majority of cases budkis or lifts are situated in comparatively shallow soil and as water can be taken whenever desired, it is often taken at shorter intervals than is permitted for canal irrigation ;

(4) that the advantage of being able to take water exactly when desired is such an asset that this counterbalances the cost of lifting ; and

(5) that as long as the available supply is not in excess of the demand for flow-irrigation at full rates on the Godavari Canals the levy of canal-irrigation rates on well-irrigation on the banks of the Godavari River above the canal head works is justifiable.

BILL No. III OF 1927 (A BILL TO PROVIDE FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT AND THE BETTER REGULATION OF COTTON MARKETS IN THE BOMBAY PRESIDENCY)

(As amended by the Select Committee)

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Sir, I present the report* of the select committee on Bill No. III of 1927 (A bill to provide for the establishment and the better regulation of cotton markets in the Bombay Presidency).

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The report of the select committee on Bill No. III of 1927 is duly presented.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Sir, I move that the bill be Second reading. now read a second time.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The motion is that the bill be now read a second time. Does any honourable member wish to speak on the motion ?

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Sir, I want to place one important consideration before the House in connection with the second reading of Bill No. III of 1927. Up to this time the villagers have been immune from the spirit of speculation that is very rampant in connection with cotton transactions in cities and towns. The people in cities and towns are affected by the spirit of speculation in transaction about sales and purchases of cotton. Although cotton is grown in the fields many transactions for sale and purchase of cotton take place in cities and towns by people interested in speculative dealings. When such markets are started in rural parts we should guard against the development of speculation in those markets. Therefore, it is necessary that in those markets only cash transactions should be allowed and all speculative transactions should be prohibited. If forward transactions are allowed in those markets, the cultivators going to them might get the spirit of speculation on account of the temptation of becoming rich by entering into speculative bargains, and the result would be that they would be losing a great deal and perhaps ruining themselves by those transactions. Therefore, it is necessary that we should guard against these markets being utilised for the purpose of speculation. Distinct provision should, therefore, be made that only cash transactions should be allowed under the auspices of these markets.

At the same time it is desirable that the cultivators who go to these markets should have facilities for storing their cotton in godowns and warehouses, so that they may be able to hold up their cotton until they get a better price. If they once take their cotton to these central markets, it will be very difficult for them to take back their goods to their villages and then undertake a new journey to the market for the purpose of realising better price. Unless godowns and warehouses are provided they will be at the mercy of the merchants. Therefore provision should be made in the bill for the compulsory provision of godowns and warehouses by the market committees. Subject to these remarks, I support the second reading of the bill.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Mr. President, I will remove the misapprehension in the mind of the honourable member. If you will see clause 6 of the bill, you will find that that clause empowers the local Government to make rules for the purpose of the management and regulation of cotton markets under this Act. And clause 7 says :

"Subject to any rules made by the local Government under the last preceding section and with the previous sanction of the Commissioner, the market committee may, in respect of the cotton market under its management, make by laws for the regulation of the business and the conditions of trading in such market and may provide that contravention thereof shall on conviction by a magistrate be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees."

Therefore, under the bill the regulation of business, the way in which the trade should be conducted, is left to the market committee, and the market committee will be at liberty to make by-laws suitable to the conditions of the locality. So, the matter referred to by the honourable member will not be the function of the Act ; it will be the function of the by-laws to be made by the cotton market committees.

Bill read a second time. Question put and carried.

Bill read clause by clause

Clause 2 (Extent) ordered to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 3 (Definitions)

In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context :—

- |                   |   |
|-------------------|---|
| Cotton.           | (i) "Cotton" includes ginned cotton, and unginned cotton.   |
| Cotton market.    | (ii) "Cotton market" means a market established under section 4.  |
| Grower of Cotton. | (iii) "A grower of cotton" shall not include a dealer or broker in cotton. If a question arises whether any person is a grower of cotton or not for the purposes of this Act, the decision of the Collector shall be final. |
| Prescribed.       | (iv) "Prescribed" means prescribed by rules or by laws made under this Act.   |

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR (East Khandesh District) : Sir, I move :

In clause 3 (i) omit words "ginned cotton."

My reasons are : the bill is primarily intended to protect a certain class of growers of cotton from being fraudulently dealt with by merchants dealing in cotton. The evidence before the cotton committee showed that ginned cotton is usually sold by traders or those classes of cotton growers who are rich and influential and who do not require any protection. I therefore think that sellers of ginned cotton do not require that protection which is required by people who sell unginned cotton. There is another reason why I oppose the inclusion of ginned cotton in this definition. It is not desirable that people who are able to take care of themselves should unnecessarily be interfered with by state in connection with their sales and purchases. The man who is able to take care of himself should be free to sell his commodity at any place and at any price he likes. I therefore think that 'ginned cotton' should be excluded from the definition of 'cotton' given in clause 3 of the bill.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The amendment moved is " In clause 3 (i) omit words ' ginned cotton ' . " I think the honourable member will agree with me that the word " and " also should be omitted in that case.

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR : Yes, Sir.

Question proposed :

In clause 3 (i) omit the words " ginned cotton and "

Mr. BALAK RAM : May I enquire, Mr. President, how the clause will read if the honourable member's amendment is carried ? Will it not read " Cotton includes unginned cotton ? "

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Is the honourable mover willing to improve his amendment in any way ?

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR : Sir, I am prepared to accept the wording suggested.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : What will the honourable member accept ? No wording has been suggested. Is the honourable member going to improve the wording of the amendment, and if so, how ?

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR : Sir, I move.

In clause 3 (i) omit the words " includes ginned cotton, and " and substitute instead the word " means. "

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The improved amendment is before the House.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Sir, the honourable member's argument is that persons who sell ginned cotton are quite literate and are able to take care of themselves and therefore they should not be protected. The object of the bill is to protect growers of cotton from undue exactions at the market. It may so happen that an illiterate man who is not able to sell his unginned cotton may get it ginned and bring it into the market, and yet he will be protected as the bill stands at present. The illiterate man will be protected under the bill, and it does not matter if the literate man is also protected. At any rate there is no hardship on the literate man. This argument was considered in the select committee and it was decided there to omit only the words " cotton waste " and the other parts of the definition were kept intact.

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR (East Khandesh District) : Sir, there are certain restrictions laid down by this bill with regard to the sale of cotton, and I think there should not be any restrictions placed upon individuals who are well able to take care of themselves.

Question put and lost.

Major W. ELLIS JONES : Sir, I rise to move that ;

" Section (iii) of clause 3 of the original do remain part of the bill. "

My reason for this proposal is that the select committee in its eagerness to bring the district local boards under the Act did not realize the value of the Divisional Cotton Committees to the Presidency and to the cotton grower. The Divisional Cotton Committees have for some time been doing very valuable work for the cotton trade and the cotton trade will have to continue to look to them for advice and guidance on many matters. The district local boards could not fill the place occupied by the Divisional Cotton Committees under any circumstances. The Divisional Cotton Committees which did not consist of Government officials, but of men who were impartial in their outlook and whose sole interest was the development of cotton and the fear that Government might force markets on the trade had so obsessed the minds of the members of the district local boards that they could see nothing but the absolute tying of the Act to the District Local Boards to prevent this. If official recognition which this clause proposes to give to the Divisional Cotton Committees is not given it would be exceedingly difficult to get people to serve on these Committees. Cases might arise in which petty jealousies in district local boards might prevent the establishment of a market. To whom then could the grower look for protection of his interests? Now that they have shown their desire to remove the initiative from Government, I can only say that in the interests of the cotton trade as a whole this clause should remain part of the bill, as there will then be a body whose interests are exclusively devoted to cotton, to whom Government and the trade can look for advice on questions which are somewhat wider than the honourable members who oppose this clause imagine. With these remarks I ask the House to accept the inclusion of this clause.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District) : May I say, Sir, that the honourable member Mr. Jones does not mean the divisional cotton committees which are going to be established under the Act, but he means the divisional cotton committees which are in existence at present?

Major W. ELLIS JONES : The honourable member forgets that the committees which are in existence have nothing to do under the Act.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Mr. President, I am sorry to have to oppose the amendment of my honourable colleague on the Indian Central Cotton Committee on this question. Perhaps he does not understand or does not know the constitution of the Divisional Cotton Committees. There will be two members to represent the cotton trade for the whole division on it. Out of five or 6 districts in a division there will be two members belonging to one or two districts and they may not know the interests and wants of the other districts. They do not know the conditions prevailing in other districts. I therefore oppose the amendment of my honourable friend Major Jones. At present the Divisional Cotton Committee is composed of two representatives of the agriculturists, two representatives of the co-operative movement, two Government officers and two merchants, who know something about cotton trade. It is purely a nominated body. There is nothing like election there and Government can nominate anyone they like. Therefore, I think the committee will not be acceptable to the growers. When the bill came before this House for the first reading it was given out by the honourable the mover of the bill that it is purely a permissive bill, and it was also said that it was brought forward in the interests of the agriculturists and Government will be confused by accepting this amendment. Suppose, for instance in my capacity as President of the District Local

[Rao Bahadur B. R. Naik]

Board, Surat, I say that I do not want any cotton market and in my capacity of a member of the Divisional Cotton Committee I require a market at a certain place, which of the two recommendations would be carried out by Government? They will naturally be confused. It has been admitted by the honourable mover of this bill, that it is solely in the interests of the agriculturists. Out of so many institutions created by Government and out of so many bodies composed of officials and non-officials the district local board may be safely said to represent the rural area which means the agriculturists. Therefore, I say that the district and taluka local boards are the proper bodies to represent the views of the agriculturists to Government. I am therefore, opposed to the amendment and am in favour of retaining the provision as it is.

Mr. R. S. ASAVLE (Bombay City, North): Mr. President, I rise to oppose the amendment moved by my honourable friend Mr. Jones. He was on the select committee and it would have been better for him to have suggested this idea there. But it was not at all suggested then. This idea came to his mind, I think, after the bill was passed in the select committee and the copy was signed by him.

First of all it must be borne in mind that the bill was introduced for the benefit of the cotton growers and not for the benefit of other people such as Government or even the cotton merchants. It was distinctly stated in the statement of objects and reasons that this bill is intended specially for the benefit of the cotton growers and as such this amendment should not be accepted by this House. I quite agree with the honourable member Rao Bahadur Naik and I endorse every word that has fallen from him. I must also state that if this clause was necessary it would have been included by the select committee if it had been brought before that body. But I put it to the House that as this was not brought before the select committee, and was not discussed there, it should not be accepted by this honourable House.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Mr. President, I think if I explain this matter it will meet the wishes of the House, because if the honourable member will please refer to the amendment to clause 4 (1) which I have suggested, he will see that it will meet his wishes. The bill as originally drafted consisted of two things. There was power of initiation given to Government and also there was the power of making a representation given to the cotton committee. The select committee thought that instead of the cotton committee there should be the district local board, but at the same time they took away the power of Government.

The amendment which I have suggested in clause 4 (1) is that after the words "The Local Government may" and before the words "upon a representation, etc.," add the words "after consulting the district local board and such other local authorities as they deem necessary or."

New if these words are inserted the wishes of the honourable member Mr. Jones will be met. I find that it is not only as the Minister in charge that I hold that view, but I find that the honourable members Mr. Jog, Rao Bahadur Kambli, Mr. Pataskar and Mr. Bhosle, also hold the view that the power should not be exclusively left to the district local board to make a representation as the clause now stands. The clause as amended by the select committee leaves it entirely to the district local board to take an initiative and to make a representation and thus the hands of Government are tied down, while the clause as originally drafted gave the power of initiation to Government. If the House amends the clause as I have suggested and as suggested by several other honourable members coming from the cotton growing districts, I think the honourable member Mr. Jones need not have any anxiety, because the power of initiation is there with Government, and I think at least Government should be credited with using that power in a way beneficial to the committee itself. So if the House is pleased to amend clause 4 as suggested by me, then the amendment proposed by the honourable member Mr. Jones is unnecessary.

The only question discussed in the select committee was whether the representation should be made by the cotton committee or by the district local board, and somehow or other the members of the select committee thought that for the interest of the cotton growers this power of representation should be given to the district local boards, but at the same time by a majority they thought that the power of initiation which was given to Government should be deleted.

But I find that there are several dissenting minutes from non-official members and they think that the power of initiation ought to be there, because there are several cotton markets at places like Hubli, Dhulia etc., and if such power is not given to Government and if there is a representation made by a municipality or a cotton committee and if the hands of Government are tied down, those representations may be brushed aside and there would be a great hardship.

Therefore if the amendment which I have proposed is accepted by the House the wishes of the honourable member Mr. Jones will be met.

MR. NOOR MAHOMED (Hyderabad District): Sir, I think the Honourable Minister by saying what he has done just now is going back upon the position that he had finally taken in the select committee, after full discussion.

In the select committee, Sir, it was pointedly made out that the local boards were the proper representatives of rural areas and of the growers of cotton; and that they were the fit bodies to make a representation to the Government whether cotton markets should be started in a particular area or not, and to that Sir, the Honourable Minister had agreed in the select committee—at least he never disagreed—but certainly he never said anything in the select committee that he would bring up this matter before this House.....

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: My minute of dissent is there. I also pointed out.....

MR. NOOR MAHOMED: He never said in the select committee that he was bringing this matter before the House. He agreed with the decision of the select committee on this point. But now he considers that it is unsafe to give this power to the district local boards; and by what he has stated in his minute of dissent he is going to create a fight between the municipalities and the local boards over the income that the sale of each bale or bag of cotton would bring to the local authority. If I am not revealing what happened in the select committee, I may tell this House that in the select committee there was a fight on this particular point.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. I may just point out that the Honourable Minister referred to his amendment, which may be reached hereafter, as a sort of a suggestion which he thought was a satisfactory reply to the honourable member Mr. Jones, namely, that if he waited a little, probably his object might be served if that amendment of the Honourable Minister is accepted.

Now although the subject is before the House, that amendment should not be discussed by the House at this stage. The question before the House is the amendment proposed by the honourable member Mr. Jones, and as a side argument the honourable member for Hyderabad district may refer to what the Honourable Minister has said.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED : I do not want to go into the merits of clause 4. I only say that the divisional cotton committees have not proved themselves to be representative of any area or any division of this Presidency anywhere. It represents nobody. Therefore, Sir, when we consider a measure like this which is said to be to the interests of the growers, I think to bring in this body merely to dictate where a cotton market should be or should not be is absolutely unsafe, and I request honourable members of this House to remember that this definition is incorporated in clause 4 and that therefore this amendment should be rejected.

Major W. ELLIS JONES : Sir, in view of what the Honourable Minister said, I would like to withdraw my amendment.

Question put and leave granted.

Major W. ELLIS JONES : My next amendment, Sir, is only to make the definition clear. It reads :

For clause 3, Sub-clause (iii) substitute the following :—

“ A grower of cotton shall not include a dealer or broker in cotton, although such a person may grow cotton. If a question arises whether any person is a grower of cotton or not for the purpose of this Act, the decision of the Collector of the district in which the person permanently resides shall be final.”

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : I will accept it, Sir ; the amendment only makes the meaning clear.

Question put and carried.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind) : Sir, I beg to move that —

“ In place of the word “ dealer ” in clause 3, sub-clause (iii), the words “ purchaser ” be substituted.”

And my reasons briefly are these. I think that while the objection to the inclusion of purchasers of cotton and brokers dealing in cotton among the class of people who are defined as cotton growers is sound, the same objection to sellers of cotton does not appear to me to be sound. Where cotton transactions take place in a market, there are two parties represented, the seller and the purchaser. The seller stands in the shoes sometimes of a cotton grower. It is the interest of the cotton grower, as represented directly by him in the market or his agent or as represented indirectly by the seller that Government wishes to protect, and, therefore, if you so define the cotton grower as to exclude the seller, what will happen will be that on the cotton market committee you will have cotton growers, but probably many of the actual dealers on behalf of the cotton growers in the market will be sellers, even though they may not be themselves growing cotton. It is not every cotton grower who brings his cotton to the market. Many cotton growers sell their cotton to others, who go and sell it in the market, and there in the market, the seller stands in the shoes of the cotton grower. Every advantage which the seller gains under the market committee's rules is an advantage really given to the cotton grower, and therefore, a provision has got to be made to include in the cotton growers electorate sellers who may not be cotton growers. Otherwise, what will be the consequence? You have got two electorates for representation on this market committee—the cotton growers and the dealers in cotton. By dealers in cotton it will mean both sellers and purchasers. Then, in that electorate you are throwing together people representing two conflicting interests. It is the interest of the seller which is in conflict with the interest of the purchaser, and if you throw that seller out of the electorate of the cotton growers with whom his interests coincide and put him in the same electorate with the purchasers of cotton, you are bringing about a conflict in the latter electorate. You must exclude the seller from that electorate and put him in the electorate of the cotton grower. That is my point. I will explain it further. Suppose, I am a cotton grower. I am 30 miles away from the market and I sell my cotton to somebody who comes and purchases it from me. Now, I do not go to the market to sell my cotton. The man who has taken it from me is the man who goes to the market. Whatever advantage this man gets from the purchaser is an advantage really accruing to me sooner or later. Whatever better price he gets will indirectly and ultimately in the subsequent transactions, come to me, and yet you are excluding the seller from the cotton growers' electorate!

[Mr. Jairamdas Doulatram]

Question proposed.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North) : Sir, I rise to oppose this amendment for the simple reason that the honourable member who has moved this amendment stated that the man who purchases cotton from the cotton grower should have also the right of being elected on the market committee. But I say, if he is afraid that the purchaser will have no interest in the sale of this cotton in the cotton market, that can be cleared off, because the cotton can be sold in the cotton market by anybody. No purchaser of cotton from the cotton grower is prevented from selling. He has got the right to sell his cotton in the cotton market. It is only that a dealer or purchaser will not have the right of being on the market committee, and for that reason or object the select committee has chosen this word "dealer," that is, one who deals in cotton and not one who grows cotton. He can only be on the market committee. That is the only difference. This is the definition of that word, and that is why the select committee came to the conclusion that the word "dealer" should be included, so that there should be no difference of opinion in the matter. That is why I say the honourable member will withdraw his amendment to the amendment.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED (Hyderabad District): Sir, I am surprised at the very clever way in which my honourable friend from Hyderabad has tried to include a new class of people, "the sellers" among the growers. This bill is meant to protect the interests of the growers against the whole world—the purchaser, the dealer, in fact any person who is not himself only a grower of cotton. Now, my friend wants that the class of "growers" should consist of the real grower as well as the middleman, the seller, who buys from a grower and re-sells to another seller, called in this bill, the dealer.

The "seller" of my friend is the middleman who wants to make profit, by purchase of cotton from the grower and its sale to another man. This bill is meant to put down the middleman who really takes the profit that should belong to the grower. He says it is impossible for the grower to go to the cotton market, his "seller" represents the grower in the market, and therefore, the seller should get the benefit of the cotton market. In fact he wants all the benefit to go to the middleman, namely, the seller. I think this is a curious amendment which is absolutely against the principle of the bill and therefore I oppose it.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Sir, I must oppose the amendment. As represented by two of the previous speakers, I submit that the question arose as to what representation should be given to the actual growers of cotton and what should be given to other interests. That is why it became necessary to define the words "grower of cotton." In that definition if we delete the word "dealer" and substitute the word "purchaser," then the honourable member also wishes that the purchasers, who actually take the cream out of the profit namely, the middlemen, should also get representation along with the growers. Some of the honourable members of the select committee insisted that two-thirds representation should be given to cotton growers, and I said that we should define the words "grower of cotton" so that representation reserved for cotton growers should not be taken away. Therefore the definition was inserted and to accept the amendment would be to go against the very principle of the bill.

Question put and lost.

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR (East Khandesh District): Sir, the amendment I wish to move reads as follows:—

"In clause 3, sub-clause (iii) before the word "dealer" add the word "habitual."

My reason is that at least in my district there is a class of cotton growers who, on occasions, purchase cotton and to that extent are also dealers in cotton, and I do not think that when a man is mostly a grower of cotton and only on occasions deals in cotton, he should be excluded, but that a habitual dealer alone should be excluded.

Question proposed.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Sir, the English word "dealer" connotes only a habitual dealer. If I sell my furniture, I do not become a dealer in furniture merely because for special reasons I have to sell my furniture. I do not think there is any necessity of inserting the word "habitual" before the word "dealer" because a person who merely makes casual purchases will not be a dealer.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North) : Sir, I oppose the amendment, because it seems to be a case of a big fish swallowing a small fish. Those who buy cotton from the growers, though they are not actually the traders or the dealers in cotton, make much more profit. The object of this bill is to benefit the growers of cotton. This object will be frustrated if the word "habitual" is inserted before the word "dealer." We are not going to find out whether the man who deals in cotton is a habitual dealer or only a permanent dealer. That we cannot decide and so this word "habitual" would be harmful to the object which the bill seeks to achieve.

Question put and lost.

Original amendment put and carried.

Clause (3), as amended, ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 4 (Notification of a Cotton Market) :-

(1) The local Government may, upon a representation made by the District Local Board, by notification in the Bombay Government Gazette, declare that any place shall be a cotton market established under this Act.

(2) Every such notification shall define the limits of the cotton market so established, and may, for the purposes of this Act, include within such limits such local area as the local Government may prescribe.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Sir, I wish to move the following amendment :—

In clause 4 (i), after the words "The Local Government may" and before the words "upon a representation, etc.," add the following words :—

"After consulting the District Local Board and such other Local Authorities as they deem necessary or."

As I said, the honourable member Mr. Noor Mahomed was certainly not right when he said that I actually said that Government did not want the power of initiative. I never said that. Not only I never said that in the select committee, but I made it absolutely clear as to how the clause was drafted and I immediately put down a dissenting minute by saying that if this power was taken away, as apprehended by the honourable members who come from the cotton districts such as my honourable friends, Rao Bahadur Kambli, Mr. M. G. Bhosle and others, some of the district local boards would be doing a thing which they should not do, not deliberately necessarily but carelessly or negligently, and they may not make any representation at all. In that case, if no representation comes from them, Government will have to sit quietly. Suppose a representation comes from a municipality within whose area there is already a cotton market, for example, Chalisgaon, and suppose that that municipality makes a representation and if that representation is a sensible one, Government will not be able to take action if the power of initiative is taken away from them. We are not averse to giving the power to district local boards. The district local board will be consulted, it has got the power of making representations. The different amendments are really one though couched in different words. The amendment which I am suggesting should not be construed into a wish on the part of Government to take power in order to force a market where it is not wanted, but it is meant to provide for cases where a market is in reality needed. I think there must be some power with Government to take action when a representation comes from a responsible body like a municipality or some other body. Government must have power to move in the matter after consulting district local boards and other authorities. This is the object of the amendment which I have moved.

[Mr. G. B. Pradhan]

Question proposed.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District): Sir, I rise to oppose the amendment proposed by the Honourable Minister. I do not want to say that what the Honourable Minister has stated is incorrect, but I am inclined to support my honourable friend Mr. Noor Mahomed as to what happened in the select committee. It was clearly understood in the select committee that the power of initiation should be taken away from Government. At the time of the first reading, the Honourable Minister in charge of the bill distinctly stated that he was prepared to place his cards on the table, and to meet the wishes of the non-official members of the House in any way they liked. Now, I think, the Honourable Minister is swayed away by the dissenting minutes of some of my honourable friends from the Karnatak, and other places and he wants to meet their wishes. Will the Honourable Minister be pleased to tell the House what earthly interest the municipalities have in the cotton growers. This bill simply relates to the establishment of cotton markets in the presidency. You have simply to know the views of the rural areas, and you have to indicate the agencies through which the views of the rural areas are to be known. As soon as they find out that they want to establish a market, if it is to be established in a municipal area, the members of the municipality will be consulted; the site will be selected with their consent. Nothing would be done without their consent. The intention of this clause is to find out the wishes of the cotton growers whether they want a market or not, and we have to decide on the best means of finding out their wishes, and it was decided, after full discussion in the select committee, that the district local board is the only agency which is suitable for this purpose. The Honourable Minister just now stated that there are cotton markets at present situated in some municipal towns. Does he mean to say that the members of those district local boards will say that they do not want a cotton market there? The site is to be selected by Government, and Government may establish a market. Where is the necessity of this amendment? It is superfluous.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Why?

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: Because, even to-day, though Government are not bound to consult the wishes of other bodies, yet it is the convention of Government that they consult the wishes of other bodies in connection with important bills. Government may take the advice of the municipalities, or the divisional cotton committees, or co-operative societies, and such other bodies interested. This is a permissive bill, and the amendment moved changes the whole aspect of the bill, and I strongly oppose it. It was the intention of the Honourable Minister that this should be a permissive bill, and he stated that he was not going to force anything on the public. But the amendment has changed the whole aspect, and now Government may after consulting the district local board and such other bodies as they deem necessary establish a market against the wishes of the cotton growers. Now, it is for the Government to decide whether to take the advice of the other bodies or not. The municipality may say that they want a cotton market and the district local board may say that they do not want ; in the same way, the co-operative societies may say that they want a market and the divisional cotton committee may say that they do not want it : and Government may say there is a conflict of opinion and they will not move in the matter. It is true that the hands of the Government have been tied down, as regards initiation and that was the intention of the select committee. I do not say that what the Honourable Minister has stated is incorrect, but he has agreed to the principle that Government should not take the initiative. The Honourable Minister has stated several times in the select committee that the bill as revised will take away from the Government the power of initiation. When he found out that that was the wish of the majority of the select committee, he agreed to it, and accepted the position.

Now, Sir, what is the defect with the members of the district local boards ? It has been stated that they might be negligent in performing their duties, and therefore Government will not at all be able to establish a market in a place where it is necessary. Now, honourable members know that the members of the district local boards are from the rural areas, and they can bring in a resolution in the district local board that such and such a place is suitable for a cotton market and it should be established. That matter will be discussed in the district local board ; the district local board will consult the taluka local boards, and communicate their decision that such and such a part of the district wants a cotton market. Government may then consult other bodies. Now, Sir, I have gone through the minutes of dissent of my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Kambli and some other honourable members and in one of them it is stated that perhaps there will be many lawyers and doctors on the local boards. If that is the danger in the case of district local boards, then it is the greater in municipalities, because lawyers and doctors will be in greater numbers in the municipalities. But mostly the district local boards are composed of members from the rural areas. Moreover, there is one thing which I want to impress on the mind of the Honourable Minister, that this is a bill primarily meant for the agriculturists. The municipalities and urban areas have no interest whatever in the cotton growers of the district, and I do not see why they should be given these powers of initiation. Therefore, I strongly oppose the amendment,

[Rao Bahadur B. R. Naik]

Then again, the wording of the bill is that Government "may" open a cotton market; they are not bound to open it, even if the district local board desires it. If the district local boards say that they do not want a market, Government are not bound to abide by their wishes. But the main point that I wish to bring before the House is that the members of the district local boards will not be so stupid and foolish as not to be able to look after the interests of the people concerned. I think that the amendment of my honourable friend Major Ellis Jones was far better than the amendment just now proposed by the Honourable Minister. It has changed the whole aspect of the bill; it has taken away the spirit of the bill. Government promised that this is going to be a permissive bill, but now they want to amend it in such a way that they will be in a position to thrust a market on the people, even if they do not want it. With these words, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir, I oppose the amendment moved by the Honourable Minister for Excise. This is a bill primarily meant for the cultivators, and the interests of the cultivators are likely to be well guarded by the district local board on which the cultivators have the greatest voice. Now, as soon as this bill is passed, all the unregulated markets are not going to be stopped. They will continue. Therefore, there is no reason to suppose that the unregulated markets that just now exist and are being worked will disappear as soon as this legislation is passed; they will continue. There is no question, therefore, of closing down a market that is already in existence. But it is a question for creating new markets. It may be a question for the grower of cotton to consider whether an unregulated market which already exists has to be regulated or not. There are two questions, the opening of new markets and the regulating of unregulated markets that already exist. If the agriculturists think that an unregulated market is against their interests and should be properly regulated, they will at once, through the district local board, decide to have the unregulated market put under proper regulations, and it is the business of the growers of cotton to make that recommendation to the district local board, and if a new market is to be opened, then also the growers of cotton will be able to make a representation to the Government for the purpose of opening such a market in the district local board. Consequently the district local board is the only body that can have a determining voice for the purpose of opening a new market or regulating the existing market.

There are two distinct points that are to be borne in mind. Always the interest of the growers and those of the consumers will clash. The municipal bodies will represent the point of view of the consumer and not that of the grower. The purpose of this bill which has been brought by Government is for safeguarding the interests of the cotton growers, because the cotton growers are illiterate and are being robbed and fraudulently dealt with by the consumers who are more literate and consequently better able to deal with growers in fraudulent ways. Therefore it is necessary that the growers of cotton should have the determining voice and this voice can only be exercised through district local boards. If the amendment is accepted, then even against the wish of the cultivators Government can open a new market. If certain other bodies wish to have a market, Government will be able to establish it even if the district local board is not in favour of it. The way in which the clause is sought to be amended will bring about conflict between district local board and municipality and between co-operative societies and district local board. In this way it will be a confusing spectacle before Government to decide whether to carry out the recommendation of the municipality or that of the district local board.

The fact that the Honourable Minister accepted the amendment of the honourable member Mr. Jones brings out the truth that Government want to safeguard the interests of the people who are really growing cotton and not the people who are dealing in cotton and pose themselves as growers. These people are excluded from the definition of "growers of cotton." If the interests of the growers of cotton are to be safeguarded the only body that is most democratic and most representative of them is the district local board which should have the determining voice. The Honourable Minister is attempting to go back upon the decision arrived at by the select committee. I think it would be better if the Honourable Minister accepts the decision arrived at by the select committee. Therefore I think that it would be better to allow the bill to stand as amended by the select committee.

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR (East Khandesh District): Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by the Honourable Minister. In the select committee the original section was so amended as to show that the Government may open the market on a representation made by the district local board. I do not understand how the whole aspect of the clause can be changed by the addition of the words 'after consulting, etc.' As has been pointed out by the honourable member Mr. Naik Government may or may not open the market. It contains only a provision for consulting the local bodies. What is intended by the amendment is that there should be some specific provision for consulting certain other interests also. Most of the existing markets which are to be regulated by this Act are within municipal areas. There are certain other interests also which are concerned in the establishment and regulation of these markets. There is absolutely no harm in consulting those bodies also, which Government could have done even in the absence of any specific provision to that effect. What is sought to be done by this amendment is simply to make it explicit by the addition of the words "after consulting ..... such other interests." Therefore I think that there is nothing wrong in the amendment. The local boards are not the only bodies which can safeguard and voice the interests of the growers. There are other bodies who are equally interested in cotton growers. I do not understand why there should be a conflict between the local boards and the municipalities if a provision is made that they also would be consulted. Even after consultation with the municipalities and the district local boards, Government may or may not establish markets in any particular area. I think that the amendment is only fair and I have given notice of a similar amendment that "after consulting . . . such other bodies whose interests are affected." I think that this is a sound principle that all other interests which are to be affected by this market should be consulted. I think that there is absolutely nothing wrong in the principle underlying the amendment.

Mr. R. S. ASVALE (Bombay City, North): Sir, I rise to oppose the amendment moved by the Honourable Minister. It was argued by the honourable member Mr. Pataskar that there are many other bodies which are interested in the establishment of a cotton market. It has been pointed out by another honourable member that municipalities have got nothing to do with the cotton growers who belong to rural areas of the district. The growers of cotton come from rural area, where there are no municipalities. Municipalities exist in big cities and towns. There the cotton growers do not reside at all. In municipalities only the cotton dealers and merchants reside. When the power is given to Government to open a market, perhaps they may be influenced by the big persons in the city areas and open a market against the wishes of the actual cotton growers. I am sure that if the amendment made in the select committee is accepted then it will be in the interests of the cotton growers. If power is vested in Government they may choose such places for market which would not be liked by the growers of cotton. The cotton growers have not been given any rights in the municipalities and so the municipalities have no right to claim that they should have a market at a certain place where they desire to have it. On the other hand the cotton growers are fully represented on the district local boards. It is quite clear from what the honourable member Mr. Pataskar stated that the existing cotton markets are in municipal areas. I am quite sure if these markets are beneficial to or are in the interests of the cotton growers they will not allow them to be removed. Cotton growers are first to look to their own interests and not to the interests of other people who have no concern with them. I do not think that the power sought to be vested in Government by this amendment should be given to them. This is not the time.

When introducing the bill for the first time it was distinctly stated by the Honourable Minister that the bill was in the interests of the cotton growers, as will also be clear from the statement of objects and reasons shown in the bill. Let us see how the present clause is beneficial to the cotton growers. If it does any harm to anybody then the clause can be amended in any other session after a year or two. We have been amending at every session of this House many other laws, and we can at any time pass an amendment changing this Act. At any moment Government can bring in an amendment to this Act, if they find that this is not beneficial either to the cotton growers or others. I therefore hope that the Honourable Minister will withdraw this amendment as he promised in the select committee.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind): Sir, I rise to support the principle of the amendment moved by the Honourable Minister. It appears to me that the trend of the objections of those who oppose the amendment is that certain rights of initiation conferred on district local boards under the original draft are being taken away by the amendment. It seems to me that even under the old draft Government did not hand over the final decision with regard to the location of cotton markets to district local boards. The wording "may upon a representation made by the district local board" makes the thing quite clear, and the further words to the effect that the markets may be opened in any place notified by Government in the Gazette makes the thing still more clear. All that this amendment proposes to do is to provide for a consultation with municipalities or other local bodies. If the amendment is read with the clause in the bill, you will find that the words "or upon a representation by the district local board" are retained; all that is added is that there should be consultation with other local authorities, which, I suggest should take place whether the initiative comes from the Government or from a district local board.

[Mr. Jairamdas Doulatram]

I also demur to the proposition that Government has only to look to the interests of cotton growers. No legislation can be so framed as to affect the interests of only one particular section of the people. While legislating the Council has to see that while protecting the interests of any particular section the interests of any other section are not unduly interfered with. If it is a fact that in many places the markets will actually be located, as I understand they are in some places located, within municipal limits, I think it is but fair that the municipalities concerned should also be consulted. After all, it is not the object of this amendment that Government should accept the municipality's recommendation and not the district local board's. Government has reserved to itself the ultimate power of declaring a market. Where a market is already in existence, and it is suggested that it should be shifted, the amendment does not say that if the municipality objects the objection will stand good. The amendment provides only for consultation with other local bodies and I think it is necessary if the bill is to operate fairly.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED (Hyderabad District): Sir, in this bill section 4 is the most important section. By this amendment the Honourable Minister seeks to take full powers for establishing or not establishing a market in any place as Government like. From the very beginning, the Honourable Minister has put forward the plea that he is bringing forward this bill in the interests of the growers of cotton. But to-day by this amendment he leaves the growers to the mercy of the municipalities, who have not the least interest in agriculture and agriculturists. I am afraid the municipalities if they are allowed any voice in the establishment of markets will look more to the interest they are likely to derive from sale of cotton within their own limits than to the interest of the growers. They will therefore support or oppose any proposal for the creation of a market from the point of view as to how much the municipality concerned is to gain or lose by the establishment of a market within or without its area. It is stated that there are "other sections" also interested in the sale of cotton besides the local boards. May I know what is the interest of the municipalities ? They have one and only one interest and that is to derive some income from the cotton brought for sale within its market : a certain number of annas per bale will be deposited in the coffers of the municipality when cotton comes for sale within the area of the municipality. By this amendment the Honourable Minister will, in effect, be protecting only the interests of the municipality. There is no misunderstanding about this point. Those who have advised him to bring this amendment have made him take a false step. The municipalities should never be allowed to have a choice in the matter of the location of a market under this bill. This point was very well discussed in the select committee and the decision of the select committee was against the inclusion of this amendment. If Government want to press this amendment, I am afraid the Honourable Minister will, with officials, carry the day. But then he should never come forward before the House and say that the bill is in the interests of the growers of cotton. Those who advised him to adopt this amendment have led him into a trap and they are the enemies of the growers of cotton.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division) : Sir, I find that the Minister has changed his mind. It often happens in the select committee that Ministers do not know their own mind, and it is sometimes pointed out to them by the Legal Remembrancer and others that they have blundered.....

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, I object to that statement.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Am I to understand that Government objected to it in the select committee ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : I did urge the Government view in the select committee.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Then there is a difference of opinion, a strong difference of opinion, about the fact. Some members say that the Honourable Minister sat silent there.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED : Sir, if you will permit me, I will say in fairness to the Honourable Minister that he wanted Government to have the power of initiating enquiries. He insisted on having the power of initiation with Government, but he gave way later on.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Then, it seems to me that he insisted upon it and then surrendered ; and after surrendering he repents that it was a disgraceful surrender, and he now wants to improve his position. But I am sorry to say that he will not improve his moral position at any rate, although he may carry the day. Originally the Honourable Minister's statement was that he would leave the bill to the House and Government would not force the legislation on the House. But now, Government wants to become a party to this amendment. If the Honourable Minister wanted to leave it to the House, he could have left this amendment to be moved by my honourable friends representing the municipalities. When Government becomes a party, it is a very difficult thing in this House to carry anything, unless the House insists upon Government carrying out their pledges. Here in this particular case the Honourable Minister will be well advised in not insisting upon this, leaving it to the House and withdrawing his own motion. This will be the right position for him to take : who can be the most interested party in this affair excepting the growers and their representatives the district local boards. I think it would be increasing the conflict between the municipalities and the district local boards adding confusion and embarrassing the position of Government. Therefore the Honourable Minister will be well advised to withdraw his amendment both from his moral and material point of view.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I would request honourable members not to refer to what happened in the select committee, but to proceed with the discussion of the clause before the House.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI (Indian Merchants' Chamber) : Sir, the clause which we are discussing is only in regard to whom Government should consult before declaring a place as suitable for a particular cotton market. The House must have seen that on this question there is a fight between the representatives of the municipality and the local boards. I do not wish to enter into that controversy because both those interests are capable of taking care of themselves. I am only referring to the argument that has been brought forward that these two interests are anxious for the interests of the growers and those independent members who are neither representatives of municipalities nor local boards will never consider that this is in the best interests of the growers. I am sorry to find that the honourable member Mr. Noor Mahomed has said that the Honourable Minister does not look to the interests of the growers. The principle involved in the bill is whether the establishment and the better regulation of cotton markets is necessary in the Bombay Presidency in the interests of the growers. It is not a question of protecting them, as the honourable member Mr. Swaminarayan has said, from the robberies of the consumer. The question is whether there is necessity for a market or not. I do not think it matters if one party or the other is consulted as regards the place where the market should be situated. We are placed in such a position that we cannot do anything against Government and the parties who are anxious to safeguard the interests of the growers should decide between themselves and come to a definite conclusion. If we are wise we ought to make up our differences and agree as to who should be consulted by Government.

Having said so much I will only say that if the bill is brought forward in the interests of the growers, how is Government going to be harmful to the growers if they consult only a particular body ? Every one is agreed that it is an advantage if the market is established. But how can we say that it will not be in the interests of the growers if one party is not consulted ?

Another thing that I want to say is that representatives of both parties have said much about the growers' interests. I congratulate them as they have got so large a number of sympathisers. But the dealer is a nobody. As a dealer I know that I am in a minority, but let me remind the representatives of growers that they cannot do without a dealer. The dealer is a third party who is neither concerned with the consumer nor the grower. With the majority that they command both these interests have deprived the dealer of even being represented at that committee and as they are in a minority they have to drop it.

I would next draw your attention to the irrelevant and irresponsible manner in which dealers have been confused with consumers. I wonder how the honourable member Mr. Swaminarayan, who is a philosopher and mathematician, should have confounded the dealers with consumers. I do not think that anybody can deny that dealers are a real necessity for any article that is produced or requires to be marketed. The grower will grow and it is the dealers who would get the price of the article that is grown. Unless he gets the price of what he grows the interests of the growers will not be served.

After all it is a small point as to which interests may be consulted. I appeal to both interests to unite and settle their differences. The bill is brought forward in the interests of the growers and it should not be sacrificed for the sake of a difference of opinion on a smaller matter as to which body should be consulted, the municipality or the local board. I, therefore, commend the acceptance of the amendment.

Rao Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI (Dharwar District) : Mr. President, I rise to support the amendment. It must be noted, Sir, that it is in the municipal areas that most of the cotton markets at present exist, and it is the municipalities that have contributed to the increase and growth of the cotton trade in this presidency by providing facilities for the trade. It is only reasonable and fair that these local authorities should be consulted in connection with the question of establishing cotton markets under this Act in any particular district. To give the power of initiative to the district local boards and to ignore the municipalities is to do great injustice to the municipal bodies. It does the local boards no harm if the Government is vested with power to consult the other local authority also. The amendment does not restrict the Government's power to consult only one body namely, the municipality, but it gives them a wider power, a power to consult not only the district local board but also the municipality. I submit that the amendment is a fair and reasonable one and ought to be accepted by the House.

Mr. J. R. PATEL (Kaira District) : Sir, I rise to oppose the amendment. The question is not whether the representative should be from this local body or that local body. There is no question about the location also. The only question is, would the amendment give that power to Government which is taken away by the select committee? As amended the section would read thus :—

“The local Government may, after consulting the District Local Board and such other local authorities as they may deem necessary or upon a representation made by.....”

Thus Government get the power to force markets at places where they may not be wanted.....

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHĀN : The honourable member is misreading the section. It is obligatory on the part of Government to consult the local board.

Mr. J. R. PATEL : No. I am reading the section correctly. The duty of Government would end at consultation. After consultation Government is free to establish a market even if the local bodies do not want it. They can force it upon them. There is nothing in the section which will prevent Government from establishing the market against their wishes.

Looking to the wording of the amendment Government is not bound to follow the advice of the local bodies. Government can set aside the wishes of the local body or can force the market on the local body even if the decision of the local body is against having it. I object only to that. If the district local board's advice is bound to be accepted, then I have no objection to the wording of this amendment. I may suggest some wording which will make it clear. I would suggest that some such words as "and after obtaining their assent" may be added after the word "consulting." That would serve my purpose, and would make the Act as innocent and permissive as it is represented to be.

Dr. M. K. DIXIT (Surat City) : Sir, the question of local boards and municipalities has been introduced in the discussion as regards the proposed insertion in clause 4. If the object of the bill is to protect the interests of the cotton growers their representatives should have a voice in deciding whether a cotton market is needed or not, and it is but fair that the district local boards being the representatives of the cotton growers should be the parties to be consulted in this matter. So far as I am concerned, I cannot say about other divisions in Gujarat, but I can positively say that in the Surat district local boards, I do not think there is a single lawyer who is a member of the district local board, while there are several lawyers and several doctors in the municipal boards of several cities ; and so far as I can see, municipalities have very little to do with the cotton growers in the districts. If a municipality wants to levy some cess or toll, it can easily do it by having toll nakas and levy charge on cotton that is passing. But to consult municipalities on this particular point and trying to supersede the jurisdiction of the local board is a thing which is not fair if the object of the bill is to protect the interests of the growers. Another thing which I wish to point out is that the original clause says that Government may upon a representation made by the district local board, etc., etc. Now, the amendment proposed wants to carry out a different meaning altogether, different from what the select committee has passed. It wants to carry an amendment which says "Government may, after consulting the district local boards" and so on. It is very good to say that Government will consult ; nothing like consultation if that will bring about a good result. But suppose there is an occasion that Government refer the matter to a district local board, and the district local board point-blank say "We do not want a market." Are the Government bound to accept the views of the district local board ? No. Consultation may mean that they are informed by Government "We are going to open a market, we think a market might be opened, and we hope the district local board will carry it out." Suppose the district local board unanimously pass a resolution that they should not do it, do you think Government are bound to accept the view of the local board, if the amendment of the Honourable Minister is carried? Of course, if the Honourable Minister is prepared to accept the addition of the words "consent" in place of "consultation," that will be something, and if he wants to choose a better word than consultation, he may select the word "consent." He may have consultation and consent both. I think that would be the appropriate way, if we want to carry out the wishes of the district local boards.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member probably has not quite followed the amendment proposed. What the Honourable Minister proposes is that Government may take the initiative on two conditions, viz., either by consulting the local boards and such other authorities as they deem necessary or upon representation made by the district local boards.

Dr. M. K. DIXIT: I do follow the meaning of exactly what the Honourable Minister wants. What I want to convey is that it is the district local board which is the chief representative of the district cotton growers. Municipalities are to a very limited extent, if any, responsible for the interests of the cotton growers because members of the municipalities do not represent the growers, and if an occasion arises when a municipality says "By all means have in a particular place a cotton market" and the district local board, which are the real representative, say "We do not want it," how are Government going to decide? So, I have been saying that in deciding this particular question whether a cotton market should be opened in a particular place or not, the chief party concerned would be the district local board and not the municipality.

(After recess.)

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRAIDHAN: Sir, I am afraid that there is some misapprehension in the minds of some of the honourable members. In the first place, it is conceded on all hands that this is a bill which considerably improves the position of the cotton growers. There is no difference of opinion upon that point. All are agreed that the establishment of cotton markets is in the interest of the cotton grower. But some of my honourable friends think that municipalities and local boards will not agree as regards the establishment of particular cotton markets. In the first place, I must say that it is not a question of Government going back upon what they said. The clause, as it was originally drafted, ran thus:—

"The local Government may, after consulting the Divisional Cotton Committee or upon a representation made by them," etc., etc.

This clause consisted of two things, namely, that the initiative could be taken by Government or that there could be a representation either by the Divisional Committee or by the district local board. If I understood the different speakers correctly, I mean my honourable friends Rao Bahadur Naik, Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad, they seemed to think that the predominating voice should be with the district local board. The amendment as suggested by me would make the clause read as under :—

“ The Local Government may, after consulting the District Local Board and such other Local Authorities as they deem necessary or upon a representation made by the District Local Board,” etc.

This consists of two things. In the first place, in the first part we have made it obligatory upon Government to consult the district local board. The first thing which Government will have to do even if they take the initiative is that they must consult the district local board. Over and above that, the second part provides another safeguard. The second part provides that if the Government takes the initiative in its own hands, not only shall it consult the district local board but it shall consult other local authorities. When this discussion took place, there was a suggestion made when the clause was amended that instead of the word “ may ” the word “ shall ” should be substituted. Several members objected to the substitution of the word “ shall ” because they said that the hands of Government will be forced and they would have to start a market immediately there was a representation by a particular district local board. Now that is a position which they never wanted. So the word “ may ” was retained and therefore even if there is a representation by a district local board, Government may or may not establish a cotton market. It is not obligatory upon Government to establish a market. What the amendment seeks to do is that the initiative should rest with Government, but that Government will consult the district local board. Over and above that, they will consult other local authorities. There are so many safeguards, and so there should be no misapprehension that Government wish to override the wishes of the district local board or that Government wish to force a market where it is not wanted. The only distinction is that if for some reason or other a district local board does not move in the matter and Government think that they should establish a market at any particular place, then the first step they take is that they tell the district local board that they think a cotton market should be established at a particular place and they invite the district local board's opinion. In addition to that, they consult other local authorities, and after that they may or may not establish a cotton market. As I said, when you start from the hypothesis that this bill is an advancement and that it is necessary in the interests of the cotton grower, then the starting of a market will only be to the good of the cotton grower.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Suppose a local board says “ yes ” and another local authority says “ no ” ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : If Government think that the request of the municipality is a reasonable one and that it wants a market, then Government will establish a cotton market within the limits of the municipality only.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : For whom ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : If the honourable member will read the whole bill again, he will find that it is made abundantly clear that just because there is a market a grower of cotton need not bring his cotton to it, he is at liberty to sell it at his place or at his door. That is why an explanation has been added to clause 16. Let me emphasise this point that the bill does not intend that every grower of cotton must bring his produce to the cotton market. If he does come to the market, well and good. I moved this amendment, because I found similar amendments put down by my honourable friends Messrs. Ginwalla, Bhosle, Jog, Rao Bahadur Kambli, Mr. Pataskar, all of which show the trend of non-official opinion. My honourable friend Mr. Noor Mahomed seems to be afraid that this is setting up the municipalities against the district local boards, but I do not know why, in the first place, their interests should be conflicting. There need not be a conflict of interests. The moment you put in the word "may" you leave a sort of discretion to Government, and you pay them the compliment of possessing ordinary common sense, and you pay them the compliment of possessing ordinary discretion. That is why these different safeguards are introduced. You admit that the bill is for the benefit of the growers of cotton, and you admit that the establishment of a market will benefit them. But Government say "Even though it is for the benefit of the grower, yet we shall not establish a market simply because we think so, but we shall consult district local boards, we shall consult the different local authorities, and then we shall come to some conclusion one way or the other." I submit, I do not understand why there should be any opposition to such an amendment.

Question put and carried.

Clause 1 as amended ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 5 The (Market Committee.)

For every cotton market there shall be a market committee. The market committee shall be constituted as prescribed and shall consist of not less than twelve and not more than sixteen members. Of these not less than half shall be persons elected by the cotton growers of such area as the local Government may prescribe, one shall be a member nominated by the local Government, one shall be elected by the District Local Board of the area in which the cotton market is situated, one by the municipality, if any, in which the market is situated, and the remainder shall be elected by the traders in the cotton market in such manner as may be prescribed.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North) : Sir, I beg to move the following amendment :

In clause 5, line 8 delete the word "half" and insert the words "two-thirds" in its place.

In moving this amendment, I have to bring to the notice of the House that the same amendment was moved in the select committee, but it was not passed owing to the opposition of a narrow majority of one. My intention in bringing forward this amendment is that as the bill is intended to benefit the growers of cotton, and as the representatives of the growers are to be on the market committee, they should be at least in a majority on the committee. If only half the number is given to the cotton growers, it will not be sufficient to look after their interests. Unless there is a clear majority of the representatives of the cotton growers on the committee, it will not be beneficial to their interests. As I have stated with regard to other amendments, the intention of Government is to protect the interests of the cotton growers, as regards the prices of the cotton, fairer weighments and the prevention of illegal deductions. If the traders and the merchants together with the nominated members are in a majority or in equal numbers on this market committee, the interests specified in the statement of objects and reasons of the bill will not be properly looked after. Therefore, if the intentions of the Government are to be carried out, it can only be done by giving a little more power to the representatives of the growers of cotton. I shall explain why two-thirds of the committee should be of cotton growers. According to the bill, if the committee is to consist of 12 members, half of them, or 6 are to be appointed by cotton growers. But it is not only the poor growers of cotton that will be there ; there will be some who have interests either directly or indirectly with the cotton traders or merchants. There will be big landlords who have large fields of cotton, and they will have their interests at least indirectly with the cotton merchants or traders, and they will have their way to capture the cotton market and settle the prices of cotton, which will not be beneficial to the cotton growers. If really it is the intention of Government to help the poor agriculturists or cotton growers, then there should be a distinct majority of these people on the market committee. Unless that is done, they will never be benefitted and that will be the result if this amendment is not carried and if only half the number is given to the cotton growers. With these few words I hope that the honourable House will support my amendment in the interest of the cotton growers, if they really mean that they are going to do good to the cotton growers and the poor agriculturists.

Question proposed.

Major W. ELLIS JONES : Sir, I rise to oppose the amendment moved by my honourable friend Mr. Asavale. The proposal to increase the representation of growers on the market committee from one-half to two-thirds is not in the best interests of the cotton grower. In fixing the minimum at half of the committee, the Indian Central Cotton Committee had at heart the interests of the trade in general and the gradual education of the cotton grower in marketing conditions in particular. The honourable mover of the amendment seems to forget that the cotton trade consists not only of growers but of buyers and consumers, and unless these interests are adequately represented, it would be impossible for the market to work in the interests of the trade, and the grower will thereby suffer. There are two parties to a market, and in giving the growers 50 per cent. representation on the committee, Government and the select committee had this in mind. The amendment is nothing less than a betrayal of the cotton grower's interests under the guise of helping him.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind) : Sir, I regret I have to oppose the amendment moved by my honourable friend on this side. The proposal which he has placed before us for acceptance, if tested by the test of fairness, will perhaps be found wanting and I think this will be admitted even by him after further consideration. What is the constitution of the committee suggested in the bill? It is proposed there that not less than half the members shall be representatives of cotton growers. It is not that they are to be only half but not less than half. They can be more than half. Not only that, but if we analyse the details of the constitution of the committee we will find that there is a distinct and clear majority provided for the interest which my honourable member wants to be represented.

Let us look to the maximum and minimum number of members fixed for the committee. The maximum number of members is 16 and the minimum number is 12. If the committee consists of 12 members then not less than half of this shall be representatives of cotton growers. It may be more but there will thus be at least 6. There will be one representative of the district local board which it has been admitted represents cotton growers. So, we must assume that the man selected by the district local board will also be a supporter of cotton growing interests. It has been said that Government have the interests of the cotton growers at heart in bringing forward this bill and therefore it will be agreed that the Government nominee also will be a supporter of cotton growing interests. (Interruption.) I am coming to the municipalities. Let us have patience. Out of the remaining 4 one will be a representative of the municipality, who, let us assume, will not be a supporter of the cotton growing interests, and 3 will be representatives of the trade interests. If in a committee of 12 eight representatives of the cotton growing interest will not make their voice effective, I do not know what should be done to make their voice effective. Is it suggested that 8 men out of a committee of 12 are not competent to fight for their interests. To me this is surprising, perhaps instructive.

Let us take the maximum of 16. Not less than half, that is, 8 members, will be the representatives of the cotton growers' interests. One Government nominee and one member from the district local board will be additional supporters of the cotton growing interests. Ten members out of a committee of 16 will give these interests a "clear and distinct" majority.

Let us now consider what will be the effect of the suggestion made by the honourable mover of the amendment? He says that not less than two-thirds shall be representatives of the cotton growing interests. This means that out of a committee of 12, 8 at least shall be elected by cotton growers, one will be a Government nominee and one member will be elected by the district local board. That is, out of a committee of 12 there will be at least 10 men who are representatives of the cotton growing interests; and the remaining two only will represent the trade interests. To my friend this may seem fair but to me it seems very unfair. Let us take the maximum number of 16. It is suggested that two-thirds, that is, 11 at last should be elected by the cotton growing interests.

[Mr. Jairamdas Doulatram]

Then there will be one member elected by the district local board and one Government nominee. Thus as suggested by the honourable mover the committee will consist of 16 members of whom 13 will represent the cotton growers and only the remaining 3 will represent the trade interests. I think that a mere statement of these figures ought to convince my honourable friend that his proposal is not at all fair. The Council while framing laws ought to look to the interests of not one section but of all sections of the people. The market committee is also constituted for the purpose of dealing with disputes between the purchaser and the seller and thus it will have to go into many intricate and delicate questions. I think it will be recognised that in a committee of this type, we ought not to overbalance the interests of one party to the detriment of the interests of the other party. The drafters of the bill have provided that not less than half should be representatives of the cotton growers in order to make allowance for the absenteeism of such members, and yet give them a majority. I think the proportion given here in the original section is quite adequate to protect the interests of the growers of cotton.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Sir, I support the amendment moved by my honourable friend Mr. Asavale. In opposing this amendment the honourable member Mr. Jairamdas brought forward curious arguments. He included the Government nominee as a representative of the cotton grower. By including the Government nominee he made up a figure which will mislead the House. Twelve as the minimum and sixteen as the maximum number of the members of a market committee has been put down in the bill. If we take 12 certainly 6 will be representatives of the cotton growers. (An honourable member : Not less than half.) By including the Government nominee he made the figure as 8. The member elected by the district local board may or may not be a representative of the cotton growers. The honourable member has presumed that he will always be a grower of cotton. In this way the honourable member makes up the figure 8 which is incorrect. He calculates a figure which is exactly the number sought to be obtained by the honourable mover of the amendment. What the honourable member Mr. Asavale wants is that in a committee of 16 there should be 10 representatives of the cotton growers and in a committee of 12 there should be 8 representatives of the cotton growers. Therefore 'two-thirds' must be inserted instead of 'one-half'.

There is another argument in favour of this amendment. In the statement of objects and reasons it was stated that the representation of the cotton growers would be less effective than the representation of the other interests, because representatives of the cotton growers are scattered over a large area. In the case of the representatives of the trade interests they will be on the spot where the market committee is functioning. That is the main reason why greater representation should be given to the cotton growing interests. The representatives of the cotton growers live 10 or 12 miles away from the place where the committee is functioning. They will not be able to make their voice felt so effectively as the other interests because the latter will be on the spot. There it is desirable that it should be provided that not less than two-thirds of the members of the committee should be the representatives of the cotton growers. As this bill is intended to safeguard the interests of the cotton growers the majority required by the honourable mover of this amendment should be provided in the bill.

Mr. M. G. BHOSLE (West Khandesh District) (Addressed the House in Marathi) : Sir, I support the amendment moved by the honourable member Mr. Asavale. If it is a fact that this Act is being enacted for the benefit of the agriculturists, then the agriculturists should be given the right to elect two-thirds of the members of the market committee. If this is objected to, I must say that it is merely a sham to say that this Act is for the benefit of the agriculturists.

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR (East Khandesh District) : Sir, I rise to oppose this amendment. There is already a provision in the bill that not less than half the members of the market committee shall be representatives of growers of cotton. If markets are established, I think there ought to be other representatives also on the market committee. Not only the interests of the growers but also the interests of the dealers have to be taken into account. The provision made, viz., that not less than half should be cotton growers, should be enough.

Mr. R. S. ASVALE (Bombay City, North) : Sir, I need not say much in reply, because the supporters of this amendment, especially the honourable member Mr. Swaminarayan, have clearly pointed out why more representation should be given to the cotton growers. The cotton growers do not reside near the place of the market, they will have to come long distances from their villages to the market. When they themselves are engaged in growing the cotton in their own fields, it will be very difficult for them to travel the long distance and attend the meetings of the market committee. Therefore, the other members of the committee including the dealers or merchants who will be residing near the market place will always be able to attend every meeting and thus carry their day in the committee meetings. If this amendment is not carried, the very object of the bill, namely, the safeguarding of the interests of the growers of cotton will be frustrated, and the bill will not be to the benefit of the agriculturists at all. I would request the House to bear in mind that only two members of this House, the honourable member Mr. Jairamdas and the honourable member Mr. Pataskar, have been supporting such amendments as are against the interest of the cotton growers. They are opposing this amendment also with the same intention and object. They must have, I believe, some interest in the cotton business. There is no other member opposing the amendment except these two members, who have got their own interests at heart.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Is Mr. Jairamdas a big cotton merchant ?

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : Sir, I am not a cotton merchant. Somebody is pulling the honourable member's leg.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : He may not have been a merchant himself but he must have some indirect interest. If adequate representation is not given to the cotton growers, the other members of the committee not either brokers or who are buyers themselves but have indirect interest with the buyers may get the better advantage over the growers of cotton, and the agriculturists will not get the real price for their cotton ; thus, the object of Government, namely, to benefit the agriculturists, will be frustrated. I would therefore request the House to support the amendment if they have really the interests of the agriculturists at heart.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Sir, I think after discussing this clause in the select committee we met the wishes of the honourable member Mr. Asavale and others. When this question was being discussed there was no definition of "grower of cotton," and I myself suggested that a person who really deals in cotton or who is a broker, may buy a piece of land and grow some cotton and thereby say that he is also a grower of cotton and encroach on the seats that are given to the cotton growers. With a view to prevent that, the new definition was inserted. I will be corroborated in this by the honourable member Mr. Asavale himself. Then, over and above that, the Sind members proposed that one seat should be given to the district local board instead of to the "local authority" and that has been agreed to, so that that will add another seat to the cotton growers. Another member was given to the municipality, but I admit that member may not be a cotton grower. When a seat was given to the district local board, it was done on the express understanding that it will be an addition to the representation of the cotton growers.

Now, I will read clause 7 :

"Subject to any rules made by the local Government under the last preceding section and with the previous sanction of the Commissioner, the market committee may, in respect of the cotton market under its management, make by-laws for the regulation of the business and the conditions of trading in such market,....."

That means that the market committee will make by-laws regulating the conditions of trade in the market. Therefore, it was thought that there should be at least two or three members of the other interests who deal in cotton. Out of 12 persons, 6 persons must be representatives of cotton growers. Sub-clause 2 (i) of clause 6 provides that the local Government may make rules for "the election and nomination of members of the market committee, the number of members to be elected by each of the bodies or groups of individuals referred to in section 5, and the manner of election," etc. But the rules so made shall not be inconsistent with the Act. The rules made under clause 6 cannot be inconsistent with clause 7 which makes it obligatory that so many persons shall be elected by the cotton growers. If you take 12 to be the number of members, 6 will be elected by the cotton growers, 1 will go to the district local board, 1 to the municipality, and 1 for nomination, and there will be only 3 for the other interests. If there are 16 members, 8 will go to cotton growers, 1 to the district local board, 1 to the municipality, 1 for nomination, and there will remain 5 for the other interests. I submit that it will be unfair to the other interests to increase the number of seats given to the growers of cotton. Those interests will always be in a minority.

[Mr. G. B. Pradhan]

We have altered the definition so as to prevent dealers in cotton coming forward as growers of cotton ; we have given one seat to the district local board. In order to see that proper by-laws are made regulating the conditions of trade, the representation given to the other interests must be there. All this was explained in the select committee.

Question put and lost.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Sir, I move :

In clause 5, for the words "cotton growers" substitute the words "growers of cotton."

This is a formal amendment. In clause 3 we have defined "a grower of cotton." It is to make this clause consistent with clause 3, that this amendment is brought forward.

Question put and carried.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Sir, I move :

In clause 5, for the word "area" where it occurs for the second time substitute the word "district."

I submit that this is also a formal amendment. We have now inserted the words "district local board" in clause 5. The district local boards are of the districts. So, instead of the word "area" we should have the word "district." This is to make the language of the section consistent.

Question put and carried.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : My third amendment is :

In clause 5, after the words "if any" insert the words "of the area."

As I stated this is also a formal amendment.

Question put and carried.

Clause 5 (The Market Committee) as amended ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 6 (Rules).

(1) The local Government may, either generally, or specially for any cotton market or group of such cotton markets, make rules consistent with this Act for the purpose of the management and regulation of such cotton markets under this Act.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may provide for or regulate—

(i) the election and nomination of members of the market committee, the number of members to be elected by each of the bodies or groups of individuals referred to in section 5, and the manner of election, the preparation and revision of lists of voters from time to time, the payment of all expenditure in connection with or incidental to such election and the term of office of such members ;

(ii) the powers to be exercised by the cotton market committee ;

(iii) the election of the chairman of such committee and his term of office ;

(iv) the filling of casual vacancies in the offices of members or in the office of chairman of the market committee ;

(v) the management of the cotton market and the prescribing of fees by the market committee, and, subject to the provisions of this Act, the collection and disposal of such fees ;

(vi) the issue by the market committee of licenses to brokers, weighmen, measurers, surveyors and warehousemen and other persons using the cotton market, the form in which, and the conditions under which, such licenses shall be issued, and the fees to be charged for such licenses ;

(vii) the place or places at which cotton shall be weighed or measured, and the kind and description of the scales, weights and measures to be used at such place or places

[M. G. B. Pradhan]

(viii) the periodical inspection, verification and correction of all scales, weights and measures in use in the cotton market ;

(ix) the trade allowances which may be made or received by any person in any transaction in a cotton market ;

(x) the preparation of plans and estimates for works proposed to be constructed partly or wholly at the expense of the market committee, and the grant of sanction to such plans and estimates ;

(xi) the form in which the accounts of the market committee shall be kept, the manner in which they shall be audited, and the time or times at which they shall be published ;

(xii) the preparation of an annual budget and its submission for sanction, and the reports and returns which shall be furnished by the market committee ;

(xiii) the disposal of any surplus funds of the market committee ;

(xiv) generally for the guidance of the market committee.

(3) Any such rules may, when necessary, provide that any contravention thereof or of any of the conditions of any license issued thereunder shall on conviction by a magistrate be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees.

(4) All rules made under this section shall be subject to previous publication and shall, when made, be laid on the table of the Bombay Legislative Council.

Mr. M. G. BHOSLE (West Khandesh District) : (Addressed the House in Marathi) : Sir, I move that :

In clause 6 (4) for the words " shall, when made, be laid on the table " substitute the word " approval."

Clause 6 (4) as drafted enacts that the rules made by Government should be published and kept on the table of the Council only. But this is not right. Such rules are many times harmful to the public. Therefore it is but right and proper that such rules should be placed before the Council for its sanction. And that is what my amendment aims at. As this is an amendment which aims at adding to our rights as elected members, I hope none of my honourable colleagues will object to it.

Mr. BALAK RAM : Sir, I beg to suggest that the amendment moved by the honourable member Mr. Bhosle and the amendment to be moved by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale are both out of order. We have received a ruling from the Government of India—a ruling which the local Government have accepted— that a provision making the framing of rules subject to the approval of the Legislative Council and subject to the revision of the Legislative Council is ultra vires of the Legislative Council. It is true that such power has been given to the Council in some cases, but the legal position is more than doubtful, and I would therefore suggest that these amendments should be ruled out.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : May I say a word, Sir, because it concerns me also ? The question is when an Act such as the one we are discussing is being enacted a rule made in pursuance of a section which gives power to the local Government to make rules becomes part of the law. It is not like a bye-law. It is not as if the power is given to the executive Government to carry out the provisions of this Act and we are interfering or seeking to interfere with that power. Simply because it is not possible to anticipate at that stage what further requirements will be necessary, the section provides that the local Government may make rules not inconsistent with the provisions of the Act.

[Rao Bahadur R. R. Kale]

It has been interpreted by the High Court in cases which have gone up to them that the rules made under the rule making powers of Government, mean laws and therefore they have the force of law. I submit that it is perfectly within the competence of the Legislative Council to alter, modify or amend any particular rule, because, after all, it has to possess the force of law and I do not see how it can be said that it will be ultra vires of the legislature. It is the legislature which has to make laws and if the rules which are to have the effect of laws cannot be made, modified or cancelled by the legislature then who is to do it? I submit that it is within the competence of the legislature to do it. I am unable to appreciate the soundness of the reasoning given by the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs or for the matter of that the legal advisers of Government. It is a question of principle, because, you find that in several enactments the power of making rules is given to local Governments. Unless the Legislative Council is to be deprived of its power I do not think the Government of India in a matter of this kind has any authority to say that it is ultra vires. I do not know how the Government of India can consider this as ultra vires especially as this is a local Act. I understood the honourable member, the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, to say that it is the function of the executive Government to make rules and this Council will be interfering with the functions of the executive powers or the executive Government. I do not think, Sir, that this rule making is the function of the executive part of Government. The rule as it stands reads :

“All rules made under this section shall be subject to previous publication and shall, when made, be laid on the table of the Bombay Legislative Council.”

For what? For information or what? I do not understand. What is the meaning of this sentence here at all? Why should it be laid on the table of the Bombay Legislative Council? If the Bombay Legislative Council has no power whatever to make any amendment, then it is no use. The very meaning of this expression is that there should be that power. I am trying to supplement what is meant by the expression “they are to be laid on the table.” My amendment, of course, is slightly different. It runs :

“For one month previous to the next session thereof and shall be liable to be rescinded or modified by a Resolution of the said Council tabled at the next session.”

I therefore submit that it is really a function of the Legislative Council and it cannot be decided by a statement from the Government of India that it is ultra vires of the executive. That is what I understand.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I understand that there is a point of order raised and, therefore, I do not want any lengthy discussion on it. The honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale has spoken on that.

Mr. A. D. SHETH: On a point of information, I would like to know whether the Government of India has stated the particular section of the Government of India Act by which they have taken away this power of rule approving by this Council. I believe the Government of India in its executive department has no power to give a ruling to this Council.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I asked for the papers and the honourable member the Legal Remembrancer has shown them to me, and I find that the situation created is important. I would feel quite as jealous as the honourable House regarding its powers. But I find that the way in which the Government of India look at it, which the honourable member the Legal Remembrancer, I feel, did not make quite clear, is this, that supposing if this amendment proposed by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale, which is more explicit than the one before, is passed and accepted by this House, it would mean this that the rules be kept before the House for one month, and be liable to be rescinded by a resolution of the House. The honourable House knows that the method is a resolution, and according to rule 24—and the honourable members may refer to it—a resolution is merely a recommendation. Then, it becomes inconsistent with rule 24. That is to say, the method this House has is that of a resolution proposing to rescind, etc., certain portions of the rules made; and that resolution, according to rule 24 would be merely a recommendation, while the rules would be statutory under the amendment proposed, and that is inconsistent according to the Government of India. Now, I should like to hear what the Honourable Minister has to say.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Sir, the position which the Government of India probably take is this. Now, this is an Act which relates to commerce or commercial transactions. Now, as relating to commerce or commercial transactions, the commercial law is a central subject. If you will see section 80-A, sub-section (3), clause (c), it says:

“The local legislature of any province may not, without the previous sanction of the Governor-General, make or take into consideration any law regulating any central subject.”

So, commercial law is a central subject. So, this bill in so far as it relates to a commercial subject, becomes a central subject. So, this matter was referred to the Government of India for their sanction as we wanted to pass a law regulating a central subject, and in the preamble of the bill you will find we say “And whereas the previous sanction of the Governor General required by section 80-A of the Government of India Act has been obtained.” So, whatever ruling they give,—whether correct or not,—we have to abide by it. (Mr. B. G. Pahalajani: Oh, no.) A certain draft was submitted to them. Now, they argue, under clause 6 the rules are to be made by the local Government; if the Legislative Council chooses to make any change in those rules that can only be by a resolution. A resolution is a recommendatory thing. So they say by the draft which we have passed we have given the power of making rules to the local Government. If the power is given to the Legislative Council, they can make their choice by giving a resolution. That is merely a recommendatory thing. Transfer this power of making rules to the Legislative Council, and that power is ultra vires. If I say I am unwilling to take away this power from the Council, they being the sanctioning authority as regards a central subject, namely, a commercial subject, they say their sanction is given only for a particular thing. Even when the amendments were being made by the select committee, for every special amendment we had to see whether it required the sanction of the Governor General because it is a central subject, and we thought it wise to submit all the amendments made by the select committee to the Governor General. So, under section 80-A it is clear that for a central subject the sanction of the Governor General must be taken, and that sanctioning authority says: "If you in clause 6 make an insertion by which the power of amending rules is given to a local body (Local legislature?), we say it is ultra vires."

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind): Sir, there are three or four very important points involved herein affecting the privileges of the House, and after I give my reasons I am afraid the Honourable the President may have to consider the question at considerable length because this question has been discussed once before on the floor of this House.

The first thing I most strongly protest against is that the honourable member, the Legal Remembrancer, had no right to place the opinion of any executive Government in raising a point of order. It is the Chair which has to give the ruling without any influence of any executive Government to prejudice the House or the Chair.

The second point is that the Honourable Minister raised the question of the sanction of the Governor General under section 80A of the Government of India Act. The preamble of this bill says that this sanction has been obtained and that this bill has been brought forward with the sanction of the Government of India. In raising the point of order, the honourable member, the Legal Remembrancer, did not raise the question of sanction and he did not say that the necessary sanction has not been given. He is raising as a member a point of order for the Chair to decide, whether this provision is ultra vires or not. That is the question for the Chair alone to decide and this House has a right to demand that the Chair alone untrammelled by any executive Government orders shall decide it because this House is bound by no other ruling than that of the Chair.

So far as the question of a resolution is concerned, when the Honourable the Minister was a non-official member of this House, it was discussed when Sir Maurice Hayward was the Leader of the House. At the time of the Children Protection Bill, the same section was inserted, and I think I was the person who raised the question that if these rules have to be made law, how are they going to be moved and that a resolution is recommendatory. Sir Maurice Hayward then himself proposed a new Standing Order to remedy the situation to give this resolution finality. You find Chapter VIII-A—Statutory Motions—introduced on 20th April 1926. It reads:

"A member who wishes to move a resolution which he is entitled to move in pursuance of any statute or legislative enactment for the time being in force shall give ten clear days' notice unless it is otherwise expressly provided by such statute or legislative enactment," etc., etc.

[Mr. B. G. Pahalajani]

So that all such rules can be brought before the Council not by a resolution but by a statutory motion. Special provision is made for the procedure. So that while a resolution is a recommendation, a motion under Chapter VIII-A has the legal effect of recommending a particular rule which has the force of law.

Then the Legal Remembrancer raised a question—I think he may have seen it himself—about the approval of the House. I say there is no word—I will go even so far as to say that the question was raised by Sir Maurice Hayward when Leader of the House at the time of the Children Protection Bill, whether this House could interfere with the executive power of Government. Then the distinction made was this, that the rules made are law, but they are required to be placed on the Council table and that the rules are liable to be rescinded by a motion and that if no motion is brought, they become law automatically, not with the approval of the House. The House has the power of rescinding any particular rule by a special motion brought under Chapter VIII-A. The rules are law unless and until they are set aside by this House on a special motion. The rules become law automatically without any further deliberation unless the House actually takes hold of any particular rule, and unless a private member brings a motion under the Standing Order under Chapter VIII-A asking the House to rescind them. Therefore, I say that the approval of the House is not the question.

Then in the case of Mr. Surve's Bill to amend the Police Act of 1890, and again in the case of the Co-operative Bill and in the case of the Municipal Bill of 1925, the Standing Order under Chapter VIII-A was made use of, and it was laid down that the rules shall be placed on the table and shall be liable to be rescinded by a motion brought in the House. The Chair alone has the power to decide and not any executive Government. I submit that there is a provision made, that the question has been discussed on the floor of this House, Sir Maurice Hayward went into the question on our request and he introduced the Standing Order Chapter VIII-A, and I respectfully submit that this House is fully seized of the clause and there is no question of sanction of the Government of India. We have thrice got the ruling of the Chair, and there is no question now that this House is fully seized of the clause.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, I do not wish to enter into the merits of the question that has arisen, as I think the question has been sufficiently discussed by several members who have already spoken. We are, as explained by the Legal Remembrancer, working under certain conditions imposed by the Government of India. They have taken a certain view of the matter and he has explained to you what the situation is. I suggest that if it will suit your convenience you will hold this matter over till to-morrow, not give your ruling at once, and in the meantime proceed with other amendments. The Legal Remembrancer will examine the question more carefully in view of the discussion and will perhaps be able to discuss the matter both with the Secretary of the House and with yourself. That may perhaps assist in coming to an understanding which both sides of the House may accept. I do not for a moment wish to suggest that you are not in a position to give a ruling at once. I am certain that you could give a ruling at once and that you do not want the assistance of any member of the House, but I am just suggesting that there may be a little more time for consideration of this question if you are prepared to postpone it till to-morrow.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I have listened I think to a debate upon the point of order raised, at considerable length, and I think all sides of the question have been fairly and fully dealt with. There is no doubt in my mind that it is an important matter affecting the rights and privileges of this House. I have before me the instances of the three Acts the honourable member Mr. Pahalajani has mentioned. I myself was going to quote them now. When the honourable member, the Legal Remembrancer, raised the point of order, I made it a point particularly to see as to what was there on which he relied, because neither the House nor myself was in possession of anything that could be taken as an authority. I have just seen a telegram bearing on that particular point of view which I have explained to the House : but I do not know whether section 80-A need have been brought in or referred to at all : because the simple point is whether a resolution passed by this House rescinding certain rules made under an Act would be a resolution in the ordinary sense of the word "resolution" under Rule 24 and therefore a recommendation or not. If it were a recommendation, the Government of India would be perfectly right in holding that the situation would be inconsistent. But as the honourable member Mr. Pahalajani has pointed out, under one special Standing Order VIII-A which has a history bearing on this very point, it is a resolution in the form of "a statutory motion," and not a resolution under Rule 24.

Now, the point is clear to me, and I am perfectly ready, irrespective of the opinion conveyed to the Government of Bombay by the Government of India, and with due deference to it, to agree to every word that has been said from this side of the House. But there is one matter which I think I should mention in the interests of the whole House and it is this : Supposing this amendment is accepted and is inserted in the bill, and ultimately when the Act is sent for the assent of the Government of India, and that is not given, the House will have to abide by the result. One might therefore pause for a moment before asserting. If this bill is one which is dear to the people and to the agriculturists, then it would really be to the interest of the House to see that it sails through quite safely till the end. I do not mind waiting, after having made this statement on the views of the non-official side, till to-morrow to see the Legal Remembrancer or the Secretary, as the Honourable the Leader of the House has suggested, to hear from them as to what they have to say with regard to the negotiations the Bombay Government has had with the Government of India in this behalf. I can then give my final ruling.

The amendment and the consideration of the last portion of clause 6 will stand over till to-morrow.

Clause 7 (By-laws) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 8 (Sub-committees and joint committees and delegation of powers ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 9 (Appointments and salaries of servants of the market committee).

(1) The market Committee may employ such officers and servants as may be necessary for the management of the cotton market and may pay such officers and servants such salaries as the committee thinks fit. The committee may, in the case of any officer or servant of Government which it employs, pay such pension contribution, gratuity or leave allowance as may be required by the regulations made by Government in this behalf and for the time being in force.

(2) The committee may also, in the case of any of its officers and servants, provide for the payment to them of such leave allowances, pensions or gratuities as it deems proper; and may contribute to any provident fund which may be established for the benefit of such officers and servants.

(3) The powers conferred by this section on the market committee shall be exercised subject to any rules which may be made in this behalf by the local Government.

Mr. M. G. BHOSLE (West Khandesh District) : Sir, I beg to move the following amendment :

In clause 9 (3) at the end of it add " with the approval of the Bombay Legislative Council. "

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : This amendment might stand over till to-morrow, as the same matter is before the House in connection with clause 6.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : In connection with the proposal to postpone the consideration of this matter till to-morrow, I would mention one fact. It was very good of the Chair to have proposed what it did, but one thing is certain that these questions of law or what the result of passing the amendment will be are entirely beyond the function of the Chair.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. The step that I have taken need not frighten the House at all. I would take the remarks just made by the honourable member as personal. What I have suggested is only in the best interests of the House. It does not matter if I am left with the Legal Remembrancer or the Secretary to Government, but I can safely return to the House to-morrow.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : I had not the slightest intention of being personal.

Clause 11 (The market committee fund) :

All monies received by a market committee shall be paid into a fund to be called the " Market Committee Fund " and all expenditure made by the market committee under or for the purposes of this Act shall be defrayed out of the said fund : any surplus remaining after such expenditure has been met shall be expended as may be prescribed in the rules made in this behalf.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Sir, I beg to move the following amendment :

For the word " made " in line 6 substitute the word " incurred. "

Question put and carried.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : The next amendment which I wish to move is as follows :

For the colon occurring after the words " said fund " substitute a semi-colon and insert the word " and " after the semi-colon.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : On a point of order, as these are not amendments of substance, is it necessary to move them now ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I think the honourable member is right. These could wait till the third reading.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : I have to add the word "and," and I cannot do it unless I change the punctuation.

Question put and carried.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : The next amendment which I wish to move is :

For the word "expended" substitute the word "invested"

Question put and carried.

Clause 11, as amended, ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 12 (Purposes for which the market committee fund may be expended) :

Subject to the provisions of section 11 all fees collected by the market committee under this Act or the rules made thereunder shall be expended for the following purposes only :

- (i) the maintenance and improvement of the cotton market ;
- (ii) the construction and repair of buildings which are necessary for the purposes of such market and for the health, convenience and safety of the persons using it ;
- (iii) the pay, pensions, leave allowances and pensions or provident fund contributions of the officers and servants employed by the market committee ; and
- (iv) the expenses of and incidental to elections.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Sir, the amendment which I wish to move is :-

In clause 12, for the words "fees collected by the market committee under this Act or the rules made thereunder" the words "the market committee fund" shall be substituted.

The wording used in clause 11 is "the market committee fund," and the same wording should be adopted in this clause also. The "market committee fund" is a more comprehensive term.

Question put and carried.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Sir, the next amendment which I wish to move is :-

In sub-clause (iii) of clause 12, after the word "allowances" insert the word "gratuities."

Question put and carried.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North) : Sir, I beg to move the following amendment :

Delete sub-clause (iv) of clause 12, and add clause 12-A as follows : -

"12-A. The expenses of and incidental to election be borne by Government."

My object in moving this amendment is that the expenses of election should be borne by Government. In the case of almost all the elections that take place in the Presidency the expenses are borne by Government or the authorities concerned, and I do not see any reason why only in this case the expenses should be charged to the market committee fund. After passing so many clauses of the bill, we know that Government have got full power for selecting a place for a market and for appointing the representatives of some of the interests concerned ; so Government have got every concern with the market, and it is essential that the small portion of money that has to be spent on elections should be spent by Government themselves. When the power is with the Government, I do not see why the burden should be on the public. When the power is vested in Government the burden of expenditure should not be laid on the public. The election will have to be supervised by Government. If the expenditure is to be borne by the cotton market committee Government will have no check over them and the real object of Government will be frustrated. At least for this purpose in order to exercise a check, this expenditure should be borne by Government. After all the expenditure will not be much. We know how many electors will be on the roll. They will be very few and there will not be any change for many years in the electoral rolls. Even after fifteen years there will not be much change in the ownership of agriculturists who grow cotton. I assume that the election will not take place every year or every three years. There will be very little expenditure and at least this much must be borne by Government as the three-fourths revenue of the district is recovered from the agriculturists.

[Mr. R. S. Asavale]

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : There are two amendments which the honourable member has moved. It is quite natural but I wish to put for the present the first one, which is :

“ In section 12 delete clause (ir) the expenses of and incidental to elections.”

Mr. BALAK RAM : Sir, I take it that the two amendments moved by the honourable member Mr. Asavale go together really speaking.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I have put only the first amendment.

Mr. BALAK RAM : I think logically they go together. I wish to point out that the new section 12-A which the honourable member wishes to introduce is not in order, as I believe he has not got the sanction of the Governor under section 80-C of the Government of India Act. It is not open to this Council to proceed with this matter. If this is carried a special provision will have to be made.....

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : I think sub-clause (iv) was added by the select committee.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Quite so.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : I have nothing to add except the point of order raised by the honourable member Mr. Balak Ram.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The first amendment is before the House.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District) : Sir, this point was discussed in the select committee and it is known to the honourable mover of this bill. The question was raised where the funds should come from when the market is constituted for the first time. It was decided that the Government should incur the expenditure for the first time. But here I may point out that for several years the market committee will not have sufficient funds for expenditure. The expenditure on council elections is borne by Government and that on district local board election is also borne by Government. I fail to see any reason why this small expenditure also should not be borne by Government. It is Government that should carry out the provisions of this Act and who have consequently to hold the elections and it is but fair that they should incur this expenditure. It will not be very much. It may be argued that Government have not got any direct interest in the matter. But in course of time as the market improves and the cotton growers and the traders take advantage and if they be benefited and become prosperous, Government when they revise the assessment will likely benefit thereby.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Sir, if you please refer to clause 6 (2) (i) it is stated there :

(i) the election and nomination of members of the market committee, the number of members to be elected by each of the bodies or groups of individuals referred to in section 5, and the manner of election, the preparation and revision of lists of voters from time to time, the payment of all expenditure in connection with or incidental to such election and the term of office of such members ;

The rule is to be framed in which it will be incorporated as to what expenses should be incurred. As regards the difficulty pointed out by the previous speaker that so long as there is no committee in existence, there will be no funds for it. Appreciating that, a rule will have to be framed according to clause 6 (2) (i). But this section has been added at the suggestion of a non-official member. In the case of municipal elections the expenses are paid out of municipal funds. So long as the municipality was not in existence the first municipality when it was first constituted the election expenses must have been paid by Government. So also when a cotton committee is constituted for the first time there will be a rule that Government will bear the expenses. Suppose there is a market fund which is going to be utilized for building godowns, etc., then if a few rupees are spent out of this fund for elections that will be nothing. That election may not come once in 3 or 4 years. If a provision is made that expenses incidental to elections may also be a charge on the committee there is nothing wrong in it. Not necessarily this should be a charge. There are different items (a), (b), (c), (d) which are to be expended out of this market fund ; and one of the items is this. In the beginning the expenditure will be borne by Government. It is provided that the market fund 'shall be expended for the following purposes.' There are different items mentioned and one of them is this : 'expenses incidental to elections.' That does not mean the expenditure will be incurred on all those items. Under clause 6 provision has been made to make rule for meeting the expenditure for the first time when a market is constituted.

Mr. R. S. ASVALE (Bombay City, North): Mr. President, the Honourable Minister has accepted the principle that when first a market committee is to be started the expenses will have to be borne by Government. What I wish to press is that the attention of the honourable Minister may be drawn to the fact that this expenditure should not be borne by Government only once but until sufficient funds are collected by the market committee. Government will have to supervise the work of election of the representatives of the growers of cotton. Otherwise there will be much difficulty for their genuine election. When Government are going to appoint a nominee of their own on the committee, why should the committee be made to incur the expense? There will be representatives of the merchants also but none of them will pay a single farthing to the committee. The whole burden therefore will only fall on the growers of cotton. If the merchants pay for the expenses the election will be in their own hands. If Government really want to do good to the agriculturists they should take the power of conducting these elections themselves, as they have taken other powers under clause 4. The elections of the members to these market committees should be conducted by Government and Government should bear the expenses of these elections.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The next amendment has been moved by the honourable member and upon that the honourable the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs has raised a point of order which I need not repeat. I am sure that it means some burden on the provincial revenues and, therefore, under section 80-C sanction is necessary. There was only one thing which was incidentally mentioned by the Honourable Minister and that is when the rules were made in clause 6 he expected that some burden would be thrown on Government and that might put the House in some hope, though I do not know why and how. The House has felt, I believe, that some burden is intended to be put on Government which may probably be sanctioned. But this amendment throws the whole burden on to Government and at any rate under 80-C it is out of order.

Clause 12 (Purposes for which the market committee fund may be expended) as amended ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 13 (No trade allowance not recognised by custom or rules allowable) ordered to stand part of the bill.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Sir, I move that after clause 13, the following clause shall be inserted, namely :

“13A. Every market committee shall be a body corporate by the name of ‘The Market Committee of.....’ and shall have perpetual succession and a common seal, and may sue and be sued in its corporate name, and shall be competent to acquire and hold property both moveable and immovable, to lease, sell or otherwise transfer any moveable or immovable property which may have become vested in or been acquired by it, and to contract and to do all other things necessary for the purpose of this Act.”

This is taken from the Village Panchayats Act and as the markets will possess moveable and immovable property, this clause is absolutely necessary.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District) : I rise to a point of order. I want to know whether the sanction of the Governor General was obtained for the insertion of this clause. When the bill was sent to the Governor General this clause was not there and is not sanction necessary for it ? It is a new clause.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : This clause is inserted within the scope of the sanction given.

Question that new clause 13-A be inserted after clause 13 put and carried.

Clause 13-A (Market Committee to be a body corporate) ordered to be inserted after clause 13.

Clause 14 (Power to borrow) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 15 (Supersession of market committee) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 16 (No private market to be opened in or near places declared to be cotton markets).

Wherever the local Government has by a notification under section 4, declared any place to be a cotton market no person shall, within the area of such cotton market or within a distance thereof to be notified in the Bombay Government Gazette in this behalf in each case by the local Government, except with the sanction in writing of the local Government expressed over the signature of a Secretary to Government and subject to such conditions as may be imposed in such sanction, set up, establish or continue or allow to be continued any market for the purpose of the purchase and sale of cotton.

Explanation.—A person shall not be deemed to set up, establish or continue or allow to be continued a place as a market for the purpose of the purchase and sale of cotton if he sells his own cotton outside the limits of the cotton market.

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR (East Khandesh District) : Sir, I propose that the whole of this clause be deleted and my reasons are that this clause intends to penalise rival private markets within the market area. Doubts were raised at the time of the first reading whether under the provisions of clause 16 it is intended to penalise not only private markets but also private sales and it was interpreted as not in any way affecting private sales. It was proposed that it should be further cleared up and with this view an explanation has been added. So far as this explanation is concerned, I think it is worse than the disease. The explanation reads as follows :—

“ A person shall not be deemed to set up, establish or continue or allow to be continued a place as a market for the purpose of the purchase and sale of cotton if he sells his own cotton outside the limits of the cotton market.”

I think the implication is perfectly clear. If a man sells his own cotton within the market area then the transaction, having regard to this explanation, will be regarded as setting up a separate market. I think the meaning of clause 16 is made clear by the addition of the explanation in such a way as to make it appear that the selling of private cotton in the market area is like establishing a market within that area and it is penalised. I think this is quite against the intention with which the explanation was added, and is also against the principle of the assurance that was given at the time of the first reading of clause 16, and I therefore, as a matter of principle propose that the whole of this clause should be deleted.

Question proposed.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : Sir, I oppose the amendment moved by the honourable member Mr. Pataskar and support the original amended clause.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I should like to mention to the House that I intend to finish this bill this evening, except those two clauses which stand over.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : I have finished ; I have nothing more to add.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Sir, I have not been able to follow exactly what is the objection. We say that if there are any private sales, then private sales are not debarred. But a market is a fixed thing with a particular limit. If cotton is brought within this particular limit, then the rules and bye-laws govern. But they do not so govern if it is sold outside the limit ; the object was that members wanted that it should not be obligatory on any grower that his cotton should be brought within the particular limit of the market. We said, all right. They said “ Make it clear in the bill itself.” We said, all right, we will make it clear that it should not be obligatory if the cotton is sold outside the limits of the market. But, if you bring the cotton within a particular limit, then of course the rules and bye-laws govern. That was the anxiety of members at the time amendments were being made, and even at the time of the first reading they said that by the passing of the Bill you will compel everybody to bring his cotton to the market. We said : “ You are at liberty to sell it outside the cotton market limits to anybody you like ; but if you want to bring it within the market, the rules and bye-laws will apply.”

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : May I ask whether a man can sell his cotton outside the cotton market ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Certainly ; yes.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : My question is whether a trader will be allowed to sell his cotton outside the limits of the cotton market.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : I will just read the explanation :

" A person shall not be deemed to set up, establish or continue or allow to be continued a place as a market for the purpose of the purchase and sale of cotton if he sells his own cotton outside the limits of the cotton market. "

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I would like to be quite clear there. According to the Honourable Minister, the " limits of the market " means the jurisdiction of the market, the area which may be allotted to the market, and not the market precincts. Is that so ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Yes.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Suppose a market is situated at a particular village and the village site is included in that market area. What is the villager to do ? There is a particular village where a market is established and the village site is also included in the market area. Now the village people grow also cotton. . . . .

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : They cannot sell it, according to what the Honourable Minister said just now. Has the Honourable Minister finished ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : No. I will read clause 16 for the information of the House. It says :

" Wherever the local Government has, by a notification under section 4, declared any place to be a cotton market, no person shall, within the area of such cotton market or within a distance thereof to be notified in the Bombay Government Gazette in this behalf, etc. etc. "

So, that distance which we shall define in the Government Gazette as beyond the cotton market will not be a cotton market. (Mr. B. V. Jadhav : Will that be about five miles ?) The cotton market will be that place where the cotton is to be sold, and if the honourable members wish to make it more clear, I have no objection if they suggest any more words in the clause. If they make any suggestion, we shall accept it.

Question (amendment to delete clause 16) put and lost.

Rao Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI : I move, Sir, my amendment which runs as follows :

Add a proviso at the end of clause 16 as follows : —

" Provided that towns or cities which have hitherto enjoyed the right or privilege of holding cotton markets within their respective areas shall not be deprived of their right or privilege to continue to hold such markets within their respective limits. "

The reason why I move this amendment is this. The district local boards have been given the power of making a representation to the local Government to have a market established in their area ; and if they succeed in having a new cotton market established just very near to a city or town which has already been holding a cotton market, then the results are likely to be serious. The two markets may come in conflict with each other, and the district local board may move the local Government to remove the old market. So, in order to remove this apprehension, I have moved this amendment, and if the Honourable Minister will give an assurance that the present markets in towns or cities will not be touched on account of the rivalry between the district local boards and the municipalities, then I am willing not to press this amendment. This assurance was given to me orally in the select committee, but I thought it better to have it in this open session, and if the Honourable Minister for Agriculture were to give an assurance that the towns or cities which have been holding cotton markets already will not be disturbed, then I am willing to withdraw this amendment. The very same assurance was given to me in the select committee.

Question proposed.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : I rise to a point of order, Sir. The principle underlying the bill is to establish new markets, and it gives a right to certain people to have their members elected on the market committees. Now, this amendment is to the effect that the existing cotton committees should have the right of continuing their membership and control on the existing market committees. The principle of the bill is to establish new markets and these new markets will be established at places where Government may like to establish them after consulting the local boards and other authorities. But this bill does not contemplate existing markets. The amendment is therefore outside the scope of the bill, which is to establish new cotton markets with new constitution and new powers.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : What is the point of order ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : The point of order is very clear. The principle of the bill is to establish new markets and is not concerned with the old markets. It then points out how these new markets should be established.

The next point is the constitution of the committees and the mode of control over these markets. Now, these old markets are entirely different, established on different lines, with different powers of control, and they are therefore entirely outside the scope of the present bill.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : What is the point of order ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : The point of order is that the amendment is outside the scope of the existing bill.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I suppose the amendment is intended to protect such markets as are well-organised by, say, the co-operative societies. There are sale societies and there are certain markets doing good work in the best interests of the agriculturists. The scope of the bill and the principle of the bill is to protect the best interests of the agriculturists. This amendment does not in any way try to strike at the root of the principle and, therefore, I do not hold it out of order.

Mr. H. J. AMIN : What about forward sales of cotton ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : We shall alter the explanation in such a way as to put down limits so that forward sales will not be meddled with at all.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : I would like to know whether the object of this amendment is to preserve the existence of the present markets or to preserve the present procedure and the existing constitution under which markets are held.

Rao Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI (Dharwar District) : Sir, my object is not to take away the right of Government to impose any restrictions or conditions which may be laid down by the rules to be framed under the Act. The Government is at liberty to say that they do not wish to establish a market at any particular place as they please, just as they have a full power to impose the constitution of a market committee on any market. What I seek to secure by this amendment is that Government should not be able to say that a city which has been holding its cotton market from a long time should not hold such market at all. Certainly my amendment is not against the principle or objects of this bill. The Government can enforce the constitution of the market committee under the Act on any cotton market or they can otherwise regulate any cotton market. I do not object to that at all. My only object is that the right should not be taken away of holding a market in a city where it has been held for a number of years previously though the Government may in proper cases regulate the said market by applying the provisions of this bill.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North) : Sir, supposing this amendment is passed here, would the existing committees or the present cotton markets remain ? If not, has the Deputy President enquired from the present committees of the existing markets whether they are in a position to hand over those markets to the newly appointed committees ? If not, unless the power has been received from the existing committees of the present markets, it will be no use putting in this resolution on the statute book.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : At this stage the House seems to be in a mood to get along not so much with the substantial work before it but with many questions. I intended to finish this bill, minus those clauses which I have left over, this evening, because I understand that such time as is saved from Government business days would be added on to private business days. I should like to know from the Honourable the Leader of the House whether any time saved from Government business days would be added on to the time allotted for private business.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : His Excellency has already allotted five days for non-official business. I will be glad to submit your suggestion to His Excellency.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The House is now adjourned till 2 p.m. to-morrow, Friday, the 30th September 1927.

Friday, the 30th September 1927

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. Swearing in of new members.

Mr. T. A. Andrew then made the prescribed oath of allegiance to His Majesty the King-Emperor, and took his seat in the Council.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Questions.

LOCAL BODIES PROVIDENT FUND SCHEME

Mr. M. G. BHOSLE (West Khandesh District) : Will Government be pleased to state whether they have recommended to the Presidents of District Local Boards and Municipalities to frame rules for and to introduce Provident Fund Schemes in lieu of pensions ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : No.

MARATHI TRAINING SCHOOL FOR KOLABA AND THANA

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the Marathi Training School for Kolaba and Thana has been removed to Bhiwandi ;

(b) whether it is a fact that the school is located in a Muhammadan locality and in a building owned by a Muhammadan ;

(c) whether there is no more suitable and convenient building ;

(d) whether it is a fact that the place is out of the way and inconvenient to the teachers ;

(e) whether it is a fact that cots are provided in the Urdu schools ;

(f) whether it is a fact that there are no cots in the Marathi school ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Yes.

(b) Yes. The building is the property of a Muslim religious trust.

(c) No.

(d) No.

(e) and (f) Cots are provided at the Urdu School as there is a stone floor ; cots are not provided except for boys who are ill at the Marathi School as this building possesses a wooden floor which is unaffected by damp.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Is the place central and convenient for the students of the Kolaba and Thana districts ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The training school cannot be considered to be inconvenient to students from Kolaba and Thana districts.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Is it not far from the Kolaba district ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : It is impossible to provide training schools in every district, and consequently this school has been located in the most convenient place.

Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR : Is it convenient to the students of Thana and Kolaba districts ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : That is a matter of opinion.

BOUNDARY MATERIALS

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state whether they are aware that in the Satara District stone boundaries for survey numbers are erected in place of earthen boundaries leaving no means of access from one survey number to another ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : No cases have come to the notice of Government in which the erection of stone boundary marks in place of earthen ones has blocked the means of access from one survey number to another.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : Have the Government made enquiries in the matter, or was there no complaint from the people ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : They have made enquiries from the Commissioners, who have replied to the above effect.

KRISHNA CANAL BAGAYATDARS

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that local cess at the rate of one anna a rupee was charged on Bagayatdars on the Krishna Canal on the amount of fine or excess that was imposed on them in 1926 ;

(b) the amount of local cess so collected ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : (a) Yes.

(b) Rs. 734-6-0.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : Will Government be pleased to refund the amount, as it has been illegally recovered ? No local cess is to be charged to fines ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : I will require notice of that question.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Is Government waiting for a suit ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. The next question has been called.

KRISHNA CANAL : SUPPLY OF WATER

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased—

(a) to lay on the table a statement for the last five years showing how many days the water in the Krishna Canal was not to be had to the Bagayatdars at Retre Budruk and other villages above that ;

(b) to state what arrangements have been made and precautions taken to supply water to the Bagayatdars at the tail where the applications of water had been admitted ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : (a) Two statements showing (1) the names of all the villages above Retre Budruk served by the Krishna Canal with the miles in which they are situated and (2) the number of days for which water was not available during each season for Retre Budruk and other villages above it due to rotation and canal closure are placed on the Council Table. Particulars for the period from 15th February 1924 to 30th June 1924 are not available.

(b) Owing to short supply of water in the river, water was not allowed in the hot season below Mile No. 16 of the Canal ; but by enforcing strict rotation, water was supplied to the Bagayatdars at the tail portion in the Monsoon and Rabi seasons in cases where applications had been admitted.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : Are Government aware that a number of sugarcane crops had perished owing to want of adequate supply of water, even though the applications were admitted ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : I have no information to that effect.

KARKUNS, SATARA DISTRICT

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the number of karkuns required for every district was fixed in 1921-22 after taking into consideration the work at every place ;

(b) whether the work in the Satara District has increased or decreased since 1921-22 ;

(c) whether the retrenchment officer has recommended any reduction in the number of karkuns in the Satara District even though the work is increasing ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes.

(b) It has increased.

(c) No.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : Do Government think of increasing the number of clerks, in view of the increase in the amount of work ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Not at present.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : The same number of karkuns are to work, even though there is an increase in the work ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : They will have to do a little more work.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : Does this refer to all the departments in the Satara district, or to any one department ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : It refers to the Revenue Department.

TALATIS AND KULKARNIS, SATARA DISTRICT

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the total amount paid to talatis for their remuneration in the year 1925-26 in the Satara District ;

(b) the total amount paid to the Kulkarnis in the district just in the year prior to the so-called commutation of their watans ;

(c) whether it is a fact that the appointment of a talati to more than one village is troublesome to the villagers and necessarily limits the time of payment of the land revenue by the landholders ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Rs. 1,38,559-9-0.

(b) Rs. 81,897-1-1.

(c) Government have no such information.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : Will not Government be able to save a sum of Rs. 57,000 annually if the kulkarnis are allowed to work as before ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : That would appear from the figures.

BRIDGES ON THE ROAD TO PANDHARPUR

Mr. N. R. GUNJAL (Poona District) : Will Government be pleased to state the number of bridges built up to now on the road used by the pilgrims who bear the Palkhi of Shri Dnyandeo Maharaj from Poona to Pandharpur ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSAIN HIDAYATALLAH : The statement attached furnishes the necessary information.

Statement showing the number of bridges built up to now on the Mahad Pandharpur road used by the pilgrims who bear the Palkhi of Shri Dnyandeo Maharaj from Poona to Pandharpur.

Section of road	Road bridges including canal crossings.	Culverts	Causeways
Lonand to Dharampuri in the Mutha Canals Division.	4	4	21
Dharampuri to Pandharpur in the Mal-siras Division.	2	4	2

The above statement excludes slab-drains, road dams, etc., crossing very small nalas or small road-bridges on distributaries, etc.

ELECTORAL ROLLS, LANDHOLDERS' CONSTITUENCIES

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to keep in the Secretary's office a copy of the voting lists of—

- (a) the Inamdar and Jahagirdars' constituency in the Deccan, Central and Southern Divisions;
- (b) the Sardars' constituency of Gujarat (Northern Division);
- (c) the Zamindars' constituency in Sind?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a), (b) and (c) Copies of the electoral rolls (to which, and not to the voting lists properly so called, it is understood that the Honourable Member's question refers) can be obtained on payment from the Returning Officers of each constituency by those interested, and Government do not consider that it would be to the public advantage that copies of them should be placed in the office of the Secretary to the Legislative Council.

SCHOLARSHIPS FOR JAINS: SATARA DISTRICT

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to state the number of scholarships awarded to Jain students from Satara District in Secondary schools in the years 1925 and 1926 and 1927.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI:
 In 1925-26—One.
 In 1926-27—Nil.
 In 1927-28—Two.

CHITNISERS AND HEAD CLERKS: C. D., S. D., AND THANA

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to give the names and caste of the Chitnises and Head Clerks of all the Districts in the Central Division and Southern Division and that of Thana?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: The Honourable Member is referred to the gradation list of Mamlatdars, published in the Bombay Civil List, for the names of the Head Clerks and Chitnises. Their castes can be ascertained from Part I of the History of Services, Bombay Presidency. Both these works are to be found in the library.

REFORMS : STATUTORY COMMISSION

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the Government of India have asked the Bombay Government to prepare materials for the Statutory Commission ;

(b) if the answer to part (a) is in the affirmative, the name of the officer deputed to this work ;

(c) when has this officer, if any, been instructed to complete his work ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : (a) No.

(b) and (c) Do not arise.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : Has there been any correspondence which may be termed demi-official between the Government of India and the Government of Bombay ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I do not think that any question regarding demi-official correspondence can be answered.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : I am putting a question with regard to the fact of the correspondence and not with regard to the contents of it ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I do not know whether even that is allowable, but I may say for the honourable member's information that so far as I am aware there has not been any such correspondence.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : Have the Government of Bombay prepared any materials for the coming commission ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : No.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : Do Government intend to do so ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : All in due course.

POLICE DEPARTMENT IN SIND

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind): Will Government be pleased to place on the Council table copies of Government Resolutions in force relating to appointments to the Police Department in Sind ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : There are no Government Resolutions relating to appointments to the Police Department in Sind, other than those applying to the Presidency as a whole, for which the Honourable Member is referred to Chapter II of the Bombay District Police Manual, Volume 1, 1913, and to Press Notes dated the 10th May 1924, and 6th February 1926, copies* of which are placed on the Council table.

MADRASSAH HIGH SCHOOL : MIRPURKHAS

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of Hindu and Muslim boys (separately) studying at the Madrassah High School of Mirpurkhas ;

* Kept in the Secretary's office.

(b) the number of Hindu and Muslim students (separately) who are in receipt of district local board, Government or private scholarships and of those who are free students ;

(c) the number of Hindu and Muslim (separately) students in the above school who pay fees from their parental income ;

URAN MUNICIPALITY : GAOTHAN AREAS

Mr. S. C. JOSHI : Will Government be pleased to state the area for gaothan or building purposes in the Bori and Kumbharwada under the Uran Municipality in the Kolaba District ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : The area of gaothan of Bori is 4 acres and 26 gunthas and that of Kumbharwada is 18 gunthas. No other land has been set apart for building purposes, but land measuring 6 acres 26 $\frac{3}{4}$  gunthas within the boundaries of Bori village has been appropriated for building purposes on payment of non-agricultural assessment.

EDUCATION OF DEPRESSED CLASSES : CONCESSIONS

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will the Honourable the Minister for Education be pleased to state what concessions are given to depressed classes to induce them to send their children to schools ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Besides the special scholarships (mentioned below) in primary and secondary schools to which depressed class boys are eligible, no fees are charged to them in primary schools maintained by Local Authorities and at the Vernacular Final Examination. They are also exempted from the payment of fees in Government Secondary Schools provided that they can show that they are unable to pay fees :—

Primary Schools

Three hundred scholarships (100 each of Rs. 5, 6 and 7 per mensem) at the rate of 5 per each district in the Presidency proper, tenable in standards V to VII of primary schools.

Secondary Schools

Six hundred and forty-four scholarships of the value mentioned below to be awarded at the rate of 92 per annum distributed in the several divisions of the Presidency on the basis of population and tenable for seven years of the Secondary School course :—

Standards I to III Rs. 6 each per mensem.

Standard IV Rs. 7 each per mensem.

Standard V Rs. 8 each per mensem.

Standards VI to VII Rs. 10 each per mensem.

Their children are also supplied with books and writing materials free of cost in local board primary schools.

GOVERNMENT SERVANTS : RAISING OF FUNDS

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that a Jamadar of Jesawada had raised a fund for the repairs of a Dargah or of any place of Muhammadan worship ;

(b) whether it is also a fact that the mamlatdar of Dohad had contributed to that fund and that some Hindus were asked to subscribe to the fund by the Government officials ;

(c) if it is a fact, whether Government servants are allowed to raise such a fund without the permission of Government ;

(d) whether any permission was applied for in this case and whether it was granted ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : (a) and (b) No.

(c) and (d) These parts of the question do not arise.

PRIMARY EDUCATION : SCHOOLS FOR DEPRESSED CLASSES IN

NEW ENGLISH SCHOOL, GODHRA

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that Mr. Manilal Harilal Mehta, a proprietor of the New English School of Godhra, had to enter into an agreement with the educational authorities of the Northern Division to the effect that the portraits of the late lamented Lokamanya Tilak and Mahatma Gandhi should be removed from the school building to get grant, recognition and registration for his new English school at Godhra ;

(b) if so, what officer of Government has entered into the agreement with Mr. Manilal Mehta ;

(c) if it is not a fact, at whose instance the portraits of Indian patriots were removed from the school building ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) No.

(b) Does not arise.

(c) Government have no information.

NEW ENGLISH SCHOOL, HALOL

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that on receiving verbal or written confidential instructions from the educational authorities of the Northern Division the portraits of Indian Patriots were removed by Mr. Manilal H. Mehta from the school building of the New English School at Halol in the Panch Mahals of which he is only a manager ;

(b) if it is a fact, the reasons for issuing such instructions ;

(c) whether it is a fact that the educational authorities of the Northern Division had promised Mr. Manilal Mehta to recognise the Halol English School and to make some arrangements to give him a grant for that school if he got the pictures of the patriots removed from the School building of Halol in Panch Mahals ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) No.

(b) Does not arise.

(c) No.

SCHOOLS IN THE PANCH MAHALS : HEAD DRESS OF TEACHERS

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the Educational Inspector of the Northern Division has asked Mr. Manilal H. Mehta to ask the teachers of the schools under his management and control in Panch Mahals district not to put on white khadar caps when they are on duty ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : No.

MUSIC IN MARRIAGE PROCESSIONS : DOHAD

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District) : Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the Mamlatdar of Dohad had brought pressure to bear on the Hindus of that town to stop music in marriage processions in the month of May 1927 ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : No. What actually happened was that there was a dispute with regard to the playing of music by Hindus in processions near the mosques of the Bohras at Dohad. The Hindus claimed the right to play music near the mosques while the Bohras objected. The Mamlatdar of Dohad thereupon convened a meeting of the leaders of both the communities at which the Bohras agreed to waive their objection and accordingly music was played by the Hindus in procession before the mosque.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN : May I know the name of the mamlatdar ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I have no information as to this.

PRIMARY SCHOOLS : NATURE STUDY

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR (East Khandesh District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the subject of nature study is wholly practical for the male candidates of the Primary School Teacher's Certificate Examination and wholly written for the female candidate of the same Examination ;

(b) the number of Primary Schools for boys that have school graduates for the purpose of teaching the course of Nature Study ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) The subject of Nature Study is both theoretical and practical so far as the men's Training College certificate examination is concerned. In regard to the women's Training College certificate examination, it is only theoretical. Every candidate in the Training College for Women, however, observes, records her observation, and performs some simple experiments in the subject.

(b) The time and labour involved in collecting the information required by the Honourable Member, from all primary schools for boys in the whole Presidency which number nearly 12,000, will be out of all proportion to the utility of the information. It is also not understood what is meant by school graduates. If trained teachers are referred to, it may be observed that as far as possible the teaching of Nature Study is entrusted to trained teachers.

EXCISE AUCTION : KAZIPURA LIQUOR SHOP

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the liquor shop at Kazipura, Nasik City, was re-auctioned this year ; if so, why ;

(b) what were the amounts at which it was sold and resold respectively ;

(c) who was the highest bidder on both the occasions ;

(d) what was the amount for which it was sold last year ; and who was the highest bidder last year ;

(e) whether the second auction was necessitated by a ring being formed among bidders, and if so, who formed the ring ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) Yes ; because the bids received at the first auction were not adequate.

(b) The highest bid at the first auction was Rs. 32,000, while the highest bid accepted at the second auction was Rs. 43,200.

(c) At the first auction the highest bidder was Mr. Hiranman Narayan Shindore ; at the second auction Mr. Shindore was the highest bidder on behalf of his brother Mr. Damu Narayan Shindore, who is shown as the licensee.

(d) The highest bidder last year was Mr. Damu Narayan Shindore to whom the shop was disposed of for Rs. 58,200.

(e) It was suspected that a ring had been formed to prevent bidding ; but it cannot be stated who formed it.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : Did the local authorities make enquiries as to who formed the ring ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : They made enquiries but were not able to find out.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : Did they suspect anybody ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : I have no information.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : If there is a ring is not the Government revenue reduced ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : It is reduced. That is why a second auction is held.

TURF CLUB : PRIZES IN BOMBAY AND POONA

Mr. HOOSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA (Bombay City) : Will Government be pleased to state —

(a) the total amount distributed by the Turf Club last year in prizes in (a) Poona and (b) Bombay ;

(b) amount of the highest prize ;

(c) amount of the lowest prize ;

(d) amount of highest prizes for any race ;

(e) amount of lowest prizes for any race ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Government have no information. If the Honourable Member desires to obtain these figures he should apply to the Secretary of the Western India Turf Club.

Mr. HOOSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA : May I know whether the Secretary of the Western India Turf Club will supply information to the members of the Legislative Council ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I cannot say.

Mr. HOOSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA : Is not the Club a licensee of the Government ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Yes.

Mr. HOOSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA : Cannot Government get this information from their licensee ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Not this information. They have no right to demand it.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Is the Western India Turf Club bound to supply this information to the honourable members of this Council ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I do not think so.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : Have Government right to inspect their books ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I presume that right only extends to information regarding such receipts of the Western India Turf Club as affect the revenues of Government, for instance, the Entertainment Tax.

Mr. HOOSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA : Have they refused information to Government ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Government have made no request for such information to the Secretary of the Western India Turf Club.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : Have Government any objection to address the Western India Turf Club to get such information ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : If honourable members desire the information they must address the Secretary of the Western India Turf Club themselves. Government do not feel called upon to make any such request.

RACE COURSE, BOMBAY AND POONA : ADMISSION CHARGES

Mr. HOOSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA (Bombay City) : Will Government be pleased to state the rates of admission to the various enclosures on race course in Bombay and Poona

(a) before the Entertainment Tax was levied ;

(b) when it was 50 per cent. ;

(c) after it was reduced to 25 per cent. ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : The Honourable Member is advised to apply for this information to the Secretary of the Western India Turf Club.

TOTALISATOR BETTING : DEDUCTIONS BY TURF CLUB

Mr. HOOSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA (Bombay City) : Will Government be pleased to state what percentage has been deducted by the Turf Club on the amounts placed on the totalisator

(a) before the Totalisator Tax was levied ; and

(b) after ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : It is understood that the Western India Turf Club used to deduct 10 per cent. from the money staked on the Totalisators, and that since the Totalisator Tax was raised to its present level the Western India Turf Club deducts 12½ per cent. If the Honourable Member desires to verify this information he should apply to the Secretary of the Western India Turf Club.

TURF CLUB : DISTRIBUTION OF PRIZES

Mr. HOOSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA (Bombay City) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the total amount distributed by the Turf Club last year in prizes ;

(b) the amount out of the above total for geldings ;

(c) the amount out of the above total paid for country-bred horses ;

(d) the amount out of the above total paid for Arab horses ;

(e) the amount out of the above total prizes paid for Australian horses ;

(f) the amount of the above total paid for English horses ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Government have no information. If the Honourable Member desires to obtain these figures he should apply to the Secretary of the Western India Turf Club.

HAJ COMMITTEE, BOMBAY : CONSTITUTION

Mr. HOOSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA (Bombay City) : Will Government be pleased—

(a) to state whether they had issued a Resolution No. 5497 of General Department, dated 5th September 1908, and a letter No. 4471, dated 8th July 1908, regarding the constitution, etc., of the Haj Committee, Bombay ;

(b) if so, to lay a copy of the same on the Council table ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : (a) Yes.

(b) Copies of Government letter No. 4471, dated the 8th July 1908, and of Government Resolution No. 5497, dated the 5th September 1908, are placed on the Council table.

RESOLUTION. —His Excellency the Governor in Council has read with satisfaction the report of the meeting of Mahomedan gentlemen convened to consider the proposed appointment of a Haj Committee. He is of opinion that it will conduce to the efficiency of the Committee as a working body if, in the first instance, the number of members be limited to 12, excluding the President. The following gentlemen are selected from those who have volunteered their services :

1. Mr. Mahomedbhai Currimbhai Ibrahim, J.P.
2. Mr. Mahomed Sabu Sidick.
3. Mr. Sulaiman Kasim Haji Mitha, J.P.
4. Haji Yusuf Haji Ismail Sobhani, J.P.

8. Mr. Abdul Kadir Khatkhatay, B.A., LL.B.
9. Mr. Mahomed Ibrahim Tungekar.
10. Mirza Mahomed Shirazi, J.P.
11. Kazi Kabiruddin, Bar.-at-Law, J.P.
12. Mr. Abdur Razzak, J.P.

The appointment of these gentlemen should be for two years from September 15th, 1908.

* Printed as accompaniments to this Resolution.

2. His Excellency the Governor in Council is pleased to accept the proposal that, in the first instance, Mr. H. G. Gell, M.V.O., should be the official President of the Committee. This appointment is made pending further orders.

3. The appointment of a Vice-President should be left to the members of the Committee. They should hold a preliminary meeting at an early date, and draw up rules of procedure for the future conduct of the affairs of the Committee.

4. His Excellency the Governor in Council does not at present desire that official Europeans should be added to the Committee. The care of the Hajis is peculiarly the duty of wealthy and public spirited Mahomedan gentlemen; and His Excellency the Governor in Council trusts that the work of the Committee now constituted will afford evidence that they are fully conscious of their duty in this connection.

Accompaniment to Government Resolution, General Department, No. 5197, dated 5th September 1908.

No. 4471, dated 8th July 1908.

From—R. E. Enthoven, Esq., I.C.S., Acting Secretary to Government;

To—The Leading Members of the Mahomedan Community.

I am directed to inform you that Government have come to the conclusion that it is desirable to constitute a strong non-official Committee of leading Mahomedan gentlemen, representative of the different sections of the Mahomedan population of Bombay, to superintend the arrangements for the reception and despatch of pilgrims from Bombay and the repatriation of such as are stranded at Jeddah, as well as to otherwise assist pilgrims on their journey to and from Mecca. I am accordingly to address you and to request that, if you desire to co-operate in the matter, you will be so good as to communicate with the Commissioner of Police, Bombay, who has been asked to arrange for a preliminary meeting to be held at his office at an early date, in order to discuss the proposal further.

2. His Excellency the Governor in Council is prepared to afford such a Committee, when constituted, all reasonable official assistance, and to appoint an official to be President, if this course, after further discussion of these proposals, is found to be desirable.

3. Government will be glad to receive, through the Commissioner of Police, the views of the meeting regarding:—

- (1) the number and constitution of the Committee;
- (2) whether it is willing to accept an official President, and whether the Commissioner of Police or other Government officer would be the most suitable; and
- (3) any suggestions regarding the directions in which Government assistance or support is required.

4. I am also to request that the names of those willing to serve on the proposed Committee may be communicated to the Commissioner of Police. His Excellency the Governor in Council is disposed to favour the limitation of the Committee to ten, in the first instance.

PRIMARY EDUCATION : LOCAL AUTHORITIES

Mr. A. D. SHETH (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Deccan and Karnatak local authorities have been absorbing the Government inspecting staff for administrative officers and supervising staff ;

(b) if not, which are the boards which refuse to do so ;

(c) what would be the effect of the action of the boards referred to in (b) on the future of the Government inspecting staff, etc., not taken up ;

(d) how do Government propose to deal with the staff not taken up by such boards ;

(e) what will be the effect of the action of such boards on the provincial expenditure ;

(f) whether they intend to compel the local authorities to take Government inspecting staff and clerks and menials in order to provide for the latter ;

(g) whether the Primary Education Act contains sufficient provisions enabling Government to take disciplinary action against recalcitrant school boards or local authorities who have taken over the control of primary education ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Some of the District Local Boards have absorbed wholly the Government Inspecting staff in the posts of Administrative Officers and Supervisors, while some have done so only partially.

(b) The District Local Board, Dharwar, has refused to take over any of the Government Inspecting staff. The attitude of the District Local Board, Belgaum is also not yet known.

(c) and (d) Such of the Assistant Deputy Educational Inspectors as cannot continue to be provided with posts in the Inspecting Branch of the Department and are also not absorbed by the District Local Boards will have to revert as assistant masters in high schools or training institutions, relieving the temporary substitutes or even probationary assistant masters. Such of the Deputy Educational Inspectors as cannot be provided with posts in the Department may have to retire, or be appointed to lower posts and given a personal allowance.

(e) It is unlikely that there will be any saving to Government.

MALEGAON MUNICIPALITY : WATER SUPPLY SCHEME

Mr. G. A. D. WASIF (Central Division): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Malegaon City Municipality has submitted to Government any water supply scheme for the City of Malegaon (district Nasik) ;

(b) if so, what action Government propose to take in the matter ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : (a) and (b) The Malegaon Municipality requested the Sanitary Engineer to Government to draw up a scheme for water supply by gravitation from the Chankapur Irrigation Canal. A preliminary report has been prepared and will shortly be forwarded to the Municipality by the Sanitary Engineer.

Loans for the rebuilding and repair of houses in flood-affected areas

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Sir, with your permission I should like to make a statement for the information of the House regarding the decision that Government have arrived at with reference to the terms on which they would be prepared to make loans for the reconstruction and repair of houses affected by the floods in Gujarat and in Sind.

Government have decided to issue loans for the re-building and repair of houses in Gujarat and Sind affected by the recent floods on the following terms :—

(a) Interest on loans not exceeding Rs. 200 :

for the first 2 years .. ..	6 pies per rupee ;
for the second 2 years .. ..	9 pies per rupee ;
for the remaining period .. ..	12 pies per rupee.

(b) Interest on loans exceeding Rs. 200 and not exceeding Rs. 1,000 :

for the first 3 years .. ..	9 pies per rupee ;
for the remaining period .. ..	12 pies per rupee ;

provided that no interest will be charged on any loan under (a) or (b), or on any amount repaid in excess of the fixed instalment, if it be repaid at the time when the first year's instalment falls due. That is, if the whole loan is repaid within one year no interest will be charged ; also any amount paid in excess of what is actually due according to the scheme of instalment will be free of interest.

(c) The maximum limit of loans to be Rs. 2,000 ; and 12 pies per rupee to be charged throughout on all loans exceeding Rs. 1,000 and not exceeding Rs. 2,000.

(d) Repayment to be made of all loans within a maximum period of ten years subject to a minimum repayment of Rs. 20 per annum.

The loans to holders of agricultural land will be made under the Agriculturists' Loans Act under the usual conditions in regard to security. Loans to other persons will be made on the security of mortgages of property.

The Registrar of Co-operative Societies has been authorised to establish house reconstruction societies, both rural and urban, in suitable localities ; and funds have been placed at his disposal for this purpose.

Mr. J. B. PETTIT : How do these rates of interest work out in terms of percentage ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Six pies is  $3\frac{1}{2}$  per cent.; 9 pies 4  $\frac{11}{16}$  per cent.; and 12 pies  $6\frac{1}{4}$  per cent.

Mr. H. J. AMIN : What will be the interest charged by the co-operative societies ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : As regards rural societies the same rate ; for other areas 5 per cent.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : What is the reason for increasing the rate in the case of urban areas ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : In the urban areas the housing societies are to be advanced money according to the rate at which Government borrow. Government do not get loans even at 5 per cent. As regards urban areas, the societies there are started independently of the flood distress.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : I think.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order : there can be no discussion. This is a mere statement on behalf of Government.

(Consideration of Bill No. III of 1927, Bombay Cotton Markets Bill, resumed)

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : As regards the point of order raised by the honourable member the Legal Remembrancer yesterday, I had given my views to some extent and had promised the House to give my final ruling on the points after seeing the Legal Remembrancer and discussing the matter with him and the Secretary. I have heard the honourable member the Legal Remembrancer and discussed the matter with him, but I am sorry to say I cannot agree with him. The amendment is therefore in order.

Only one thing I may repeat and it is this : as I understand from the papers, the Government of India are very particular in one respect, namely, that they are not willing to give their assent to a bill with a clause of the nature that is being attempted to be introduced in this bill. In fact, I understand that the Statistics Bill did include a clause to that effect and the Government of India have refused to give their assent. However, that is for the information of the House, and it is for the House to decide on the amendment. The amendment is in order.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : We will begin where we left yesterday namely clause 16.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : My honourable friend Rao Bahadur Kambli wanted to know whether any assurances would be given by Government as regards the markets which are already in existence. If I remember aright and if he remembers aright it was pointed out to him that the last 6 lines of clause 16 were specially inserted to safeguard such a thing. It is stated in clause 16.

“Except with the sanction in writing of the local Government expressed over the signature of a Secretary to Government and subject to such conditions as may be imposed in such sanction, set up, establish or continue or allow to be continued any market for the purpose of the purchase and sale of cotton;”

This was pointedly brought to his notice. It was also brought to his notice yesterday when I moved my amendment in clause 4 that such interests will be safeguarded. There is a double safeguard, one in clause 4 and the other in clause 16.

Rao Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI (Dharwar District): In view of the assurance given by the Honourable Minister I do not want to press my amendment, and beg leave to withdraw it.

Question put and leave granted.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: If you will permit me I have to suggest one or two amendments to clause 16. I want to clear the explanation given in that clause. Some difficulties were raised that the wording of the explanation was not quite clear. I want to make it clear.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: There is an amendment by the honourable member Rao Saheb Patil, though not exactly in the form in which the Honourable Minister has suggested. When that is moved, the Honourable Minister might suggest his for acceptance.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: That will suit me.

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL (East Khandesh District): I beg to move the amendment which stands in my name:

In clause 16 (Explanation) substitute the words "at his door" for the words "outside the limits of the cotton market" appearing in the last line of the explanation

Mr. President, you will remember that during the debate on this bill at the last session it was made clear even by the Honourable Minister that every cotton grower is at liberty to sell his cotton at his own door. Unfortunately the explanation is not worded happily. Therefore I want to move my amendment. Supposing the area of the market is prescribed to be 3 miles it may happen that some villages might fall within that area. Therefore my amendment is necessary in the interest of the cotton growers so that they may not be penalised by the law under the present bill, if they were to sell their cotton at their door. Therefore in order to make the intention of the explanation very clear especially in the light of the remarks made by the Honourable Minister I want to move this amendment. With these remarks I move the amendment.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: I would ask the honourable mover whether he would accept my amendment. My amendment is as follows:—

Delete the words "outside the limits of the cotton market" and substitute the words "premises set apart by the market committee for the purpose of purchase and sale of cotton."

If this is accepted it will make the meaning clear.

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL: I accept the amendment proposed by the Honourable Minister.

Question put and carried.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: May I suggest one or two formal amendments to make the bill consistent with the wording? In clause 4 the word "limit" is put down and in clause 16 instead of that word the word "area" is put down. So I want to substitute the word "limit" for the word "area" in line 8 of clause 16.

Question put and carried.

Clause 16 (No private market to be opened in or near places declared to be cotton markets) as amended ordered to stand part of the Bill.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: We will now take up clause 6 where we had left it. The honourable member Mr. Bhosle moved an amendment to add the word "approval." I wonder whether he wishes to accept the amendment of the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale.

Mr. M. G. BHOSLE (West Khandesh District): I accept Rao Bahadur Kale's amendment. I beg leave to withdraw my amendment.

Question put and leave granted:

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): Sir, the amendment which stands in my name is as follows:—

At the end of clause 6, sub-clause (4), add the following:—

"For one month previous to the next session thereof and shall be liable to be rescinded or modified by a Resolution of the said Council tabled at the next session."

The last sub-clause (4) of section 6 runs thus:—

"All rules made under this section shall be subject to previous publication and shall when made, be laid on the table of the Bombay Legislative Council."

It stops there. And what I wish to see by this amendment is to supplement this by the addition of the words which I have read just now. The effect of this is to bring rules that will be made by the Government from time to time before the Council. Under this section, they will be first published, because in the section it is said "previous publication." "Previous publication" is a technical expression, which under the General Clauses Act means official publication in the Gazette calling for objections, and if any objections have been preferred, they consider the objections and final rules are afterwards made, and then they become final. So, previous publication is there. Then, there are subsequent safeguards that they were to be placed on the table of the Council. As the clause stands, I think it is rather unnecessary, because there was previous publication there, and by placing them on the table of the Council nothing would be gained more than a further publication as it were. But the real crucial point of the whole matter is that in regard to legislation that has to be passed by an Act always it must be self-contained. But there are cases, especially in this legislation, the Cotton Market Bill is a new Bill and a good deal has to be left to be done subsequently. Therefore, this power is given to Government. But at the same time we cannot give a blank cheque to the executive Government to pass any rules they like. They must be subjected to the sanction of the Council if they are at all to have the force of law, and they have actually the force of law. Now, I do understand that if each and every one of the rules had to be submitted to the Council for approval, as would have been the case if the clause proposed by the honourable member Mr. Bhosle were inserted, it would really increase the amount of this Council's work to a great extent, and consequently the amendment which I wish to make is really a via media. That is to say, there may be rules dealing with administrative matters of detail and there may be rules affecting the substance. So, when the Legislative Council has the opportunity of looking at the rules, it is not necessary that each and every single rule should be separately approved. But if any rule really requires cancellation, it is open to every member of the House to bring in a motion, and I therefore use this word "motion." It is a resolution, but it differs from the general resolutions which this Council has got the power of moving by way of recommendation. This is not by way of a recommendation, but by way of a motion, and it is part and parcel of the Government's work. Private resolutions, honourable members are aware, have to wait their lot and the ballot, and so on. They may not be reached. But with regard to a resolution in this respect, it will have to be a part of Government business and when the rules are placed on the Council table and if any member has tabled an amendment by way of a resolution, that will have to be put before the House.

I also wish to say, Sir, with reference to your remarks about the Government of India's power of according sanction, that honourable members are aware and it will always be in their mind that this power rests with the Government of India to accord their sanction to any legislation that is passed by this Council, and I am sure honourable members of this House will be sparing in their efforts to bring about detailed amendments of such rules, because I know that if the Government of India finds that this power is abused, perhaps they might refuse their sanction. (Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad: Let them.) I mean to say it is not a question of letting them refuse, but it is a question of securing from them sanction as far as possible. Hence I am taking much time in this debate, because it may be that the matter may have to go to the Government of India for sanction, and in order that even then the Government of India may not turn down this amendment—if passed by this Council, it will be incorporated in the Act—I wish to say that so far I do not think that this Council has misused the power which was given to it under two previous enactments which I remember, namely, the Co-operative Societies Act and the Children Protection Act. If, therefore, this Council and the honourable members of this Council have not by their action so far done anything to induce the Government of India to think that this is rather a power which should not be vested in the legislature, I do not think the Government of India will refuse sanction. If the course of legislation in England is looked at, it will be found that we are really adopting a via media. In the old days everything had to be subjected to the Parliament. Then, business was enormously increased, and, therefore, some provisions were introduced to meet the difficulty. I submit we have the experience of legislation abroad at our back, and the amendment which I have suggested is really in consonance with the result of that experience, and I have no doubt that the Government of India would, in a matter of this kind, see the necessity of my amendment, when they find from the sections of the Bill that there are matters which really would require the attention of the House before they are passed into law. They are not purely administrative rules. So far as the working of the law, as it is, is concerned, there need not be any amendments by us. But, if there are really matters of substance, then certainly it is for this Council to say whether those rules are such as ought to be sanctioned. Therefore, I submit that the amendment which I have proposed will meet with the approval of this Council.

Question proposed.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Sir, in regard to the last two enactments which were referred to by the honourable mover of the amendment, the Children Act and the Co-operative Societies Act, a similar amendment was moved in the House and was passed. And now when this House has got the power of making an Act, it must certainly have the power of making changes in the rules. It is the power which every legislature has and must have. In section 129-A of the Government of India Act it has been provided as follows :—

“ Any rules to which sub-section (1) of this section applies shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament as soon as may be after they are made, and if an address is presented to His Majesty by either House of Parliament within the next thirty days on which that House has sat after the rules are laid before it praying that the rules or any of them may be annulled, His Majesty in Council may annul the rules or any of them, and those rules shall thenceforth be void, but without prejudice to the validity of anything previously done thereunder.”

This is, therefore, a privilege which every legislature has got. Even the rules made under the Government of India Act are subject to the ratification of the Houses of Parliament. Similarly, the rules made under the Acts which we pass must be under the supervision of this House, and this wholesome privilege has been obtained by this House after strenuous fighting, and I think we must stick to the privilege and we must assert the privilege and we should not be intimidated by the Government of India. We wish that this power of having the rules placed before the Council and of rescinding or modifying them by means of a resolution must be inserted in this Bill.

It was argued that a resolution would have only a recommendatory character, but this is not a resolution in the ordinary sense of the term. This is to be a statutory motion which has been provided for in the Standing Orders under Chapter VIII-A at the instance of the then Leader of the House, Sir Maurice Hayward. Resolutions under this Chapter VIII-A are to be treated as Government business. This power has been reserved in the Children Protection Act and Co-operative Societies Act and accordingly resolutions were moved in this House and wholesome changes were made in the rules which were placed before this House. I ask the honourable members—especially the non-official members—not to lose this privilege which our predecessors obtained after a good deal of strenuous fighting. We were very glad, Sir, that you have upheld the privileges of this House. I therefore strongly support the amendment moved by my honourable friend, Rao Bahadur Kale.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Would the honourable mover accept a suggestion from me that instead of the word “ resolution ” he might use the word “ motion ” ?

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : Yes, Sir.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind) : Sir, I had no intention of speaking on this matter because it was so very plain, until you told us to-day that the Government of India might refuse to give assent to the Bill after it is passed. I am certain of what the attitude of the Government of India will be on this question, and from my experience of what the Government of India has been doing towards our legislature, I would refuse to believe that the Government of India would decline to accord sanction to a Bill of this kind simply because of its direction, as this direction was given in ignorance of Chapter VIII-A of our Standing Orders. If the Government of India had known that under the provisions of this Standing Order a resolution of this kind was not a recommendatory motion but a statutory motion having the force of law, then I am sure they would not have made the suggestion in question in their letter, because yesterday you told us that it was the chief reason on which the Government of India had based its recommendation. If they know that such a Standing Order exists here, I am certain they will fall into line with us and assent to the legislation. But, what is more is that the Government of India in the matter of passing Act III of 1923 imposing restrictions on the transport of cotton in the Bombay Presidency.....

Mr. R. S. ASVALE : On a point of order, Sir, whether we are discussing the point of order raised by the honourable member, the Legal Remembrancer, yesterday or whether we are discussing the motion that is before the House. The speeches that have been made look like speeches made more on the point of order raised by the Legal Remembrancer than on the amendment moved by the honourable member from Satara.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The remarks of the honourable member Mr. Asavale are very useful in directing the attention of the honourable member who is speaking and of those who are to follow him, to limit their speeches to the motion before the House.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : If my honourable friend Mr. Asavale had only waited and paid a little more attention to my remarks he would not have raised the point of order and it would not have been necessary for the President to remind me and those to follow to curtail our speeches. The fact is that I wanted to show that the amendment as proposed by the honourable member from Satara is an amendment that has been accepted by this House in almost every Act. What I intended to show was that any danger or fear that the Government of India would withhold sanction is groundless. I also wanted to show that in the matter of the Act No. III of 1923, the Government of India itself had, by an amending Act, introduced section 3 laying down an almost identical rule giving the power under reference to provincial legislature. Therefore I say that the apprehension that the Government of India would refuse sanction is premature.

One more thing I wish to point out and that is, that this Council has never been unreasonable in interfering with the executive rules made under any enactment. The rules made under the Bombay Children Act were placed on the table of this House and all of them were adopted without any modification. The rules made under the Co-operative Societies Act, except one or two, all were allowed to pass unchallenged. This Council has always been reasonable in the passing of such rules without delay. Therefore I request all the honourable members to agree to this amendment because it is a matter of its privilege under which it has to exercise its right of removing any rules which may be prejudicial or harmful or obnoxious to any particular part of the country, and therefore this opportunity must be seized to protect our privileges.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Sir, I support the amendment moved by my honourable friend from Satara. The rules that are framed under the various Acts are such as require a great deal of modification. For instance, I may point out that the rules under the Land Revenue Code and the Irrigation Act are such as require great modification and the provisions laid down in these very Acts do not help us to make any change in those rules. An amendment of this kind is quite needed. Sometimes the number of rules exceed even the sections of the Acts under which they are made, and if a member of this House can bring an amendment to the sections, I do not see why the same member should not have power to bring an amendment to the rules made under those sections. The rules are more often than not very troublesome and in many places require immediate cancellation or modification. Under these circumstances, the power of making rules, if given to the executive, solely, certainly interferes with the right given to this legislature, and therefore it is quite necessary that the rules framed under this Act should be placed before this House for modification or alteration as the case may be. The Government of India Act even contemplates this under section 129 as was pointed out by my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan and there is another section 19-A which also contemplates a similar thing which lays down that rules should be approved by both Houses of Parliament. So if the rules framed even by the Secretary of State in Council are to be placed before the Houses of Parliament before they can acquire the force of law, such power cannot be taken away from any legislature and given solely to the executive. I therefore heartily support the amendment before the House.

Mr. B. T. DESAI (Bombay City, South): Sir, I surely congratulate the honourable member, Rao Bahadur Kale, on the amendment that he has brought in but I cannot congratulate him for the speech that he has made. I say that it is the inherent and legal right of every legislature to have control over rules that are framed under any Act which it itself forges and therefore it would not be proper that this right of supervising rules should be taken away or should not be vested in the body which forges the Act. Then, Sir, I do not see that there was any necessity for giving an apology, and there is no question of bringing to the notice of the Government of India the behaviour of honourable members here. I certainly take exception to it. The honourable members here have not done anything which should make them consider what the Government of India will think of them. I say we do not at all care for it. As long as these are our rights, we do not care what others think of us. We are here to exercise the rights given to us by law, and we should not in any way be influenced by any idea as to what other bodies may think of us when we exercise our rights. This amendment, I understand, is really a wholesome check on the vagaries of the executive. Of course, if the executive are left to themselves, they frame rules as they like, and we have an instance of it in the case of the Compulsory Primary Education Act, where rules have been framed inconsistent with the provisions of the Act. Of course that would not have come into existence had the House been vigilant enough to exercise its rights at the proper time, and demanded that the rules framed should be placed before the House, to enable the House to modify the rules as required. Then perhaps the present fight that is going on so far as those rules are concerned would have not come into existence at all. Of course, we should blame ourselves for not having been vigilant enough to exercise our rights where it was necessary. I think that in every Act where rules are to be framed this provision ought to be made, or once for all it should be laid down that, even though it is not specifically mentioned in the Act, the House has the inherent right to modify the rules in any way not inconsistent with the Act.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Sir, I wish to make the position of Government quite clear. We do not wish to encroach upon the rights of the House ; we do not wish to take away the powers which they possess. I pointed out to you, Sir, and to the House yesterday that this legislation pertains to a central subject, and the sanctioning authority says that such a change in clause 6 is ultra vires. That is the ruling which they have given, and so we think that if this amendment is accepted, the whole bill will be wrecked. It is admitted by the whole House that this is a beneficial piece of legislation, and it is wanted by the people.

An Honourable MEMBER : It is not.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : There may be a difference of opinion, but the majority on both sides of the House think that this is a beneficial piece of legislation, and if this beneficial piece of legislation is to be gone through, my only anxiety is that it should not be wrecked, because of this particular amendment, as the bill has to be submitted to the sanction of the Government of India. That is the view which the Government of India hold. My honourable friend Mr. Pahalajani stated that this Standing Order should have been brought to the notice of the Government of India. I may say that the substance of our standing orders was by implication brought to the notice of the Government of India but in spite of that, they stick to the view that an amendment of this sort will be ultra vires ; that is the view which they hold, and they are the sanctioning authority. Yesterday everything was shown to the Honourable the President and made clear. Last year they pointed out that if such a change is made, then they would consider it ultra vires, and they will not sanction it. So, I think half a loaf is better than no bread at all, and I hope the House will not wreck this bill because of this amendment. We have always been anxious to meet the wishes of the House in all other cases. In all other cases, we have placed the rules on the Council table and given them an opportunity of modifying them according to their wishes. But here, as the sanctioning authority says that it is ultra vires, we have no alternative but to oppose it.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division) : Sir, I would like to make a few observations upon what has fallen from the Honourable Minister. I think this is the second attempt on the part of Government to do away with this amendment. Sir, you had stated yesterday that you would come back safe from the custody of the Legal Remembrancer and the Honourable the Leader of the House, and I congratulate you for having kept your word. This House considers that this is a very important amendment, and you, Sir, have ruled that it is in order. Now, I think that this amendment should be passed; the bill without this amendment would, I think, be incomplete and unsatisfactory at least to this part of the House, and further the question of our privilege would be jeopardised. Therefore, I say, whether the Government of India accept this amendment or not, this House is not in a position to give up its rights, and I hope the House will carry the amendment.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind) : On a point of order, I think your predecessor has ruled that no document should be referred to either by Government or this side of the House unless it is on the Council table, and if the Government are prepared to place it on the Council table, then only can they enter into a discussion of the matter.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I stated yesterday that the House was not aware of what was the authority of the honourable member the Legal Remembrancer; that is quite enough. But at this stage, I do not think any point of order raised or insisted upon in that connection is of much avail. Let us proceed with the business of the House.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : Sir, the Honourable Minister has very clearly placed the position before this House and I do not think I can add anything to what he has stated, but there are just two points which honourable members opposite do not seem to recollect. In the first place, honourable members will remember that an amendment of this kind was proposed originally by a Member of this Government, and therefore it is quite clear that this Government did not, at that time, consider such an amendment ultra vires. Such an amendment was moved after consulting honourable members opposite, and it was a compromise.

An Honourable MEMBER : When ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : The Honourable Sir Maurice Hayward did it in the case of the Children's Protection Bill. This amendment was also included in the case of two other bills, and I believe passed. Afterwards, I believe Government sent a bill to the Government of India with a similar provision, and the Government of India wrote back and said that that provision, in their opinion, was ultra vires.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : I rise to a point of order. The Honourable Member in charge is referring to the opinion of the Government of India, and therefore I want your ruling as to whether it should not be placed on the Council table.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : May I speak on the point of order ? If I quote any document by reading it, then I understand that that document should be placed on the table of the House. But if I do not quote it, but merely refer to an opinion given to this Government by the Government of India or by anybody else, then it is not necessary for me to place that document on the table of the House.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I again wish to draw the attention of the honourable member to what I have stated, that he would not insist, at this stage, upon points of order of that nature.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : I was just mentioning the fact that this Government placed a similar provision in another bill which, in the ordinary course, was submitted to the Government of India, and the Government of India informed this Government that, in their opinion, it was ultra vires, and they asked this Government to omit it. These are the facts which honourable members should be aware of. (Interruption.)

I repeat again that they stated that it was ultra vires. They are the sanctioning authority and they distinctly stated to this Government that they should not include such clauses in any bill that they may submit to the sanctioning authority. Now, the desire of this honourable House is to include such a clause in this bill. Therefore the Honourable Minister was merely doing his duty in placing all the facts before this honourable House. If the Government of India still maintain the position that this amendment is ultra vires and refuse to sanction the bill, all the trouble and all the efforts of honourable members and the Honourable Minister will be of no avail. The Government of India having expressed their opinion in very definite terms the chances are that they will tell the Government of Bombay that the Government of Bombay ought to have fully informed the House of the views of the Government of India. Government have done so. Therefore the position is whether honourable members want the bill without this amendment or do they not want the bill without the amendment. (Interruption.) The reasons of Government were explained to the honourable members. (Interruption.)

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : The Honourable Minister and the Legal Remembrancer have explained the position. You, Sir, have seen the opinion of the Government of India. In short as I understand, the position is that the Government of India are of opinion that under the Act no resolution passed by this honourable House can have the force of law. Every resolution shall be a recommendation to the local government and the local government alone has the power of agreeing or disagreeing with any resolution that this honourable House may pass. Further the provisions in the previous bills gave resolutions the force of law and that was considered by the Government of India to be ultra vires under the Government of India Act. That is the position, I understand, taken up by the Government of India. (An honourable member : What about Chapter VIII-A of the Standing Orders ?) What is the history of this Standing Order ? The history as I understand it is as follows :

[Sir Cowasji Jehangir]

When the provision was suggested by Sir Maurice Hayward, honourable members stated : " What is the use of our giving notice of resolutions if we have no chance of moving them. If we do not get a high place in the ballot we will not be able to move such resolutions." Sir Maurice Hayward appreciating the soundness of the contention agreed to change the standing orders to enable honourable members to have priority for such resolutions. So far as I recollect such resolutions were included in Government business. A further standing order was introduced into the Standing Orders to give effect to that undertaking. Government of India were informed of the existence of such a Standing Order. But Standing Orders are not sanctioned by the Government of India. Such Standing Orders are passed by this House and the Government of India are not in any way responsible for such Standing Orders. If such Standing Orders require the sanction of the Government of India we could turn round and say : " You have sanctioned a Standing Order which enables us to pass such resolutions and now you cannot say that it is ultra vires."

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : I do not understand what is ultra vires.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Under the Act no resolution of this House can have the force of law.

I think the whole position is clear. The Honourable Minister and the Legal Remembrancer have told you all the facts, and placed before the House the opinion of the Government of India. That is to say, if you include a provision of this nature it may be turned down by the Government of India. Therefore this amendment may not be sanctioned by the Government of India ; and all our efforts may be of no avail.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I have given my ruling and pointed out that, whatever be the opinion of the Government of India, as we stand in this House under the Rules and Standing Orders I consider the amendment, according to my understanding in order. I have allowed it. I do not wish that the action of the Government of India should be brought under discussion. Honourable members from Government are repeating more elaborately what I briefly stated from the papers shown to me this morning. I can see that the Government of India appear to insist that no such clause should appear in any of the bills or Acts sent up for sanction. In spite of that, in my humble opinion, I think I am right in ruling the amendment in order. Honourable members will, therefore, confine themselves to the limits prescribed for the discussion and not challenge, whether right or wrong, the opinion of the Government of India.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District) : Sir, I feel impelled to make few observations by the speech which has been made by the Honourable the General Member. The position that is sought to be submitted to this House on behalf of Government is simply this. Government are asking us not to pass this amendment on the sole ground that if it is passed the whole bill will be vetoed by the Government of India. They themselves recognise the merits of the amendment proposed : on merits they have absolutely nothing to say against the amendment. But they say and they hold it as a threat before us, that if this amendment is passed by this Council the whole bill will be vetoed by the Government of India. (The Honourable Sir Cowasji Jehangir : May be.) May be vetoed by the Government of India. I am glad that that correction has been made because from that correction it clearly follows that Government themselves do not feel certain. They are themselves not sure that if this amendment is passed the Government of India will veto the bill. I welcome that correction. The Government themselves are not sure ; they fear, they imagine, that in case the amendment is passed by the Council, probably the Government of India will throw out the entire bill. That is the position as placed by the Government before us. Now, I ask the Council, are we going to allow our judgment as regards this amendment to be in any way deflected or influenced by some imaginary fear ?

Mr. M. WEBB : Sir, on a point of order. Is the honourable member addressing the Chair ?

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : Oh, yes. I am addressing the Chair. The question, Sir, is this : is the judgment of the honourable House on this amendment going to be influenced by some imaginary or fanciful fear on the part of Government that in case this amendment is passed the whole bill will be vetoed by the Government of India ? That is the question before the honourable House. And I ask the honourable House not to allow their judgment to be in the least influenced by this fear, whether real or fanciful.

There is another point of considerable constitutional importance which I desire to submit for the consideration of this House. This is a bill which refers to a transferred department. The powers of control, supervision and interference on the part of the Government of India on any matter relating to a transferred subject are extremely limited ; they are regulated by a rule. And if we think, as we should certainly think in this particular case, that the interference of the Government of India in vetoing the bill in case this amendment is passed is arbitrary, well, I submit that is an additional reason why we should tell the Government of India that we shall not submit to any such interference on their part. We are bound to make that position clear, and we are bound to tell the Government of India that they should not interfere in a matter that refers to a transferred department.

So, Sir, on all these considerations, I submit that we should not pay the slightest attention to some bogey that is being raised by the Government. We should not in the least care what the Government of India may do. The Government of India may or may not veto. If they veto, the responsibility for so doing will be on the Government of India : we do not want to be a party to that responsibility. But I still cherish considerable faith in the good sense and the sound judgment of the Government of India. Simply because we stick to our views and we pass this amendment, I do not think, the Government of India will be so unreasonable as to entirely veto this beneficial piece of legislation because it embodies this provision. I have no such fear, whatever fears my honourable friends opposite may have. It may be that if the Government of India think that such a clause should not be included in the bill, they may again ask this Government to re-commit this bill and submit this particular clause for the reconsideration of this House. That course is open to the Government of India, and it is also open to the Government of Bombay. But at this stage we ought not to allow our judgment to be in the least influenced by any such considerations as have been submitted on behalf of the Government, and I appeal to the House to accept the amendment and pass it.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Sir, before I reply, I wish to amend the wording of my amendment by adding the words "in the form of a statutory motion" after the words "resolution." I wish to add these words, because the Standing Order on Statutory Motions says :

"A member who wishes to move a resolution which he is entitled to move in pursuance of any statute or legislative enactment." . . . . .

I want to specify that the resolution shall be a statutory motion. In order to make that clear, I want to amplify the meaning of resolution by adding the words "in the form of a statutory motion."

In reply, I have only to say that my task has been performed by the honourable member Mr. Pradhan. But I would add that I was thirsting for some explanation whether the Standing Order itself was ultra vires in the view of the Government of India or whether the insertion of this clause in the clause giving the rule-making power to Government was ultra vires. Is it the view as the Honourable Sir Cowasji Jehangir has suggested that the legislature has no power to make such a kind of provision ? In this connection I was referring to Act III of 1923, the Cotton Transport Act, an Act on a commercial subject. Section 8 of that Act runs thus :

"No notification under section 3 or rule under section 7 shall be issued by the local Government of any governor's province, unless it has been laid in draft before the Legislative Council of the province, and has been approved by a resolution of the Legislative Council, either with or without modification or addition, but upon such approval being given the notification or rule, as the case may be, may be issued in the form in which it has been so approved."

What I want to submit is that there the power is given to the Legislative Council of the Province to pass resolutions. I think much of the confusion is caused by the word "resolution." As it is commonly understood from the rules and standing orders, generally speaking resolutions are of a recommendatory character. But this is a statutory resolution and the Act provides that the Council can pass this resolution. It is perfectly intra vires. I do not see how any objection can be put in the way of any legislative body to make such a provision. What is the necessity for this provision ? It is that when an enactment is passed there is much to be done which is left to rules.

One word with regard to the drastic statement made that the Government of India will in future refuse their sanction to any such enactment that may hereafter be passed by this Council. I do submit that it is a drastic statement. There are amendments and amendments ; there are enabling sections ; there are rules of an administrative character. In such a case the Government of India will say that it is not a fit subject for sanction. But it seems to me rather doubtful that they will lay down a rule to govern all kinds of future legislation. If they do then goodbye to all Legislative Councils. I do not think that that power is there and that the Government of India will exercise it. If sanction is required we have to approach the Government of India and if it is refused we have to go to a court of law. I do submit that it is the only remedy. If sanction is refused we shall have to file a suit against the Secretary of State. Because the Government of India says that a certain thing is ultra vires we should not refrain from undertaking such a thing, and if need be we shall file a suit. I would only submit that we need not be swayed by the fears expressed by the honourable members on the other side. If the worst happens the Act will be vetoed, but it will form the subject of comment and the matter will not rest there. It is not an urgent matter and the heavens are not going to fall if we do not pass the Cotton Markets Bill. It will enable us once for all to test the powers of the Government of India in this respect and we shall not be losers by not passing this legislation. I do submit that the members of Government are not tied down to the mandate of the Government of India. But let them do as they like ; the non-official members of this House will not be swayed by any such fears.

Clause 6, as amended, ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 9 (Appointments and salaries of servants of the market committee) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 17 (Penalties) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 18 (Offences to be triable only by First Class Magistrates):

No offence under this Act or under any rule made under section 6 shall be triable by a magistrate other than a magistrate of the First Class.

All fines and damages recovered from an offender shall be paid to the market committee. Prosecutions under this Act may be instituted by any person duly authorized in writing by the market committee in this behalf.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Mr. President, there is only one small amendment, only a nominal amendment which I wish to move. There was an omission. The bye-laws also provide for penalties, and so the addition which I propose is necessary. The amendment is:

"In clause 18, after the figure '6' insert the words and figure 'or under any bye-law made under section 7'."

Question put and carried.

Clause 18, as amended, ordered to stand part of the bill.

The preamble and clause 1 (Short title) ordered to stand part of the bill.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: Mr. President, of course, there are certain amendments made, but if all the honourable members have no objection, and if you give me permission, I move that the bill be read a third time. The Standing Order at page 247 says:

"If any amendment be made when a Bill is submitted clause by clause, any Member may object to the Bill being read a third time at the same meeting; and such objection shall prevail, unless the President, in exercise of his power to suspend this provision, disallows the objection."

I do not suppose there will be any objection to the third reading of the bill now. (After a pause.) The clauses will have to be renumbered, and so it may be done to-morrow.

BILL No. XXI OF 1927 (A BILL TO AMEND THE LAW RELATING TO THE UNIVERSITY OF BOMBAY)

(As amended by the Select Committee)

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Mr. President, I present the report* of the select committee on Bill No. XXI of 1927, a Bill to amend the law relating to the University of Bombay.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The report of the select committee on Bill No. XXI of 1927, a Bill to amend the law relating to the University of Bombay, is duly presented.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Before, Sir, I move that the bill be read a second time, I request you to suspend the operation of Standing Order 8, clause (2) (a), inasmuch as the report of the select committee was not published quite within the 15 days of the date of the session. That clause reads :

“ That the Bill as reported by the Select Committee be read a second time either at once or on some future date to be then stated : provided that no such motion shall be made unless copies of the report, of minutes of dissent and of the bill, if amended, have been despatched to each Member 15 clear days before the date appointed for the Session of the Council at which the report is presented, unless the President in exercise of his power to suspend this provision allows the motion to be made. ”

So, I request your permission to allow me to make the motion by suspension of that standing order.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I know that the bill was not published quite in time but I gave honourable members further time to submit their amendments and that was extra six days. In view of that I think that all the members of the House are well informed on all parts of the bill. I, therefore, suspend the provision as asked for.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I move,
 Second reading. Sir, that the bill as reported by the select committee be now read a second time.

The select committee met for five days and worked for about 22 hours on this bill and gave very full consideration to the provisions of the bill as was referred to the select committee after the first reading. The bill has undergone some changes in the shape of some additions, some omissions and some alterations. The provision about the Governor General being brought in as a Visitor of the University is an addition made in conformity with similar provisions in the University Acts of Allahabad, Madras and Andhra Universities and at the desire of the Government of India that that provision should find a place in this bill as in the other enactments relating to other recent universities in India.

The select committee has also provided for physical and military training and for a Board of Selection for appointments to be made by the university and also for a Board of Post Graduate Studies. It has omitted a reference to the school-leaving board at the suggestion of the Government of India as it does not appertain to the proper function of the University. It will have another board of examiners for the entrance to the university and consequently that provision has been left out.

With reference to the alterations, Sir, the question of the provision for creating the post of a rector has been dealt with by providing that there shall be a certain number of votes before such a post is created. Then, there are some changes in the constitution of the senate. There was one provision with reference to all principals being ex-officio members of the senate. In the bill an alteration has been made and instead of all, only some have been provided for. With reference to this there are some amendments before the honourable House.

[Dewan Bahadur Harilal D. Desai]

A provision has been added in the select committee bringing in the Millowners' Associations at Bombay and Ahmedabad, and the provision about giving representation to the university teachers and teachers has been changed by giving ten seats to them instead of five. The elections with reference to city municipalities and district local boards have been arranged with reference to the educational divisions rather than to the revenue divisions.

There is one point on which I ought to say something with reference to clause 44 which is now clause 47 in view of the addition of a proviso in sub-clause (2) to that clause. The words "any provision of this Act or" were retained in view of the passing of the proviso in sub-clause (2), but by some oversight these words were scored out in the copies which were supplied to the honourable members on the 9th of September when we last met and considered the matter, but honourable members will see from the sub-clause (2) that the jurisdiction of the High Court, if any, has been saved and consequently the words "any provision of this Act or" ought to be there; otherwise, sub-clause (2) would be redundant. I mention this in order that there may be no misunderstanding.

Amendments have been sent in by several honourable members with reference to several clauses and these will be discussed by this House in their proper places as we proceed through the bill clause by clause. With these few remarks, I request that the bill be now read a second time.

Question proposed.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District): Sir, I beg to move:

"That Bill No. XXI of 1927 as reported by the select committee be recommitted to the committee with instruction to make an additional provision in the bill making it a statutory obligation upon the Government to make to the University an annual grant of not less than three lakhs of Rupees."

I make this motion under sub-clause (3) of Standing Order 8, of chapter VIII. Sub-clause (b) of Standing Order VIII, 8, says:

"That the Bill, as reported, be recommitted to the Select Committee, either without limitation, or with instruction to the Select Committee to make some particular or additional provision in the Bill."

Now, Sir, this honourable House is fully aware of the general concensus of opinion and the general state of feeling that in the bill under consideration a statutory provision should be made, making it obligatory on the part of the Government to make an adequate annual grant to the university. Those who have studied the bill and those who have taken any interest in the question of university reform as it should be made, in order that the quality of higher education may be improved and the cause of post-graduate studies and scholarship may be promoted, feel convinced that unless the Government come to the assistance of the university by an adequate financial contribution, this bill in itself will not be able to achieve much. That is the general opinion of all who have thought about this matter, and that is a view with which I agree and which I consider as eminently reasonable. Honourable members will remember that some time ago there was published in "The Times of India" an article contributed by Sir Chimanlal Setalwad, the Vice-Chancellor of the University. It was a very weighty article, and coming as it did from the pen of one who has guided the affairs of the University in the capacity of Vice-Chancellor for several years, it is impossible for us not to give it the attention and the consideration to which it is entitled. Honourable members are aware that, in the concluding portion of that article, Sir Chimanlal Setalwad went to the length of expressing the opinion that if financial provision could not be made in the bill the bill had better be dropped altogether. He expressed the view, which I have also expressed just now, that the bill, as it stands, is not likely to achieve much, and if the Government are unable or unwilling to undertake to make reasonable and adequate contribution towards the expenses of the university, the better course would be for the bill to be dropped altogether. That has been the view expressed by Sir Chimanlal Setalwad.

Then I want to remind this Council of another circumstance. A few days ago, a meeting of the Senate was held, and in that meeting the Senate passed a resolution protesting against the introduction of this bill without incorporating into it a provision such as that which I have suggested in my amendment. So, the honourable House will see that the senate as well as most of those who feel interested in this important question are agreed that it is the duty of the Government to give a solemn undertaking, embodied in the bill, that a certain minimum grant shall be made to the University.

Well, the bill has been considered in the select committee. I do not want to go into the details of what took place in the select committee, nor do I want to make any reference to the various views that were expressed in the course of the deliberations of the select committee. I do not want to go into that matter. But certainly it has always appeared to me as extremely surprising and most distressing that a popular Minister, who is in charge of this Department of Education, should have come forward with a measure of this kind without insisting that a clause providing for a minimum statutory grant should be incorporated into the bill. Such an attitude on the part of the Honourable Minister of Education has always appeared to me to be extremely surprising and distressing. In fact, my view has been that he himself ought to have insisted upon a clause of this kind, and he ought to have come forward with a bill which contained that clause. On the contrary, I have noted with very great regret that he seems to be absolutely indifferent to a clause of this kind, which is absolutely important, which is regarded by men like Sir Chimanlal Setalwad as absolutely essential, and upon which in fact depends the future progress and development of the university. But, whatever may be the sins of commission and omission of the Honourable Minister of Education, and however justified and bound we may be to take him to task at times for those sins of omission and commission, it is our duty now to see to it that such a clause is incorporated into the bill. Therefore, I suggest in this amendment that this bill should be recommitted to the select committee, with an express direction from this Council, with a mandate to be given by this Council to the select committee, that such a clause shall be incorporated into the bill. By this amendment, I am asking this honourable House to give a mandate to the select committee ; and we are perfectly entitled and we have got that power of giving that mandate to the select committee. We give the mandate to the select committee "Well, consider the bill again, and incorporate into the bill this provision, namely, that at least a minimum grant of Rs. 3 lakhs shall be made by the Government; that provision should be incorporated into the Bill". That is the mandate that I am asking this Council to give to the select committee.

Mr. J. B. PETIT : Why send it back to the select committee ?

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : My honourable friend asks me, why send it back to the select committee ? The reason is obvious. If any amendment is proposed to that effect in the Council, at once a point of order will be raised that that amendment cannot be moved unless it obtains the previous sanction of His Excellency the Governor.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That point of order, I suppose, is awaiting the honourable member as soon as he finishes.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : Then I am going to have my say on the point of order later on.

That is the difficulty ; otherwise I would agree with the view taken by my honourable friend Mr. Petit that such an amendment could be passed by this House. Owing to that difficulty it has become absolutely necessary that the bill should be recommitted and that the select committee should be ordered, given this mandate, to incorporate this provision in the bill. Let them do what they like. If they think that the previous sanction of His Excellency the Governor is necessary let them ask for it, write to His Excellency the Governor for his sanction. I would say further that whatever view His Excellency may take the sanction may be granted or may not be granted, as it is in His Excellency's hands. If the sanction is not granted the responsibility will be his. We do not want to take any responsibility. On the contrary so far as the votable portion of the budget is concerned, it is in our hands, it is under our control. We have every right and power to compel the Government to give a mandate to them to allot a particular amount out of the votable portion to the university. (Interruption) An honourable member suggests five lakhs. I have not the least objection to accept it if he brings in an amendment to that effect. These are the considerations I submit to the House, and on the strength of these considerations I request that the bill should be recommitted to the select committee with the mandate that this important provision shall be incorporated in this bill. With these remarks I commend this amendment to the acceptance of the House.

Question proposed.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I rise to a point of order, Sir. Standing Order VIII, 8 (1) (2) (b) says :

"that the Bill, as reported, be recommitted to the select committee either—

(i) without limitation, or

(ii) with respect to particular clauses or amendments only, or

(iii) with instruction to the select committee to make some particular or additional provision in the Bill."

[Dewan Bahadur Harilal D. Desai]

If my honourable friend's suggestion were to make some provision other than financial, there would have been no objection. He has made it clear in his speech that he wants to give a mandate to the select committee that a statutory financial obligation should be inserted in the Bill and that Government should contribute annually a certain amount—three lakhs. I submit in view of section 80C of the Government of India Act the amendment is out of order. It is open to my honourable friend to have taken steps as some other honourable members have done to get the permission of His Excellency the Governor for the purpose of being able to make a provision of this sort. He was a member of the select committee. On some days he attended it; but I do not think that he took any part in the discussion except at the time of giving votes. I submit if he was very keen it was open to him at that stage, because he was a member of that committee.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Will the Honourable Minister limit himself to the point of order.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: In view of section 80C of the Government of India Act the whole amendment is out of order.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District): Sir, I have got to say one thing about this point of order. The point of order raised is that the previous sanction of the Governor is necessary. When such a point is raised it is laid down that the matter must be referred to the authority which is to decide whether the previous sanction is necessary or not. Until it is decided the amendment itself cannot be out of order.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: What does the honourable member rely on?

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN: I understand in the discussion of Mr. Addyman's Bill this point was raised and your predecessor ruled that when such a point is raised the matter must be referred to the Governor himself.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Where is that?

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN: I must have some time to find it out.

It refers to 19 (3) of the Legislative Council Rules. I presume so. It provides:

"If any question arises whether a Bill is or is not a Bill which requires sanction under the Government of India Act, the question shall be referred to the authority which would have power to grant the sanction if it were necessary, and the decision of that authority on the question shall be final."

After all, this is an amendment and does form part of the Bill. The amendment which I am suggesting refers to a particular provision which should be added to the Bill. That provision, if incorporated, will form part of the Bill. Consequently the point of order is simply this, whether the particular clause which is sought to be incorporated in the bill requires the sanction of His Excellency or not. If that is the point of order, then certainly the matter should be referred to His Excellency the Governor. If His Excellency decides that it requires sanction and that sanction is not obtained, then certainly it is out of order. But until then this amendment cannot be held to be out of order. It must be referred to His Excellency. The question which will have to be referred to His Excellency will be whether this amendment requires his sanction and if it requires his sanction whether sanction can be obtained or not.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : Sir, may I bring another point for your consideration ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Very briefly, please.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : The section of the Government of India Act, section 80C says :

" It shall not be lawful for any member of any local legislative council to introduce without the previous sanction of the Governor, . . . . . any measure affecting the public revenues of a province, or imposing any charge on those revenues."

Its marginal heading is " Financial proposals." I think " any measure " means any law. But this amendment is not a law, and it cannot be called a measure coming under the definition of section 80C of the Government of India Act.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : As to the first point of the honourable member Mr. Pradhan, that under rule 19 (3) of the Bombay Legislative Council Rules, as soon as a point is raised it should be referred to the authority who can decide it, I do not read that rule in that sense. It is clear under section 80C of the Government of India Act that any measure which seeks to throw a burden on the public revenues of a province should have the previous sanction of the Governor before it is introduced in a local legislative council by any member of that council. Here, the amendment proposed leaves nothing vague about it : it says that three lakhs of rupees should be provided for, and that is throwing a burden on the public revenues.

As regards the second point raised by the honourable member Mr. Pahalajani he draws a distinction between a measure and an amendment to a clause. Whether it is done by a separate Bill or an amendment to the Bill, the result is the same, the provincial revenues are affected. I, therefore, think that at this stage the amendment proposed is out of order.

We must now revert for a moment to the last voting list. I am informed by the Secretary that there is a mistake in the voting list : Mr. J. R. Patel seems to have voted on both sides, or at any rate he is marked as having voted on both sides. Now, may I know on which side the honourable member has voted ?

Mr. J. R. PATEL : Sir, I voted for the amendment, for the Ayes and not for the Noes.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : Sir, he came to the " Ayes " side : I saw that.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I take the word of the honourable member that he has voted for the Ayes. The list should be corrected accordingly. The division would then be 31 for the Ayes and 30 for the Noes ; and the casting vote is not necessitated.

[The President]

The honourable member Mr. Swaminarayan has placed in my hands an amendment that the bill as reported be recommitted to the select committee.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Sir, under Standing Order VIII, 8 (b) (i), I move that :

The Bill as reported be recommitted to the select committee.

Sir, there is no other alternative left to the House for the purpose of seeing that some financial provision is made in the bill.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : Sir, the honourable mover must specify either (i), (ii) or (iii) of the Standing Order. He merely says that the bill be recommitted.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : He has specified (i).

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : There is no other alternative left to the House to see that some sort of financial provision is made in the bill. At the time of the first reading, I had drawn the attention of the House to the fact that it was necessary to have some sort of financial provision in the bill, and after the first reading was passed, I took the earliest opportunity to send an amendment on the lines suggested by me for the sanction of His Excellency the Governor, but that amendment did not receive the sanction under section 80C. Now, the only way in which the House can force the Government to change their attitude and look at this matter from a generous and liberal point of view is by recommitting the bill to the select committee. There is a consensus of opinion outside as regards this matter. Even the present Vice-Chancellor, who is not an elected person, but a nominated person who has the confidence of Government, is of opinion that unless you make financial provision the University Bill will not work. The bill imposes greater financial obligations on the university without giving any sort of additional income. Sir, in all the universities outside India, as well as in India, it is the recognised principle that the university must receive substantial aid from the State. It is very unfortunate that Government have been very obstinate in this matter and that they always rely on technical objections at a time when the House wants to have financial provision inserted in the bill. If the bill is recommitted to the select committee it will give time for getting public opinion. There has been very little time for discussing this matter. There are so many educationists who want to express an opinion on this bill and almost everybody is unanimous in saying that financial provision must be made. The object of my moving the amendment is to afford time and opportunity to Government to change their attitude in this respect. I do not blame His Excellency the Governor because His Excellency the Governor, in respect of the transferred subjects, is supposed to be acting on the advice of Ministers. I hold the Honourable Minister responsible because in regard to transferred subjects His Excellency is not acting on his own initiative. If this bill is recommitted to the select committee the Honourable Minister will get sufficient time to change his views which he holds at present. It is in the interests of the Honourable Minister to see that the bill which we pass is in no way inferior to the

[Mr. J. C. Swaminarayan]

Madras Bill or the United Provinces Bill. It will be in the interests of the House if financial provision is guaranteed : otherwise we will be very well off under the old Act.

(After recess)

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. I find that another mistake has been discovered in the division list, and that is that the tellers have ticked the name of the honourable member Mr. J. R. Patel instead of that of the honourable member Rao Saheb D. R. Patil. That is to say, Rao Saheb Patil's name should have been shown as having voted for the Noes instead of Mr. J. R. Patel. That must be corrected. The result will be 31 against on either side, and the same casting vote will remain. But I must point out, seriously, to honourable members, particularly to those who are told off as tellers, that they must be very careful as tellers because a correct return is of the utmost importance for the fullest reliance of the House on the tellers.

Mr. J. R. MARTIN : May I make a suggestion, Sir ? I am told that in the Assembly each member is assigned a number, and that this saves time and also ensures that these mistakes do not take place. If every member is given a number on the division list and mentions the number, it saves the time of the tellers and possibly the time of the House.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I think that is a very good suggestion and I shall consider it.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Sir, the argument which I am going to put before the House was forcibly expressed by the Vice-Chancellor of the University and the same matter was discussed by the Senate, and the Senate also have emphatically expressed their opinion that financial provision should be made in the bill. Sir, I sent an amendment on that score for the sanction of His Excellency the Governor. It was a very modest amendment ; it was drafted on a similar clause in the Madras Act and it read as follows :

The University shall have a fund to which shall be credited

- (1) its income from fees, endowments and grants, if any, and
- (2) any contribution by the Local Government. The Local Government shall contribute annually towards the said fund

(a) a sum equal to the amount of contribution by the Local Government in the financial year prior to the coming into force of this Act towards the recurring expenditure of the University ; and

(b) a sum equal to half the expenditure incurred by the University towards the establishment and maintenance of the schools of post-graduate study and research in all branches of higher learning and a college of technology with full equipment of laboratories, workshops, museums and libraries.

Sir, this was a very modest amendment. The U. P. Government bear the whole cost of the technological college while here there was a demand only for half the amount of expenditure to be incurred in the technological college, and such other colleges which make research. Sir, this amendment was not given sanction to under 80C of the Government of India

[Mr. J. C. Swaminarayan]

Act, and at the same time my honourable friend Mr. K. M. Munshi sent a very, very modest amendment, which read as follows :

" In the said fund, the Government shall contribute annually towards the recurring expenditure of the University Departments a sum equal to the amount of grant-in-aid contributions and donations provided for in the Budget for the year 1927-28."

The honourable member Mr. Munshi desired that the amount that is being paid just now shall be guaranteed to the University. But even that very, very modest suggestion of the honourable member has not been given sanction to. Therefore, we cannot understand what attitude Government wish to take. They do not want the provision of even the grants that are already given to the University. Then, out of that amount some amount has been compelled to be given by the Government of Bombay in connection with the Meston award. The Government of India was making a grant and when the Meston award was adjusted, that amount has been taken by the Government of Bombay and is continued to be paid. The additional grant of Rs. 30,000 was sanctioned only six months ago. In all university is given Rs. 1,27,000. Even this modest grant could not be allowed to be entered as a statutory obligation. Now, if such is the attitude of Government, it is the high duty of this House to see that this attitude is changed, and there is no other way in which that attitude can be changed unless we recommit this bill to the select committee, so that this matter may be taken up there once more and efforts may be made on the part of the select committee to have the attitude of Government changed in this respect. Sir, I may mention that the practice of state aid is recognised in almost all the American State universities, and in Australian universities also the state aid is recognised, and the new universities in India also do recognise the principle of state aid. We are going to get the bride but without the dowry, and we must therefore insist that the bride and the dowry both must come to the House and not, as in the present bill, a bride without the dowry. Sir, I therefore wish that this bill be recommitted to the select committee, and if time and opportunity are given to the Government, they may change their attitude and meet the wishes of this House. I do not suggest that this select committee should meet after the session is over. It can meet for one or two days during the session itself. This is merely a question of the attitude of Government being changed. I do not mean that the members of the select committee may be required to come once more and Government should be put to the expense of travelling expenses for those members. This is suggested merely in order that Government may change their attitude and meet the wishes of the House in a proper way. So I move :

"That the bill as reported be recommitted to the select committee without limitation."

Question proposed.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, I oppose this amendment as nothing will be gained by recommitting the bill to the select committee for the purpose for which my honourable friend wants to have it recommitted. He perhaps is not aware of the fact that my honourable friend Mr. Munshi, the representative of the University in this honourable House, asked for permission to add a clause to the bill with reference to a financial provision for the university. That has received the sanction of His Excellency the Governor under section 80C and it will be coming up in its proper place and at its proper time. This fact shows that that matter will be considered at its proper stage.

As regards the present condition of the university in financial matters, I beg to submit that the university has at present a capital fund of 13 lakhs of rupees bringing to them an annual income of Rs. 53,000. Over and above that, it is saving a net amount between Rs. 70,000 and a lakh of rupees from the fees collected from students. That is the net saving and the university had also on the 1st of July last a balance of Rs. 1,41,000 on hand. That is the present position of the university. However, the provision for which my honourable friend Mr. Munshi had asked for sanction under section 80C has been given and therefore I submit that nothing would be served by sending the bill back to the select committee for the purpose for which the honourable mover wants it to be recommitted.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Sir, I oppose the amendment moved by my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan. We all agree with him that there should be some provision as regards finances but the remedy suggested by him that the bill should be recommitted to the select committee is not the right remedy. The bill was carefully considered in the select committee and to refer it back to the same committee is not likely to improve matters in the least. There has been sufficient elucidation of public opinion both inside and outside the House. I also do not see eye to eye with the Honourable Minister in the way in which he thinks the matter may come up at some subsequent stage. I do not see exactly when the matter is going to come up and why it should come up from a private member. My grievance is that the Honourable Minister, representing as he does the transferred departments and the people, should himself be the sponsor of such a provision. I do not mean to say that he has not made any such effort but I do not know. From the manner, however, in which he has just given expression to his views, I gather that he left it rather to a private non-official member. Whether this private member represents the university or not is a different matter. I say that whatever is to be done should be done by the Honourable Minister himself as the people's representative in the Government even though he may not directly represent the university in this Council. Nonetheless, it is his duty to bring forward amendment to this bill in the way that the Council and everybody else desires. I suggest that we should allow the bill to go through its second reading. There is time enough, let us wait, let us not throw out the bill or send it back to the select committee. If we find at the third reading that the bill deserves to be thrown out altogether, the House has that power in its hands, but I hope that no such occasion will arise and that the Honourable Minister will be in a position to announce during the course of the second reading, at any rate before the second reading is finished, when the matter is going to come up. I for one feel that rather than make matters worse, it is better to be satisfied with the conditions as they now obtain, and therefore it is I say that we should wait and see how matters develop as the bill goes through the second reading, clause by clause.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Sir, in view of the fact that Government are changing their attitude little by little and in view also of the fact that my honourable friend Mr. Munshi has received sanction to bring up an amendment providing for continuing the financial help to the University, I beg permission of the House to withdraw the amendment which I had moved. I moved the amendment because I was informed that Mr. Munshi had been refused sanction....

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : He was never refused.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : At any rate that was my information. I hope the House will give me leave to withdraw my amendment.

Question put and leave granted.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District) : I wish, Sir, to point out that the report of the select committee was received on the 20th instant and we did not have sufficient time to send in our amendments in time. I posted my amendments on the 26th instant and the envelope bears the postal stamp of the 26th instant. Still it was not received in the Council office until the 28th, and so those amendments have been ruled out as being time-barred. So I think that just as the Honourable Minister was allowed a concession in the shape of waiving of the provision of Standing Orders this afternoon, so also we should be allowed a similar concession as regards our amendments.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I might at once inform the honourable member that I do not propose to do anything of the kind as considering that the publication and the issue took some time, I gave, as it were, the number of days that honourable members had lost for them to send in their amendments, as I stated this morning. The limit was the 27th instant. Anything beyond that is not admissible.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : I posted it on the 26th.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : It was received in the Council office on the 28th.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : I have very little time to place my views in detail before the House. I will therefore speak generally on the bill.

The first thing that is worth noticing in this bill is with regard to the Vice-Chancellor. When this House has agreed to the Chancellorship being given to His Excellency the Governor, it naturally followed that the Vice-Chancellor should be an elected office bearer, but the clause lays down that the Vice-Chancellor shall be nominated by the Chancellor, and that too not necessarily even from the Fellows ; he may be even an outsider. I think the stage has come when there should be an elected Vice-Chancellor, and he should be elected by the Senate from among the Fellows of the senate ; he should not be an outsider. So, the first thing that is required to be altered is the appointment of the Vice-Chancellor ; he should not be nominated ; he should be one who is elected from the Fellows, and not an outsider.

The next point is that representation is given to city municipalities and district local boards, but I notice that the words " members of city municipalities and members of district local boards " do not appear in the clause. Is it to be considered that city municipalities which may be 5 or 6 in a division are to return one Fellow from among them to the Senate ? As the wording goes, it will mean that each city municipality will have one vote only, and as there are 5 or 6 municipalities in one division, it will follow that 5 or 6 persons are to elect one person from among them, taking one vote for each municipality, and the person who secures 4 votes will be elected to the Senate. I think that the way in which this right is sought to be given is rather roundabout. In all democratic bodies direct election is given, while here we have two steps : one is that the person must be on the city municipality or district local board, and the members of each body together are to give one person the right to vote. So, this sort of double and treble election should be avoided. Another thing with regard to this election is that in all other constituencies the ratepayers are given the right of voting. We were just now told as to how the university gets its funds. We find that more than a lakh of rupees are received from fees, while Rs. 53,000 is the interest on the savings, which probably is from these fees. So, the persons who bear the tax of the university are altogether ignored, or given representation through another medium. I think the guardians of the students that pay the fees are the real taxpayers, and they must get direct representation. I do not see any difficulty in registering the names of all the guardians ; that can easily be done, and this principle is one which ought to receive the consideration of this House. The same thing can be said about district local boards. Furthermore, it is very difficult to find out why city municipalities only are given the right of sending representatives. Why should not all the municipalities have this right. These are things which require a radical change, and the proper persons, namely, the persons who pay the tax should be given representation on the senate.

The next thing is that up till now all the principals of colleges were there as ex-officio. The original bill had made provision for the principals of all colleges to be on the senate, but in the bill as it has emerged from the select committee only 8 principals of arts colleges are given representation. I think there will be many colleges that will go unrepresented. If the principals are not to come in ex-officio on the Senate, I think representatives of every college should be on the senate, because primarily it is these colleges that are closely connected with the university and university education, that is, post-graduate courses. I think, therefore, that every college must have their representative on the senate in the form of either the principal of the college, or some other representative of the college.

The next point is that the School Leaving Examination Board has been deleted from the bill. In the original bill that was included in sub-clause

[Mr. L. M. Deshpande]

(5) of clause 7, but it has been deleted by the select committee. In the statement of objects and reasons we find it stated that the School Leaving Examination Board has been given legislative sanction and thus put on a permanent footing. That statement does not find support in the body of the bill as amended by the select committee. The School Leaving Examination Board was there, and what was required was that it should have legislative sanction as pointed out in the statement of objects and reasons. No reasons are given for this deletion. No reasons are given for this deletion, and we find nothing in the report of the select committee beyond the statement that as suggested by the Government of India clause 7 (5) has been deleted. We do not know what the suggestion of the Government of India is. If the suggestions made by the Government of India are placed before the House, the House can see and consider what those suggestions are, but simply a sentence like that does not convey a proper idea to the House.

Another important thing is that the previous sanction of the Governor General has been obtained for the passing of this Act. It is stated in the preamble :

“ And whereas the previous sanction of the Governor General required by section 80A (3) of the Government of India Act has been obtained for the passing of this Act ; ”

I think this previous sanction was not before the House when the first reading of the bill was gone through. It must have been subsequently obtained, and if at all those words are to remain there, I think the fact should be stated that the previous sanction was obtained after the first reading was passed.

Another important thing is that of making some provision of funds ; as has just now been pointed out by so many honourable members, it is worth considering, and I think, as assured by the Honourable Minister, it will receive the assent of this House.

I also find that the rector's place is newly created. I think just as in the case of big municipalities and district local boards, officers are appointed and Government contribute towards the pay and expenditure of all those officers, similarly the pay and incidental expenditure regarding the rector should be paid by Government in the form of a grant. These are the general remarks I have to make and I have forwarded amendments in proper form. Just as I said I posted them on the due date. Unfortunately they came on the 28th. I again request the Honourable the President as a special case to allow me to move them.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Which I cannot.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I have nothing to say. These matters will be considered later on.

Clause 2 (commencement)

This Act shall come into operation on such date as Government may, by notification in the Bombay Government Gazette, appoint in this behalf.

Mr. BALAK RAM : Sir, I move :

The following be substituted for clause 2 :—

"2. This section and sections 1 and 44 shall come into operation at once. The rest of the Act shall come into operation on such date as Government may, by notification in the Bombay Government Gazette, appoint in this behalf."

This amendment, which is of a formal nature, has become necessary, because of the changes made by the select committee in the Transitory Provisions, specially clause 44. The position is that if the Act comes into force on the day as the Government appoints, section 44 also comes into operation on that date and not before. But clause 44 prescribes certain action to be taken by the syndicate before that date. There is thus a conflict between clauses 2 and 44. To remove this conflict, I have moved this amendment.

Question put and carried.

Clause 2 as amended ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 3 (Interpretation).

In this Act, unless there is anything repugnant in the subject or context—

- (a) "College" means an affiliated college;
  - (b) "Fellow" means an ex-officio Fellow or an ordinary Fellow of the University appointed under the provisions of this Act but does not include an Honorary Fellow;
  - (c) "Head Master" means the head of a High School registered by the University;
  - (d) "Prescribed" means prescribed by the Act or by any Statutes, Ordinances or Regulations made thereunder;
  - (e) "Principal" means the head of a college;
  - (f) "Registered Graduate" means a graduate registered under the provisions of this Act or of the Indian Universities Act, 1904;
  - (g) "Statutes," "Ordinances" and "Regulations" mean respectively the Statutes, Ordinances, and Regulations of the University made or deemed to have been made under this Act and for the time being in force;
  - (h) "Teacher" means such Professor, Reader, Lecturer and person giving instruction in any college as may be declared by the Statutes to be a teacher;
  - (i) "University" means the University of Bombay as reconstituted under this Act;
  - (j) "University Department" means any collegiate institution or post-graduate or research department maintained by the University;
  - (k) "University Professor" means a person appointed as such by the University;
- and
- (l) "University Teacher" means a person appointed by the University to give instruction on its behalf.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : There is an amendment to clause 3 in the name of Dr. B. R. Ambedkar.

Dr. B. R. AMBEDKAR : Sir, before I move my amendment to clause 3, I should like to correct a typist's error which has crept in the amendment as it stands on the paper. The amendment should read :

"An incorporated college is any institution founded and managed by the University itself for the study of a special group of subjects not provided in any adequate way in other colleges ; and so on."

Sir, this amendment which I propose to move is a consequential amendment which depends upon the passing of the main amendment to clause 25 of the bill which I shall be moving. If that amendment is not passed it will not become necessary for me to move this amendment. I therefore submit that I may be allowed to move this amendment after my main amendment to clause 25 is passed. If I move this amendment now and later on if my main amendment is lost, I shall be wasting the time of the House.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I shall allow the honourable member to revert to this amendment after his amendment to clause 25 is disposed of.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Honourable members who have given notice of amendments ought to be in their places.

Clause 4 (Incorporation and powers of the University).

4. (1) The University shall be and shall be deemed to have been incorporated for the purpose (among others) of making provision for the instruction of students, with power to appoint University Professors and University teachers, to hold and manage educational endowments, to erect, equip and maintain University laboratories and museums, to make regulations relating to the residence and conduct of students, to lay down courses of instruction for the various examinations, to guide the teaching in colleges, to inspect colleges and to take measures to ensure that proper standards of teaching are maintained in them, to hold examinations, to confer degrees, to undertake post-graduate teaching and to promote research, and to do all acts, not inconsistent with this Act, which tend to the promotion of study and research.

(2) The Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, the Rector (if any), the Fellows and all persons who may hereafter become or be appointed or elected to be Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor Rector or Fellows as hereinafter mentioned, so long as they shall continue to be such Chancellor, Vice-Chancellor, Rector or Fellows, are hereby constituted and declared to be one Body Corporate by the name of the University of Bombay; and such Body Corporate shall, by such name, have perpetual succession and a common seal, and by such name shall sue and be sued.

(3) The University shall be competent to acquire and hold property, both moveable and immoveable to lease, sell or otherwise transfer any moveable or immoveable property which may have become vested in or been acquired by it for the purposes of the University and to contract and do all other things necessary for the purposes of this Act.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District): Sir, I move that—

“ In clause 4 (2) delete the words ‘ The rector (if any). ’ ”

The provision for the appointment of the rector need not be kept in the bill. When the teaching side of the university is properly developed—I think this will take a good deal of time—there will be a real necessity of a rector; and no rector need be appointed for many years.

In opposing my amendment it may be argued that to prevent the immediate appointment of the rector a provision has been made in the bill that a resolution of the Senate will be required with a three-fourths majority. That is certainly a safeguard for the appointment of the rector not being made before a real necessity arises. But a number of amendments have been tabled to do away with this restriction of three-fourths majority of the senate. If that restriction is taken away there is a danger of rushing through the senate the resolution about the appointment of the rector by a catch vote. This highly paid officer may thus be appointed at a time when his services are not really wanted. In order to prevent this possibility of having to maintain this white elephant. I desire to remove this provision altogether.

It might be argued that the provision may be allowed to remain there and that it will be utilized whenever occasion arises. On the other hand it might be said that it is not difficult to pass an amending bill at the proper time, when the real necessity for a rector arises. If Government bring in a short bill for the purpose all the three readings can be carried in the same session. For that reason the provision of a rector in this bill is not required.

Question proposed.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind): Sir, the substantial issue of the appointment of Rector comes under clause 12 of the bill. There are so many amendments to it by the honourable members Mr. Bole, Mr. Chikodi and others that even after discussing the omission of this word here, the substantial issue will arrive when we come to clause 12 of the bill. Therefore I request the Chair to hold over these amendments till we dispose of clause 12.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The suggestion of the honourable member is that this should be taken after that clause (clause 12) is gone through : is that it ?

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : Yes. Immediately clause 12 is lost, this amendment becomes consequential. If that clause is carried, then the word "rector" will remain in this clause ; if that clause is not carried then "rector" will go out.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : I agree to it.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : Sir, there is an amendment of which notice has been given by the honourable member Mr. Chikodi, which says "Delete clause 12 and make consequential changes where necessary." That will cover the honourable member Mr. Jadhav's point. Therefore I would ask him to consider whether it is necessary to move this amendment.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : If this point is going to be allowed to be discussed later on when clause 12 is under discussion, I have no objection to asking the permission of the House to withdraw my present amendment.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I do not know what the position might be then : I would hold it over. That is all.

Clause 5 (The Visitor) :

(1) The Governor-General shall be the Visitor of the University.

(2) The Visitor shall have the right to cause an inspection to be made, by such person or persons as he may direct, of the University, its buildings, laboratories, libraries, museums, workshops and equipment and of any institutions maintained by or affiliated to the University and also of the teaching and other work conducted or done by the University and to cause an inquiry to be made in respect of any matter connected with the University. The Visitor shall in every case give notice to the University of his intention to cause such inspection or inquiry to be made and the University shall be entitled to be represented thereat.

(3) The Visitor may address the Chancellor with reference to the results of such inspection or inquiry and the Chancellor shall communicate to the Senate and to the Syndicate the views of the Visitor and may, after ascertaining the opinions of the Senate and Syndicate thereon, advise the University upon the action to be taken.

(4) The Syndicate shall, within such time as the Chancellor may fix, report to him for communication to the Visitor such action, if any, as is proposed to be or has been taken upon such advice. The report shall be accompanied by the opinion of the Senate thereon.

(5) The Chancellor may where action has not been taken by the University within a reasonable time to his satisfaction, after considering any explanation furnished or representation made by the Senate or the Syndicate, issue such directions as he may think fit and the University shall comply with such directions.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI (Belgaum District) : Sir, I move :

That sub-clause (4) of clause 5 be deleted.

This sub-clause takes away the liberty and independence of the University. The sub-clause reads :

"The Syndicate shall, within such time as the Chancellor may fix, report to him for communication to the Visitor such action, if any, as is proposed to be or has been taken upon such advice. The report shall be accompanied by the opinion of the Senate thereon,

[Mr. P. R. Chikodi]

Now, Sir, the sub-clause gives power to the Chancellor to compel the university to take a certain course of action. Sub-clauses (2) and (3) give all powers that are necessary to be given to the Visitor and the Chancellor. The Visitor after making inspection or enquiry, sends his proposals to the Chancellor who communicates them to the Senate and the Syndicate, and advises the university to take such steps as are considered necessary by him. There the matter should end, and the university should be left to take such action as it likes and should not be compelled like a subordinate body to carry out the wishes or the orders of the Chancellor. The university has a certain amount of independence. But the effect of the sub-clause 4 of clause 5 will be a clear encroachment upon the independence of the university. I therefore propose that this clause should go. I have also given notice of an amendment to delete the next sub-clause which will make the university entirely subordinate and dependent upon the Chancellor. These clauses give the whole power into the hands of a single person. The object with which this bill was introduced was to democratise the university and to increase its powers. Here by sub-clauses (4) and (5) it is sought to take away all that is going to be given by the subsequent clauses. I therefore propose that the House should delete sub-clause (4).

Question proposed.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir, I support the amendment moved by the honourable member Mr. Chikodi. The previous sub-clauses give all the powers that are necessary for the Visitor for the purpose of paying a visit to the University and making suggestions. Those sub-clauses enable the Visitor to make suggestions and the Chancellor to communicate those suggestions to the senate and the Syndicate. Now, sub-clauses (4) and (5) make the university a subservient and subordinate body. Those sub-clauses give plenary powers to the Chancellor. The sub-clause proposed to be deleted (sub-clause 4), says :

"The Syndicate shall, within such time as the Chancellor may fix, report to him for communication to the Visitor such action, if any, as is proposed to be or has been taken upon such advice. The report shall be accompanied by the opinion of the Senate thereon."

This sub-clause implies that the university is merely a subordinate body. When the Visitor gives his advice, a body like the University should be trusted to take the necessary action upon the advice. To legislate further that the university shall report to the Chancellor what action it has taken and that it shall take such action as the Chancellor directs, is a step that will not be permitted by any university. Sir, the university is not an ordinary body against whom such directions should be issued. The university should have some independence. Instead of passing this bill with these clauses, I think it would be better to have the old Act. These clauses make the University a subordinate body. In the bill as it was proposed for the first reading there was no provision at all for making the Governor General the Visitor. These provisions were brought in at the time of the select committee. I submit that everything required is given by sub-clauses (1), (2) and (3). Sub-clauses (4) and (5) give plenary powers to the Chancellor and therefore they ought not to be allowed to pass. Therefore, I strongly support the amendment to delete sub-clause (4) of clause 5.

Mr. H. HAMILL : I rise to oppose the amendment. The provision of clause 5 simply authorises the Viceroy as the visitor of the University to draw the attention of that body to any defects that may be brought to his notice. It is absurd to make provision for such a power and at the same time to leave it open to the university to fail to take action when such defects have been brought to notice. The bill proposes that such defects as have been brought to notice shall be communicated by the Chancellor to the senate and the syndicate and that the senate shall then have an opportunity of making its remarks upon it. Now if the House imagines that the senate is going to be incapable of justifying its position to the Chancellor or if it cannot justify its position, that it should be at liberty to refuse to rectify the defects then I say the position is hopeless and illogical. I do not think that anyone can have any hesitation in accepting this clause. The situation presupposed by the clause is extremely unlikely to arise. If it does arise, it will require to be amended by the university.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I have drawn the attention of honourable members to the fact over and over again, and I would now wish honourable members to take it as a ruling from me that not more than 9 can sit on the first, second or on the benches behind.

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR (East Khandesh District) : I rise to support the amendment proposed by my honourable friend Mr. Chikodi. Formerly there was no provision in the bill with regard to visitors. It appears that on a representation made by the Government of India this provision has been made and we are told that this provision has merely been copied from certain other enactments applicable to the Andhra University in Madras and other universities. We find the Viceroy being named as a visitor. Now if we look clauses 4 and 5 we find that he has been given more powers than a visitor. The function of the visitor, as the term implies, is to see and advise the university with regard to any defects that may be brought to his notice. But to go beyond that and give certain other powers of carrying into effect such advice as proposed is giving him much more than the powers of a visitor and making him practically a dictator. For these reasons clauses 4 and 5 ought to be omitted. Now, Sir, the argument that there are similar provisions in other enactments in India, I think, ought not to weigh with us. We ought to see before copying from other enactments whether a particular thing is beneficial to us. If a visitor is to be appointed I think we ought to stop with clauses 1 to 3 and the other clauses which practically convert the visitor into a dictator should be deleted. I therefore support the amendment.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN (Bombay City, South) : I understand that in the select committee it was distinctly understood that the consent of the Governor General to the bill was given on the understanding that this clause is inserted to the effect that the Viceroy shall have the power of bringing any defect to the notice of the Chancellor and that it ought to be rectified. Now, Sir, if that is true and if the clause were to be deleted the bill will hang fire. May I ask the honourable members to say whether they are prepared for this contingency? The plea was brought forward that it is dangerous to invest this power on the Governor General because in future you may have a Viceroy who, for political reasons, might hamper the university. I think it is a far-fetched and remote contingency and only likely to occur once in a blue moon.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI (Bombay University): Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by my honourable friend Mr. Chikodi. I confess that when the question of the Viceroy being made a visitor came before the select committee I for myself did not realise the full effect of the clause. The position is this. As a matter of fact at the first reading I emphasized that the visitorial powers over the university as in all English Universities should be vested in the Chancellor, namely the Governor of this Presidency. I thought that this position was going to be retained. It now turns out that if we want to obtain the sanction of the Governor General for the purposes of this bill for some reasons we must accept the position that the Viceroy should be a visitor. Sir, if it rested there I for myself would be agreeable to it. But the last two clauses introduce an element the full extent of which I only realized when the bill came before me in the printed form. They do not contain merely the visitorial function. Under the English Acts the King possesses the powers of a Visitor and they are restricted to making enquiries. All the Acts stop there. This bill wants to go two stages further. The first stage is that the syndicate shall carry out the directions of the Viceroy and secondly that they shall be carried out by the Chancellor. Sir, I want the House to realise the full meaning of sub-clause 5. It says:

"The Chancellor may where action has not been taken by the University within a reasonable time to his satisfaction....."

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN: We are not considering sub-clause 5.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI: They are inter-connected. You cannot realize the significance of the one without understanding the other. The clause proceeds:

"After considering any explanation furnished or representation made by the senate or the Syndicate, issue such directions as he may think fit and the University shall comply with such directions."

This destroys the democracy in the university. You may have 167 members in the senate or you may have 1,600 members if you like. You may permit the University to make regulations, you may have a toy democratic institution to while away your time. But if at any moment the Chancellor wants to do a certain thing he has simply to move the Viceroy and the latter will come down with all his visitorial powers; and even if the whole senate unanimously is against the thing, the Chancellor will take such steps as to give effect to the directions of the Viceroy and the university shall have to submit to such directions. Thus these last two sub-clauses destroy absolutely the independence—and not only the independence but even the vestige of democracy. My honourable friend, Principal Hamill said that the Viceroy will interfere only if the senate is so ignorant as to require directions by the Viceroy—thereby implying that the Viceroy must always be right and the university always wrong and therefore the University must obey. Of course, the Viceroy is the head of the Government of India; and the Government of India is the most perfect of the perfections which are known as Indian Governments. We, know, Sir, that the head of that Government can do no wrong. But it is just likely that in the viceregal office there may be some one who may have no opinion of the senate, or behind the Chancellor there may be a truculent Director of Public Instruction who may not like the ways of the senate. Then where is the independence of the University, Sir, then autonomy is gone, the whole Act is gone, all the provisions of your bill become absolutely useless, for the Chancellor will come and say “I shall carry out this thing.” Now, Sir, that is a negation of the whole basis of this bill. We came to this House not for the purpose of. . . . .

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED : I rise to a point of order, Sir. Is it open to an honourable member who is a member of the select committee and who supports the clause in the select committee to come and attack that clause in the open House, when he has not written any minute of dissent on the point ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Opinions do and may change.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI : Sir, I prefaced my remarks by saying that I was sorry that I failed to realize the effect of clauses 4 and 5, that I overlooked those clauses at the time, and I cannot even to my honourable friend Mr. Noor Mahomed make a better apology than that. But the House is going to consider it. I submit that even if it is the wish of the Government of India that these clauses should be there, our Government should negotiate with them and try to see that the independence of the university is preserved and not taken away. I ask the Honourable Minister for Education whether any remonstrance has been sent, whether any negotiations were carried on with the Government of India, in regard to this autocratic power, absolutely autocratic power, which has been introduced in this bill. Sir, I may refer to the present Act. The present Act has got the Chancellor as its head; it has got a nominated Vice-Chancellor; it has got no Visitor, and the Viceroy has got absolutely no power of interference. Even the Chancellor has got no power of interference except through the constitutional machinery of the Act itself. There is no arbitrary and autocratic power, such as is sought to be vested in the head of the Government.

Sir, I do not for a moment say that the head of the Government should have nothing to do at all with the University, and I was the first one to say here, during the first reading of the bill, that the Governor of this presidency should be the Chancellor. I do want that the University should be helped by Government and I do want that both Government and the University should work in harmony. But, at the same time, Sir, I want this House to realise that if you are putting up an independent constitution, a democratic constitution, you should not have an interference which is absolutely arbitrary. I, Sir, submit that this provision, as I see it, nullifies all the remaining provisions of this bill, and if these provisions are going to be retained, I for myself would sooner continue with the present Act, however bad it is, however difficult it is, rather than have a bill in which the Chancellor and the Viceroy will have power to do what they like.

Sir, there is one thing more, and it is this. We want that the Senate should be supreme in the University, and it is one of the fundamental principles of University administration that within the limit of its Act the University must be independent. Sir, where is the independence of the University if the Chancellor or the Viceroy—may be once in fifty years, it does not matter—have got a right to interfere in this manner. Sir, it is no use having an Act which is distinctly retrogressive. The general complaint was that the present Act was not sufficiently democratic, we wanted to make it more democratic, we wanted to bring it more in conformity with modern conditions. And what is the result? We have got now something which nobody contemplated. Even the University Reforms Committee says we do not want a Visitor. But a Visitor on these terms is a thing which nobody contemplated, neither the University nor the Reforms Committee, and I submit that these two clauses must go. The very fact that the Viceroy is the Visitor of the University, the very fact that the Viceroy, after consulting the University, can give advice is quite sufficient, for the University will, in normal course, accept the advice which is given. I do not want the House to forget that we are going to have, as things go in addition to the Chancellor, a nominated Vice-Chancellor, 40 members of the Senate nominated by the Chancellor, the Director of Public Instruction and the Minister of Education on the Senate. There is, therefore, no chance, no chance even in a dream, that the University would ever go against the firm wishes of this Government or the Government of India. But, Sir, it must be done constitutionally, and the Visitor even must respect the rights and the dignity of the University, and out of that respect must not have the right to carry his powers beyond giving advice. I therefore submit that these two clauses (4) and (5) are really stultifying, and if the Government of India refuse to give their sanction to the bill with these two clauses dropped, we should rather go to the length of dropping this bill than incorporate these arbitrary provisions in the bill.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division): Sir, I rise to oppose this amendment. A few minutes ago there was a very pressing and earnest request to Government for three lakhs of rupees, and now we are talking of independence of the University. Well, if you want to be perfectly independent, you must not claim monetary aid from Government. Remember, you cannot maintain the University without money from Government. The Engineering College belongs to Government; the College of Science belongs to Government; and many Arts Colleges are Government. What is the University without the Colleges. If you have your own Colleges non-co-operative or co-operative, and your own professors in them. Certainly, I shall be the last person to advise you to go not to Government. But you have not and yet you say "We are independent." That position certainly is untenable. Beggars can never be choosers.

Then, Sir, I was all the time waiting for an amendment from the honourable member Mr. Munshi. He had studied the bill, I believe. He is almost the father of the bill. He gave us about 32 pages of printed matter to digest during the sitting of the select committee, as his amendments. He was in the select committee, but never thought of moving an amendment there upon this subject. He had full notice, but never sent in an amendment. I think it is an afterthought. I won't take him to task for all that, as he has apologised. In the select committee the Minister told us that there were directions from the Government of India; and he had to obey them. If you want the bill, the clauses must be there. If you do not want the bill, throw them out. The honourable member Mr. Munshi was quiet like a lamb. Why did he not then say "I do not want it"? Here he comes now with all this talk of independence and dignity of the University! The Honourable Minister did tell us, "If you want to accept the bill with this suggestion, accept it; if you do not want, 'throw it out.'" We accepted the clauses and therefore, it does not lie in our mouth, I mean the members of the select committee, to say we have become more independent in a week's time or two weeks' time.

Secondly, this is only a power of veto,—I call these the powers of the veto.—and the Viceroy has always got the power of veto. He is not going to use it except on a rare occasion. It may arise once in fifty years, as the honourable member Mr. Munshi himself admits. Well, we are giving credit to the leaders of the nation, we are giving credit to the officers of Government for wisdom, why should we not give the Viceroy credit for a little common sense? Do you think the Viceroy will necessarily interfere, neglecting all considerations of administration? Would the Viceroy interfere for the sake of annoyance. We must admit that Government must have certain power.

Another thing, Sir. I believe that my honourable friend Mr. Munshi has read the report of the Calcutta University Commission. There a manlike Sir Ashotosh Mukerjee was the Vice-Chancellor. In that report they have unanimously agreed that the Government must have similar power.....

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI: I doubt it.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: If you doubt it, I leave you at that, and I will proceed. These are not the powers of the Government of India. The Viceroy is the Visitor, not the Government of India, I believe, as the representative of the King. It is right that we should grant him this power of veto, as we know that without this clause the bill will not receive his consent. I have fought for a clause in the last bill, because we know nothing about Government's intentions and we wanted the independence of this House to be preserved, but here is a matter which was brought to our notice in the select committee and we are definitely told that without the clause under consideration the bill would be repealed. The university is bound in many ways by conditions imposed by Government. Therefore, we should not follow the advice given by my honourable friend Mr. Munshi to throw out the bill, if the two clauses are going to be there. I am not disposed to accept his advice. I think we should accept the bill. The Senate is quite competent to take care of its independence. If Government at any time become unreasonable, we shall ask public opinion to judge between us and the Viceroy and the Chancellor and the Government of India. The Chancellor will not give any advice to the Viceroy which would be against the interests of the University. Therefore, we might give credit to the Chancellor and to the Viceroy for their good intentions, and as practical men, we should accept the situation and pass this bill. I therefore most strongly oppose this amendment.

Mr. A. D. SHETH (Ahmedabad District): Sir, I want to support the amendment. While doing it, I want to refer to the speech of my honourable friend the Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad. He gave us a lot of grandfatherly advice asking us to realise our position as beggars in this House and he advised us to behave in a beggarly fashion. It may be his belief that we or the people or the members should follow his advice to be beggars in this House. Let me assure him and all others that are concerned that that is not the creed of a number of members on this side of the House. Not only that but I believe that to say so and to say it as a member of this House is an insult to the House. We do not come here as beggars, we come here as of right, we do not beg money, we want money as of right; we do not want money from the pockets of any officer, any Governor or any Viceroy from his pay or from the parcels of money which they may import from England or any other place. We want money which we ourselves have paid; we want money which has gone from our own pockets and we want it by our own votes. That is not beggary. To say that it is beggary might suit the Moulvi's begging mentality. To us it is deliberate insult. We are not sitting here as beggars. If the Moulvi thinks that he sits here as a beggar, he is welcome to his opinion. We leave him to his luxury of begging. The honourable member, Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad, just said that because His Excellency the Governor says "we won't pass this bill unless you give these visitatorial powers to the Viceroy," we should accept the position. I see that this sort of argument was heard in this House twice to-day. The Honourable Minister Mr. Pradhan while speaking on the Cotton Markets Bill used the same argument early this morning and he told us that if we did not do such and such a thing, the Government of India would not accord its sanction. The same argument is now being repeated here but by a private non-official member Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmed. That is not the position which we expect Government to take up. That is not the attitude which we expect the saner element in the Government to adopt. I think it would be better for Government to explain their position in this matter a little more clearly than has been done. If Government say that unless this visitatorial power is reserved to the Viceroy the bill will be rejected, then I say that the sooner we stop such a farce the better. We should rather say that we will not have it, that we shall be content to let things go on as they are. We should say to Government that if they want to dictate terms to us in this manner, then we do not want this bill at all, we shall have nothing more to do with it ; but we should not submit to any such condition which may be sought to be imposed upon us at the point of the bayonet or the pistol as it were. The term "visitorial power" seems to be a contradiction in terms. In its ordinary sense, a visitor has the power of visiting and advising, nothing more than that. There are visitors provided for in other Universities in this country as well, and in England and other countries too ; but I believe that the powers given to such visitors are merely advisory. If any visitor of high rank chooses to tender advice, his advice will be heard with respect. If His Excellency the Viceroy chooses to give any advice, we shall listen to it with respect no doubt ; but we cannot brook the idea of the Viceroy, as a visitor, wielding the power of the veto. I do not at all agree that the visitorial power should be reserved to the Viceroy in the manner that is sought to be done. To-day we are seeking to democratise the constitution of the University by adding to the number of elected members, etc. Why should we at such a time allow dictatorial powers to anybody, however high and exalted a position he may occupy ?

If any one with any knowledge of the local situation gets these powers, there may be some reason behind it. For example, if His Excellency the Governor as Chancellor, being in Bombay and having direct connection with the affairs of the University, wields these powers and advises certain reforms or changes, he will be doing so with knowledge of things behind his advice. What particular knowledge of local conditions will His Excellency the Viceroy be able to command of the affairs of the University ? Why do you want to give powers to the Viceroy, a gentleman staying at a very great distance, having no time to consider our wants ? I feel that this attempt is being made to do a thing by a backdoor, through the Viceroy, what cannot be done directly. It appears that when local Government cannot get certain powers they want them to be reserved to some high personage, whom they can move to suit their purposes. So if they want to do anything, through him it may be done. I believe there is no case whatsoever for giving powers to a gentleman who has no knowledge of the situation, who has no knowledge of the surroundings, who is not expected to be familiar with the situation, to go deep into these matters. To give these powers to him means giving powers to some one who is behind the curtain. We do not want to give these powers to persons behind the throne. With these words, I support the amendment.

Dr. B. R. AMBEDKAR : I rise to a point of order. May I know which amendment is before the House ? Is it the deletion of sub-clause (4) or sub-clause (5) ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The amendment is to delete sub-clause (4).

Dr. B. R. AMBEDKAR : Honourable members seem to be addressing on both the amendments.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : They are so connected that it is very difficult to disconnect the two.

Mr. J. B. PETIT (Bombay Millowners' Association) : Sir, I think, I would preface my remarks very much in the same manner in which the honourable member for the University has prefaced his. The full significance and scope of the clauses which are sought to be amended had not become quite clear to me in the select committee when they came up there for discussion. But now that their exact incidence and implication have been so clearly pointed out to this House, I feel that it would be better if these extraordinary powers were not vested in the Viceroy as is sought to be done in the bill before us. Personally, Sir, I cannot conceive of any possible occasion on which really reasonable and important reforms are called for, that would be embodied in the shape of recommendations made in the ordinary course of events by the Viceroy or his representatives, which a reasonable and thoughtful Senate, composed as it is provided for in the bill, would not readily and willingly carry out. When, however, the Senate constituted as it is proposed to be, refuses for some reason to carry out such recommendations, then it is safe to assume that there is some valid reason for the Senate for coming to that conclusion. I for one am not quite convinced of the reasonableness of the provisions which seek to vest in the Viceroy or any other officer however highly placed he may be, arbitrary and peremptory powers of insisting upon such recommendations being carried out by the Senate, in spite of its considered opinion and conviction to the contrary. As the honourable member for the University has told us, such occasions would be very rare. But when they did arise, we could always expect a reasonable and thoughtful Senate to carry them out, sometimes even against its better judgment, for various reasons such as the desirability of working smoothly with the Government and of enjoying its confidence, the desirability of getting such support as it may expect to obtain from it from time to time, and other considerations of a similar character. For these reasons I do not think it is either desirable or right for the legislature to vest in the Viceroy such extraordinary powers as are referred to in the clauses under discussion, which can be exercised, as we have been repeatedly assured, only on very rare occasions, and then too, either through the instrumentality, or on the recommendations, of some highly placed Government officials. After all, it is reasonable to assume that the Viceroy, even when he pays an official visit to the University on rare occasions, cannot himself make the report, or as the result of such visits, come to conclusions upon which definite recommendations can be based, for the adoption of the Senate. It is also safe to assume that in making his recommendations he must and would ordinarily consult officers with pre-conceived ideas and notions of their own ; and in nine cases out of 10, it is equally natural to assume that the recommendations which he would make, would as a rule, not be his own personal recommendations, but of others. The Viceroy would thus be very largely influenced by the recommendations and notions of such of his officials as are in close and living touch with the University, and have pre-conceived ideas of their own, which they would thus be able to force upon the University. I fear that it is only under such circumstances that this and the subsequent clause will be brought into operation. It is therefore right and proper, when such circumstances arise, that the question of putting these recommendations into effect should be left absolutely to the discretion and good sense of the body which, under the Act, is very rightly charged with the administration of the University. This is a point of view, which, I am sure all honourable members of this House, who bear the real purpose of the bill in mind, will be able readily to understand and appreciate. If any other object is allowed to influence this honourable House in the determination of this important question, I am afraid the step will be fraught with insurmountable difficulties and create a position which will be incompatible with the independence and integrity of the University, which I am sure, is neither the intention of the legislature nor of the Government. Under the circumstances, I hope the House will accept the amendment, and reject the two sub-clauses in the original form, in which they are embodied in the bill.

[Mr. J. B. Petit]

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : On a point of information, may we know what the suggestions of the Government of India are ? It is stated in the report of the select committee :

“ As suggested by the Government of India, we have inserted a new clause 5 providing that the Governor General shall be the Visitor of the University, etc. ”

What are these suggestions ? The House is ignorant of these suggestions.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : They are not suggestions. Sanction under section 80-A (3) to the bill has been conditioned on the insertion of clause 5 as worded in the bill, similar to the clauses which are to be found on the subject in the Madras, Allahabad and Andhra University Acts. Consequently, it is for the House to decide whether they want the bill or not. There is a further condition, over and above that, that the consent of His Excellency the Governor should be reserved until the bill is assented to by the Government of India.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : What the honourable member wanted to know, I suppose, is in reference to paragraph 6 of the report of the select committee, where it is stated :

“ As suggested by the Government of India, we have inserted a new clause 5 providing that the Governor General shall be the Visitor of the University and defining his powers ”

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : They were directions, that these provisions should be inserted.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That is just what he wants to know.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I will have to find it out from among the files.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The Honourable Minister wants some time for it.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I think the Remembrancer of Legal Affairs will be able to state it.

Mr. BALAK RAM : The suggestions of the Government of India are embodied in clause 5 of the bill.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind) : Sir, I wish to raise two points of order ; one of them I raised before, but the Chair did not give a ruling on the point then and therefore I again raise it now. The point is that if the orders of the Government of India are relied upon by any member of the Government they must be placed on the Council table.

The second point is this : The Honourable Minister has stated that the sanction of the Government of India, mentioned in the preamble, is conditional to the insertion of this clause. Is conditional sanction a proper sanction ? It is for the Chair to rule. It is either a sanction or no sanction. Is there any provision in the Government of India Act for conditional sanction, that in a particular piece of legislation this shall be done and that shall not be done ? If it is a sanction, it must be an unconditional one. If it is a conditional sanction, it means that it is not a final sanction, and the bill cannot come before the House.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I think the two points of order have been mixed up. The honourable member has been asking me to give a definite ruling on the question whether, when documents or references or correspondence are relied upon by Government members in the Council, it is the privilege of the House to have those documents or correspondence before the House. The demand is legitimate. The next point may be raised after this is replied to.

Mr. BALAK RAM : I should like to say that the demand for information as to the contents of the letter from the Government of India was made by an honourable member from the other side, and I believe the Honourable Minister and honourable members on this side were not relying particularly upon the Government of India letter. There is mention of the Government of India letter in the select committee's report, but I do not suppose that in this respect the House has anything to do with what the select committee says.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. Several speeches have been made and two or three honourable members have actually mentioned that this clause has been inserted in consequence of conditions enforced. The honourable member Moulvi Rafiuddin has said, as a member of the select committee, that there was no way out of it, and that therefore it had to be accepted. The Honourable Minister has just now stated that there have been not only suggestion but directions—to use his word. He has also stated that they would be placed before the Council. I certainly think that in a matter like that Government should deal with the House fairly.

Mr. BALAK RAM : May I explain the legal position with regard to sanction ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I have separated the two points.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, on the 15th of August 1927, after we had finished the first reading of this bill a wire was received from the Government of India that further proceedings of the bill should be stopped. But before we got it, the first reading of the bill had been passed and the bill referred to the select committee. They enquired how the first Act of 1857 could be repealed by an Act of this legislature, because that was a Government of India Act. They sent this wire on the basis of a copy of the bill that had been sent to them. They took time in examining it. Just after we finished the first reading we got the wire. Thereafter the Government of India was addressed and in the reply they gave the sanction of which I am giving the purport : That the Governor General should be made a visitor as in the case of other Universities. They made further suggestions about the school leaving examination. Consequently the former provision was inserted in the select committee. In the select committee no one doubted the orders of the Government of India. If the letter were here it would have been produced before the Council. As soon as it is found it will be produced before the House. Shall I make any further remarks ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : If the Honourable Minister chooses.

The point is that the House is anxious to know what the Government of India demanded. (Hear. hear.) Whether these sub-clauses (3), (4) and (5) were demanded by the Government of India.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I may inform the House, Sir, that these are the provisions of the Madras Act of 1923. The provisions which are inserted in clause 5 are to be found there. This is practically a copy of section 7 of the Madras Act, VII of 1923.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : As regards the other point whether the sanction was conditional there is some misunderstanding on the part of the honourable member Mr. Pahalajani. He understood the Honourable Minister to say that the sanction was conditional on this. I do not suppose so because the Honourable Minister has just now stated that the sanction was received before the first reading.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The sanction was received after the first reading.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That cannot be. I presume that the sanction is not certainly conditional. I call upon the honourable member Dr. Dixit to speak.

Dr. M. K. DIXIT : If I know the papers I may make some more observations.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Any other member wishes to speak ?

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District) : I rise to support the amendment and strongly oppose the inclusion of these clauses. My objection to clause 4, clause 5 and this section is that the powers which are conferred upon the Viceroy are excessive. I have no objection to the Viceroy being made a visitor. But even in the select committee many of us had no idea whatever that the powers that would be conferred on the Viceroy as a visitor would be so extensive and so arbitrary as to empower him with the right of interference with the affairs of the University just as he might like. I do not want to refer to what took place in the select committee. If I were to refer to it, I shall have to tell the House that the deliberations in the select committee were not conducted in the manner in which they ought to have been conducted.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The honourable member should not refer to it.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : I bow to your ruling, Sir. I hope no honourable member will compel me to do that. Otherwise I would have to mention facts which would be unpalatable. Well, I gather from what has been said by the Honourable Minister that these clauses were entered here at the dictation of the Government of India. Now, Sir, we all know that even the Government of India have to submit to dictation from Whitehall. Nature is very revengeful. The Government of India is dictating to this House and interfering with this House even in matters which relate to transferred departments. I know as honourable members know, that the Government of India have to submit to dictation from Whitehall. It is however the concern of the Government of India. The question to my mind is plain. From the statements made by the Honourable Minister for Education I consider that he has made an ignoble submission, an abject surrender, to dictation from Delhi or Simla. I wonder why the Honourable Minister of Education is there at all. Is he there to carry out the wishes of the Government of India ? Is he there to administer the transferred department of education not on the basis of his own views, his own considered judgment and in deference to public opinion, but in accordance with the wishes of the Government of India ? Is he there to be pulled here and there by the Government of India ? Whatever his views as regards his duties may be, the Council has made it clear what its views are. Well, Sir, it pains me very much to see such an attitude being maintained by the Honourable Minister. It pains me very much indeed. I do not wish to say much further on that aspect of the matter.

Is this Council going to be dictated by the Government of India ? Are we going to play second fiddle to the Government of India or to some Secretary in the office of the Government of India ? Are we going to do that ? The Government of India wants us to do such and such a thing : are we going to bow to them and obey them even in matters which are transferred to our control ? If we are to do so, then what is the use of saying that those departments have been transferred to popular control, that those departments will be administered by Ministers responsible to the Legislative Council and through them to the electorates ? Well, Sir, this dyarchical constitution has already become ridiculous : it will become ten thousand times more ridiculous if interference with the administration of transferred departments by the Government of India is to go on. Are we to submit tamely like sheep, like dumb driven cattle, to dictation from Simla or Delhi ? The position is absurd ; it is ridiculous ; it is painful ; it is distressful. I entirely agree with my honourable friend, the member for the University, that rather than submit to these restrictions, these extraordinary and arbitrary powers which are given to the Viceroy, rather than tamely and meekly submit to dictation from Delhi and Simla, we should throw out the bill altogether.

Sir, the revelations which have been made in the course of the debate are painful. One Honourable Minister in connection with the Cotton Markets Bill told us that the Government of India wanted such and such a thing, and if that was not done, then the bill would be vetoed. Here is another Honourable Minister, his honourable colleague, who comes forward with another bill and tells us that these provisions must be accepted; otherwise the bill will go to the wall. Let the bill go to the wall; we do not care a bit. The present constitution of the University is satisfactory as it goes, and I do not think things will be very much better if we pass this bill with such extraordinary provisions. On the contrary, it appears to me that this is an indirect, an insidious way of getting official control over departments which are said to be transferred to popular control. I was very much pained by the speech which my honourable friend the Moulvi Saheb made. Generally he makes good speeches, but this particular speech was very bad. He made reference to the control which was recommended by the Sadler Commission over the Calcutta University. But my honourable friend conveniently forgot that when that recommendation was made higher education was a reserved subject in Bengal. As a result of the recommendations of the Reforms Enquiry Committee, that subject has become a transferred department now, if at all. But when the suggestion was made, which my honourable friend referred to, higher education was a reserved subject in Bengal. And there is a lot of difference from the constitutional point of view between a transferred department and a reserved department, and that difference must never be forgotten by elected members. I have the highest respect for the honourable member the Moulvi Saheb. It was urged by him: "If we go to Government for financial assistance why should we grudge official control?" In the first place, whose money is it that Government possess? Is it not my money and the honourable member the Moulvi Saheb's money? Is not the money which the Government of India and the Government of Bombay possess the Indian people's money? Is it money imported from England? If any allotments or contributions are made, they will be made from our money. Simply because some assistance is given, assistance of a lakh and a half, assistance of three lakhs or even five lakhs, will that justify interference, control, or dictation, arbitrary, unnecessary and unjustifiable such as contemplated in this clause. May I ask my honourable friend will that justify such interference? I will rather not have the money at all rather than submit to such interference. It appears to me that the right course for us is to strongly oppose this clause. I hope therefore the amendment will be carried.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Mr. President, it is very unusual to place before the House or even to read the correspondence passing between the Government of India and local Governments as the House is aware and as has been pointed out time after time for many years. In this particular instance the select committee were apprised of the fact that the Government of India has made certain suggestions and it is also mentioned in the select committee's report. Honourable members on the opposite side have asked to be informed of the exact terms in which the Government of India have addressed the local Government. In view of the high feeling exhibited and in view, Sir, of your ruling, under these special circumstances, I think that Government should have no objection to complying with the wishes of the House, and I will therefore do so. I do it subject to the limits with which I prefaced my remarks just now, namely that ordinarily these communications are not read out to the House.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I am sorry to interrupt the Honourable the Leader of the House. What was asked for and what was the ruling given is this : that if any member of Government refers to any document or correspondence and relies on that, then it is the privilege of the House to be in possession of it. Under that ruling the Honourable the Leader of the House has to read the letter.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Well, Sir, if it is a question of any member of Government relying upon the document, then I suppose he will have to be very careful. If members of Government should avoid any reference to these letters I daresay they will do so. A mere reference which may be thrown out for the information of the House should not make it necessary to depart from the salutary practice of not bringing in the correspondence which passed between the Government of India and the local Government which must be treated as confidential. However, I will read the letter from the Government of India. It is dated 15th August 1927 and the subject "Bombay University Bill." It reads as follows:—

"With reference to the correspondence ending with your telegram No. 369P, dated the 28th July 1927, I am directed to state that, in the opinion of the Government of India, the Bombay University Bill, forwarded with your letter No. 2310, dated the 21st July 1927, is open to objection in two respects:—

(i) The Bill departs from the precedent followed in all recent Acts constituting or reconstituting a University in omitting provision making the Governor General the Visitor of the University.

(ii) The effect of clauses 24,...."

[I will read that as well because that was referred to in the select committee report] and also by the Honourable Minister.

"31 (2) (k) and 33 (e) is to vest in the University full powers to constitute a School Leaving Examination Board and to regulate the conduct of the School Leaving Examination. If these provisions were enacted it would be the University which would control the policy of Secondary Education in the Presidency while, in the opinion of the Government of India, it is vital to maintain the principle that such control is the function of the Local Government and not of the University. In the opinion of the Government of India, therefore, these provisions should be omitted from the Bill and one of the following three courses adopted:—

(a) The Local Government should conduct a separate School Leaving Examination ;
(b) The Local Government should enter into an agreement with the University for the constitution of a Joint Board to conduct a joint examination ;

(c) The Local Government should accept the Matriculation Examination of the University as the equivalent of the School Leaving Examination for such purposes as the Local Government may decide.

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

It would be for the Local Government to consider whether the alternative selected would require the enactment of statutory provision either in this Bill or by separate legislation.

2. The Government of India realise that the features of the Bill to which they have directed attention are not relevant to the only provision in the Bill which gives rise to the requirement of previous sanction by the Governor General, namely, the repeal of the Bombay University Act, 1857, and they have therefore despite the objections they have mentioned, not thought fit to recommend to His Excellency the Governor General to withhold the sanction in question, which is hereby conveyed. I am, however, to emphasize the importance which the Government of India attach to the objections in question and to express the hope that every endeavour will be made to secure the amendment of the Bill by

(i) the insertion of provision making the Governor General the Visitor of the University—cf. section 7 of the Madras University Act, 1923; and

(ii) the omission of clauses 24, 31 (2) (k) and 33 (e).

3. The Government of India reserve full liberty of action in regard to the recommendation which they would submit to the Governor General in the matter of assent should the Bill be passed in its existing form, and they desire to suggest for the consideration of His Excellency the Governor that, inasmuch as the Bill contains provisions regulating the constitution and functions of a University, which neither require nor have received the previous sanction of the Governor General, clause (b) in rule 2 of the Reservation of Bills Rules, as amended by Notification No. 142, dated the 8th December 1921, will render it necessary for His Excellency to reserve the Bill, in whatever form it may be passed, for the consideration of the Governor General."

[Sir, the reference in the last paragraph of the Government of India letter is to the] rule regarding previous sanction on page 140 in which it is stated that

"A local legislature may not repeal or alter without the previous sanction of the Governor General"

[and to the Reservation of Bills rules section 2 which says:]

"The Governor of any Governor's province shall reserve for the consideration of the Governor General any Bill, which has been passed by the Legislative Council of the province and is presented to the Governor for his assent, if the Bill appears to the Governor to contain provisions in respect of which the Bill has not been previously sanctioned by the Governor General under sub-section (3) of section 80-A of the Government of India Act.

(b) regulating the constitution or function of any University....."

Under these provisions of the law the Government of India have sent us these suggestions.

*The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The House is in full possession of the facts now and we shall resume the discussion of the subject, to-morrow. As there is another point of order, I understand from the Honourable Leader that the first sanction under section 80A for the launching of the bill was asked for and given in proper time.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: The letter says that sanction is hereby conveyed.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Therefore the point of order does not arise.

Khan Sahab ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN: We would like to meet to-morrow from 10 to 2 o'clock.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Sir, several honourable members have suggested to me that on Saturdays they desire whenever it is possible for them to do so to have an opportunity of going back to their own places, whether we meet in Poona or Bombay. It is therefore suggested that we should sit at an earlier hour say from 10 or 10·30 on Saturdays. We realise that it means a loss of Government time to-morrow. Ordinarily we sit for 4½ hours, and if the time fixed is from 10 to 2, we shall lose half an hour, and if the time fixed is from 10-30 to 2, we shall lose one hour. But to meet the convenience of several honourable members, we, Sir, shall not raise any objection on our side if there is a desire on the part of the House that we should as a rule meet early on Saturdays.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I understand that that is the general consensus of the House. I should like those honourable members who are against the proposal of 10-30 to 2 to stand in their places. (A few members stood up accordingly.) I think the general consensus of opinion of the House is that we should meet from 10-30 to 2 every Saturday. The House is now adjourned to 10-30 a.m. to-morrow, Saturday, the 1st of October 1927.

Saturday, the 1st October 1927

The Council re-assembled at the Council Hall, Poona, at 10-30 a.m. on Saturday, the 1st October 1927, the Honourable the President, Mr. A. M. K. Dehlavi, Bar.-at-Law, presiding.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. Questions.

FOREST LANDS, NASIK : APPLICATIONS OF MAHARS

Dr. B. R. AMBEDKAR : Will Government be pleased to state—
 (a) whether they are aware that the Mahars of the village of Pimplad in taluka Nasik had applied to the Collector for forest land ;

(b) whether they had asked for survey number 220 in the village of Pimplad ;

(c) whether, that being refused, they had asked for survey number 202 in the village of Rajur Bahula ;

(d) whether, that being refused, they had asked for survey number 71 in the village of Rajur Bahula ;

(e) whether it is a fact that even this last application has been rejected ;

(f) the reasons for this persistent refusal to consider favourably the application of these Mahars ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a), (b), (c), (d) and (e) Yes.

(f) (1) Survey No. 220 of Pimplad could not be given out to the Mahars as it had already been granted to another individual.

(2) Survey No. 202 of Rajur is pasture forest in charge of the Revenue Department. It is sold annually for grazing to the villagers, and it cannot be granted for any other purpose, as the remaining grazing area available in the village is not sufficient for their requirements.

(3) For the same reason survey No. 71 of Rajur Bahula which is assigned for Kuran (grazing ground) could not be granted to the Mahars.

I may add that 11 survey numbers of Pimplad and Rajur-Bahula comprising of nearly 200 acres of land were the only lands available for being given out for cultivation. They were therefore put to sale at an upset price 12 times the assessment and it was ordered that none but the Mahars, Bhils and Kolis should bid. The condition was imposed specially to exclude unfair competition by moneyed people. The papers of the sale recently sanctioned show that two Kolis and three Mahars of Pimplad and one Koli and three Mahars of Rajur-Bahula are the purchasers.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : On a point of order, Sir. Is the reply which the Honourable the Minister is reading intended only for the information of the honourable member putting the question or is it meant for the information of the whole House ? We have not been able to hear a word of what he has been reading out.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : If the Honourable the Minister stood abreast of those on this side, the whole House would be able to hear him.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : I will make further enquiries but the information that I have received is that only 200 acres were available for free distribution.

SUICIDES AND INSOLVENCIES

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North) : Will Government be pleased to state :—

(a) (1) the number of persons who committed suicide, or

(2) took the benefit of the Insolvency Act,

on account of the loss of money separately in the City of Bombay, Poona and Karachi, during the last six years ;

(b) how many of them committed suicide on account of losing money in—

(1) speculation in shares, bullion, cotton, grains and such other commodities ;

(2) gambling in cards ;

(3) horse racing ;

(c) how many of them became insolvents on account of losing money in—

(1) speculation in shares, bullion, cotton, grains, and such other commodities ;

(2) horse racing ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : The available information is given in the following tabular form :—

	Bombay	Poona	Karachi
(a) (1)	31	1	Nil.
(2)	This information is not available. Statistics are not kept of the causes to which insolvents attribute their insolvencies.
(b) (1)	11	..	..
(2)	1	..	..
(3)	6	1	..
(c)	Vide reply to (a) (2) above.

BOMBAY PROSTITUTION ACT : PROSECUTIONS

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the total number of persons prosecuted under the Prostitution Act of Bombay ;

(b) the number of persons penalised for living on the earnings of prostitutes ;

(c) the number of persons penalised for procuring and importing women for the purpose of prostitution ;

(d) how many of them were sent to jail and how many of them were only fined ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU :

(a)	Karachi .. 24	Hyderabad .. 7	Ahmedabad ..	Belgaum ..	Bombay Suburban District. }	0
(b)	.. 16	.. 3	..	..	..	0
(c)	.. 8	.. 0	..	..	..	0

(d) In Karachi of the 24 persons prosecuted, 12 were sent to jail and 6 were released after conviction under section 562 of the Code of Criminal Procedure. As one of the accused was sentenced to death for murder the case against him under the Bombay Prevention of Prostitution Act was withdrawn. Cases against five persons are reported to be still pending.

At Hyderabad of the three persons mentioned in (b), one was sent to jail and two were fined. Information as to the remainder of the cases mentioned in (a) is not available.

Information for the other places in which the Act is in force was given during the last session.

STRIKE : SWADESHI SPINNING MILLS, KURLA

Mr. R. S. ASVALE (Bombay City, North) : Will Government be pleased to state—

- (a) whether they are aware of the fact that the workers of the Swadeshi Spinning Mills at Kurla have struck work ;
- (b) if so, what was the cause ;
- (c) how long the strike lasted ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : (a) Yes. The strike is now over.

(b) The mill was closed on the 10th July on account of a Hindu Holiday. One hundred and twenty-four workers absented themselves from work without permission for two days in continuation of the holiday and resumed work only on the 13th. The Management therefore fined them Re. 1 each. As a protest against this fine, 191 workers struck work. The workers also complained about the quality of cotton used which affected spinning efficiency.

(c) From 14th to 23rd July 1927.

STRIKE : SWADESHI SPINNING MILLS, KURLA

Mr. R. S. ASVALE (Bombay City, North) : Will Government be pleased to state :—

- (a) whether they had taken any steps in connection with the strike at the Swadeshi Spinning Mills at Kurla ;
- (b) if not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : (a) No.

(b) Because they saw no reason for interference of any sort.

SIR SASSOON DAVID TRUST FUND : MISAPPROPRIATION

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI (Belgaum District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the amount of Rs. 87,000 from The Sir Sassoon David Trust Fund was misappropriated in one lump sum or in a series of small sums ;

(b) if the misappropriation has been in a series of small sums, what those sums are, and what the dates are on which they were misappropriated ;

(c) when, as the Government have stated, the Superintendent who misappropriated the amount was in charge of clerical work, how did it happen that he got access to the amount or got opportunities to misappropriate it ;

(d) when, and how and by whom the misappropriation was detected ;

(e) when was the departmental inquiry made—before or after the Superintendent had absconded ;

(f) what is the name and official designation of the officer who made the departmental inquiry ;

(g) whether they will be pleased to place on the Council table the report of the departmental inquiry ;

(h) what action have Government taken on this report, and will they be pleased to place their orders in this connection on the Council table ;

(i) who is the disbursing authority in the administration of this Fund, and who signs the cheques ;

(j) what is the total amount administered by the Board of Trustees ; whether its accounts are maintained regularly ; whether they are audited and inspected every year ; by whom they are audited and inspected ; and was any misappropriation detected during these audits and inspections ;

(k) whether any reporters or representatives of the newspapers in Bombay inquired in the Secretariat Office concerned to get the correct information about this incident of misappropriation after the news about it was published in the Press, and if so, is it a fact that they were informed that nothing of the kind had happened ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) and (b) The details of the total amount misappropriated, viz., Rs. 87,097-14-0, are given below :—

Amount			Month and year of encashment of the interest payment orders
Rs.	a.	p.
11,128	5	6	September	1920
14,578	11	8	February	1921
16,723	4	2	October	1921
15,756	8	3	May	1923
14,761	13	0	March	1924
14,149	3	5	April	1925

(c) The interest payment orders received from the Treasurer of Charitable Endowments and signed by the Chairman of the Board of Trustees were to be taken to the Imperial Bank of India with covering letters signed by the Chairman requesting the Bank to credit the amounts to the account of The Sir Sassoon David Trust Fund. It appears that the letters to the Bank were destroyed and the interest payment orders were cashed. In all these cases the orders were not crossed and the Bank treated them as "bearer" cheques and paid the amount to the person presenting them.

(d) It was decided by the Trustees that a Press Note should be issued containing a brief description of the objects of the Fund and summarising the work already accomplished by it. Before it could be compiled the Superintendent dealing with the subject proceeded on leave in the middle of October 1925 owing to sudden illness. The work was then entrusted to another member of the establishment of the Revenue Department. In order to compile materials for the Press Note it was necessary to prepare a statement showing the receipts and expenditure of the Fund from its inception. It was then noticed that for certain half-yearly periods the interest had not been credited to the current account of the Trust with the Imperial Bank.

(e) As soon as the fraud was detected the Chairman called a meeting of the Trustees on 10th December 1925 and placed the facts before them. The Trustees then decided that steps should be taken to prosecute the Superintendent. A formal complaint was immediately lodged with the Bombay City Police : but they reported that the Superintendent had absconded. In view of the action taken by the Trustees, no departmental enquiry on the part of Government was found necessary.

(f), (g) and (h) Do not arise.

(i) The Chairman of the Board of Trustees.

(j) The Trust funds consist of Calcutta Port Trust 4 per cent. Sterling Bonds of the face value of £ 53,400 vested in the Treasurer of Charitable Endowments, Bombay. The Trust Scheme, as sanctioned by the Government of Bombay, provides that the interest on the capital sum shall be utilised by the Trustees in giving grants-in-aid for agricultural and educational purposes. Prior to the detection of the fraud the Trust accounts were not subjected to audit. They are now audited every year by the Outside Audit Staff of the Accountant General's office. No misappropriation has been detected during these audits.

(k) No.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : During the last session it was stated that a departmental enquiry had been held, whereas in the present reply it is stated that no departmental enquiry was found necessary. How do these two contradictory replies square up with each other ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : It was not stated in the last session that a departmental enquiry was held.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : The Honourable Minister seems to be wrong. I remember that a question was particularly put whether there was any one else besides the Superintendent who was involved in this matter and the House was told that a departmental enquiry was made and that no one except the Superintendent was involved.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Will the honourable member kindly point out the proceedings of the Council in which it was stated that a departmental enquiry was held ? Immediately the misappropriation was detected, a complaint was lodged with the police and the police investigated the matter.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT : MISAPPROPRIATION

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI (Belgaum District) : In view of the admission by them that the Superintendent who has misappropriated Rs. 87,000 has also committed a fraud of about Rs. 2,00,000, will Government be pleased to state (a) whether this amount of Rs. 2,00,000 belongs to Government or to The Sir Sassoon David Trust Fund ; (b) when was this fraud detected ; (c) whether it was committed in respect of one lump sum or of a series of smaller sums ; (d) what are those sums and the dates of the acts of fraud ; (e) was this fraud inquired into and, if so, what is the result of that inquiry ; (f) by whom was the inquiry made and will Government be pleased to place on the Council table the report of the inquiry ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : The total amount misappropriated by the Superintendent was Rs. 87,097-14-0. No other misappropriation has come to light. In reply to Mr. Marzban's supplementary question on the subject it was stated that the article appearing in the Indian National Herald had reference to the person who had misappropriated Rs. 87,000. It was not intended thereby to convey that the Superintendent was responsible for the misappropriation of Rs. 2,00,000. No such misappropriation has in fact taken place.

PUBLIC HEALTH DEPARTMENT : VACANCIES IN THE OFFICE OF ASSISTANT DIRECTOR

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state, with reference to question No. 4 on page 13 of the First List of Questions in this Session, the number of vacancies in the office of the Assistant Director of Public Health, Central Registration District, both temporary and permanent, in the years 1925 and 1926 and the names and castes of persons who were appointed to fill them ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The attached statement * furnishes the information asked for.

IRRIGATION OFF THE INDUS

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the Punjab Government has new schemes of irrigation under consideration which are regarded as likely to affect the quantity of water available in the Indus for irrigation in Sind ;

(b) if the reply be in the affirmative, will Government explain in brief what those schemes are ;

(c) what steps have been or are being taken by Government to see that the interests of this Presidency do not suffer ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : (a) Yes.

(b) The Thal Canal Lesser Project (1925) ; the canal to take off from the Indus at Kalabagh and to irrigate the Western and South-Western parts of the Sind Sagar Doab ; kharif discharge 6,355 cusecs and rabi discharge 3,085 cusecs.

(c) The Government of Bombay have refused to agree to the construction of the project and the matter is now under the consideration of the Government of India.

PROVINCIAL SERVICES : RECRUITMENT RULES

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind) : Will Government be pleased—

(a) to state whether they have completed the framing of rules as to recruitment, method of selection, pay, etc., of officers in the provincialised services referred to in reply to question put by the Honourable Member Mr. V. N. Jog at the July Session of the Council ;

---

* Kept in the Secretary's Office.

(b) to place a copy of those rules on the Council table if and when framed ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : The preparation of the rules is in progress.

ILLICIT DISTILLATION

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind) : Will Government be pleased to state the number of cases of illicit distillation during each of the last five years in each taluka of every district in the whole Presidency ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : The Honourable Member is referred to Appendix J to the Excise Administration Reports for the Presidency proper and Sind for the years 1921-22 to 1925-26 which furnishes the information required by districts. The collection of the information by talukas for all the districts of the Presidency would involve a considerable amount of labour. It is therefore suggested to the Honourable Member that he should select one or more districts only, when the information in regard to them will be obtained.

MUNICIPAL SCHOOL : MIRPURKHAS

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the total number of boys at the Mirpurkhas Municipal School ;

(b) the number of students whose parents belong to and reside in other districts ;

(c) the cost to Government of educating each boy at the Municipal School ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a), (b) and (c) The accompanying statement gives the information required in regard to both the Boys' Primary School and the Anglo-Vernacular School maintained by the Municipality.

Statement

Boys' Primary School	Anglo-Vernacular School
(a) 200.	(a) 89.
(b) 76.	(b) 10.
(c) Rs. 10-1-1 per annum.	(c) Rs. 11-6-0 per annum.

RAILWAY POLICE, SIND

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind) : Will Government be pleased to state the number of Inspectors, Sub-Inspectors, Head Constables and Constables belonging to Hindu, Muhammadan and European communities (separately) in the Railway Police in Sind ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : A statement containing the required information is placed on the Council table.

Statement

JAMRAO CANAL : MODULES

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) in which year modules were constructed on the Jamrao canal and by which Executive Engineer were they constructed ;

(b) whether that Engineer has submitted a report to Government on the working of the modules ;

(c) whether it is a fact that the above Engineer constructed these modules on the assumption that they would not need to be reduced ;

(d) whether any of these modules were reduced during the time of the abovementioned Engineer ;

(e) whether any of these modules have been reduced since the departure of that Engineer ;

(f) if the answer to (e) be in the affirmative, the names of the dehs, the modules of the outlet within which have been thus reduced ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : (a) In 1923—by Messrs. Kirkpatrick and Lewis.

(b) A note on the design, etc., of the Jamrao type modules was published as Technical Paper No. 12. A copy of this Paper is placed on the Council table.*

(c) No.

(d) No.

(e) In the Northern Division, Jamrao Canal, no modules have been reduced due to faulty design. In certain cases necessary alteration and adjustment have become necessary in order to ensure each outlet getting its due share according to the area dependent on it. Cases for adjustment are—

(1) transfer of land from one outlet to another ;

(2) splitting up of one outlet into two ;

(3) lands becoming unfit for cultivation.

In the Southern Division, Jamrao Canal, previous to a whole minor being moduled certain outlets were moduled. At a later date to conform with the general module design of a particular minor those previously moduled outlets were adjusted to ensure that each outlet received its correct discharge.

(f) Does not arise.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM: With reference to the reply to (e) what Government mean is that the reduction was not due to any faulty design but due to the three causes enumerated. It means that there was reduction as the result of those three causes. Then, in clause (f) I have asked for the names of the dehs, the modules of the outlet within which have been thus reduced. What is the Government's reply to that?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR: I think the honourable member is right. I will try and get the information at a later date.

SCHOOL BOARDS, SIND: INSPECTING OFFICERS

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the grade to which each Administrative Officer appointed by the district local boards in Sind belonged when he was taken up by the board;

(b) the salary drawn by him before such appointment and the salary drawn by him now;

(c) whether it is a fact that Government have decided to appoint their own Inspecting Officers to supervise the work done by the Administrative Officers and to see that the school boards discharge properly the obligation imposed upon them by law;

(d) the grades to which these Inspecting Officers will belong and the salaries to be drawn by them;

(e) whether it is a fact that all School Board Administrative Officers are in the grade of Deputy Educational Inspectors of Provincial cadre drawing Rs. 250—20—550—efficiency bar 650—30—800, whereas the Government Inspecting Officers will not belong to the Provincial cadre of the Bombay Educational Service and will draw Rs. 80—5—140—10—200 with 15 per cent. of selection grade posts of Rs. 200—10—250;

(f) whether it is a fact that under the above arrangement officers of lower grade and pay will be expected to supervise the work of men of higher grade and pay;

(g) whether it is a fact that many of these appointed or to be appointed as Government Inspecting Officers will be persons who have worked as subordinates to the present Administrative Officers of the boards;

(h) whether it is a fact that the above arrangement has been criticised on the ground that the Inspecting Officers will not be able to supervise the work of the school boards properly and that the Administrative Officers will not be easily amenable to the control of the Inspecting Officers?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) [and (b) The accompanying statement gives the information required.]

(c) to (h) These parts have already been answered.

GOVERNMENT SERVANTS : KHADDAR

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR on behalf of Mr. N. G. MAJMUDAR (Sholapur City): Will Government be pleased—

(a) to state whether they have issued a confidential circular prohibiting Government servants from wearing Khaddar, and becoming members of or subscribers to the Khadi Associations;

(b) if so, to place the same on the Council table;

(c) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, to give the reasons for issuing such orders?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: (a), (b) and (c) The answer is in the negative.

BOMBAY PORT TRUST : ASSISTANT MANAGERS AND LABOUR SUPERINTENDENTS

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI (Bombay University): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of Assistant Managers and Labour Superintendents employed in the Dock Department of the Bombay Port Trust in the year 1913 with their minimum and maximum salaries and the number of Assistant Managers and Labour Superintendents employed in the year 1927 with their salaries and allowances ;

(b) whether the trustees intend maintaining these posts of Sectional Assistant Managers who merely do the work of forwarding clerks ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR :

(a)

2 Senior Assistant Superintendents on Rs. 250—5—275 plus H. R. Rs. 75.	3 1st Grade Assistant Managers on Rs. 500—40—740 plus M. O. H. A. Rs. 100.

* One post has since been recommended to be abolished and has therefore not been included in this number.

(b) The Trustees do not intend to discontinue the posts of Assistant Managers who hold important executive posts. The statement that the Sectional Assistant Managers merely do the work of forwarding clerks is incorrect.

BOMBAY PORT TRUST : RESIDENCE FOR PETTY OFFICER

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI (Bombay University): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that a petty official of the Bombay Port Trust controlling the import and export cargo of the Merchants is allowed to reside within the docks near his own section from March 1927 ;

(b) if so, whether the trustees intend allowing this officer to reside in the present premises permanently ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : (a) The building near the Red Gate of Alexandra Dock being unsuitable for an office owing to its inadequate size the Trustees have converted it into two sets of quarters for their junior officers. One set is now occupied by an Assistant Manager and the other by a Chief Inspector. As these officers are liable for duty at night, it is an advantage that they should reside near their work.

(b) Yes.

BOMBAY PORT TRUST : ASSISTANT SHED SUPERINTENDENTS

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI (Bombay University): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that five Anglo-Indian lads (outsiders) were straightway made permanent as Assistant Shed Superintendents in the Dock Department of the Bombay Port Trust in supersession of 150 senior clerks of 15 to 25 years' service ;

(b) if so, what the reasons were for ignoring the right of so many senior clerks ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : (a) Thirteen men were specially recruited from outside and were given accelerated promotion by appointment to the position of Assistant Shed Superintendents after a period of satisfactory probation. Of these, 7 are Indians and 6 are Anglo-Indians.

(b) Recruitment from outside the docks staff is necessary from time to time in order to secure the status and educational qualifications necessary to fill the higher subordinate posts satisfactorily. As far as possible, however, having regard to their qualifications and knowledge, promotions are made from the existing staff.

MR. BRISTOW, I.C.S. : ATTENDANCE AT PRIVATE PARTY

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that Mr. Hiranman Narayan Shindore, a bench magistrate at Nasik, gave a party in honour of Mr. C. H. Bristow, I.C.S., in May or June 1927 ;

(b) whether Mr. Bristow accepted the invitation to the party and attended it ;

(c) whether it is a fact that on the day of the party a criminal complaint made against Mr. Shindore by Mr. Gopal Rakhmaji Junnare was pending in the court of the sub-divisional magistrate, Prant Malegaon, District Nasik, and that Mr. Bristow was a witness for the prosecution in that complaint ;

(d) whether the conduct of Mr. Bristow in attending the party is not inconsistent with the orders or instructions of Government on the subject of Government officers attending parties given by private individuals ;

(e) whether they have considered the desirability of issuing instructions to the effect that high Government officers should not agree to attend parties proposed to be given in their honour by private individuals on their transfer or going on leave, particularly in such circumstances as are mentioned in (c) above ?

Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes, in May 1927.

(b) Yes.

(c) Yes : but Mr. Bristow had given evidence for the prosecution prior to his attending the entertainment.

(d) No.

(e) Mr. Bristow had accepted the invitation to the entertainment before the events leading to the criminal proceedings in question occurred, and the fact that before the entertainment took place he had given evidence adverse to Mr. Shindore was no reason for his modifying his acceptance.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : How long before the date on which the party was held had Mr. Bristow accepted the invitation ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I am unable to say.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : Were not the proceedings pending on the day on which Mr. Bristow attended the party ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : That is stated in the reply.

Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR : May I know whether the honourable member was invited for the party ?

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : I would certainly have refused the invitation if it had been given to me.

CIVIL LIST : ANNUAL PUBLICATION

Mr. HOSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA (Bombay City) : Will Government be pleased to state what decision they have arrived at regarding the publication of the Civil List only once a year ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : It has been decided to publish the Bombay Civil List in four issues as at present.

Mr. HOSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA : Will Government be pleased to state the reasons for coming to the decision ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : The honourable member knows that originally there were four issues. It has now been decided that the first issue should contain all the information that is usually contained in the Civil List. The next three issues will not contain all that information, but will just contain the necessary information which usually requires correction.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Cannot that be done by corrected slips ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : No.

POLICE SYSTEM : BOMBAY CITY

Mr. HOOSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA (Bombay City) : Will Government be pleased to state what decision they have arrived at regarding the system of patrol and stand post policemen in the City of Bombay ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Government have accorded administrative approval to the scheme for the introduction of combined patrol and fixed posts in Bombay City, but the scheme cannot be put into force until provision for the additional expenditure involved has been passed by the Legislative Council.

Mr. HOOSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA : May I know when Government propose to place the proposals before the Legislative Council ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : It is impossible to fix the date ; it depends on the existence of funds.

Mr. HOOSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA : Will they be able to do it at the next budget ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I cannot say.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN : Is the patrol system not at all in existence just now in Bombay city ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : There is a patrol system at present in force.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN : What am I to understand from the Government reply that the scheme cannot be put into force until provision for the additional expenditure involved has been passed by the Legislative Council ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : It is the additional expenditure involved in a combined system of patrol and fixed posts.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN : Is not the combined system of patrol and fixed posts in vogue just now in the city of Bombay ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I must ask for notice ; I am unable to reply.

Mr. HOOSEINBHOY ABDULLABHOY LALLJEE : May I know what additional amount will be necessary ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I am unable to say at present.

JUDICIAL AND LAW OFFICERS : MOSLEMS

Mr. HOOSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA (Bombay City) : Will Government be pleased to state (giving separate figures for the three divisions (Northern, Central and Southern) of the Presidency, Sind and Bombay City)

(a) the number of posts of

- (1) Sessions Judges.
- (2) Additional Judges.
- (3) District Magistrates.
- (4) Government Pleaders.
- (5) Public Prosecutors.
- (6) Assistant Prosecutors.

(b) how many of each of the above posts in (a) are held by Moslems ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU :

(a) and (b) A reference is requested to pages 87-89, 99-100, 173-178 and 224-228 of the Bombay Civil List of July 1927.

Mr. HOUSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA : Is the July Civil list supplied to members of the Legislative Council ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : The list must be in the Legislative Council Library.

SERVICE LAND : AMLI VILLAGE

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether there was a village servant by name Karia Dubar in the village of Amlī, taluka Pardi, district Surat ;

(b) whether he was in possession of service land, and, if so, how many years was this service land in possession of Karia Dubar and his ancestors ;

(c) whether this Karia died lately ;

(d) whether on his death his son showed his willingness to work as a village servant in place of his father ;

(e) whether this post of village servant was reduced by Government ;

(f) whether Government have refused to allow Naran Karia to retain this land on payment of full assessment ;

(g) whether in all other cases where village servants have been reduced the old servants and their descendants have been allowed to keep the service land on payment of full assessment ;

(h) what are the special reasons for treating this Naran Karia differently ;

(i) what is the policy of Government in such cases where village servants holding lands in their family since many many years are reduced ?

Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes.

(b) Yes. He was in possession of service vavla lands at Amlī. His name stands in the village records of 1904-05. It cannot be ascertained how long these lands were in his ancestors' possession as there are no records, previous to the Kaem Kharda of 1904-05 and the Record of Rights of 1905-06.

(c) Karia Dubar died on 27th December 1924.

(d) Yes. He had five sons and the third son, Nania Karia, expressed his willingness to serve.

(e) The post was kept vacant till the proposed revision of Vethias came into force.

(f) and (h) Yes. The Collector ordered these lands to be given out on Eksali lease on 19th June 1925, pending the introduction of the revision scheme, but as this scheme has since been dropped and as the scheme of 1910 has been fully applied to this village, steps are being taken to enter the name of the heir of the deceased Karia Dubar for the service, which he has expressed his willingness to undertake.

(g) Yes. This was generally done.

(i) The policy of Government is to secure efficient service together with adequacy of remuneration. The occupancy of the service inam lands belonging to these servants has not been unnecessarily disturbed anywhere.

LAND RENTS : HIRAPUR

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Talukdar of Hirapur, a village of Sanand Taluka of Ahmedabad District has leased that village to Hargovinddas Pandurao and Company who have fixed Rs. 5 and Re. 1-8-0 per Vigha as Vighoti for Kyari lands and other lands respectively ;

(b) whether the lessees Hargovinddas Pandurao and Company have sub-leased the said village to Koli Patel Ratu Megha of the same village ;

(c) if the answer to (b) is in the affirmative, whether any sanction of Government was asked for and taken by the two parties concerned for effecting the transaction of the sub-lease ;

(d) whether the sub-lessee Koli Patel Ratu Megha has served notices during the current year 1927 on the cultivators who are staying in that village for more than one hundred years to pay vighoti at the rate of Rs. 7-8 0 and Rs. 2-8-0 per vigha for Kyari lands and other lands respectively and to sign agreements of annual tenants-at-will on pain of wholesale eviction from their lands ;

(e) if the answer to (d) is in the affirmative, what steps Government have taken to stop the rackrenting of the cultivators of that village under the guise of leases and sub-leases ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes.

(b) Yes.

(c) No, as the sanction of Government to the sub-lease was not necessary.

(d) Yes.

(e) It is not possible for Government to take any action. The matter solely concerns the lessee and his tenants, and Government have no legal powers of interference.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Alienations under the Talukdari Act require the special permission of Government. Do not therefore leases and sub-leases require the previous permission of Government ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : These are not permanent alienations. They are only temporary leases from year to year for purposes of cultivation.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : The answer to (c) is that sub-leases do not require the sanction of Government. But do not leases in the first instance require the sanction of Government ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Not such temporary tenancies.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Are the talukdars at liberty to lease away their lands in any way they like, and allow the lessee to exact any amount of rent from the tenants ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I presume the honourable member has in mind alienations. These are leases, for which no previous permission of Government is necessary.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Under the guise of leases rents could be increased indefinitely. Why should not leases be controlled by Government ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Government can control alienations only.

AHMEDABAD MUNICIPALITY : EXTENSION OF TERM

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they extended the life of the Ahmedabad municipality by issuing an order under section 24 (1) (a) of the Bombay City Municipalities Act, XVIII of 1925, as amended by Act I of 1927 ;

(b) whether the said section 24 (1) (a) provided that an order of extension was to be made “ subject to the other provisions of the Act ” as mentioned in the same section ;

(c) if the answer to (b) is in the affirmative, the reasons why Government did not observe the other provisions of the Act XVIII of 1925 which required invitation and consideration of objections from the voters entitled to vote at the municipal borough of Ahmedabad ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : (a) Yes.

(b) The procedure for extending the term of office of councillors elected or nominated under the Bombay District Municipal Act, 1901, is expressly laid down in proviso (a) to sub-section (1) of section 24 of the Bombay City Municipalities Act, 1925, as amended by Bombay Act I of 1927, and there is no other section of the Act prescribing this procedure. The words “ subject to the other provisions of this Act ” must, therefore, be construed as referring to matters other than extension of the term of office of any such councillors.

(c) The provision referred to in the reply to (b) above does not require that before extending the term of office of any councillors therein referred to Government shall invite and consider objections.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Bombay City Municipalities Act, XVIII of 1925, provides that an order of extension of life of a municipal borough made by Government shall contain the reasons for which the said order was made ;

(b) if so, whether Government regarded the only ground of inconvenience mentioned in the order, extending the life of the municipal board of Ahmedabad for a further period of four months till 15th October 1927 as sufficiently valid and strong ;

(c) the nature of the inconvenience which necessitated the issue of an order under an exceptional section of the Act, intended to be used to overcome a special technical difficulty which could not be obviated by ordinary provisions of that Act ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : (a) Bombay Act XVIII of 1925 makes such provision with regard to the extension of the term of office of councillors nominated or elected at a general election under that Act only vide section 25 of the Act.

(b) and (c) The attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the reply given to part (c) of his question no. 4, printed at page 31 of the Second List of Questions and Answers in the last session.

The grounds urged by the Municipality were in the opinion of Government sufficiently valid and strong enough to justify the grant of an extension.

PRECEDENCE WARRANT : MEMBERS OF THE LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR : Will Government be pleased to state what is the position of members of the Legislative Council in the Warrant of Precedence and the Table of Precedence published in the Bombay Civil List ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Members of the legislative bodies including the Legislative Council have not been given places as such in either the Warrant or the Table of Precedence.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : May I ask whether they had a place in the table of precedence before the reforms ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I suppose something similar happened as regards the deprivation of the title of "honourable."

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : May I ask what position do members of this Council occupy in official functions such as durbars ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I understand that the example of the position occupied by members of Parliament is followed. Members of Parliament do not have any special place either in the Warrant of Precedence.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : They have always had none. On the contrary we had some position. In the reformed Council that position has been taken away.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I explained that the additional members of the old Council used to possess the title of "honourable." That does not apply to-day.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Are we dishonourable ? (Laughter.)

Rao Saheb R. V. VANDEKAR : The members of the old Council had the privilege of private entry. Is that continued to-day ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I do not think that arises out of this question.

Mr. HOOSEINBHOY ABDULLABHOY LALLJEE : Are Government aware that the members of the Bombay municipal corporation have got a place in the Table of Precedence ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I cannot enlighten the honourable member on that question.

FISHERIES DEPARTMENT

Rao Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI on behalf of Mr. V. N. JOG (Dharwar District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) what action they have taken to develop the Fisheries Department on the methods adopted by the Madras Government under the advice of Sir Frederick Nicholson ;

(b) whether any steps have been taken to teach the fishermen of our west coast the improved methods of preparing fish manure, fish guard and to develop fish oil industries as suggested by the Education Minister in 1925 ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) and (b) In view of the financial situation it has not been found possible to take action in the direction indicated.

KARNATAK COOLIES AND ASSAM TEA PLANTERS

Mr. M. D. KARKI (Kanara District) : In view of his replies (b) and (c) to question No. 3 printed on page 35 of the first list of Questions and Answers in the second Session 1927, will the Honourable the Finance Member be pleased to state --

(a) the number of complaints received by Government that certain labourers were taken to Assam by misrepresentation and the names of persons from whom and the time when they were received ;

(b) whether any action was taken by them in that behalf ; if so, the nature of the action taken and the result thereunder ;

(c) whether they have even enquired that the coolies are treated by the planters strictly in conformity with the terms of the agreement entered into between them and their (planters') agent at Dharwar ;

(d) if no, why ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL V. MEHTA : (a) Three :—

(1) From one Kanta bin Jetty and Honnappa bin Murkundy received on the 9th June 1925,

(2) From Nagu bin Kunta, Hanma Murkundi and Hamma Honnappa, received on the 21st August 1925, and

(3) From one Maruti Bhaguji Maratha received on the 14th November 1925.

(b) Government made local enquiries into the matter and afterwards asked the Government of Assam to make necessary inquiries in Assam and, if necessary, to compel the Tea Companies concerned to repatriate the labourers alleged to have been fraudulently recruited and unwilling to remain in Assam. The Assam Government reported, after enquiries, that the labourers made no complaints of illegal recruitment and maltreatment in the tea gardens, that they were earning good wages, seemed cheery, and of good physique, and that every effort was being made to make them comfortable and contented.

(c) Yes.

(d) Does not arise.

Mr. M. D. KARKI : May I know whether the result of the enquiry referred to in (b) has been communicated to the respective complainants ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I may inform the honourable member that the matter is still engaging the attention of this Government and communications are being made.

EDUCATIONAL GRANT-IN-AID CODE

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM on behalf of Mr. H. J. AMIN (Broach District) : Will Government be pleased to place a copy of the Grant-in-aid Code on the Council table ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : A copy of the Grant-in-aid Code, with schedules, will be found in the Reading Room for the honourable members of the Legislative Council.

RATNAGIRI HIGH SCHOOL : ADMISSIONS

Mr. B. R. NANAL (Ratnagiri District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of applicants for admission to the 5th, 6th and 7th standards in the Ratnagiri High School, respectively, in June 1927 ;

(b) the number of boys actually admitted in each of the three standards at that time ;

(c) whether it is a fact that the accommodation available in the High School is not sufficient for the admission even of boys who come from registered private schools in the town of Ratnagiri ;

(d) whether any managers of private schools had applied to the Educational Department for permission to open higher standards in their schools ;

(e) whether it is a fact that the permission asked for was refused ;

(f) if so, the reasons for the refusal ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI :

(a) and (b)

				Number of applications for admission	Number of boys actually admitted
Standard V	..	..	..	24	24
Standard VI	..	..	..	5	5
Standard VII	..	..	..	12	10

(c) The accommodation available in the present building is adequate for the prescribed number of students. All boys coming from the registered private schools of the town were admitted into the High School.

(d) The Manager, New English School, Ratnagiri, had applied for permission to open standard V in his school.

(e) and (f) The permission was not granted because the school did not satisfy the conditions laid down in rule 2 of the Grant-in-aid Code.

Mr. B. R. NANAL : Will the Honourable the Minister of Education be pleased to state what he found wanting in the Ratnagiri New English School ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The conditions laid down in rule 2 of the Grant-in-aid Code.

Mr. B. R. NANAL : Am I to understand that all conditions are not observed ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Only some.

Mr. B. R. NANAL : Which are observed and which not ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I will require notice for that.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I expect all honourable members to be in their places particularly those who ask questions. Everyone knows when the Council sits and begins its proceedings.

BILL No. III OF 1927 (COTTON MARKETS BILL)

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : I move, Sir, that Bill No. III of 1927 (A Bill to provide for the establishment Third reading. and the better regulation of Cotton Markets in the Bombay Presidency) be read a third time.

Question proposed.

Mr. BALAK RAM : Sir, I move :

“ That clause 13A be numbered 14 and the subsequent clauses 14, 15, 16, 17, 18 be renumbered 15, 16, 17, 18, and 19 respectively.”

This is only a formal amendment. Day before yesterday, a new section 13A was inserted. It is more usual to number the sections consecutively. Therefore I have moved that amendment.

Question put and carried.

Mr. BALAK RAM : I have to move another formal amendment in connection with which my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Kale will have to be consulted. An amendment to clause 6 (4) was carried at the instance of the honourable member, and the following words were added :

“ For one month previous to the next session thereof and shall be liable to be rescinded or modified by a resolution in the form of a statutory motion of the said Council tabled at the next session.”

I would respectfully suggest to the honourable member that the phraseology is a little awkward. All that he wants can well be secured by using the word "motion" instead of the word "resolution." If my amendment is accepted, the added clause will read as follows :

"For one month previous to the next session thereof and shall be liable to be rescinded or modified by a motion of the said Council tabled at the next session."

This will eliminate all possible legal difficulties.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : In the body of the Standing Order VIIIA the word "resolution" is used. In order to bring the amendment I moved within the ambit of that Standing Order I used that word.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The head note of that Standing Order is "Statutory Motions."

Mr. BALAK RAM : The word "motion" will serve all the purpose of the honourable member.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : Sir, can this be done at this stage ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I do not suppose there is any serious change made. A few words have been struck off and the word "motion" is substituted for the word "resolution."

Question put and carried.

Mr. BALAK RAM : Sir, a cross reference in the re-numbered clause 18 has to be altered. I move :

In the re-numbered clause 18, substitute the figure "17" for the figure "16" occurring in line 14.

Question put and carried.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The motion to be finally submitted to the House is that Bill No. III of 1927 (a Bill to provide for the establishment and the better regulation of Cotton Markets in the Bombay Presidency) be read a third time and passed.

Bill read a third time. Question put and carried.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Bill No. III of 1927 is read a third time and passed into law.

(Further consideration of Bill No. XXI of 1927—Bombay University Bill—resumed.)

Dr. M. K. DIXIT (Surat City) : Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by my honourable friend Mr. Chikodi, namely, delete sub-clause (4) of clause 5. A similar amendment was submitted by me, but it was ruled out of order by your good self on the ground of being time-barred. As it appears from the agenda that there is only one member of this House who has submitted an amendment of this kind, it might be presumed that the amendment does not carry sufficient weight; and it is for this reason that I have submitted that I had also given notice of a similar amendment which was ruled out as time-barred and is not therefore before the House.

In the first place, it is a matter of gratification that some of the members of the Select Committee, one after another have made a very frank confession that they did not understand and did not realise the significance of the clauses that were introduced in the bill. If even at this late stage some members have been able to realise the significance and dangers of these clauses it is a matter of gratification to the House and a matter for congratulation for the members. Sir, of all the popular institutions which are governed by Acts, I think the University has been till now the only institution which has been enjoying the greatest amount of freedom as far as Government control goes. The executive had till now no legal control over the University, and the legislature was good enough to leave matters alone and did not allow the Government to put their foot in the sacred precincts of the University. But by the introduction of these clauses which are sought to be included in the bill, I am afraid Government are seeking to arrogate to themselves the powers of control which did not exist till now. If these clauses are accepted by this House I am afraid, it would be a sort of desecration of the sacredness of the University. In the first place, we are told that the appointment of the Viceroy as a Visitor of the University is more or less analogous with the appointment of His Majesty the King as Visitor of the several universities of the United Kingdom. But I assure the House that the powers that are given to His Majesty the King as the Visitor of the universities in the United Kingdom are certainly not those which are sought to be given to the Viceroy as Visitor of the Bombay University. To support this statement of mine, I will quote from the University Year Book :

“ Unlike those of most other countries, the Universities of the United Kingdom have been since their origin independent of State control.”

This is enough to show that though the King is appointed Visitor of the university he does not carry the same powers as are sought to be given under sub-clauses (4) and (5) of clause 5 to the Visitor of the Bombay University. We can easily see that these clauses give a sort of control to the Government, the executive, over the Senate. I do hope that members on this side of the House are anxious to guard in a close manner the privileges of the Senate and to ensure that the Senate will not be interfered with or dominated by any other power. To my mind these sub-clauses do nothing else but give a sort of control to Government over the University. I am inclined to agree to a very great extent with the honourable member Principal Hamill when he says that there is nothing wrong in having a Visitor of the University. I entirely agree with him so far, but the Visitor must have only visitorial powers, to visit, inspect and offer suggestions. My objection is not to the first three sub-clauses. The Visitor can inspect and point out defects, and the Senate also are usually bound to carry out the suggestions of the Visitor. But there may be occasions when the defects pointed out by the Viceroy, the Visitor, may be defects only from his standpoint but may not be defects from the standpoint of the Senate. In that case there will be a sort of clash between the Senate and the controlling authority, the Visitor. Therefore I object to sub-clauses (4) and (5) which give to the Viceroy not only visitorial powers but also a sort of dictatorial powers.

A reference was made by the honourable member the Moolana Moulvi Saheb to our asking Government for a grant. He said that as we are asking for a grant of three lakhs from Government we must give that sort of control to Government. In that connection he quoted the adage “beggars cannot be choosers.” My honourable friend from Ahmedabad Mr. Sheth made it clear that we are asking the Government to make this grant not as beggars but we ask them to do their duty. I do not think this House asks for that grant as beggars from the Government; but as what is due to the University from the state revenues.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : May I make a personal explanation, Sir ? I am sorry to see that I was entirely misled by the Honourable the Minister both in the select committee and in the House and used strong words when I saw member after member of the select committee who had signed the report opposing this clause. I would now say that I reserve liberty of action with regard to voting (hear, hear). But I do contend that the Honourable Minister owes an explanation to this House with regard to misrepresentation.

Dr. M. K. DIXIT (Surat City) : The honourable member the Moolana Moulvi Saheb made another reference namely that the Viceroy can be expected to possess common sense. I won't dispute that, but at the same time I do not think any member would dispute that the members of the Senate also possess a certain amount of common sense.....

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : I am one of them.

Dr. M. K. DIXIT : It is only when the common sense of these two sets of people, the viceregal common sense and the senatorial common sense conflict with one another the question of which common sense will prevail would arise. And I would wish the House to decide that the senatorial common sense shall decide finally.

My honourable friend Mr. Marzban referred to another point. He said that the sanction of the Government of India, which is absolutely necessary, would only be given provided the new clauses are introduced in the bill. If it were not done and the House passed the bill without these clauses, the sanction of the Government of India would be withheld. I entirely agree with him looking to the correspondence which was read out to this House by the Honourable the Leader of the House.....

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN (Bombay City, South) : May I also make a word of personal explanation ? I too was under the impression that the sanction of the Government of India was conditional to these clauses being inserted in the bill. Therefore I made that remark. I also reserve my right of voting. I pertinently asked the Honourable Minister whether that was so or not and he did not contradict the statement.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : I rise to a point of order. Under section 80-A reference is made to previous sanction. There can be sanction or no sanction. I want to know whether there can be conditional sanction.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That point was raised and withdrawn and I do not think we can go into it again. If honourable members will cut short their remarks it will save the time of the House. Much of what is being said has really been said already in one form or another and let there be no more of personal explanations, please.

Mr. M. K. DIXIT : Sir, it is certain that even if the House is going to pass the bill it is quite likely that the sanction of the Governor General might be withheld. Under these circumstances it is very necessary that we should reconsider the position that we took last evening. The feeling on this side of the House is certainly strong and acute on this point. I am very sorry that the Honourable Minister has not come forward with any explanation. In view of the strong feeling which exists on this point I would request the Honourable Minister and ask him whether he is prepared to modify or to seek to find a via media which the House would be prepared to accept.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Mr. President, Sir, I wish to offer a few remarks on the genesis of the introduction of the Visitor into this bill. The Honourable Minister, or for the matter of that, the honourable members who are responsible for the drafting of this bill, did not introduce the visitor at all notwithstanding that it appears in other Acts. As was explained, it was after the passing of the first reading that the Honourable Minister received a communique from the Government of India on this subject. It seems to me, as the bill was put forward in a hurry, that if time has been allowed for the Honourable Minister to communicate the reply of this Government to the Government of India on this point perhaps all this discussion might have been curtailed. I do hope still that a via media will be found in regard to the matter contained in the letter from the Government of India which we had an opportunity of hearing and which has thrown some light as to the real significance of that communique. It is clear to my mind that it is not a condition precedent to the sanction of this bill. No doubt officers of the Government of India who have sent in that communique have put forward their views saying that since other Acts contain this provision then why not have it in this Act also. But, Sir, it seems to me that conditions in this province may be different from the conditions prevailing in other provinces. The University Reforms Committee also specially considered this question and I would ask honourable members to refer to paragraph 180 in which also the Government of India resolution of 1920 is quoted and there they have laid down the conception of its responsibilities to the University. Then the report says :

“ With that conception we have no quarrel and we trust that the Bombay University may look forward to help from the Government of India in carrying out the costly measures which will be necessary in order to apply suggestions endorsed by the Government of India. But we notice that the Government of India does not endorse the quinquennial visitation which the Calcutta University Commission suggested and that it even mentions possible deviations from the visitation procedure. We think that such visitation is not a necessity and that there is no need to include as an officer of the University a visitor who is to be the Governor General.”

It seems to me that this can be relied upon in support of any protest or representation that may be made to the Government of India pointing out there is no need of appointing the Viceroy as an officer or at any rate whether there is any necessity of arming him with powers of control sought to be given by clauses 4 and 5. It seems to me that there will be no objection to the visitor being included among the officers as a person who may visit quinquennially or decennially.

[Rao Bahadur R. R. Kale]

Very rarely indeed. But it is a different thing from his paying such a visit every five or ten years, either by himself or by deputy, different thing from his acting as the Collector does for the district local board as the controlling authority as it were, and it seems to me that it is that aspect of this clause that the honourable members of this House are strongly opposed to. It was stated in support of the clause that the Andhra University has got it; it is stated in the notes that the clause as inserted is based upon section 8 of the Andhra University Act. But, Sir, the conditions under which the Andhra University Act came into force and the Andhra University is itself established are quite different. I am not going to take up the time of the House by going into all the details, but I would simply say that if you are going to follow that Act in regard to one matter then why not follow section 36 of that Act? Because section 36 of that Act makes it obligatory on Government to pay a contribution towards the non-recurring expenditure as well as an annual contribution. Section 36 of the Andhra University Act says :

“ The Local Government shall, on such conditions as may be agreed upon, provide or contribute towards the buildings and equipment required for such colleges and also make an annual grant to the University for maintaining the institutions.”

I mean to say that if you rely upon one section for one purpose, the House is certainly entitled to ask the Government, why did they not rely upon the other parts of the Act? So, my submission is that each Act must be judged on its own merits, and the University of Bombay, which has been incorporated first of all by the Act of 1857 and next in 1904, has been hitherto free from the kind of control that is sought to be introduced into it now. The other universities quoted are also junior universities. Bombay ought to give a lead and not go in for slavish imitation of matters which may have come into other provinces in the forms of Acts for various reasons. Besides, Sir, the conditions of Bombay, so far as the contribution of Government to the University income is concerned, are quite different. If I may be allowed, I can quote here very briefly the income and expenditure of Governments in various provinces—five or six provinces—I mean the contributions of Government to the Universities in those provinces—and it will be seen—I think it is not necessary perhaps to quote the actual figures—it will be seen that the Government of Bombay is only contributing some thousands whereas the Governments of all the other provinces are contributing lakhs and lakhs towards the University funds. I mean that is the difference in the conditions. I am stressing this point, Sir, because it was explained that other Universities such as the Andhra University in Madras have similar clauses. I am only pointing out the difference between the contributions allotted to the Universities by other provincial Governments. Therefore, I do ask the Honourable Minister to consider whether it would not be prudent to hold over these clauses and carry on the rest of the bill for second reading and in the meantime carry on negotiations with the Government of India pointing out to them the strong feeling in the House, the various circumstances that have been brought to the notice of the House. I believe he has had no opportunity up to now—it is no fault of his—as was said, he received this communication from the Government of India by wire first and afterwards by letter, which we have all heard read yesterday. I do not think the Honourable Minister has had time to enter a protest or send a representation to the Government of India on the subject. After all, the Members of Government and the Honourable the Leader of the House are obsessed by anything that comes here from the Government of India. Naturally, they are subordinates of the Bombay Government, which is also subordinate to the Government of India, and they are obsessed by anything that comes from them. They naturally support it. I mean it is nothing but human. I am not going to blame any of the Government Members for the views they have expressed. But I do feel that the Honourable Minister's position should be strengthened by us and he should take up an attitude pointing out that this clause is really one which ought not to find a place here. Besides, these clauses, it seems to me, do not quite fit in with what has gone above. Now, in clause (1) the Visitor is there. Then clause (2) says that the Visitor has a right. To do what? To cause an inspection to be made or to visit himself. Then, after that, the Visitor has to give notice to the University of his intention to cause such inspection or inquiry to be made. Then the third clause reads :

“The Visitor may address the Chancellor with reference to the results of such inspection or inquiry and the Chancellor shall communicate to the Senate and to the Syndicate the views of the Visitor and may, after ascertaining the opinions of the Senate and Syndicate thereon, advise the University upon the action to be taken.”.

There it ends. The whole functions, the rights and the duties, of the Visitor seem to me to be perfectly there all right. Clauses (4) and (5) seem to be no doubt going rather further and again re-opening the subject, as it were, after the Visitor has done something, the Syndicate has done something and the Chancellor has done something. Under clause (4) the Syndicate must report to the Chancellor what action has been taken upon the advice given, and under clause (5) if no action is taken, then the Chancellor may issue such directions as he may think fit and the University shall comply with them. So, these two clauses (4) and (5) do not seem to me, Sir, to quite fit in with the first three clauses and the drafting of these clauses based upon the Andhra University Act, from which this phraseology is borrowed, need not be necessarily suitable. I mean to say the whole thing has come as a sort of surprise both to the Government and to the Council. Under those circumstances, I would certainly suggest for the consideration of the Honourable Minister that he may be pleased to ask that the consideration of these two clauses (4) and (5) may be postponed. In the meantime he can go on with the other clauses for second reading, clause by clause, and there is the wireless communication system available to the Government, they may use it and communicate urgently with the Government of India, and perhaps the consideration of these two clauses may be postponed in that manner in the meanwhile. Of course, the whole thing cannot be finished if one clause still remains to be disposed of. But it could be so arranged that other clauses may be gone through now and only these two clauses (4) and (5) may remain over. We are very anxious to know exactly the position which the Honourable Minister or the Government is going to take up with regard to the necessity of this statutory obligation, and by the end of the second reading and clause by clause reading, we shall be in a position to know also how this financial obligation is tried to be met by the Government. I, therefore, with these suggestions, really am supporting the amendment. These are my reasons for supporting the amendment of my honourable friend behind.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED (Hyderabad District): Sir, you must have noticed how the weather-cock of the Education Ministry of this Government changes without notice, without information, suddenly and most abruptly. When Government brings forward any bill in this House, it is an understood principle and it is always taken for granted that Government has got certain well defined policy behind the bill. Now, I ask you, Sir, and I ask every honourable member of this House to answer for himself whether in introducing this bill or whether in bringing the second reading of this bill before the House, the Education Ministry has got any the slightest policy behind it. Does the Honourable the Education Minister know what his own mind is? He changes because I am afraid he has got no policy behind his bill. Therefore you see him jumping at any suggestion of private negotiations which will be carried on behind the back of the honourable members of this House. I had no intention of addressing you and wasting your time, but when I found the honourable member from Gujarat, Dr. Dixit, talking this morning on the importance of carrying on negotiations, as though some great university scheme was otherwise to come down, I understood at once that the Education Ministry was shaking in its shoes: I at once felt that the Education Minister wanted to compromise in order to save itself and that only because it has no policy behind it: it has no backbone to stand an attack; and therefore it is ready to catch at any straw it can get hold of and to arrive at some kind of a compromise to save itself. The Education Ministry has, it appears to me, sacrificed principles, it has sacrificed the interests of vast number of people vitally interested in the work of the Bombay University, it has sacrificed the interests of the real Presidency and therefore it is not competent to pilot the bill to amend the University Act. I must protest most strongly against negotiations being carried on behind the back of the honourable members of this House just to please a few gentlemen because they can talk most strongly and most vehemently. Are we not going to count for anything? Have we got no say in the matter? Is the Education Ministry going to carry on negotiations with only the chosen few? Or is it going to take the whole House into its confidence? Whatever be the negotiations that the Education Ministry carries on, I feel that the Education Ministry should make up its mind on the points at issue and should decide for itself what it is prepared to defend and what it wants to be rejected. Having decided so, it must uphold its decisions, as that course would save many of us from the anxiety born of uncertainty. Let it not say that because such and such are the suggestions or directions of the Government of India that it wants to carry out those instructions. Let it not say that it stands for popular views but has to carry out the orders of the Government of India ! The point is whether or not the Education Ministry has adopted the suggestions of Government of India as its own ? If it has, it must uphold them. In this Bill, as we have seen, the Education Ministry has sacrificed the interests of the majority of the people of the Presidency. We have got no voice, because the Education Ministry have got some members ready to vote for them ; and therefore they know that they can very well ignore our protests and that they can thus sail with the tide easily. An Education Minister who wants to sail with the tide is not competent to handle this bill and pilot it through all its stages in this House. With these words I protest most strongly against those speeches that have been made this morning advocating negotiations. Negotiations have been so often carried on in this House that I am constrained to say that they have nearly always gone against the interests of the educationally backward communities.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Has the honourable member supported the amendment ?

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED : No, Sir. I merely protested against the policy of negotiations and I wanted the Education Minister to declare his policy. I beg permission to reserve my right of action.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : I just want to say, Sir, that my honourable friend Mr. Noor Mahomed is not quite right when he referred to the speeches made this morning. I have not had any communication with the Honourable the Education Minister about this matter and this is the first time I ever heard the allegation levelled at me and other honourable members by the honourable member Mr. Noor Mahomed.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, the select committee on this bill was the largest committee ever appointed to consider a bill so far as I know. It consisted of 24 members representing all sides of the House and all shades of views. In the select committee when this provision was introduced, not a single member out of the 22 who were present raised any protest about it. It was only last evening that some of the non-official members of this honourable House took fright at sub-clauses (4) and (5) of clause 5 as entrrenching upon the freedom of the University. In view of the strength of the non-official view that has been pleaded before this House, I think it is my duty to give further consideration to that view but it cannot be done all at once and Government as a whole must consider the view which has been expressed on the subject. Under these circumstances, I think I do not exhibit any weakness as my honourable friend supposes but I respect the large majority of opinion on the non-official side when I request you to hold over the consideration of this clause to give me time to consider this matter in the Government and till then, I request that you will be good enough to proceed with other clauses of the bill. The remarks which my honourable friend Mr. Noor Mahomed has made seems to have originated in the effusion of the moment ; but every honourable member on the non-official side on one occasion or other, has always harped upon the necessity of the non-official opinion receiving proper consideration at the hands of the official benches, and when a Minister in charge of a bill with a policy behind it wants time to consider the opinion of the non-official side, it is not that it is an exhibition of the Minister's weakness but it is rather showing his respect for the opinion on the non-official side. I therefore request that you will be good enough to postpone for the present the consideration of this clause 5.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I think there is hope for those members on the non-official side who are in support of this amendment, in the suggestion made by the Honourable the Minister. I, therefore, have no hesitation in holding over the consideration of clause 5 and in proceeding with the rest of the bill.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED : May I know from the Honourable the Minister what gentlemen he is going to consult and carry on his secret and private negotiations with ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. He has made it perfectly clear and I think the words " secret and private negotiations and so on " do not find proper place at this moment because the Honourable Minister has distinctly and plainly said that after hearing honourable members on the non-official side since yesterday he has made up his mind to meet the Government as a whole and consider the matter and come back, possibly, with a changed view and help the view of the non-official side. That is what I understand by the request that he has made.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Government want to consider the non-official views.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : In plain words therefore, there is a possibility of a change of view, otherwise there is no necessity of postponing and holding over. It is just possible that the Government as a whole may be able to reconsider the question in the light of the opinion that has been expressed on the non-official side of the House and, if possible, also I understand, Government will communicate with the Government of India in the meanwhile. The proceedings on the rest of the clauses will now go on. I think the request is a very reasonable one and will meet with the wishes of the non-official side. I therefore hold the consideration of clause 5 over.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : The Honourable the Minister has not given any explanation as to why he said that directions had been received from the Government of India. In the letter there were no directions. We were all misled about it.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The letter was read out in extenso by the Honourable the Leader of the House. It is capable of interpretation as a direction or as a suggestion or as an intention. He used the word " direction." There is no misrepresenting on his part at all.

[The President]

I think the whole matter has been brought out before the House and the House is in possession of the views of the Government of India. I go on to clause 6.

Clause 6 (Religious and other tests) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 7 (Authorities of the University) :

The following shall be the authorities of the University :—

- (1) The Senate,
- (2) The Faculties,
- (3) The Syndicate,
- (4) The Academic Council,
- (5) The Board of Post-graduate Studies.
- (6) Such other bodies as the Senate may declare by Statutes to be authorities of the University.

Dr. B. R. AMBEDKAR : Mr. President, the first part of my amendment to clause 7 is a consequential amendment depending upon the amendment to clause 25. I therefore request you, Sir, to hold it over till the amendment to clause 25 is disposed of.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I will hold it over.

Dr. B. R. AMBEDKAR : As regards my second amendment to clause 7, I understand the Honourable Minister desires to have some time to consider whether he can devise some amendment to my amendment to which both of us can agree.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Will the honourable member move his amendment.

Dr. B. R. AMBEDKAR : My second amendment to clause 7 runs thus :

Add the following clause to the bill :—

“ 7 (b). For the purposes of grants-in-aid from Government Treasury the University alone shall be recognised by the Government and no grants-in-aid shall be given to any college except through the University.”

I should like to insert the word “ except ” after the word “ college ” in the amendment of which I have given notice. It had been left over through mistake of the typist.

Sir, my reasons for moving this amendment are these. Under the new Act the University has been charged with the responsibility of undertaking the work of education far more directly than it was ever done before. Now, although the responsibility for teaching has been placed upon the University by the provisions of this Act, it must be recognised that the colleges which will be affiliated to the University will be the primary bodies which will carry on the practical work of teaching under this University. Now, Sir, I submit that unless the University is allowed some control over the colleges to regulate the work of teaching that is carried on in the colleges, I think it would not be fair to hold the University responsible for maintaining the standard of education. It must be given power to control the colleges and to regulate their work of teaching if the University is to discharge this responsibility. Now, Sir, under the existing law, the only means of control which the University has over these colleges is that the University appoints, I understand, what is called a committee of inspection, which committee visits these colleges at certain stated intervals, makes inspections and finds out what are the defects in their organisation and equipment. That committee I understand.....

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI: I rise to a point of order. I should like to know what the exact wording of the amendment of the honourable member is.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: It was read out; the word "except" has been added.

Dr. B. R. AMBEDKAR: Now, Sir, I find that the only means of control which the University has over these colleges, whereby it can enforce its regulations on the colleges, is through the report of this committee of inspection. I understand that this committee of inspection occasionally goes round on a visitatorial tour, and makes reports on the defects in the college organisation, and that report, I understand, is submitted to the standing committee of the University; and the standing committee reports to the syndicate its opinion on the defects pointed out by the committee of inspection. That is all that is done today by way of enforcing the rules of discipline which the University has framed in the matter of controlling the colleges. Now, I submit that that is not sufficient, because if the colleges do not follow the directions given by the University on the basis of the report of this committee of inspection, then the only effective power which the University has got over these colleges is the right to disaffiliate those colleges. Now, I submit, Sir, that that is power which is too drastic; it is a power which is the power of annihilation. The University has really, as a matter of fact, no power to amend the ways of the colleges. In other words, under the existing system of control which the University has got over the colleges, the University today can only make or unmake a college, either by granting affiliation or by disaffiliating a college. The University, under the present system, has no power, whereby it can enforce its discipline and compel obedience on the part of the colleges to these rules of discipline, without resort to this extreme penalty of disaffiliation. Now, Sir, my amendment is such that it gives the University the power to mend the ways of the colleges and to compel obedience on the part of the colleges to the directions given by the University, without resort to this extreme measure of disaffiliation. I submit, therefore, that if the University was recognised by the Government as a unit—and I submit that it ought to be—and if the grants given to the different colleges by the Government were distributed through the University or, if possible, on the recommendation of the University, then my submission is that the University will acquire a power which, it is very necessary for it to enable it to enforce its discipline on the colleges. I think there is no other power which the University can be given which can effect this object, and I say the most necessary object, of enabling the University to enforce its rules of discipline over a recalcitrant college. Now, Sir, this view, that the University should be given financial control over these colleges, is a view which has also been laid down by the Royal Commission on University Education in London. In paragraph 41 of their report, they say :

"The power of the purse is indeed the most important means of control which the University should possess, if it is to organise teaching, with which it is concerned. All the other modern Universities, except Wales and Scotland are masters in their own house in regard to the assignment of State and municipal grants, because the University is one unit and not a congeries of many units."

In this report the Commissioners also recommended that the same principle should be applied in the case of the University of London, and my amendment is based upon this important recommendation of the Royal Commission on University Education in London. I should also like to point out in this connection that the organization of the Bombay University in its inception was fundamentally based upon the organization of the University of London. I think we are also tending in this Bill to amalgamate, so to say, or assimilate the position of the colleges under the Bombay University to the same position which colleges under the London University have been made to assume under the reforms effected as a result of the Royal Commission. The situation in both cases is the same ; and I think the rule prescribed for regulating the relations of the colleges under the University of London to that University should with equal advantage be applied for regulating the relations of the colleges under the University of Bombay to that University. There might be some objection on the ground that probably the University may misbehave in the matter of making recommendation for grants-in-aid. I think there is no justification at all for the supposition that the University will have any private grudge against any particular college. I do not think that a University under the new Act will be composed of such irresponsible persons that they would for their own whims or private ends sacrifice the interests of a particular college. I therefore submit that on these grounds my amendment should be carried.

Question proposed.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Sir, I rise to oppose this amendment. The result would be that the colleges would have to serve two masters instead of one. The grant-in-aid is being distributed to colleges situated in British India of this presidency. If the University is recognized as the medium through which these grants-in-aid should be distributed nobody will know whether they are distributed to colleges within British India or in the Indian States also.

Another very important consideration is that grants are given to the colleges in some proportion to the expenditure incurred by them. They are given grants at the rate of 25 per cent. of their expenditure and in certain cases 50 per cent. grant is given for building purposes. There are various proportions in which these grants are distributed. If this amendment is carried to its logical conclusion it would mean that the colleges would not get their proportional grant and that all colleges would be compelled to go through the channel of the university to get their grants. Even Government colleges which are wholly maintained by Government will be compelled to go through the channel of the University. This state of affairs cannot be permitted. The colleges which are now receiving their grants get them not as a matter of grace but as a matter of right. These are colleges situated in British India and they have a right to receive grants from Government. If this power of distributing grants to colleges according to the merits of their teaching is taken away from Government and Government are merely made a machinery to record the decrees of the University as regards which grant is to be distributed to which college and which not, the autonomous position of the colleges will be placed at the mercy of the University. Therefore I strongly oppose this amendment.

[Mr. J. C. Swaminarayan]

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI (Bombay University) : I oppose this amendment, Sir, though I agree that the amendment which my honourable friend has put forward is a consummation devoutly to be wished. The position is this. You cannot get over the difficulties which prevent the consummation for 25 years to come. You cannot take to-day the conditions that will be in favour of this amendment two or three decades hereafter. Up to 1904 the Bombay University was nothing but a University which was an institution as defined by the despatch of 1854 which tested knowledge but gave no instruction. In 1904 for the first time the University was given the power to constitute its teaching department. Up to now the teaching is in a very elementary condition and it has therefore become necessary to have another Act which would take the University from this infant stage to higher one. The present amendment of Dr. Ambedkar implies that the University is already a full fledged teaching University. It is an impossible position. At present 90 per cent. of the work of the University is really examining work. We hope that with the assistance of this Act we may be able within 10 years more to develop its teaching activities so as to control the teaching in colleges. Then only will come a stage when some colleges can be turned into constituent colleges and the grant, instead of being distributed by Government, can be transferred to the University as has been done in some Universities in England. When the University becomes a proper teaching University with constituent colleges the suggestion put forward by my honourable friend can be adopted.

The honourable member Dr. Ambedkar read from the London University report a few sentences which are in favour of his amendment. If he reads a few sentences further on he will find that to the framers of that report the same difficulty presented itself as it presents to our minds to-day. It is stated there :

"In London, on the other hand, public funds have hitherto been given, almost of necessity, to each of the independent institutions actually doing the work and responsible for the expenditure upon it. The colleges were older than the University and could not be left at the mercy of a Senate which, though it might have distributed state and municipal aid with care, had no responsibilities towards them or their existing interests."

These few sentences apply with much greater force to the condition of the Bombay University. The present position of the Bombay University is to maintain the standard of teaching, testing the calibre of instructions given in colleges, and to initiate an activity of teaching of itself,

[Mr. K. M. Munshi]

If the grants are placed in the hands of the university it will become a machine for the purpose of spreading higher education. It is impossible for the university in its present stage to be a machinery of that character.

You have further to consider that the Bombay University so long as it caters to a presidency of such vast distances will have to remain to a considerable extent a university of an affiliating type. Therefore the interests of the colleges can best be served by their negotiating directly with Government rather than their being under the control of the university so far as grants are concerned. Under these circumstances, while the principle underlying the amendment is sound for which we may work in the future, so far as the present condition is concerned, I cannot accept this amendment. I therefore oppose the amendment.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District): Sir, I rise to support the amendment, and in doing so I wish to congratulate my honourable friend Dr. Ambedkar upon the well informed and thoughtful speech which he made in moving the amendment. I am very glad to find, Sir, that the honourable member for the University accepts the principle underlying this amendment. He admits that the amendment embodies a consummation devoutly to be wished for. He only referred to practical difficulties which made it impossible for Government to carry out the suggestion embodied in the amendment. But, Sir, let us see exactly what the amendment is. If the terms of that amendment are carefully considered, honourable members will find that what is proposed by Dr. Ambedkar is simply this: that when any grants are to be made to colleges they should not be made directly to the colleges by the Government but they should be made to them through the University. I submit, Sir, that the University is in a much better position than the Government to decide what are the respective claims of the various colleges to the grants to be given to them, and I submit that under the new constitution proposed under this Act, the University will be better able than at present to judge of the respective claims of these different colleges. Under these circumstances, it does not seem to me at all unreasonable, or difficult why the Government should not take the University into their confidence, consult the University, ask the opinion of the University as to the merits of different colleges and consult them as to the grants that are to be made to those different colleges, and then, after joint consultation between the Government and the University, decide upon the sum to be given to each college. All that this amendment proposes to do is this, that this consultation should take place; that there should be a free exchange of opinion and views between the Government and the University in this matter; the respective claims of the different colleges should be considered and decided, then the lump sum to be given should be arrived at and that lump sum should be placed at the disposal of the University to be distributed among the different colleges. I fail to understand what is impossible in this, or difficult in this. It seems to me a very sensible amendment, and I strongly support it.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN (Bombay City, South) : Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by the honourable member Dr. Ambedkar. One would have expected, Sir, that the representative of the University would have very warmly welcomed any proposition to strengthen the importance and the stability of the Bombay University. The opposition of the honourable member Mr. Munshi has therefore come to me, as to many other members of this House, as a surprise. Sir, I really do not see why the honourable member for the University wants to keep the Bombay University in an infantile stage for 25 years more. I thought, Sir, that this Bill No. XXI of 1927, when passed into law, will serve, as it were, as the inauguration ceremony of the Bombay University entering into the adult age. The Bombay University is now a full-fledged adult, and is now in a fit position to be entrusted with the responsibilities of an adult. I am sure that the honourable member Mr. Munshi will admit that Government colleges are all of them much better organised and better managed than private colleges ; and with that fact before us I do not see where the difficulty is and where the harm is in placing these colleges in 1928 under the control of the Bombay University. When this bill is passed into law, it should be made clear that the Bombay University should be recognised as an important body, or perhaps the supreme head of education in this presidency. I think, Sir, Dr. Ambedkar has done a distinct service by bringing forward this amendment and I give my warm support to it.

Mr. BALAK RAM : Sir, I was not present when the discussion began ; otherwise I would have brought to your notice that the amendment moved by the honourable member Dr. Ambedkar is not in order. It says :

“ For the purposes of grants-in-aid from Government Treasury the University alone shall be recognised by the Government and no grants-in-aid shall be given to any college except through the University.”

The colleges are bodies independent of the University. This bill deals with the University alone. When we are dealing with a body X, we cannot say that Government shall not give any money to body Y. I also believe—I have not looked into it in detail—that the local legislature cannot restrict the powers of Government in spending money in that way.

Dr. B. R. AMBEDKAR : I am sorry I have not been able to follow what the honourable member the Legal Remembrancer was saying. We could not hear him.

Mr. BALAK RAM : Sir, this bill deals with a certain corporation called the University of Bombay. My friend Dr. Ambedkar's amendment prevents any money being given to the colleges. I submit that this amendment is not within the scope of the bill. When dealing with the University, we cannot say that Government shall not spend money on other bodies. There is a second point of order also.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That was not pressed by the honourable member.

Dr. B. R. AMBEDKAR : Sir, with regard to that, I submit that the colleges are part of the University, and this bill applied both to the University and to the colleges which form part of it. This bill deals with the relation of the colleges to the University.

Mr. BALAK RAM : May I explain again what I mean ? I quite admit that in a sense the colleges are part of the University, but that is only in an administrative or educational sense. Legally a college holds its property quite independent of the University, just as the University holds its property quite independently of the college. The two are separate legal entities, and as we are legislating for the University, this amendment is not within the scope of the bill.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I am afraid I cannot entirely accept the view placed by the Legal Remembrancer. This amendment proposes that the Government money passing on to the colleges affiliated to the University should pass through the University and not directly as now. That does not make much difference and I think when all aspects are taken into consideration I think this falls within the scope of the Act. I therefore think that the amendment is in order.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : I rise to another point of order. The amendment restricts the power of the local Government in regard to the distribution of its grants. Under the Government of India Act, the transferred subjects are administered by the Governor with the advice of the Ministers, and the Ministers are the sole persons to distribute the grants as they think fit. The present amendment puts restrictions on that power. The provisions of the present bill cannot override the provisions of the Government of India Act.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Does the Honourable Minister rely upon any particular rule or provision in the Act ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : The Government of India Act clearly lays down that the transferred departments are to be administered by the Governor with the advice of the Ministers, and by no one else.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I do not really think that this amendment interferes with the Government of India Act or with the position of the Honourable Minister as an adviser to His Excellency the Governor. I therefore do not think that the point of order is correct.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Mr. President, I quite agree with the honourable member Dr. Ambedkar's principle, but I feel some difficulty in accepting his amendment. I would point out to the honourable member that the provision made for affiliating colleges and controlling them to a certain extent appear in clause 21 (h) which reads as follows :—

“(h) to arrange for and direct the inspection of colleges and hostels and to issue instructions for maintaining the efficiency of the colleges, and in case of disregard of such instructions, to recommend modification of the conditions of affiliation and to take such other steps as it deems proper ;

(i) to call for reports, returns and other information from the colleges.”

[Rao Bahadur R. R. Kale]

It is a new clause introduced by the select committee with a view to maintaining the disciplinary position of the University. In the original bill there was no provision except disaffiliation. Disaffiliation is a drastic measure. This clause has been introduced and in my humble opinion it is sufficient to safeguard the efficiency of colleges. To go further and to have control over teaching also would mean a change in the machinery. The present machinery provided in the bill is simple, the University being more or less an examining body. But in regard to the other teaching work, that is post-graduate studies, the University may have its own institution for the purpose. It will be unjust in the first place to insert a provision of this kind and secondly additional machinery will have to be provided for in the bill for the purpose of enforcing the kind of thing which the honourable member Dr. Ambedkar wants. With these remarks I oppose the amendment.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind): Sir, I wish to place before the mover of this amendment one or two difficulties which strike me with regard to this amendment. It appears to me that the idea behind the mind of the mover of this amendment is that the University should be able to exercise control over college education more efficiently than at present and that if it is given power with regard to grants-in-aid that control will be more effective. It seems to me that since under the jurisdiction of the university there exist Government colleges which cannot be said to be colleges receiving grants-in-aid from Government no provision is made by the mover of the amendment for control over such colleges. I do not see why private effort should have special disabilities imposed upon them. The other difficulty is that the real effect of this amendment if accepted and if it comes into operation will be to reduce the control of this House over higher education. I believe the Minister for Education is to be responsible to this House for the administration of his Department. If in a matter so vital as the giving of grants-in-aid to colleges the Minister gives up his power to the university he cannot give effect to the wishes of the House in regard to grants to colleges. I do not think that this will be a sound principle.

The last difficulty before me—I hope I will not be misunderstood—is that the senate and the syndicate will consist substantially of a large number of principals and professors of different colleges and I am afraid—I hope my fears are mistaken—that if as a result of this amendment the syndicate and the senate which is composed of principals and professors of various colleges get the power of distributing grants it may be that there will be complaints of unfair treatment. That will land us into complications and I therefore feel that in view of these difficulties the amendment should not be accepted.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind): Sir, I would like to say one or two words from a practical point of view. The proposal is a laudable one, but in actual practice and taking human nature as it is, it is one which is highly detrimental to the interests of minor colleges.

[Mr. B. G. Pahalajani]

We have got in the Presidency Colleges with a high degree of proficiency and on account of the influential position they are heavily represented in the Senate. We have got the Fergusson College in Poona, Elphinstone College and St. Xavier's College in Bombay who are far more influential than colleges in the mufussil areas. On account of the excessive representation of the city colleges in the University the natural tendency will be to give more grants to these colleges. It is a fact which cannot be got over; and in one way it is natural, because they will plead that they have greater expenditure to incur and therefore they want more grants. The smaller colleges which are at a distance from the city of Bombay will have hardly one or two professors to represent them and they will go unheard. The result will be the deterioration or the misery of the smaller colleges, whose voice will be more or less a voice in the wilderness. We do not want the colleges now to be bigger. We want education to spread. We want secondary and collegiate education to spread in every town, if possible, and therefore, any such provision as is introduced in this Bill will be calculated to discourage it on account of the financial strain. It will encourage the already established colleges; it will encourage the colleges whose finances are large. It will make the future continuance of the smaller colleges, if not impossible, very difficult, because the distribution of the money according to the wants will be among their bigger brethren and not in their own hands. That is the human point of view. I therefore submit to the House, the non-official side here, and to those who are interested in the collegiate education and in the growth of collegiate education, if they want to encourage it, this power ought not to be given to the University. The present Senate is going to be a new body, we do not know how it is going to function. It is a tentative body, and we must wait for some time until we determine whether the conduct of the present Senate towards the smaller colleges is really one that can be easily accepted. Therefore, from that point of view, I would ask those who are interested in education to keep this in suspense.

The second point that has been urged by the honourable mover has been already answered by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale by saying that the punishment is already provided for. If it is already provided for, then this punishment is hardly fair and we should not at present allow it.

Mr. J. B. PETIT (Bombay Millowners' Association): Mr. President, I do not think that this clause, if accepted by this honourable House, is likely to cause the complications that are feared and to which reference has been made by several honourable members. As far as I am able to interpret the clause, all that is sought to be embodied in the bill, is a power to the University to make a recommendation. (An Honourable Member: There are no such words in the clause.) There are no such words; but the words that are there, do not say that the power of the Government is going to be restricted in any manner or to any extent. It does not also say or imply that the Honourable the Minister for Education has to abdicate his power of determining and distributing grants-in-aid. I do not see any words there to this effect or conveying this meaning.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : That is exactly how I look at it.

Mr. J. B. PETIT : If this clause is capable of more than one interpretation, then I venture to suggest that it should be made clearer. But until it is so made clearer, as far as I am able to judge, all that it aims at, is that grants should be made through the instrumentality of the University ; and I see absolutely no objection to such a proposal. It does not in the slightest degree restrict the right or privilege of the Government to make such grants. It is contended that the University should be the only vehicle through which the grants should pass on to the various colleges. I think it is quite right that the University should have the control and power of making recommendations and such other observations as they may think fit to offer from time to time, for the consideration of Government. I admit that the clause is not as clear as it might be ; but if there is a doubt, it might be made clearer. So long however as it remains, I venture to think that it is capable of the interpretation that I have put on it. It is quite in the fitness of things that the University, charged as it is with the control of higher education, should have some voice in making recommendations to Government in the distribution of these grants ; and I am perfectly certain that even the Honourable the Minister for Education will not object to such a proposal, inasmuch as it will enable him to be in possession of the views of the University on the merits and demerits of the respective institutions selected for Government grants. I see absolutely no objection to such a course. It does not put any unnecessary obstacle in the way of the Government or impose any additional responsibility upon their shoulders. All that it says is that they should recognise only the University for purposes of these grants-in-aid, which proposal, in other words, means that it should be consulted and its views should be given due weight to. Government are undoubtedly the ultimate arbiter of all questions arising out of this clause ; and it is open to them as far as I am able to read this clause, to accept or reject the recommendations of the University. There is one more advantage in favour of this proposal ; and that is, that it will also have the effect of promoting a healthy co-operation between the Government and the University, and will ultimately enure to the benefit and advancement of the cause of higher education.

Mr. F. G. H. ANDERSON : Mr. President, if the object of this clause is, as has been so clearly stated by the last speaker, to be the conferment of a controlling voice in the distribution of grants upon the University, then, Sir, this House must reject this amendment, because it is the firm intention of this House that the controlling voice in the matter of grants shall vest in this House, and in the Minister in charge of this transferred subject. If, however, the object of this clause is merely that the University should be consulted, I think this House will probably have no objection to accepting it. But if this is the aim of the clause, we should insist that first it should be put in proper language.

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR (East Khandesh District): Mr. President, I submit that the amended clause as it stands at present is not capable of the interpretation put upon it by my honourable friend Mr. Petit. The clause is quite clear. It takes away the power of giving any grants-in-aid to colleges from Government and it gives it to the University.....

Mr. BALAK RAM: On a point of order, Sir. A little while ago you ruled that this amendment was within the scope of the bill because it did not affect the rights of colleges with respect to grants from Government. It was also ruled by you, Sir, that this clause merely says that the grants to colleges shall be paid through the University which was to be merely a channel of payment. I understand from the speeches made from the opposite side that the amendment seeks to give the University either a right to be consulted, or makes it the final authority for deciding in which direction the grant shall go, and the speaker whom I just interrupted was also saying that the object of the amendment is to prevent Government giving grants to colleges except on the recommendation of the University. I now put it to you, Sir, whether the speeches of the honourable members are consistent with your ruling.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I do not see clearly the point of order raised by the honourable member the Legal Remembrancer. I understand that this amendment, according to the views of one of the honourable members of this House, aims at creating a channel, or—I would put it in other words,—if I have rightly understood it, the object of the amendment is securing to Government a further agency for the distribution of the grants, and so far it does not go against the spirit or the scope of this bill. I, therefore, have allowed it as in order. Honourable members might take various views and express themselves in any particular manner they like. That does not make the amendment out of order at all.

Mr. BALAK RAM: But would not the speeches be out of order?

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR: As I was just saying, the clause as it stands is not capable of the interpretation that has been tried to be put upon it by the honourable member Mr. Petit. The first portion “for the purposes of grants-in-aid from Government treasury the University alone shall be recognised” means that Government, of its own accord, cannot give any grant in aid but must give the amount to the University itself. I think I am perfectly right in putting my interpretation upon the clause as it stands. If you will look to the second portion of this clause, namely, “no grants-in-aid shall be given to any college except through the University” and if you read these two portions together, what does it all mean? It means that whatever fund Government has sanctioned as a grant-in-aid to be given to different colleges in the presidency, should be given over to the university for being distributed by it in any manner it likes. There are various colleges situated outside British India. They are not receiving any grants-in-aid from Government. There are also many other colleges, viz., Government Colleges which have been left untouched as pointed out by my honourable friend Mr. Jairamdas, and this amendment seeks to give power to the University only with regard to particular colleges which are receiving grants-in-aid from Government. I do not understand why the honourable the mover should leave untouched all those other colleges. If the amendment was to the effect that all money to be spent on college education ought to pass through the hands of the University for being paid to or spent on colleges, then it would probably have been in conformity with the object of my learned friend, the honourable mover of this amendment. Instead of only restricting the grant of financial assistance to colleges, if he seeks to lay down that all the grants-in-aid should pass through the medium of the University, then I think it would have been better for him to have said that whatever money Government ought to spend on colleges by way of grants-in-aid or on colleges established by Government should pass through the University. As the amendment stands at present, I think it is halting, it is not suited to the present time, and therefore I oppose it.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division): Sir, I would like to support this amendment. I was rather surprised that the honourable member for the University has taken an objection to a proposal for giving additional power to the University. Another member, the honourable member from Sukkur, says "humanly speaking justice would not be done by the University." We are not speaking the language of the apes or of the angels. "Speaking humanly" means that honourable members are suspicious about autonomy being given to the University as the same would be abused by syndics. Why should the power not be given to the University? Honourable members seem to be afraid that while Government is doing justice the University would not act fairly as between one college and another. If that be the motive behind the opposition the sooner they abandon the talk of autonomy for the University the better. Nothing can be a better argument against the proposal of autonomy for the University than the opposition of Mr. Munshi to this amendment, and the reasons assigned for that opposition by the honourable member for East Khandesh and the honourable member for Sukkur. I think it is a very innocent and a very harmless but a very useful amendment. If the University is the proper body to find out the intellectual fitness of persons and of colleges, then, Sir, the University must be given this power. The power is not being taken away from the Minister. The Minister has the power. The Minister has the control, the Minister can always make enquiries. Moreover the University may recommend and for the purposes of recommendation no other agency is to be recognised but the University. If honourable members think that this agency should not be recognised, that the University would not be doing the only function for which it exists, that is to say, to make impartial and independent report to the Government about the manner in which the duties and functions are performed by colleges, then you are doing a great injustice to the University. As a member of the Senate, I stand for the rights of the Senate. I say the University must be given this power. Yesterday, we heard strong protests against interference of Government, and now you are gracefully giving Government this power to the prejudice of the university. These two mentalities I do not understand. Either you want full autonomy for the university or you do not. If the university should have to be controlled by Government, don't say that you require full autonomy. I support the amendment moved by my honourable friend Dr. Ambedkar.

Dr. M. K. DIXIT (Surat City) : Sir, I am again obliged to contradict my honourable friend, the Moulana Moulvi Rafiuddin Saheb. My honourable friend on my right made distinctly clear the meaning of the amendment that for grants-in-aid the university alone shall be recognised and the Moulvi Saheb put a different meaning on it altogether. We have had several points talked about but there is one point to which I wish to refer. It is this, if this clause is accepted, the colleges will have to go about canvassing to the members of the Senate or the Syndicate for deciding upon the amount of grant or whether the grant should at all be paid to them or not. For the purposes of grants-in-aid, Government colleges are altogether excluded because they are entirely financed by Government themselves. It is only with regard to private colleges that this clause will have to be enacted. Now, we are giving the university the power of inspection. I suppose their committee will look to two things—efficiency of the college and the equipment of the college : Now, Sir, most of these private colleges are as a rule always short of funds. The university inspection committee goes round and suggests certain additions and improvements for the purpose of bettering the efficiency and the equipment of the colleges. It is quite possible that in spite of their great desire to carry out and put into effect these suggestions, the administrators of these private colleges may not find themselves in a position to carry out those suggestions. Because those suggestions mean money. And if the inspection committee next year turns round and says “ We made certain suggestions for improving the efficiency and equipment of your college ; those suggestions have not been carried out, and so we recommend that the grant-in-aid should be curtailed or withheld,” what would be the condition of the college then ? A sort of vicious circle would in this way be established. Efficiency and equipment will mean money. For bringing in these things the administrators of private colleges will be trying their best. If they fail for the time being, I suppose the inspection committee will turn round and say “ We shall stop your grant.” First of all, the recommendation may be to reduce the grant, in the next year to still further reduce it, and in the third year for withholding the entire grant, and thus lastly will probably come the drastic step stated by the honourable mover of the amendment, namely, the disaffiliation of the college. That would be creating a very difficult situation for the college. I think it will be putting the mofussil colleges, run by private agencies, into a very awkward position if the University is made the only body for recommending the giving of grants-in-aid. I therefore oppose the amendment.

Mr. S. C. JOSHI rose.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I think we have had a very full discussion. Of course, I do not want to check any honourable member, but I would request the honourable member to be very brief.

Mr. S. C. JOSHI : Sir, I want to move an amendment to the amendment as follows :

"Delete the word "alone" and for the words "and no grants-in-aid shall be given to any college except through the University" substitute the words "and Government shall neither make, withdraw, nor modify any grant-in-aid to any college without first obtaining the views of the University thereon."

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : This is hardly an amendment to the amendment. This is a fresh idea brought in. I would therefore not allow it at this stage.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI (Belgaum District) : Sir, I rise to oppose the amendment. My reasons are that university education has not developed to an equal extent in all the parts of the Presidency. We know that our presidency is divided into various divisions, and education in one division has not developed to the same extent that it has in others. The University of Bombay, constituted even according to the present bill before the House, will predominantly consist of men either from Bombay or from Poona ; colleges from Bombay and Poona will be mostly represented on the University ; the private colleges in these places will also be getting grants, and human nature being what it is, we cannot say that the distribution of grants will be fair. My honourable friend Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad said that the autonomy of the University is now being invaded, and we are contradicting ourselves, because at one time we ask for autonomy and independence for the University, and now we are opposing it. But I think the criticism is surely, if I may say so, something of a nonsense, because what we are here contending for is the right of this House : we are not pleading, as my honourable friend seems to think, for Government. We are pleading for the rights of the House. The grants given by Government will be under the control of this House. The Honourable Minister's pay is voted, and the grants are votable. We are fighting for the preservation of our rights. If the Honourable Minister distributes the grants unfairly, this House has got the power of taking him to task, but if the University is given the right to distribute the grants, and if there are complaints against its distribution, this House will not be in a position to control the University. The Honourable Minister will be free to say "You passed this legislation ; the University has got the power, and I am helpless." We do not want him to say that. We are fighting for our rights. In the case of the sub-clauses (4) and (5) of the clause 5 we were fighting for these rights. Government were intending to hand over the control of the University to a dictator like the Chancellor, and therefore we were opposing them. We are now similarly fighting to retain the power in our own hands. We are not contradicting ourselves. Let my honourable friend Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad think twice before he makes such a sweeping remark as the one, viz., that we are contradicting ourselves in dealing with this bill. It seems that he is thinking and pleading for Government ; perhaps he thinks he will become some day a Viceroy.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. I think such remarks against each other—I am glad that they are not frequent—are very indiscreet.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : I do not wish to say anything further on the point. I say that if this amendment is allowed to be passed, it will act in a prejudicial way to the interests of the mofussil colleges, and the spread of university education, which is still in its infancy, will be retarded. I therefore strongly oppose the amendment moved by my honourable friend Dr. Ambedkar.

Rao Bahadur S. T. KAMBLI : I move for a closure.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I accept the closure, and call upon the honourable mover to reply.

Dr. B. R. AMBEDKAR : Sir, although I do not know what is going to be the fate of this amendment, I am rather glad to find that there are so many honourable members who have recognised the principle embodied in this amendment. I do not think that I should waste the time of the House in dealing with every sort of objection that is raised against this amendment, but I should first of all like to point out that so far as I am able to construe the amendment as I have put it down, I do not think that it makes the University in any sense the sole arbitrator in the matter of distributing the grants.

All that I say is this : that the grant shall be distributed through the university. It does not take away the power of control of the Minister to pay grant. He is the final determining authority in the matter of making grants notwithstanding this amendment. I do not think that the Honourable Minister of Education will object to have any consultation with such an important body as the university in the matter of making grants. I am sure that those honourable members who have stood up for the mofussil colleges and feared that the university authorities would manipulate affairs in such a way as to affect the interests of the mofussil colleges would agree with me when I say that it is as much their duty as the duty of every one in this House to see that Government money that is paid as grant-in-aid is properly expended by the colleges. I think there cannot be a better body than the university to advise the Minister whether the money which has been raised from taxation and handed over to the mofussil colleges as grants is well spent or not. I think the Honourable Minister should be the last man to reject the views of an important body of which he is going to be the father by the passing of this bill.

There was a point made by the honourable member Mr. Jairamdas which was greatly appreciated by the Government benches. He said that this amendment was going to reduce the control of this House over the Minister. I do not see how that can be the result of my amendment. As I said just now the only object of my amendment is to strengthen the hands of the Minister. If that object is not clear I am prepared to accept any amendment which the Honourable Minister may move in order to make that meaning clear. I do not see how it can at all curtail the power of this House over the Minister or the power of the Minister. Even under this amendment the Minister will be the final authority to make these grants. The only object of the amendment is that the university as an intermediary body should be consulted for making grants. I do not think there is any serious limitation either on the power of the Minister or on the control of the House over the Minister. The House on the other hand will be in a much better position to judge whether the provision made by the Minister is properly spent. With these words I commend my amendment to the House.

[Dr. B. R. Ambedkar]

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, I oppose this amendment. I do not wish to abdicate either the powers of the Minister of Education or the powers of this House. I do not want to introduce a third wheel to the coach. From the speeches which have been made in support of this amendment it must have been clear to the House that they want by this amendment to give power to the university over Government. With great respect to your ruling, Sir, I beg to submit that if this amendment had been worded as follows, namely, "that Government shall give a grant of 3 or 4 lakhs to the university for being distributed as grants" it would have been open to the objection under section 80C of the Government of India Act. Here it is a vicious amendment in that it imposes on the Government an unlimited liability to give an uncertain amount to the university which will distribute it as grants to the colleges. Looked at from this standpoint it is open to objection under section 80C of the Government of India Act. I therefore submit, without meeting the other arguments placed before the House, that the House should reject this amendment altogether.

Question put and lost.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I now pass on to clause 8.

Clause 8 (Constitution of the Senate) ordered to stand part of the bill.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Clause 9. The honourable member Mr. Ginwalla.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA : That is an amendment relating to clause 10, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Yes, and it is a mistake. I find there are several amendments submitted by the honourable member Mr. Ginwalla where he has unfortunately mistaken the clause and referred them to wrong clauses. He will find several of his mistakes as we get on. I hope honourable members will be careful in future. There being no other amendment I shall put clause 9.

Clause 9 (The Chancellor) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 10 (The Vice-Chancellor).

The Chancellor shall appoint a Vice-Chancellor who shall, save as herein otherwise provided, hold office for two years, and shall be eligible for re-appointment.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA (Bombay City, North): Sir, I move the following amendment:

"The senate shall elect the Vice-Chancellor who shall, save as herein otherwise provided, hold office for two years and shall be eligible for re-election."

The object of this amendment is that the power of the nomination of the Vice-Chancellor should not vest in the Chancellor but should be in the hands of the senate which is a larger body. This point was discussed at the time of the first reading of this bill and it was the consensus of opinion of this House that in order to democratise the university we should maintain the elective principle. I have nothing further to add and I hope the amendment will be accepted by the House.

Question proposed.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District): Sir, you will find in the amendments put down there is some divergence of views. The amendments can be classified as follows: Whether the Vice-Chancellor should be elected or whether he should be nominated by the Chancellor and whether he should be chosen by the Chancellor out of a panel of five persons. If the first of these—whether he should be elected or nominated—is taken up the discussion will be kept within bounds.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Is it the proposal that it should be limited to one? This deals with only one.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: Sir, I do not propose that any particular amendment should be discussed first. I only propose that certain principles should be placed before the Council and then amendments to the clauses should be drafted according to the principles accepted by the House.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: How can that be? Principles cannot be discussed now.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM: Sir, may I make a suggestion to save the time of the House? I do not know whether it would be in order, but if all the honourable members who have to move the amendments are allowed to move their amendments and make their speeches and then the amendments are put one by one for the vote, then we can have discussion on all the points and the time of the House might thus be saved.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: That is not practicable. I attempted that at the last session, and I found that confusion was created. I think we will be wasting more time in deciding whether it should be done this way or the other, and therefore we should proceed with the discussion. I do not find any honourable member rising to support the amendment. Does the Honourable Minister wish to speak on the amendment?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Sir, I want to oppose it.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: If the Honourable Minister does not wish to make a speech he need not. There is an amendment before the House. I do not see any honourable member wishing to speak on it. I do not want to waste the time of the House. I will give an opportunity to the Honourable Minister to speak. If he does not like to speak on it, I will put the amendment and let it be thrown out of accepted.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, I oppose it. At this stage I need not make a speech.

Question put and lost.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District) : Mr. President, the amendment I move reads as follows :—

For clause 10, substitute the following :—

“ The Vice-Chancellor shall be elected by the Fellows from among themselves by a two-thirds majority of those present at a meeting of the Senate called for the purpose. His election shall be subject to approval by the Chancellor. He shall hold office for three years, and shall be eligible for re-election.”

I just want to state at the outset that my amendment seeks to give effect exactly to the recommendation that has been made by the University Reform Committee. The proposal that I am making is exactly the same as the one made by the University Reform Committee. That is a point which I wish to stress, and to which I wish to invite the earnest attention of this honourable House. At page 162 of the Report, the proposal of the Reform Committee on this question is thus expressed, and I claim the attention of this honourable House as I read it :

“ Vice-Chancellor, to be a part-time, honorary officer, elected by ballot by a two-thirds majority of those present at a duly constituted meeting of the Senate, subject to the confirmation of the Chancellor, from among members of the Senate : to hold office for three years but be eligible for re-election :”

That is the recommendation of the Committee, and my amendment is, as I have said, exactly the same. Now the honourable House on both sides must have recognised that there is a consensus of opinion in favour of the principle of election being adopted in the matter of the appointment of the Vice Chancellor. I venture to say without fear of contradiction, that opinion both within this chamber as well as outside this chamber is overwhelmingly in favour of the view that now a stage has been reached in the development of the University when the Vice-Chancellor should be elected. That is the opinion. Some honourable member questions that position. But I do not think the mere fact that he differs from me negatives the position which I have taken up and which I emphasize, that opinion is overwhelmingly in favour of the Vice-Chancellor being elected.

Then, the next question is what should be the manner in which he should be elected ; in other words, in what precise manner this principle of election should be carried out ? On that point I notice that there are various methods suggested by various members. I submit that my amendment is in accordance with the recommendation of the University Reforms Committee. May I remind the House of the personnel of that committee and also of the fact that that committee has gone into the various questions referred to it with very great care ? The committee consisted of Sir Chimanal Setalvad, the present Vice-Chancellor, who acted as chairman of the committee, Dr. Paranjpye, the Reverend R. Blatter, Mr. M. R. Jayakar, who was the leader of the Opposition for some time in this House. Mr. H. P. Mody, Mr. Natarajan, Captain E. V. Sassoon. Professor K. T. Shah. Mirza Ali Mahomed Khan, Sir Purshottamdas Thakurdas, Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy, Mr. A. B. Lathe, and last but not least, the honourable member Mr. J. B. Petit. I see that my honourable colleague Mr. Petit has not written 'a minute of dissent on this question and I hope that he will give his full support to the amendment that I am proposing. He is in favour of this recommendation and I do hope that he will support my amendment.

Well, Sir, this was the personnel of the committee. It was presided over by no less a distinguished person than Sir Chimanlal Setalvad. I dare say that there must have been a lot of discussion on this question. Various aspects of this question must have been examined and then it must have been the unanimous and considered recommendation of the University Reforms Committee. I just want to ask whether it is not reasonable on our part to accept this considered recommendation or whether we should go in for some other method. The Committee have arrived at a conclusion after examining all the evidence and has drawn up its report which is considered to be a very carefully drawn up report, and unless and until there are substantial reasons for our differing from the recommendations of this Committee, it should be our duty to accept the recommendations which the Committee have made. I therefore suggest that this Council would do well in accepting the amendment that I propose. And what is this amendment? It says that the vice-chancellor shall be elected by the Fellows from among themselves by a two-thirds majority of those present at a meeting of the senate. In order that this vote may not be a catch vote it has been provided that a specific meeting for this particular purpose should be called, so that all the Fellows should have due notice of the fact that at that particular meeting this question of the election of the vice-chancellor would be considered. It also provides that the majority shall be two-thirds of those present. It further provides that his election shall be subject to the approval of the Chancellor. Perhaps some honourable members may be surprised to see that I am coming forward with a suggestion of this kind. In a body like this, things have got to be done on the principle of compromise and it seems to me that this recommendation of the Committee must have been arrived at on this principle. Whatever personal views or predilections I may have in the matter, I am prepared to be guided in this respect by the view of the Committee and therefore I propose that the election of the vice-chancellor shall be subject to the approval of the chancellor. I further say that the vice-chancellor shall hold office for three years and not for two years. Then it has been stated that he shall be eligible for re-election. I do not think I need say much in support of this amendment; I take it that a majority in the House are in favour of the principle of election. But if any honourable member would question the principle of election itself, I shall speak on the point when I reply to the debate. With these remarks I commend the amendment to the acceptance of the House.

Question proposed.

Mr. F. G. H. ANDERSON : Mr. President, I desire to say a few brief words in opposition to this motion, not because I have the misfortune of sitting on the Government benches but because the amendment creates in my mind a condition of confusion, a whirl of uncertainty, which it is absolutely necessary should be cleared up before anybody can be expected to vote for it. There is a very great deal to be said before it can be accepted by any reasonable man. There are some things which are left entirely unexplained. The first thing that I should like to know is this. We have reached "a stage," to use the phraseology of the honourable mover of this amendment, "in the development of the university" when to my mind it is highly likely to become the hot bed of party politics and to reverberate with every fresh explosion of communal discord resulting in the paralysis of a great many of their activities. If that happens—and I think there is every probability of its happening,—what is going to happen when the senate fails to have a two-thirds majority in favour of any one of the candidates? This is not an entirely impossible situation. We have the historic case of a certain Greek republic, where through utter inability to agree upon a President they fell back on the election of a deaf and dumb cripple, because no one had any strong objection to him. But apart from pre-historic events we have already on the other side of the Atlantic a notorious parallel in the great republic, which experienced the greatest difficulties in getting a President by a majority, and is likely to fall back continuously on less and less capable men. This amendment makes no suggestion as to what is to happen if a two-thirds majority cannot be secured by any candidate. Unless that is explained perfectly clearly it is impossible to accept the amendment. Then the amendment says that the election of the vice-chancellor shall be subject to the approval of the chancellor. Well, that, Sir, leads me again to an absolutely impossible condition. What on earth is going to happen if the chancellor does not approve the person elected even if he has been elected by a two-thirds majority of members present at a meeting of the senate? It is an absurd amendment and I think the House cannot accept it.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA (Bombay City, North): I rise to support the amendment. As regards the principle of election most of the members on this side of the House are against it. My honourable friend Mr. Chikodi has given notice of another amendment to the effect that the vice-chancellor shall be appointed by the chancellor from among a panel of five Fellows and my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Kale, has also given notice of a similar amendment. Sir, I am surprised that instead of giving the right of election to the senate the honourable member is prepared to accept the proviso that the vice-chancellor shall be appointed by the chancellor. I do not know why he is so much charmed with giving the power to the chancellor. Here you have got a legislative body which wants to democratise the Senate. It is in your hands and the members of the legislative body to give as wide powers as they choose to the Senate of the University and instead of doing that, they have tried to shove in amendments after amendments which will curtail the powers of the University. (Mr. P. R. Chikodi : No). It comes to that, Sir. My honourable friend Mr. Chikodi says, No. I am supporting the amendment of my honourable friend Mr. Pradhan. My first amendment was the largest and broadest amendment, namely, that the Senate is there to look after the affairs of the University, and it is but fit and proper that that is the body to which we should give the right to elect their own Vice-Chancellor. But if you are not going to accept that proposition, then your next best proposition is the proposition which has been moved by my honourable friend Mr. Pradhan, namely, that the Vice-Chancellor shall be elected, subject to the approval of the Chancellor. The elective principle is there; the only thing which is objectionable is the clause "subject to the approval of the Chancellor," and as he has pointed out, to meet the wishes of certain friends he has accepted that part of the proposition. If this House does not want that this election should be subject to the approval of the Chancellor, then any member of this House can move an amendment to the effect that that portion of the amendment should go, if that is the wish of most of the members of the House.

[Mr. F. J. Ginwalla]

Then, Sir, another amendment is of my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan and my honourable friend Mr. Jadhav, that the Vice-Chancellor shall be elected by the fellows from among themselves. I ask honourable members whether you are going to lose ground bit by bit and say "This is not good," "This is not good," and ultimately lose everything. Therefore, I warn honourable members that everybody wants that his amendment should be carried, but it is much better to concentrate on one particular amendment and fight on that amendment, instead of dividing on different amendments. I appeal to all the members of the House that this is the best part of the amendment; therefore, concentrate on it and support it. Otherwise the result by division will be that you will lose everything and it will not be said that you have the practical sense as members of this honourable House.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District): Mr. President, I want to bring to the notice of the House that there is no absurdity in the amendment brought forward by my honourable friend Mr. Pradhan. The honourable member Mr. Anderson said it is absurd to say that a two-thirds majority should be laid down, and the Chancellor should appoint the Vice-Chancellor, and if there is no two-thirds majority, what should be done, etc. I would point out an instance, that from the year 1907 up to nearly 1919-20 there was a Government Resolution by which the presidents of all municipalities were elected by a majority of two-thirds and the election was subsequently approved by the Governor or the Commissioner as the case may be. So, it can be said that we had legislation to this effect and it was being carried out. Of course, there were other things; for instance, if none was elected by a two-thirds majority, then Government always selected a person who got the greatest number of votes though not two-thirds. So, if an amendment in this form is needed, that would be that if two-thirds votes are not secured by any candidate, then, of course, the final power rests with His Excellency. But, then, His Excellency will naturally support the person who gets a majority of votes. If that is not clear, I think an amendment to that effect may be added and the amendment moved by the honourable member Mr. Pradhan may be accepted.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : I rise to a point of information from the honourable member. He said two-thirds majority was required in municipalities. Where ?

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : Yes ; in all municipalities.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Mr. President, I feel some difficulty because the amendment which stands in my name was anticipated to a certain extent by my honourable friend who is sitting on my right. The amendment which I have proposed is intended to meet the wishes of both sides, as it were, and from that point of view I would rather appeal to him and the mover of the present amendment to wait and give a trial to the amendment that stands in my name. My reasons are these. The principle of election no doubt is accepted. But at the same time, there are.....

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : I rise to a point of order. My point of order is that the honourable member has in his name one amendment below (on the Agenda) and he can speak whatever he wants at the time of moving it. It is now waste of time of the House, otherwise.

The Deputy PRESIDENT : I do not think there is any point of order at all. The honourable member is perfectly at liberty to follow any method he likes.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : So, I was saying that the proposal which is now before the House, moved by the honourable member Mr. Pradhan, is one extreme, and besides the difficulties pointed out are also seen in the course which he has suggested. In order, therefore, to remove his difficulties, we have thought of a via media by which we might give the Senate power for electing five people, I mean persons fit from all points of view, so as to give the Chancellor a limited choice instead of leaving the choice of 150 or 160—whatever the number of the Senate may be. In order to give the Chancellor a limited choice, I think it is desirable to elect a panel of five, so that the choice of the Chancellor may be limited to those five. This proposal, therefore, meets the wishes of those who wish that the power of appointing the Vice-Chancellor should rest with the Chancellor ; at the same time, the principle of election is gained thereby. The honourable member Mr. Anderson is always fond of putting ancient history before us. But we are progressing and we have progressed. In fact, it is no use now going back on what we have done, and it is for that purpose that I appeal to him to consider whether it is not right for him to move with the spirit of the times and meet us half-way and give up the autocratic mode of thought, which might have been good at one time but which I submit has now outlived, and it is high time he was prepared to move side by side, especially when he is sitting on the Government benches. In this matter I think he is not tied down to vote one way or another. He should make up his mind to vote according to his own conscience, and I hope he will perceive that although this amendment—I agree with him—should not be supported, still he will not make up his mind finally but reserve his final judgment later on. With these words, I do not think that I should support the amendment that is now before the House.

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR (East Khandesh District): Sir, I rise to support the amendment before the House. As a matter of fact we have already got an official Chancellor provided for and there is absolutely no reason why there should be any objection to the election of the Vice-Chancellor. The proposal does not seek to give an uncontrolled power of election to the Senate but it makes the election subject to the approval of the Chancellor. If any Vice-Chancellor is elected who for any reason whatsoever is not, in the Chancellor's opinion, fit to hold that office, then the Chancellor has power to withhold his sanction. There are various amendments proposed in regard to this subject and they will no doubt come up in their turn. But they all go to indicate that the principle of election should be applied to the office of Vice-Chancellor, and from this point of view I think there is nothing objectionable in the amendment before the House.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR (Karachi City): Sir, I am very sorry that the select committee was simply packed with people who somehow have given us recommendations quite contrary to the views expressed by this House when the consideration of the University Bill came up for the first reading.....

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE: Whose fault is it?

Mr. N. A. BECHAR: My honourable friend here asks "Whose fault is it?" It is quite difficult for us to apportion the fault either to one or the other party but at least the Government party which is the strongest in this House must be blamed. Last time when the question of election of the Chancellor and the Vice-Chancellor was being discussed on this University bill, a very strong plea was made for making the election of the Chancellor himself. Somehow we did not get sufficient strength on the non-official side to carry our point but at least we expected that the Honourable the Education Minister would make a certain advance or some kind of gesture and would come and meet us half-way in the matter of electing the Vice-Chancellor. In these days when you have the presidents of district local boards and the presidents of municipalities on the elective basis, I fail to see the fear which is being entertained on the Government side as to what will happen to the University if the Vice-Chancellor is elected. Sir, if the Honourable the Education Minister considers a body of most intelligent men in this presidency unfit for electing a Vice-Chancellor, then I think the time is come when we ought really to revise our whole opinion about this matter. Last time I pointed out that certain younger universities in provinces which are certainly considered backward, not major presidencies, but even in provinces like the United Provinces, the Delhi Province and other provinces, they have their vice-chancellors duly elected. Since the provision has been also made in the amendment that two-thirds majority will make the election of the vice-chancellor operative, I think a sufficient safeguard has been provided by that amendment and moreover, if you have a system of a single transferable vote and the process of elimination, then I am sure the best man who may have stood for election will get into the office. There should be no fear therefore on that score and more particularly since certain safeguards of approval and so on have been reserved in the hands of the Honourable the Education Minister, I am sorry to see the deadweight of reaction which has overtaken Government benches in making the slightest advance. If it is merely argued that we have to accept whatever the Government says, then I think it is no use our coming here, taking the trouble of leaving our own work and simply coming here and saying ditto, ditto to whatever the Minister may have in his mind. This is not a mere question of votes. I think on matters of principle we should be strict. You are not going to bring the university bill for amendment after an experience of two or three years, but this constitution is likely to govern the destinies of the university for a pretty long time, and unless the Honourable Minister wants this side of the House to always clamour at every session or at least after six months' time limit and bring up a bill every now and then to amend that clause, I think he should show a certain amount of gesture. We will be quite prepared, if this amendment does not meet with his wishes, to further provide certain safeguards, but I think that certain advance ought to be made. From the university downwards, the whole of our educational activities are controlled by the university, and I fail to see that when this whole department of education is a transferred subject, why the Minister or the Government should refuse to transfer in spirit and in effect any of the control which they have held for all these ages. This transference of subjects in name ought not to deceive anybody. If you want to transfer merely to beguile us and merely to camouflage the people into believing that any real power has been given to the people, I think it is high time that we ought to put up a strong fight in this matter. We expect the Honourable the Education Minister to take courage in both his hands and to show that in his tenure of office, although he is not able on account of the financial stringency, to make advances in any other directions, that at least in the matter of making the university representative of the people, he is, where it is possible, willing to make an advance in the right direction. But, Sir, what do we find? We find not the slightest advance in any direction and even in this matter after so many years of experience, after so many years of the existence of the Bombay University, we find that the Bombay Presidency has not been able to produce a single person that can command our confidence in the work of carrying on the administration with the help of the votes of his own people and therefore I say that the whole university administration and the administration of the Government of Bombay is writ large as the greatest failure in the history of the administration of transferred departments.

I do not wish to go further into the constitutional matters, but when the Reforms Committee or the Montagu-Chelmsford Committee began to examine witnesses and to make recommendations, a very very strong plea was made by the Indian witnesses that the subject of education should be fully and thoroughly transferred. The Montford Report acknowledged the failure of Government to carry on the work of education to the entire satisfaction of India, but they said whatever may have been the position in the past, they are going to make amends for the future and this is the amends that the Honourable the Minister of Education, who is an elected member and who is supposed to have the confidence of the people and who is also supposed to express the sentiments of the elected representatives, is making by opposing a very small and to my mind a very minor amendment proposed by my honourable friend from Nasik. I will be very sorry if he puts up a strong fight but I hope that at least this side of the House will be unanimous in strongly expressing by our votes the decision of the House that we do not want and we will no more have the Vice-Chancellor nominated by the Governor and to carry on the Government by transferred department only in name but in reality by one autocrat who rules and sways the destinies of this Presidency.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN (Bombay City, South): Sir, I wish to move an amendment to this amendment as follows:—

Add, after the word 'elected' in line 1, the words 'by ballot' and omit the words 'two-thirds.'

Sir, my amendment will show to this House that I am in sympathy with the amendment moved by my honourable friend Mr. R. G. Pradhan; but, Sir, I have my own difficulties about the two-thirds majority. Suppose, Sir, the Senate cannot hit upon a two-thirds majority—I think this point was touched upon by the honourable member Mr. Anderson—it is just possible that even after the final elimination the last candidate might have just a bare majority of one or two. In that case, the Senate will have over and over and over again to go in for fresh elections. But it is just possible that the fresh elections might show the same results. Therefore, to avoid that difficulty, I think we can trust a body like the Senate to pitch upon a man who will be elected by a majority.

The second point, Sir, is the system that I want to introduce, and it is a very salutary system, namely, election by ballot. The amendment of my honourable friend Mr. Pradhan did not mention that. In the Bombay Corporation and in many other bodies this system of election by ballot has proved very salutary, and the results have always shown that the best man is always elected. Sir, in open voting, as we all know, very strenuous canvassing goes on, and the best man does not always succeed. I think, in order to safeguard that contingency, the House will consider whether my amendment of having this election by ballot should not be adopted. The time has certainly come when a body like the University will have to elect its own Vice-Chancellor, and we can depend upon a body like the Senate to elect the proper man; and of course, as we always respect higher authority, it will have to be sanctioned by the Vice-Chancellor. Therefore, I place my amendment before the House for its acceptance.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District): Sir, I am prepared to accept the amendment of the honourable member Mr. Marzban.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: Am I right in thinking that if this amendment, which is accepted by the honourable member Mr. R. G. Pradhan, is lost, the original amendment also goes out?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Certainly.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir, I wish to move an amendment to the amended amendment, dropping the words "His election shall be subject to the approval by the Chancellor."

Mr. J. B. PETIT: Sir, I rise to a point of order. This amendment is in effect the same as the one we have disposed of. If it is allowed to be put forward for the consideration of this House, I submit that it will lead up in substance to the previous amendment which has already been rejected. As the position now stands the "two-thirds majority" goes out and the approval of the Chancellor also goes. Then what remains? Thus in effect this amendment, if allowed becomes the amendment which we have already discussed and disposed of with the provision of three years instead of two: and I submit, Sir, that it should not be allowed.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: That is so. I quite agree. It is the same as the amendment which has been rejected, except that the period is different. I cannot allow it.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Sir, the object of moving the amendment was that we have to arrive at the intention of the House by grades. The first grade is that of pure, simple and unadulterated election, and then there was another grade, that is to say, election by two-thirds majority. Now, in view of the fact that the honourable mover of the amendment has accepted the amendment requiring election by a majority that difficulty disappears. But the honourable mover still requires the approval of the Chancellor to the election of the Vice-Chancellor. I do not understand why the honourable member who was of opinion that the Chancellor himself should be elected now comes in and requires the approval of the Chancellor for the purpose of the final sanction to the election of the Vice-Chancellor. Sir, we wanted to proceed by these degrees, that is to say, first of all pure, simple and unadulterated election should be put before the House, so that the House may be in a position to judge what it is able to carry. Just now, if we take up this amendment, the difficulty will be that if this amendment which requires the approval of the Chancellor to the election of the Vice-Chancellor is carried, then there will be no chance for us to move an amendment for the election of the Vice-Chancellor without the approval of the Chancellor.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : I rise to a point of order. I understand the honourable member's amendment has been disallowed.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : I am opposing the amendment before the House. Therefore, it would have been much better if my amendment which requires the election of the Vice-Chancellor without the approval of the Chancellor had been taken up first, because that is the extremest amendment. Those who would like that the amendment in its extremest form should be passed would not be able to vote for this amendment, and the result would be that this amendment will be thrown out, and there will be less chance for the other amendment when it comes up before the House.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Which is the other amendment ?

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : The last amendment :

" In section 10 of the amended bill, drop the words 'The Vice-Chancellor who 'and substitute the words 'The Vice-Chancellor shall be elected by the Fellow from among themselves and.' "

May I know whether I shall be allowed to move this amendment when it comes up ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : How does it arise ? There is an amendment and an amendment to an amendment before the House. That must be disposed of first.

Dr. M. K. DIXIT : Sir, at this stage if you give your ruling we shall decide our vote on the amendment before the House.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I think it is the same as Mr. Ginwalla's amendment which was rejected by the House. Therefore when this amendment is reached I shall have to say that 'it is out of order.'

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : The honourable member Mr. Ginwalla's amendment did not suggest that the election of the Vice-Chancellor should be confined to the fellows, but here there is a limitation that it should be from among the fellows of the senate themselves.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : We shall deal with that amendment when it is reached. Has the honourable member finished ? There are only five minutes.

Mr. A. D. SHETH : That is one more trouble and it is the greatest trouble.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : I reserve my remarks to that amendment when it is reached. If the present amendment is put to the House I will vote for it.

Mr. HOOSEINBHOY ABDULLABHOY LALLJEE (Bombay City) : Sir, I rise to support the amendment of my honourable friend Mr. Pradhan as amended by the honourable member Mr. Marzban. I do not wish to go over the arguments which have been advanced in favour of an elected Vice-Chancellor, but, I wish to point out one important thing which has struck me. It is contemplated to give this power under this Act to the Chancellor. I ask in all earnestness who is going to suggest to His

[Mr. Hooseinbhoy Abdullabhoy Lalljee]

Excellency the name for the Vice-Chancellorship? We know very well that this is a transferred subject. We know very well that, this being a transferred subject, His Excellency is bound to carry out the recommendation of the Minister. The nomination of the Vice-Chancellor by the Chancellor will be advised by the Honourable Minister of Education. Putting it more strongly if His Excellency is not bound to carry out the advice of the Honourable Minister then I think the administration of the transferred subject will be a farce. Furthermore, the Honourable Minister will not care to commend the proposal made by the Senate to His Excellency for fear that it will not be carried out by him. This nomination by the Chancellor means that the Minister shall be the person who will suggest the name for the Vice-Chancellorship. I ask whether it is right that the university should not be entrusted but the Minister in charge of the transferred department should be entrusted with the appointment of the Vice-Chancellor. I do believe that this House will be well advised in leaving this matter to the senate to appoint the Vice-Chancellor. Therefore I support the amendment.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : As there are several honourable members who wish to speak I adjourn the House till 2 p.m. on Monday, the 3rd October 1927.

 The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order.

(Further consideration of Bill No. XXI of 1927—Bombay University Bill—resumed.)

Question again proposed :

For clause 10, substitute the following :

“ The Vice-Chancellor shall be elected by ballot by the fellows from among themselves by a majority of those present at a meeting of the Senate called for the purpose. His election shall be subject to approval by the Chancellor. He shall hold office for three years, and shall be eligible for re-election.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by my honourable friend to my left (Mr. R. G. Pradhan). I was in the beginning in favour of a nominated vice-chancellor, but I now think it would be much better if we had an elected vice-chancellor. I do not think I need waste the time of this House by detailing the reasons which led to the change in my opinion ; but as the university is now going to be popularised and democratised, it is much better that the vice-chancellor should be elected rather than be nominated.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District) : I regret, Sir, that the Honourable the Minister of Education has not been pleased to show me the courtesy of stating his attitude on this amendment. I submit that it is rather unfair. He ought to have risen and expressed what he thinks about this amendment before this. I feel somewhat embarrassed in replying to the debate owing to the fact that the Honourable Minister has not been so good as to show me this courtesy which he ought to have shown to me.

I am gratified that in the course of this debate very few voices have been raised against the principle of an elective vice-chancellor. My honourable friend the Settlement Commissioner objected to the amendment as originally proposed on two grounds. His first ground was that the two-thirds majority that I suggested in the original amendment would be difficult to obtain. Now that that form of the amendment goes away, I do not propose to answer that objection, though I do not think that the difficulty on that point will be so great or so insuperable as the honourable member Mr. Anderson seems to imagine. Then, his second objection to the amendment was, what would happen if the election of the vice-chancellor is not confirmed by the Chancellor ? That was the second objection which he took to my amendment. The honourable member Mr. Anderson seems to forget that we have an exactly similar provision in this legislature in connection with the election of the Deputy President and the President. The election of the Deputy President and also the President is subject to approval by His Excellency the Governor. There are no difficulties in the way of that, and I for one absolutely fail to see why any difficulty should crop up if the election of the vice-chancellor is not approved of by the Chancellor. I take it that the Chancellor is a man of common sense ; I take it that he is a fairly reasonable man, and he will not veto the election of the vice-chancellor by the Senate except for reasons which he considers are very strong. Therefore it is obvious,—it ought to be obvious to the honourable member—that the contingency which the honourable member imagines cannot but be very remote. Secondly that remote contingency can be provided for by the Senate by means of rules or regulations in such a matter. Therefore, that particular objection has no substance whatever.

And the only question, therefore, which this honourable House has to consider is whether, in view of the democratisation of the university which the bill attempts, the provision of an elective vice-chancellor will or will not be consistent with the principle and the policy underlying this new bill. It has given me immense pleasure indeed to have received the support of my honourable friend to my right (Mr. B. V. Jadhav).

An Honourable MEMBER : What did you expect ?

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : I may have expected it or I may not have expected it. But I did expect support from my honourable friend Mr. Pahalajani, but I do not know what has happened. He has become nervous since the Council adjourned on Saturday and I only heard his whisper just now. The very fact that no honourable members have come forward to speak, but keep mum makes me suspicious that something has happened in the interval which perhaps will produce results which may be as unexpected as astounding. However I should certainly hope that the popular party is firm and will not be prepared to barter their principles for a mess of pottage. In spite of the manoeuvring, or wire-pulling or influencing or canvassing that seems to have taken place, I have every hope that the elected members of this honourable House will realise their responsibilities to their constituencies and to the general public. I challenge honourable members to lay their hands on their hearts and say whether the principle of an elective vice-chancellor is not one that appeals to the majority of the people. I do not understand why any man should fight shy of an elective vice-chancellor, though the attitude of the Honourable Minister of Education makes.....

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : I rise to a point of order. The honourable member is replying to the debate on the amendment which he moved. No member has spoken on the principle of nomination and I want to know how the honourable member can speak about it in reply.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I am sure the honourable the mover of the amendment is experienced enough to know what he ought to say in reply.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : I have no doubt whatever that no reasonable or sensible member of this House will fight shy of the principle of an elective vice-chancellor. Somebody whispers " what is the mandate of my party ? " The mandate of my party clearly and distinctly is this, that the vice-chancellor should be elected and I have every hope that the mandate of the party to which my honourable friend belongs is not different.

Now coming away from these interruptions I do not think that any reasonable and sensible member of this House would fight shy of the principle of election and I cannot conceive of the honourable gentleman who occupies the office of the Minister for Education and who has been returned on the ticket of the Independent Congress Party which has very little difference from the party to which I belong, fighting shy of this principle. Does it lie in the mouth of any one of us who have come here through the door of election and not through the back-door of nomination, to say that the principle of election as applied to the vice-chancellor will be detrimental and injurious to the growth of the university, will be injurious to the interests of higher education? Sir, the senate more or less corresponds in the sphere of higher education to this Legislative Council. Suppose, Sir,.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. I certainly think that the right of reply affords a member an opportunity to reply to objections that may have been raised. It does not mean making a second speech.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : I think, Sir, as a matter of fact very few objections have been raised. I have disposed of the two objections which were raised by the honourable member Mr. Anderson. But, Sir, may I appeal to the Chair that I feel embarrassed by the silence maintained by many honourable members of this House? I appeal to the Chair that it is rather embarrassing to me that I should not have heard the views of the Honourable Minister. If his silence is to be construed as meaning that he also supports the principle of an elective vice-chancellor so much the better.

To summarise, there are only two points whether we are going to have a vice-chancellor directly elected by the Fellows or whether we are going to have a vice-chancellor from among a panel. These are two issues and I take it that the principle of an absolute and unadulterated nomination will not find favour. I hope I am not labouring under a delusion. When these are the two distinct issues I put it to the House why should there be a panel at all? Why not have the vice-chancellor elected from the Fellows? So the issue is simple. I have every hope that this part of the House will stand for the principle of election and reject the principle of appointment.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, I oppose the amendment of my honourable friend Mr. Pradhan. At present as honourable members are aware the senate of the university is nominated to the extent of four-fifths, that is about 80 members are nominated. This bill seeks to democratise the constitution of the Senate to a very large extent. We do not know how the machine which is being put into operation would work and until we have seen how it works it will be rather risky to have an elected vice-chancellor. If the vice-chancellor is to seek election every two years he would always be in fright to the end of his term and the chances of his re-election would mar his independence and the working of the machine that we are setting up may not be smooth.

[Dewan Bahadur Harilal D. Desai]

I therefore submit, Sir, to the honourable House that however much in theory we may be in favour of an elected vice-chancellor, looking to the experiment on which we are engaged, they would consider it safe for the present to allow the Vice-Chancellor to be appointed by the Chancellor. In the other Indian Universities, Punjab and Calcutta, the Vice-Chancellor is appointed by the Chancellor. It is only in Delhi.....

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : What about Madras ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : In Madras, as my honourable friend wants to know, in Rangoon, in Lucknow and in Dacca, the vice-chancellor is a whole-time officer ; therefore, he is a salaried man and his case is quite different. There is the case of Delhi, where there is a part-time vice-chancellor appointed by the Chancellor from the names recommended by the Senate. But we have been hearing how the affairs of the Delhi University are going on. Under those circumstances, my request to the honourable House is that they should go slow and, therefore, rule out the amendment of my honourable friend and let the clause stand as it is.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN : I understand the honourable member Mr. Pradhan accepted my amendment to add the words " by ballot " in line one and to delete the word " two-thirds " from his amendment.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Yes ; the amendment which I now put to the vote will, therefore, be :

" The Vice-Chancellor shall be elected by ballot by the Fellows from among themselves by a majority of those present at a meeting of the Senate called for the purpose. His election shall be subject to approval by the Chancellor. He shall hold office for three years, and shall be eligible for re-election."

Clause 10 ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 11 (Powers of the Vice-Chancellor) ordered to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 12 (The Rector).

(1) The Senate may create the office of the Rector by a statute to be framed by a majority of at least three-fourths of the whole number of Fellows.

(2) The Rector shall be a whole-time salaried officer of the University. He shall subject to the approval of the Government, be appointed by the Senate and shall have rank and precedence next after the Chancellor and the Vice-Chancellor.

(3) The Senate may, subject to the provision of this Act, frame Statutes prescribing the manner of appointment of the Rector, the salary and conditions of his office and his powers and duties.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District): Sir, I move the following amendment :—

“Delete Clause 12.”

Clause 12 makes provision for the appointment of a rector. It is a new appointment on the university establishment and it will be very useful when the post-graduate teaching is fully developed. Post-graduate teaching ought to be developed as early as possible. But the present state of the finances of the university, I think, gives no hope that there will be a very great development in post-graduate teaching in the near future. Nor are the finances of the presidency so very prosperous as to give us any hope that Government will be in a position to make large grants towards the development of post-graduate education. Therefore I say that there is no prospect of sufficient work being provided for this new appointment for some years to come. The appointment is to be a highly paid one, about three thousand rupees a month, I believe and there are bound to be other incidental expenses. There will not be sufficient work for the rector and it is not at all necessary to make the appointment for some years to come and therefore there is no necessity of keeping this provision in the Act. It might be urged, Sir, that the provision in the Act should now be made and when the necessity arises after some years for making the appointment this provision would be taken advantage of. With this very object, Sir, the provision was retained in the select committee that the election of the rector should be dependent upon a three-fourths vote of the Senate. I think that it is not at all necessary to make this provision now and to make the counter-provision for having three-fourths majority in order to stop its premature use. It is very difficult to secure a three-fourths majority, because it is not I think general that so many members attend a meeting of the Senate, and if this provision of three-fourths majority is taken away, there is the danger that the appointment of the rector may be sanctioned by means of a catch vote. In order to avoid this fear, it will be much better for the provision to be omitted altogether. I think that it will not be very difficult to pass an amending bill when a necessity arises. Government can introduce a bill of a few sections making provision for the appointment of the rector and the bill could be passed through all the three readings at one session. Much time will not be lost. Whenever the necessity of a rector arises a bill can be drafted and got through all the three readings in this House in a few days. The remedy of a special amending bill is much better and I think will be more convenient than the present remedy adopted of getting this clause inserted in the bill and then also providing that the appointment should not be made without a three-fourths majority. I therefore move that the clause 12 should be deleted.

[Mr. B. V. Jadhav]

Question proposed.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir, I support the amendment moved by the honourable member Mr. Jadhav. The only financial clause which has been granted sanction is the clause proposed by the honourable member Mr. Munshi. The Government have granted sanction only to a financial amendment which provides the grant which would be paid in the budget for 1927-28. Government are not going to give anything more than what they are paying at present. Therefore the saddling of the University with an expenditure over the appointment of a rector when he is not necessary should not be permitted by this House. The select committee also has introduced a change in this section which practically renders the creation of the post of a rector almost impossible, and when the post of the rector has to be created an amending bill will have to be brought, because a majority of at least three-fourths of the whole number of Fellows for the purpose of creating the post of rector will be practically impossible. Therefore this provision is likely to be one merely remaining on the statute book, which will be practically inoperative on account of the addition of the words "by a statute to be framed by a majority of at least three-fourths of the whole number of Fellows." It is therefore necessary that this clause should be deleted altogether, and the university need not be saddled with a new post when its finances are not going to be helped from Government Treasury. Sir, when the necessity for the appointment of the rector arises, there might be a small amending bill, and the post of a rector can be created at that time. It is no use legislating for the future, for an occasion which may arise after 7 or 10 or 12 years. Therefore, this clause should be deleted altogether and I support the amendment of the honourable member Mr. Jadhav.

Mr. R. S. ASVALE (Bombay City, North) : Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by the honourable member Mr. Jadhav, for the simple reason that for the last two days we have heard honourable members saying in this House that the University has not got plenty of money to cope with the present needs of the University, and it will not get any assistance from Government for years to come ; and yet Government are ready to create an additional post of rector and this is going to be accepted by some of my Colleagues. In fact, such a post is not existing in the University at present, nor would it be required, as the select committee has stated in their report, for some years more. I do not see any reason why the University should be saddled with this additional appointment of a highly paid officer without their demanding for it from the Government, when there is already a paid person doing the work, namely, the Registrar. With these few remarks, I would support the amendment.

Dr. B. R. AMBEDKAR : Sir, I rise to support the amendment of my honourable friend Mr. Jadhav. It has been said by the honourable members who have preceded me that in the present financial circumstances of the University this office will be an additional burden upon the meagre resources of the University. I think that argument is very cogent in itself, and in the few remarks that I wish to make, I should like to say that the office, administratively speaking, would be a superfluous one. Sir, I find that in 1914 the University of Bombay invited Sir Alfred Hopkinson, the Vice-Chancellor of the Manchester University, to advise the University upon a scheme of research proposed by the University, and I find, Sir, that officer making a report to the effect that this officer is not necessary. He is reported by the Committee on University Reform, on page 9, to this effect :

" He was not in favour of a salaried administrative head of the University and proposed to solve the difficulty of getting the increasing work done by employing a full-time Registrar and a paid full-time Secretary to the Joint Matriculation Board and by making more use of the University and College Professors for University administrative work. "

If that was the opinion of such an expert as Sir Alfred Hopkinson in 1914, I do not see what new circumstances in the intervening period have arisen to compel us to force this officer upon the University. Further, I find that the office of the rector has no defined duties which he can perform. I find it stated on page 162 of the report of the University Reform Committee that the Vice-Chancellor is to exercise general supervision over the University, and to have the power to see that the Act, Statutes and Ordinances are observed. Now, Sir, referring to the position of the rector, the University Reform Committee also states on the same page that he is to hold office for five years and to be eligible for re-appointment, to be the principal executive and academic officer of the University and it is to be his duty to see that the Act, statutes and ordinances are faithfully observed. and he should have all the powers necessary for this purpose. I do not see what is the difference between the duties attached to the office of the Vice-Chancellor and the duties that are going to be attached to the position of the rector. If the position as stated in the report of the University Reform Committee is what I have just placed before the House, then I do not understand how this office differs from that of the Vice-Chancellor on the one hand and from the office of the Registrar of the University on the other because I find on page 163 of the report of the same Committee stated that in the absence of the rector the Registrar will carry on his duties. Obviously, therefore, I do not see that the office of the rector is going to be in any sense distinct from that of the Vice-Chancellor and the Registrar, and therefore calling for the appointment of a distinct officer. It is superfluous and in the present circumstances a burden on the University. On these grounds, I support the amendment of my honourable friend Mr. Jadhav.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I should like to remind the House at this stage that amendments of this kind, which are for the omission of whole clauses, are negative amendments, and they are therefore no amendments.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : Do I understand it, Sir, that the mover of such an amendment has no right of reply ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That is so.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Sir, the question before the House is whether clause 12 should be allowed to stand or it should go. In the first place, it seems to me that it is a very innocent clause, and that there has been some misapprehension about its meaning, because this Act does not create the office of rector at all. It says, the Senate may create the office of the rector, that is to say, it is merely an enabling clause ; it gives power to the Senate, if ever hereafter the occasion arises, to create an office of this kind. Further, the select committee has inserted a safeguard, making the creation of this office dependent upon the votes of a majority of at least three-fourths of the whole number of Fellows. So, it is not at all easy to see what danger there is in giving this power to the Senate, by which this office is created, if and when the funds of the University will permit it. We must trust that the senate is a body composed of men belonging to many professions and further now it has been much more democratised. Surely we can trust that the senate will exercise its power when it will be within its competence to pay an officer of this position. The clause as it stands by no means encumbers the university by making it liable to incur the pay of this officer. Under these circumstances it seems to me that the clause is innocent and an enabling provision which may be allowed.

It was stated by the honourable member Mr. Swaminarayan that the university has no funds. Surely if Government is going to pay some grant and if the university in other ways is going to get money it will have sufficient money to pay for this officer when the post is created.

[Rao Bahadur R. R. Kale]

Therefore there need not be an apprehension about the shortage of funds. For these reasons I support the clause.

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL (East Khandesh): Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by my honourable friend Mr. Jadhav. I am really surprised to hear the arguments advanced by the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale. I am sure that if he had intended to speak in favour of the amendment, he would have advanced cogent arguments, because he is a pleader. The honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale thinks that if the financial circumstances permit the senate will create the appointment. The argument is sound in itself. My point is this. First provide the money and then create the post of a rector. Suppose that you want to build a bungalow. Will you write it in your private note-book that you will build a bungalow provided you get money? That would be nonsense. First provide money and then think of a bungalow. I have no quarrel with the appointment of a post like this, if there is any necessity for it. The honourable member Mr. Jadhav has already stated to the House that if there is any real necessity for the appointment of this officer Government can bring in an amending bill, when we shall be very glad to support Government. I do not want at this stage to say whether there is a necessity for the appointment of a rector because that clause is really fine inasmuch as under it, unless three-fourths of the whole members of the Senate want a rector, no rector will be appointed. I do not want to speak at length about that innocent clause as the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale put it. In short as long as there is no necessity about any clause why should we make any provision now for that? First have the necessity and then provide for it. For this reason I support the amendment moved by the honourable member Mr. Jadhav.

Mr. H. HAMILL: I want to oppose this amendment, Sir. The arguments in favour of the amendment seem to be three. The first is that the clause as it stands makes the creation of the post of rector practically impossible. Those who do not want the rector to be appointed will have no grounds for objecting to the clause; because they themselves say that, when the clause stands as it is, the rector cannot be appointed.

The second argument advanced is that a rector at the present time is not necessary. That argument I challenge. I should say that every member of the syndicate at the present time is aware that the syndicate are unable to examine the matters that come before them thoroughly and give to them the consideration which they require. The only person who can deal with the business of the university, even as it stands at present, is a man who can give up the whole of his time to it. The university is at present considering the inauguration of a scheme of post-graduate studies. Before such a scheme is launched we should have a man like the rector to think out and advise us on what lines we should proceed. Actually we have been making out schemes in a patch work sort of way. We require some one to devote his whole-time to the development of the work of the university.

[Mr. H. Hamill]

In the third place it has been argued that funds are insufficient at present. I do not think that will be a serious objection. Considering the money which the university saves at present and the money which it receives from Government I think there are sufficient funds to pay for a rector and pay for the university professors. Looking at the question from the point of view of the university, the portion of the funds required for the pay of the rector will be excellently spent and the appointment of the rector will more than repay the university for the immediate present and for the future. But I do not propose.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I think the honourable member may move his amendment at this stage, because the amendment of the honourable member Mr. Jadhav is no amendment in the real sense. Honourable members can oppose the clause in any shape they like even now. Now, the difficulty is that if I put the motion whether the clause stands or not, the other amendments to the same clause cannot be put supposing it is passed. Therefore, I call upon the honourable member to move his amendment at this stage.

Mr. H. HAMILL : I do not want to move that amendment. I want to press on the House the desirability of retaining the clause which empowers the senate to create this office. I do not think the opposition has the slightest ground to fear that the post will be created unnecessarily.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I understand that the honourable member does not propose to move his amendment.

Mr. H. HAMILL : It is so.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : The honourable member has not explained what the functions of the registrar are and what the functions of the rector are. Where was the necessity of putting the word " may," if the post of the rector is most important ?

Mr. H. HAMILL : The clause is an enabling clause to enable the senate to create the post when it is necessary. We are convinced that there is such an amount of work in the university as will occupy the whole time of a man in guiding and directing the work of the university. The duties of the rector will be to co-ordinate the work of the various departments of the university when they are created and give decision upon many questions which at present are referred to the syndicate and which in my opinion need not be referred to the syndicate. Many details concerned with university departments could be settled by the rector if such an official were in existence, and his presence would save the time of the syndicate and would also save a considerable sum of money to the university by the diminution of the number of meetings of the syndicate.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The information asked for particularly aimed at one thing, namely, how the duties of the Rector would in the main differ from those of the Registrar.

Mr. H. HAMILL : At the present time the Registrar is officially the secretary of the Senate and the secretary of the Syndicate, and it does not come within his functions to initiate any policy whatsoever.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : There is one amendment noted down in the agenda in the name of the honourable member Mr. Ginwalla. This is the second one to his credit which is wrongly placed ; it ought to be to clause 13.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN (Bombay City, South) : Sir, now that there is no amendment, I will oppose this clause. I find that a number of honourable members have no idea of the functions of a Rector : the idea of the functions of a Rector is very nebulous in their minds. The duties of a Rector are not defined in the bill, and we do not know where he stands between the Vice-Chancellor and the Registrar. Therefore this legislative body can safely dispense with this clause. It may be that in the future the Bombay University will have post-graduate studies, and it is just possible that then we may require a Rector for the University, but then we can very easily come back to this House for an amending clause to this bill. If the present clause is passed now, I submit that it will be a sort of temptation thrown to the Senate to create the post. That is my submission, and this power of determining whether their finances permit the appointment of a Rector or not should not at the present juncture be left to the Senate. My honourable friend Rao Bahadur Kale stated that we could very well trust the Senate not to appoint the Rector until it is necessary. I submit, with all respect to my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Kale, that a little while ago he had no trust in the Senate for electing a Vice-Chancellor ; now he says that we can trust the Senate not to appoint a Rector until it is necessary. I am very glad, Sir, to find that this change has come over my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Kale. We understand that the honourable member Principal Hamill would like the Senate to create the office of Rector even without a two-thirds majority.

Mr. H. HAMILL : Sir, I do not think I suggested that. I have drawn the amendment.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN : I am very glad to know that he does not move it. At the present stage the House will do well to delete this clause. We can think of having a similar clause when the time comes.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division) : Sir, I rise to support the amendment.

An Honourable MEMBER : There is no amendment.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : I rise to support the amendment.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : There is no amendment. That is only the deletion of the clause.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Sir, I support the amendment.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : Sir, I think the Chair has ruled that there is no amendment.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : There is no formal amendment. The honourable member has called that an amendment which I have declared is not an amendment.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : I find, Sir, there is considerable difference of opinion in the Senate about this clause. I think the preponderating—I would rather say the predominating—opinion of the Senate will be for the deletion of this clause. Sir, I really do not understand what the object is of those who want to support this clause and insist upon it. My honourable friend from Satara a very distinguished lawyer, comes forward and says that it is a harmless clause, let us have it. But are we here to make provision for harmless and innocent clauses ? Is legislation necessary for this ? I thought legislation was necessary only for matters urgent.

An Honourable MEMBER : For harmful purposes.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : I hope I would be allowed to go on my own way. There is no urgency about this. The clause does not confer any immediate benefit upon the University ; it says the University “ may ” do so. The University may do many things in the future ; moreover we do not require the permission of the Government or that of the legislature at the present time. When we are in a position to make the appointment we shall come for the permission. Now we are not in a position and may not be in a position for the next 25 years ; we may safely drop the clause. I can understand my honourable friend Mr. Hamill supporting this clause. I think all principals and professors want this, because there are sure to be candidates for it in their class and they want this office to be created as soon as possible. As a member who has to watch the public purse, I am not in a position to support this clause unless Government comes forward with three lakhs of rupees to enable us to appoint a Rector. The honourable member Mr. Hamill very well knows that the Senate is not very particular about this clause. My honourable friend the Minister is not very particular about anything. Any person may bring anything to the transmuting alchemy of his somewhat smoky crucible and he is ready to accept it. I would rather like to know whether he has any opinion or policy. The best thing, it appears, is not to have any opinion about anything, because then they can easily accommodate themselves to any view. Only two or three persons have spoken in favour of the clause ; nobody has come forward to say that it is absolutely essential, that the University requires it, that the graduates require it, that the under-graduates are waiting for it. My honourable friend behind me (Mr. Asavle) was quite right in asking what the nature will be of the duties of the Rector. No one seems to have a clear idea about them. When the University will be in a position to establish technological institutions, when Government will give it the money to enable it to expand and strengthen institutions for spreading knowledge, then we may think of this office ; but at the present time I do not think it is required. May I ask of those who support this clause, what will be the harm if the questions were postponed for ten years ? Will there be any harm done if we ask the honourable

[Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad]

Minister to introduce an amending bill when we are ready for it ? It is useless to say that it is harmless and that it is innocent. The argument should be that it is absolutely necessary. For these reasons I oppose the clause.

Khan Bahadur F. M. DASTUR : The whole question lies in a nut shell. The question whether there is any necessity or reason for appointing a rector or not will under the clause be determined by a majority of at least three-fourths of the whole number of Fellows. If the clause is deleted it would mean that the chancellor or some other person or body will do so and thus a rector will be forced on the senate whether the senate wants him or not.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR (Karachi City) : Sir, as I read the Select Committee's report I find the signature of the honourable member Moulvisahab appended to it and I think that the point raised by him now should have been incorporated in his minute of dissent. But I find no such mention, therefore, he has agreed virtually to the retention of the clause regarding the rector. Sir, I have really no desire to stress that point very much further but there is one anomaly which I should like to point out to the House. It was not my fortune or misfortune to hear the Moulvisahab on Saturday or on Friday when he said that beggars cannot be choosers. He said whatever power Government want, so long as they are prepared to foot the bill the Council should agree. On that analogy, since I understand that the amount of grant which is now made by grace to University which is about Rs. 1,22,000, is to be incorporated in the Act as a matter of statutory grant, his position is untenable. Now coming to the question at issue what we want to know is whether this Government does intend to sanction money for the university or whether the university with the aid of its own funds is going to so develop post-graduate studies when alone the necessity of a rector will arise. We heard the representative of the university nominated for this Bill to this Council saying that the clause is harmless and that there are safeguards and that it is not likely to come into operation until a stage is reached in the development of the university. Now we know from the constitution that Government is more than one-fourth in the senate and to make this clause operative some effort on the part of Government members will be necessary. Therefore I ask the Honourable Minister for Education whether he understands the implication and the responsibility of adding that clause to the bill. It means that Government are prepared to incur additional liabilities. But whenever we ask for a grant, for paltry thousands for clothes of the children of depressed classes the Honourable Minister gets up and says " we have got no money." It is a matter of shame to the Council and to the Bombay Government that he always comes in with a plea of this kind and to my mind a very false plea.....

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : I rise to a point of order, Sir, I want to know whether the word " false " is not objectionable.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The word " false " is very defective.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : I withdraw it. If you look at the report of the Select Committee you will find that the clause has been retained only with his casting vote. That is what my honourable friend from Ahmedabad rural says in his minute of dissent. This adds an additional argument to those who are opposing this clause, for it means that Government realise its responsibilities and are retaining this clause and that they are seriously thinking of making very large grants to the post-graduate development. If it is not so there is no purpose in retaining this clause.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI (Bombay University) : My honourable friend Mr. Bechar has perfected the sublime art of irrelevant talk. I do not understand how the question of appointing a rector comes to be connected with the question of finance or with Government's grant. There is proper scope for all these in other sections of the bill. I wish he could have waited till then rather than he should have gone into this digression.

The point before the House is very simple. There is a very strong feeling at least among a large section of the Senate of the University that the university must have a rector. There is an equally strong feeling among other educationists that the university has not reached a stage when there should be a rector. It all depends on the question whether the Bombay university has reached a stage at which it has become really a teaching university. As soon as a university ceases to be merely affiliating and reaches an effective type of teaching university then it must have an officer of the position and powers of a rector.

An honourable friend asked my honourable friend Mr. Hamill as to what is the difference between a rector and a registrar. I was delighted to hear his arguments against the clause in the fullness of his ignorance before he has studied the bill which is before us. The very bill which is before us says that when the rector is appointed he will be the chairman of the academic council which means he will guide the academic deliberations of the university. Secondly he will be the chairman of the post-graduate committee. That is whenever the university departments flourish and whenever we have got many full time professors then the rector will become necessary day after day to preside over the post-graduate committee in order that the university departments may work properly. These two things have been indicated amply and clearly. Any one who has studied this bill will understand that a rector is to be a kind of executive officer—and if I may use the language of the municipalities—a chief officer of the University. His duty will be to carry out the behests of the senate and the syndicate and to preside over minor bodies. The Registrar is nothing but a secretary. That is the distinction between the two. The preamble of this Act requires that the University must now embark on a career of a teaching University. It is expected, and I hope and trust that this expectation will be fulfilled in the near future that the University will seriously embark on developing its University departments, i.e., colleges and departments which are run by the University, paid for by the University and controlled by whole-time professors appointed by the University. When that time comes,—whether it comes now or in five years or fifty years hence no one can say,—but when that time comes, who is to be the judge of the situation? Who is to decide whether the time has arrived in the evolution of the University when there should be a Rector to control it? The incorporation of this clause lays down only one principle that, it shall be the Senate which shall decide whether the time is ripe or not to appoint a Rector rather than that the University should be left to come here and convince the honourable House that the time has arrived. That is the only difference. Nobody need worry in view of the terms of the present clause that the Rector will be appointed in the very near future. In the first reading you will remember I was strongly opposed to the creation of a Rector by a two-thirds majority. But a three-fourths majority is a safe majority. We are having 140 members of the Senate and I am sure about 75 per cent. will attend on extraordinary occasions, because I find that even at the last meeting of the Senate, where the number was the largest, it came to about 82 in a house of 110 or so. The result is that we never get more than three-fourths in a meeting of the Senate. So, the necessity for the appointment of a Rector must become very great before one is appointed. Thus money will never be wasted on an ornamental officer. This is a position which is wholly in consonance with the dignity of the University, and I cannot really understand why members should oppose this particular clause. I therefore submit, Sir, that this clause should be accepted by the House.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Mr. President, I oppose the deletion of the clause. The honourable members of this House know that the office of Rector was recommended by the University Reforms Committee, which was presided over by the present Vice-Chancellor, and it consisted among others of Dr. Paranjpye, Mr. M. R. Jayakar, Mr. H. P. Mody, Sir Purshotamdas Thakurdas and my honourable friend Mr. J. B. Petit, and they came to this conclusion. On the question of Rector the Senate, when the matter came up before it, was evenly divided. There was perhaps a difference of two or three. But there is a strong feeling that there should be a provision in the Act for the creation of that office whenever the Senate considers that it is absolutely necessary.

There has been some misapprehension with reference to the financial provision of the University at present. I may again mention for the information of the honourable House that it has at present a capital fund of Rs. 13,00,000. It is every year saving from its income from between Rs. 70,000 and Rs. 1,00,000, and the interest on the Rs. 13,00,000 amounts to about Rs. 53,000; so that it has an income of about Rs. 1,50,000 and if it goes on saving as it does, then within six or seven years it would have a capital fund of about Rs. 20,00,000. Under those circumstances, the University Senate is not in a position in which it cannot undertake to advance the scheme of post-graduate studies, to enable them to do which this bill has been brought before the House. When the time comes, when the Senate is of the opinion that the office of Rector should be created and that its funds are not sufficient for it, it will naturally approach the Government for assistance if assistance is needed, and the Government which has put in this enabling clause in the bill will then consider, in view of the finances of the University and the obligations, the question in its proper perspective. Under those circumstances, this enabling clause, I submit, the honourable House will allow to stand.

Question put : That clause 12 (The Rector) do stand part of the bill. House divided. Ayes 53 ; Noes 24. Motion carried.

(B) Nominated by the Chancellor .. .. . 40

(C) Donors to, or for the purposes of, the University of money or property to the value of not less than one lakh of rupees, if willing to serve, to be subject to the provisions of sections 14, 15 and 17 Fellows for life.

(D) One nominee of each of the bodies giving a donation to, or for the purposes of, the University of money or property to the value of not less than one lakh of rupees : Provided that the right of making any such nomination and, subject also to the provisions of sections 14, 15, 16 and 17, the tenure of any such nominee shall not extend beyond a period of twenty years from the date of the acceptance by the University of any such donation.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section the value of any property offered as a donation to the University shall mean the market value of such property on the date of acceptance of the donation by the Senate.

(2) If in the case of any election the question is raised whether any person is or is not a Principal or a University Professor or University teacher or Head-master or a teacher the question shall be decided by the Vice-Chancellor.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA : I wish to know, Sir, when you will take up my amendment which I intended to come under new clause 13.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The whole difficulty has arisen because the honourable member has made a mistake and suggested three amendments to clause 12 whereas he intended those amendments to come under clause 13. They have been pasted in that order and therefore there is a difficulty now of fixing them in their proper position. It is I know only a technical mistake, namely, that instead of quoting the clause as numbered by the select committee, the honourable member has quoted the original number. I can understand the difficulty but it has confused our work. We are dealing with the clauses as numbered in the select committee.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI : I rise to a point of order. It is not only that the consecutive numbering of the clauses is wrong but even in the body the amendment is wrong. It appears to have been based on the clauses as they stood at the first reading. The honourable member Mr. Ginwalla does not seem to have read the bill as it came out of the select committee. "By University teachers and teachers....5"—that was in the bill when it came up for the first reading. The whole thing should be ruled out of order. Sir, may I make the position clear ?

[Mr. K. M. Munshi]

Originally, in the bill when it was before the House at the first reading, the clause read "By University teachers and teachers....5." That was increased by the select committee to 10. This clause is now before the House. So the honourable member has given notice of an amendment to the original bill. He says "By University teachers and teachers....5." There is no such thing in the bill.

Mr. S. K. BOLE: He is not going to move that at present.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Will the honourable member Mr. Ginwalla move his amendment and fix it in somewhere?

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA: In clause 13, II, Ordinary (A), after sub-clause (iv) (e) add "Provincial Committee of the All-India Trade Union Congress."

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: What is the number? It is not mentioned.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA: I have mentioned in my amendment that it is one. In the original amendment which I forwarded to the Secretary I have mentioned it; if it is not in the list circulated to us, it is not my fault.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: So, the amendment will be:

In clause 13, II Ordinary (A) after sub-clause (iv) (e) add "Provincial Committee of the All India Trade Union Congress . . . .1."

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA: The object of my amendment is this. Just as the select committee has granted representation to the Millowners' Associations of Bombay and Ahmedabad, I ask similar representation for Labour, and my grounds are these. In these days of democracy, Labour is an important factor to be counted with. In modern times, and especially in these capitalist days, the two factors which count in industry are Labour and Capital, and whether you go to the cotton industry, the steel industry, or any other industry, there are two important factors, Capital on the one hand and Labour on the other. And my further point is this, that even Government have gone to the extent of recognising the necessity of giving adequate representation to Labour not only in the municipalities, but even in this Council; and, Sir, even if we go to Geneva, Government have thought it fit to give adequate representation to Labour in the League of Nations.

An Honourable MEMBER: The League of Nations is not a University.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA: The honourable member asks why Labour should have representation on the Senate. I might inform him that it is not merely Labour has got something to do with primary education, or secondary education, or higher education. Sir, in these days, the graduates who come out of the University do not know the A B C of trade unionism, or the problems of Labour and Capital, or the problem of minimum wage, or the problem of sick insurance, or co-partnership and all this literature which is necessary for the purpose of carrying on legislation in this very House or guarding trade interests outside. These problems have a vast literature, and if the Honourable Minister wants to know, I can refer him to several books on trade unionism. I find that this literature is not paid attention to, and the graduates turned out by the University are blissfully ignorant of what is socialism, what is trade unionism, what is communism, what is Bolshevism, or what is any other "ism." These problems of Capital, Labour, wages, over-production and other problems, which are modern problems, have to be studied by every civilised subject, and they have to be studied by graduates, and unless and until this kind of literature is introduced in the University curriculum, the present generation will not be able to face these modern problems. However much you may try to brush these problems away, they will be there, and they will have to be faced at every step. Whether it is in the Legislative Assembly or in the local Legislative Council, Labour Legislation will have to be passed, and all these problems have got to be faced. Therefore, unless and until the rising generation knows all these problems, they will not be able to tackle them. There are Labour research institutions, labour schools and colleges, in which labour education is given suitable to modern conditions, in America and Germany, and other Western countries. India ought to proceed with the times. There is a volume of literature on these subjects in England, Germany and so on, and therefore it is very necessary that Labour should be represented on the University. It is necessary that this kind of literature should be introduced in the University. When you go to the length of giving representation to city municipalities, district local boards, and Chambers of Commerce, I do not know for the life of me why Labour should be excluded. I therefore hope that the House will take a step in the right direction and support my amendment.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The amendment is :

In clause 13, Part II, after sub-clause (iv) (e) add " I representative from the Provincial Committee of the All-India Trade Union Congress."

I might inform the honourable member, that in the amendment which he sent to the office, there is the figure 1 in brackets on the left. It ought to be on the right. That is a minor matter, and I understand he suggests one member.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : Sir, I might bring to your notice that the honourable member Mr. Asavale has an amendment on the same question. So, it will be convenient to consider all these together, and perhaps Mr. Ginwalla will see his way to accept Mr. Asavale's amendment, which seeks to give a representation of 3 to the Labour Unions of the city of Bombay, of 1 to the Labour Unions of Ahmedabad, and of 1 to the Labour Unions of Sholapur.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I think the number the honourable member wants is one. The number which the honourable member Mr. Asavale wants is altogether five. It is different entirely.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : I support the amendment moved by my honourable friend Mr. Ginwalla. When representation is given to capitalist bodies it will be in the fitness of things that representation should be given to labour also. In the original bill representation was given only to two bodies—the Indian Merchants Chamber and the Chamber of Commerce. I do not know how the Millowners' Association in Bombay as well as in Ahmedabad managed to creep in here. They are powerful bodies, wealthy, and have managed to come in. At the same time when these representatives are there it would be fair to include the representative of labour also. The amendment is a very modest one and it asks for only one representative from the Trade Union Congress of the province.

Mr. S. C. JOSHI : Sir, may I be allowed to move my amendment as an amendment to the one before the House ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I suppose this is the honourable member's amendment : " In clause 13 (1) (2) ordinary A, after clause (e) add the following (ee)... " He will have his chance to move it.

Mr. S. C. JOSHI : While whole-heartedly supporting the amendment, I wish to point out that at the present moment the complaint against the university is that it is out of touch with the practical needs of the public and the masses. It is therefore appropriate that we must have more representation and a few representatives of the labouring classes. Another ground on which I support this modest demand of Labour is the fact that one of the primary functions of the University is to take in hand the adult education of the masses.

On page 67, the University Commission states as follows. :—

" A university's teaching work does not end with the provision of adequate instruction to graduates and undergraduates. It has responsibilities to the community at large, a duty to contribute to the development in it of a common spirit, aim and individual character. It must therefore take cognizance of those, whom the need of a livelihood has called away from school or college before they are matured and who wish to supplement their knowledge or to preserve and strengthen their intellectual powers and activities amidst the utilitarian pursuits of industry and the deafening routine of office, factory or shop."

This clearly supports the amendment and I hope honourable members of this House will also support this modest amendment.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North) : Sir, I rise to support this amendment of the honourable member Mr. Ginwalla, with one object in view and that is the representation has been given to the Chamber of Commerce, the Indian Merchants' Chamber and the Millowners' Association and so on and no provision whatsoever has been made for the labour to represent on the senate. Therefore it is only reasonable that the labourers who are also paying taxes should be given representation on the university senate in order to safeguard their interests. There must be some one in the university to safeguard their interests in matters educational. We know very well even in this House whenever questions relating to labour come in, generally all those honourable members who sit here ask "What has this got to do with labour and what has that got to do with labour ?" They forget that unless there is labour there will not be capitalists. Unless there are labourers there will not be capitalists in the country and even Government will not have any money. If there are no labourers the soldiers will not have their food and war materials. And then what would be the fate of Government during war? Is it not therefore our essential duty to protect the interests of labour? and they are demanding not one-half nor one-fourth of the whole number of the senate to be reserved for them. They ask only for a few representatives and I hope the honourable members will grant this simple and modest request. With these remarks I again support the amendment.

Dr. M. D. GILDER (Bombay City, North): Sir, as coming from a constituency, where there are a large number of labourers, I feel it my duty to support the amendment moved by my honourable friend representing Bombay City, North. I want to clear the doubt of the honourable nominated member from Bombay how the millowners tried to creep in. They succeeded in getting in because the representative of the Bombay Millowners' Association was himself a member of the select committee. Now that the millowners have succeeded in getting representation on the senate it is necessary and fair I think that there should be at least one representative of the labouring class. The Honourable Minister of Education at the time of the first reading stated that efforts were being made to keep the university in touch with commerce and industry. I pointed out at the time of the first reading that these interests should be represented on the university. As a result of that they have given representation for millowners also in the select committee. It is high time that labour also should have at least one representative on the senate.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Sir, I support the amendment of my honourable friend Mr. Ginwalla. When the millowners have representation it is just fair that labour also should have representation. If the House is not prepared to give representation to labour it will be only fair to do away with the representation given to millowners. As at present, the House will not favour requests made on behalf of labour. In case it is disposed to throw out this modest amendment I would make an appeal to them that they should also throw away the representation of the millowners. With these words I support the amendment.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District): Sir, I feel very great pleasure in supporting this amendment. It is an amendment which will appeal to all those who feel keenly interested in the progress of labour and the betterment of the conditions of labour. The time was when the idea was prevalent that the universities had nothing to do with labour when the idea prevailed even in England and other European countries that the universities were more or less centres for the education of the upper and the higher middle classes. Fortunately that idea has now vanished, and all educationists and all those who feel interested in the diffusion of higher education not only among the wealthy few but among all classes, all now feel that something must be done to interest Labour in the university and higher education, and that further the university must also do something for the education of Labour. That is the idea behind the university extension movement which has come into existence in the West. Serious efforts are being made in the West to give some measure of higher education to those whom the unfavourableness of circumstances has prevented from getting higher education. Fortunately for us, in this country also Labour has been making progress during the last few years, and we find among the labouring classes and also among those who do not belong to those classes but who take interest in those classes and are working for them, men who can worthily represent Labour on the University. For instance, my friend Mr. N. M. Joshi, a member of the Servants of India Society, who has made the cause of Labour his own, and who has been several times deputed by the Government of India to represent Labour at the International Labour Conference is eminently qualified to represent Labour and its interests on the University. Also my honourable friend behind me, Mr. Asavale, and my friend who was his predecessor in this Council. Therefore the plea that Labour is illiterate and consequently Labour will not be able to take intelligent interest in those matters with which the University deals, cannot stand. In these circumstances, it seems to me an act of bare justice to Labour that some provision should be made for the representation of Labour on the University.

I find, Sir, that in the select committee a change has been made giving representation to Capital; representation has been given to bodies like the Indian Merchants' Chamber; in other words, the principle that Capital should be represented on the University has been accepted by the select committee. I am not one of those who favour any clash between Capital and Labour; I rather think with Mahatma Gandhi that efforts should be made to reconcile the interests of both Labour and Capital; I do not believe in any unending struggle between Labour and Capital. If Capital has been given representation on the University that appears to me an additional reason why Labour also should be given representation on the University.

If Labour is given representation on the University the beneficial results that will follow may be briefly stated. The representatives of Labour will bring before the University authorities all those problems affecting Labour which it will be the duty of the University to take into consideration. In the city of Bombay in particular, there are many men who attend mills whose educational status has to be improved. Surely the representatives of Labour on the University may be trusted to persuade the University to do something for improving the educational status of those who belong to the labouring classes in the city of Bombay. If the University is persuaded, as I feel confident it will be, by the representatives of Labour to take interest in the cause of Labour and to do all that is possible to promote the educational interests of Labour, then Labour will feel that the educated classes, the products of the University, take interest in their condition and in their progress. I for one feel that then the charge that the educated classes do not take interest in the labouring classes will be deprived of its force. I think by giving representation to Labour on the University and by making the University authorities interest themselves in the well being of Labour and interested in doing all that may be possible to promote their educational progress, we shall be bringing about harmony between the interests of Labour and the interests of Capital. So, not only on its own intrinsic merits but on other grounds also, it is eminently desirable that there should be representation of Labour on the University. I therefore strongly support the amendment.

Mr. J. B. PETIT (Bombay Millowners' Association) : Mr. President, now that the question of Labour and Capital has unfortunately been dragged in, I think it necessary for this House to know the conditions and circumstances under which the Select Committee was induced to accept the claim of the Millowners' Association for representation on the senate. As you are aware, Sir, the University Reforms Committee has given emphatic expression to the view that it is desirable in the interests of higher education to interest the trading and industrial classes of the city in the affairs of the university and with that end in view, has recommended that important public bodies, such as the Indian Merchants' Chamber, the Chamber of Commerce and the Millowners' Associations, composed of these classes, should have representation. As you are aware, provision has already been made in the Bill for the representation of the Bombay Chamber of Commerce and the Indian Merchants' Chamber, on the senate. For some unknown reason, however, the representation of the Millowners' Associations of Bombay and Ahmedabad happened to be omitted from the draft bill which came before the House for the first reading. It was to this omission that I drew the attention of the select committee and pointed out to them the purpose for which this recommendation had been made by the University Reforms Committee,—an argument, which appeared to have weighed with the select committee . . . (Mr. B. V. Jadhav : with the Minister). It is after all the select committee which recommends and not the Minister. An ex-Minister ought to know it . . . with the result that it was ultimately considered and carried. I venture to say, Sir, that that recommendation was accepted in order to create in the industrial classes of the city a living interest in the growth and progress of higher education ; and to associate them more closely than now with the affairs of the university. It was not accepted, as was alleged, to enable them to bring in a representative of Capital. It is very unfortunate that the question of Labour and Capital should have been brought in the consideration of this important matter. The two Millowners' Associations have not been given representation as representing Capital, but merely as representing the greatest industry of the country and particularly of this Presidency. The principal object with which that has been done is the contemplated establishment in course of time of a technological institute in the city of Bombay in connection with which it was felt not only that the sympathy but even the active support of the industry would be necessary and urgently needed. It is for this purpose that that recommendation has been accepted. I put it to this Honourable House whether it was not right ; and whether the question of Labour should have been brought into this discussion. Labour stands altogether on a different footing. It has its own sphere : it has its own standpoint ; but they have nothing to do with the University. I do not understand what special advantage, Labour in its present condition is likely to derive by obtaining representation on the senate of the University, which is mainly concerned with the advance of higher education. After all, the education in which Labour is interested, is different ; and it is not until Labour reaches the stage of higher education, that a necessity for the representation of the labouring classes on the senate is likely to be of any advantage. Personally, I do not think that a case has been made out in favour of giving a special representative to Labour. However, it is a matter for the House to determine. It is only so far as the Mill-owners' Association and the purpose for which they have been given a representation, are concerned, that I desire to make my position quite clear to the House.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR (Karachi City) : Sir, it was a matter of great regret and pain to me to see the manner in which the proposal of my honourable friend from Bombay was received in this House with derision. The only ray of hope came to us, after a number of labour members had spoken on this side, when my honourable friend from Nasik got up and made a strong plea in favour of that representation. This proposal is tried to be understood on the opposite benches merely on abstract grounds and that is, what utility the labour is likely to gain by having a seat on the university. Sir, unfortunately in this country there is such an amount of apathy and aversion towards manual labour that whatever may be the value of it and however hungry an educated man may be he refuses to take to manual labour. That is one of the greatest curses of this country. And if you will appreciate the kind of education that Government has so far given to the people of this country you find that they have produced mere clerks and in very small numbers men with some original thinking. They are very few. In the case of the former in a great majority of cases they find it difficult to obtain employment worth anything over Rs. 75 or so. Sir, I read a very good book which I did not think it was necessary to bring down with me when I left Karachi. That book is called the " Resurrection of Hungary " by Arthur Griffith one of the great leaders of the Irish Sein Finn movement. He finely analyses the effect of education which Britain had inculcated in the minds of the Irish people and he also gives the history as to how Hungary was struggling to be free. In that book one chapter has been devoted to the effect on young minds of the kind of education which they received in the university and tells us what the university has got to do with labour. I, therefore, fail to see how my friends fail to look at facts. Here, the university provides curricula or course of study for the secondary education and these secondary schools in turn prescribe curricula for primary schools because these are bodies that have to examine those boys. Therefore, what I was trying to say is this ; that the Labour has got to make a very distinct contribution to the solution of the problem of education, as to what kind of education we should have so that the young men may become useful citizens in the country. Until and unless you shake off this aversion for manual labour you can never solve the problem of unemployment for which Government have appointed several committees with no result. Therefore, Sir, so long as you do not try to approach this question of unemployment from the point of view of labour you will fail in your mission, and as such I say that this House should unanimously allow one seat to Labour. There are no less than thirty to forty thousand members of the trade unions in Bombay city. These members of the trades unions from among themselves elect their executive committees, and the executive committees in turn elect provincial committees and these are the representatives of labour in the whole of the Bombay Presidency. Now turning to my honourable friend the representative of the millowners, he says that it is not really because they happen to be millowners and capitalists that representation is given to them but because you want to bring people into living touch with our system of education that it is necessary for a responsible body of men like the Millowners' Association to have a representative. Sir, I put it to you on those very grounds, whether or not you consider it necessary that a large body of men, upon whose sweat of the brow the wheels of the society are moving, should have a voice in the determination of the character and curricula of education. That, to my mind, is a very important thing, and if you want to ignore it at your own peril, you may throw out this amendment. But if you have any seriousness of mind, if you think we should solve this problem most peacefully, then I say, Sir, even if one single member like Mr. Joshi, who, I think, can give points to many members that may in future sit upon the Senate and who may be sitting on the Senate even now,—is elected, it will be sufficient for us. So, Sir, there is not the slightest fear that the labour representative will be inferior to the average persons who are going to fill the offices on the senate. Therefore, on all grounds, I strongly feel that at least one representative ought to be allowed to labour, and if the non-official part of the House is not willing, I appeal to the Government benches who are always talking of protecting labour and who are always saying that they would do everything that is necessary, and I also appeal to the prominent members of this Council to show their sense of justice and allow one representative to be elected. It may be argued that out of a number of 40 representatives that the Government will have power to nominate, it may be possible for Government to choose one labour member. Sir, the labour members are fed up with the system of nomination. The system of nomination tends one to become a toady, and I do not think any labour member likes to become a toady. I have no doubt those members who are here to-day representing labour, though nominated, have the greatest courage, but I say, Sir, this demoralising system of nomination ought not to be allowed to demoralize a labour representative, and that the representatives of labour should come by the open door, front door, and the widest franchise. Therefore, I strongly support the representation on behalf of labour which my honourable friend from Bombay has urged upon this House.

Mr. G. L. WINTERBOTHAM (Bombay Chamber of Commerce): Mr. President, apart from the question of labour being represented on the University, on which I do not propose to say anything, there appears to my mind to be something in the wording of the amendment which calls for some explanation. I cannot understand why the right of electing this one labour representative should be given to the committee of the "Provincial Branch of the All-India Trade Union Congress." In the case of the other associations, to whom representation is proposed to be granted, right of election is given to the main body. And it seems to me exceedingly wrong in principle to restrict the election of this proposed labour member to a small committee or a section of the Trade Union Congress. It does not appear to me that this committee represents the whole of labour in the Presidency. I believe it is a very small body of people, and there is no guarantee that the gentleman elected will be a representative of labour at all. I should like to have that point cleared up.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division): Sir, I should like to add a few words of sympathy for the mover of the amendment, in his support of it. Sir, I think it would have been very graceful on the part of the representative of the Millowners' Association to have supported this motion. His support would have been welcomed. Sir, being one of those who supported the honourable member Mr. Petit in the select committee in his proposal, I think there is a special responsibility placed upon me to support the cause of labour. I think, Sir, that members on the opposite benches are sitting mum on this question. I think we should have liked to hear the Government view upon this point, because I do not want it to go out to the country that Government does not want to support labour. I think it is a very awkward position for Government. In a short time there would in all probability be Labour Ministry in England again and it would not do for this Government to look down upon labour. My honourable friend said: "What difference would it make if there is one member of labour on the Senate?" I say, it would make a good deal of difference. It will take away the stigma of untouchability from the labouring classes and it will show to labour that they can sit on equal terms with representatives of other interests in the Senate. That would make a great moral difference. I was in England when the first labour member sat in Parliament, Mr. John Burns, and became a Cabinet Minister. I know the effect that was produced in general society by the admission of that representative of labour in Parliament. We admit labour members, in the Assembly labour members go as a matter of right; also in the League of nations: they come also as a matter of right to this Council. Why should they not be sent to the University? Why should the University, of all bodies, not be liberal? Why should we be so narrow-minded as to show the cold shoulder to labour, and why should the Honourable Minister be so narrow-minded in this respect? Why should he say that he is not going to make any change in the bill at all? It seems to me it is useless to discuss the bill further if he is not going to make any change at all in the bill. I say, he should make a change. We have made out a very good case for labour.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : But the Minister has said nothing yet.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Sir, a question was put to him and he nodded a negative reply. I should be very glad if he comes forward to accept this proposal and we will be all very thankful to him. But, if he does not, then, Sir, let me state that the Government would be in a very bad position. As regards the University, I do not think its opinion has been asked about it : it is a new question. But how did my honourable friend the member for the Millowners' Association carry his point ? By the sympathy of Government. Now as a member for labour is demanded Government should show equal sympathy. And that would add to the dignity of labour.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : Sir, I wish to draw your attention in reference to the motion before the House that Government benches have remained silent. Even the experts that have been specially nominated for the consideration of this bill are not opening their mouths. It would, I think, be much better if the Government views were known.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I do not think I can force any Government member to express his views. The same remark has been made in one or two speeches and it is for Government members to take their opportunity and explain anything they like.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : If my honourable friend wants me to speak at this stage, I have no objection to do so. I oppose this amendment not because I am not in sympathy with Labour, but I submit that if by Labour is meant factory labour, then it has no place in the University. We are all labourers, mental or manual, and we live by it, but if by labour is meant factory labour, then I respectfully beg to submit whether it is intended or is it possible for a factory labourer to come through the Trade Union Congress to the University. My honourable friend Mr. Ginwalla, my honourable friend Mr. Bole and several others have sympathy for labour as I have. However, for factory labour neither they are representative nor am I, and I submit to the honourable House whether factory labour as such has any place in a university which concerns itself with higher education. I may submit that the Victoria Jubilee Technical Institute as such is no part of the university, but representing technical education and representing that class of people who take education there and get into the class of labour, properly so called the principal of the Victoria Jubilee Technical Institute is at present a nominated member of the senate, and such people would generally represent labour interest much better. But I submit, gentlemen who are not factory labourers themselves are not entitled to represent labour on the university. That is a matter on which I hold definite views.

Again, Sir, city municipalities, by the good offices of my honourable colleague in charge of local self-government, have their franchise reduced to one rupee and all manner of people do come on the city municipalities and the city municipalities as well as the district local boards are going to send in members to the university and they will, as if through an electoral college, be representative of labour in a way.

Again, I respectfully submit that a reference was made to the millowners having found a place through the select committee in clause 13. I submit, Sir, that originally the Reform Enquiry Committee, to which reference was made by my honourable friend Mr. Joshi, did not in any of the associations they recommended, recommend any labour union for representation on the university. However, they allowed representation to the millowners' associations. I however thought, when I had to frame a bill, that if I gave representation to the millowners, there would be a question raised with reference to labour and I did not include them in the first draft which came before this House at the first reading. However by a single vote.....

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : That was your own vote.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : By a single vote in the select committee my honourable friend Mr. Petit succeeded in carrying his point and I of course though I was much against it, reconciled myself to it after all because they represent capital not as against labour but as industrial and commercial classes who would be able to endow the university if they were in touch with the university. On that basis I have reconciled myself to it though I was originally much against it. I therefore submit, Sir, that when the industrial and commercial classes have a representation, there is no reason why a further division should be made as between capital and labour. There is no antagonism between capital and labour. The university concerns itself with higher education as I submitted and therefore I say that labour, meaning thereby factory labour, is not entitled to any representation on the university, much less through a small committee of the All India Trade Union Congress. I therefore submit to the honourable House that they should turn down the amendment.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I find during this session that honourable members have referred over and over again to what happened in the select committee. I think that a reference to what happened in the select committee should be avoided.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : Sir, I am very much obliged to the Honourable the Minister of Education for explaining the views which he holds on this question of capital and labour. I regret, however, to observe that my honourable friend is in the same unenviable frame of mind in which English politicians were about 50 or 60 years ago. They then said "What have the labourers to do with Parliament and parliamentary Government?" They said it was their lot to work in the factories, to work in the mines, and to allow the capitalists to amass large fortunes, and it was for the capitalists to carry on the Government for their own best advantage, and also to the advantage of the labourers. But the foolish labourers did not accept that view, and they set up an agitation, they started and developed their organisations, and finally they formed a party of their own. and that party has now gained so much strength that at one time it carried on His Majesty's Government, and at present it has been holding the very good position of leading the opposition in Parliament. I can assure my honourable friends that the time is not far distant when the labourers' voice will be more and more heard in this House and also in the University. The University, up to this time, has been dominated by capitalist interests, and even under the present bill provision has been made to introduce as many capitalists as possible into the University. Look at a further sub-clause in the same section. It says that a man or an institution making a donation of a lakh of rupees to the University has got the right to nominate a Fellow for life. I think the Millowners' Association, both in Bombay and in Ahmedabad, can at any moment write down a cheque for a lakh of rupees and secure a representative on the Senate; and each one of the individual members of those associations are rich enough to contribute a lakh of rupees to the University and in that way secure seats on the University if they care to do so. There is, I think, a prospect—I shall not call it a danger, I am not at all afraid of the capitalist interests because Labour will come into its own—of even 150 Fellows from the Millowners' Associations of Bombay and Ahmedabad put together. And yet, Sir, Government as well as the millowners are very unwilling to allow a single seat for the labourers. That is their generosity, and that is their idea of fair justice.

The Honourable Minister has expressed here that fortunately, up to this time, there has been no dissension, no quarrel between Capital and Labour in the University. Certainly there was not, for the simple reason that Labour was scrupulously shut out from the University. If no representative of Labour was to be allowed into the Senate, and if the Senate is composed of capitalist interests alone, there would be no dissentient voice, and there would be perfect harmony and concord. Now, is that condition to continue, or is it desirable that it should continue? In the select committee—I am sorry, Sir, to have to refer to what passed in the select committee again—as the Honourable Minister admitted the representation for the millowners was carried by a majority of a single vote; and when the question was raised about allowing a seat to labour, at once the Honourable Minister jumped up and said it was out of order; it was not even allowed to be discussed.

I am surprised to see that the Honourable Minister is basing all his arguments and all his objections on that sacred book, that sacred volume which perhaps he values more than even the Vedas. It is in his eyes a revealed book, the provisions of which are not to be passed over; no new provisions or no new additions are to be made. And what is that important book for which he has got such high reverence? It is the report of the Committee on University Reforms. We know, Sir, what respect Government gives to such reports. A number of committees have been appointed, and a number of committees have submitted their reports to the Government and sometimes to this House, but Government accepts only those conclusions of a committee which are favourable to them, and unceremoniously brushes aside those which do not meet with their point of view. In the same way, the report of the University Reforms Committee was treated with scant courtesy by the Honourable Minister himself, and the Millowners' Associations were not granted any seats on the Senate in the original bill, although that very sacred book did make provision for the capitalist interests. But all of a sudden now his conscience has been pricked. I think it was pricked in the select committee, and he now thinks that the Millowners' Associations ought to get it, because so it is recommended in the report. And if the labourers have not found any place in the book—they were not fortunate enough to have their views represented then—then they ought to be shut out, because so it is written in the book. He takes up that book and says: "Point out here whether there is any recommendation for the labourers." Poor labourers, they were not represented on that committee, and so no provision has been made for them; and it is for this honourable House to allow at least one seat to the poor labourers, which the capitalists on this side do not want. I am very sorry to remark that most of the honourable members from Gujarat have very strong leanings towards the capitalist side. Therefore, it is for this House to see whether the poor labourers are to get even one seat. I do not think I need take much of the time of the House, because I do not think the voting of the House goes by the strength or weight of the arguments placed before it.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Urdu): Sir, my honourable friend Mr. Ginwalla has asked for the representation of Labour on the Senate, and I do not think that any honourable member will refuse to give one seat to Labour. My honourable friend Khan Saheb Mansuri asked, what will the representative of Labour do on the Senate? I will tell him that the labour representatives here in Council are doing ten times better work than him. It should not be thought for a moment that because a man is a labourer, he is not fit to represent the labourers, that he should work all day as a labourer only, that it is the right of only those who get fat on the sweat of labour, to be represented on the Senate.

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI: I rise to a point of order.

An Honourable MEMBER: What is the point of order?

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: Mr. President, if a representative of Labour is on the Senate, although he may in the beginning not be able to understand very fully what is going on there, he will have opportunities of associating with people in other walks of life, who may be highly educated, and he will come back and tell his brother labourers: "We also must try to be like the members in the Senate."

In this bill, I find that representation is given to Chambers of Commerce and other commercial bodies, but Labour has been refused that representation. The Chambers of Commerce and the other commercial bodies may consist of 50 to 100 members at the most. But the number of labourers in Bombay, who are members of trade unions will be 30,000, and yet objections are raised to give them representation by allotting one seat to them on the Senate. I think if any other person had been the Honourable Minister, he would have given 10 representatives to Labour, and not 1. Is it to be supposed that one representative of Labour on the Senate will be able to so influence the minds of his colleagues that the whole University administration will be turned upside down? The honourable member for the Millowners' Association said that when they were there on the senate they would not neglect the interests of Labour whom they consider as their children. Such statements would be of no use. The honourable member Mr. Winterbotham said that the Trades Union Congress was not a big body (Mr. Winterbotham nodded dissent). With these words I support the amendment.

Mr. A. D. SHETH (Ahmedabad District): Sir, during the discussion on the amendment of my honourable friend Mr. Ginwalla, the honourable member the ex-Minister, Mr. Jadhav spoke about the "revealed book" and I was very much pleased to have that admission from an ex-Minister that Government were treating the recommendations of the Committees in the fashion he said, that is, they are throwing them in the waste paper basket. (Honourable Members: No, no.) I understood the honourable member to say that Government were not treating such reports very seriously. It was certainly a consolation to me to hear such remarks coming from an ex-Minister in these days when the dreams of the ministry are raised in the day to be shattered during the night. Such remarks coming particularly from leaders of parties are giving us much food for consideration and we ought not to take all these things lightly.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Will the honourable member come to the point?

Mr. A. D. SHETH: I am coming to the subject, Sir. As a matter of fact the several provisions contained in the bill as amended by the select committee for representation on the senate are not very clear to me. I have not been quite able to understand it even after the remarks of my honourable friend the representative for the Bombay Millowners' Association and the remarks of the Honourable Minister. To me the representation of the commercial associations, district local boards and municipalities on the senate is not clear. To me university requires two things. It must have representatives with knowledge of the university affairs, and it must have money to conduct the business. As a member of the district local board and coming from a district I do not understand how a member from the district local board will be able to help in matters concerning university. That is why I have not been able to reconcile myself to the representation of the district local boards and municipalities on the senate. The Honourable Minister stated that the Indian Merchants Chamber and the Millowners' Association should have representation for endowing money and financial help. But for that remark I would have opposed even the representation of commercial associations of that type. As it is we may waive the objection to that proposal.

The argument is put forward that because millowners have representation on the senate the labour also should have representation. I have not been able to follow this particular argument. But that does not take away the force of the plea in favour of labour representation. I believe that is agreed. It is only difficult to find a right man from the Trades Union and it is equally difficult to find a method of representation of the factory workers either in Sholapur, Ahmedabad or Bombay. The honourable member Mr. Ginwalla stated that they must have on the senate some men acquainted with the principles of socialism, communalism and bolshevism. All these principles can only be understood by men like him who are coming to the Council here. If this desire that some one knowing the principles of these new movements in the world ought to be on the senate you cannot get the right sort of man from a factory. I would rather suggest that in the list of nominations some one from this Council knowing those principles may be sent to the senate to represent labour, so that their desire may be satisfied; it must be understood that that is suggested to avoid the difficulty of finding a right sort of man by election. Some way ought to be found and labour claims should be satisfied.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: Will the honourable member be willing to increase the number of nominated seats?

Mr. A. D. SHETH: I do not want to satisfy the curiosity of the ex-Minister.

I have given my suggestion and I have given my ideas. A student possessing knowledge of European conditions ought to be sent to the senate to represent labour to enlighten them on the new principles. For that some way ought to be found and Government ought to be in a position to assure the House that they are willing to do it. If this is done it must satisfy labour.

As regards the remark of the honourable member Mr. Jadhav, that the leanings of the Gujarat members are towards capitalists, I want to correct him and say that the fact that we may not have leanings towards the honourable member Mr. Jadhav, does not prove that we have no leanings towards those for whom he has pleaded. As a matter of fact members from Gujarat are among those who are giving their best to the question of labour. With these remarks I oppose the amendment as it stands at present.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): Sir, I really fail to see why the principle of giving representation to Labour should be introduced first in an enactment like the University Act. We have many institutions in this country organised on an elective basis, from the Legislative Assembly and the provincial councils at the top to the taluka local boards at the bottom, and I have also been careful to read the several Acts which are before me relating to other universities, but I fail to find in any of the enactments relating to these institutions any provision for a seat for an elected representative of labourers. (Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad : Not for millowners also). I am talking of bodies created under a law ; I do not find any provision for a seat for a representative of Labour as such. I do find that the word 'Labour' is used promiscuously here. But I may point out that there are more than 3,00,000 labourers in the city of Bombay but they are spread all over the rural areas in the presidency. I submit the bill has made a beginning in the direction of giving representation to Labour by giving representation to district local boards, which are really representatives of the rural classes. In my humble opinion the time has not yet come when Labour as Labour can be given representation on the University. When Labour as Labour has not been given any representation on any of these elected bodies, it is not time to imitate the cry of Labour borrowed from western countries. I know that the time may come, but that time is yet far distant. It will be time for us to give representation for Labour on the University when the other institutions have given that kind of privilege to Labour. As one of my honourable friends said the University is a place for men of education ; it is a place where problems relating to education as a whole will be discussed. May I point out to my honourable friends opposite who are pleading the case of Labour that they themselves are coming here not as representatives of a special constituency for Labour, and yet they are able to plead the cause of Labour ? That being so, the case for special representation of Labour on the University is very weak. The University is a place for men versed in all kinds of educational problems and there will be men like my honourable friend Mr. Joshi sent up to the University by district local boards and municipalities, men coming from rural areas and sent up by the rural population, who in the bulk are labourers. There will be room for such men in the University and they will really represent the rural classes and press their needs of education. That being so, I really do not understand the necessity of giving special representation for Labour.

There are many amendments ; some propose that the Trade Union Congress should be given the privilege : others propose another committee and others something else. These bodies are yet unorganised, and they have not been given recognition by Government. (Mr. Asavale : they are recognised, Sir). They are not really legally recognised bodies, and until they are properly organised and are given recognition, we cannot make a choice between these bodies. So far as I am aware there has not been recognition given to any particular body as the representative of all Labour in the Presidency. That is my point. Here, it is proposed that one seat should be given. To whom are we to give it ? Are we to give it to the Bombay labourers' association or to the Ahmedabad labourers' association ? If we give representation to the bodies named by the honourable mover of the amendment, then we may have another body coming forward claiming a similar privilege. Therefore, it will be a dangerous thing to admit this principle of giving recognition to a particular body which cannot be regarded as representing the whole of the Presidency. (Rao Saheb D. R. Patil : Move some amendment, then). I am not,

[Rao Bahadur R. R. Kale]

Sir, for moving an amendment : I am only pointing out the difficulties in the way of carrying this amendment. What would be the result if we passed this amendment ? It would result in inconvenience and impracticability. It is not practicable to represent Labour by giving a seat to a particular committee. I therefore appeal to my honourable friends not to pass this amendment in a hurry. In this Council itself the interests of Labour are being watched by people who are not elected by a special constituency of labourers. Therefore, there is scope for Labour's interests being represented by persons who do not belong to the labouring class but have devoted their lives to the interests of Labour and have taken great interest in the class of people who may be called labourers. At present persons like my honourable friend Mr. Joshi will be in a position to represent the interests of Labour. The time has not yet come for giving special representation to Labour on the Senate ; it may come, but we are not legislating for the distant future. For the present we have no organised and recognised bodies representing Labour. I submit therefore the only way for these interests—may be interests : I do not deny that—for these interests to be represented is as it is at present by nomination. These interests are being well represented by persons like the honourable member Mr. Joshi, who do not belong to the labouring classes. The rural areas will be satisfied by the nomination of such persons like the honourable member Mr. Joshi to represent their interests on the Senate. Therefore, I appeal to my honourable friends not to be carried away by mere sentiment. We should be practical men, and I hope as practical men honourable members will realise the difficulties and the inconvenience in the way of giving special representation to Labour. I submit until we have arrived at that advanced stage in the way of evolution.... (Interruption)—I am not going to yield to any one, and I am not going to offer any explanations,—there is no use being carried away by catch-phrases borrowed from the West. We should proceed cautiously and not be carried away by principles which however applicable in the West, will only cause inconvenience in the present condition of our country. Therefore, I do not think the time has come for Labour to be given any representation.

An Honourable MEMBER : I move closure.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I accept it.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, I rise to speak at this moment because pointed reference was made by the ex-Minister....

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : I rise to a point of order. You have accepted closure, Sir....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I admit there is a little departure from the usual practice. I wish the Honourable Leader had given me to understand that he wanted to make a statement on behalf of the official benches. We have had a long discussion and I accepted closure, but I would make an exception in the case of the Honourable the Leader of the House who I understand wants to make a statement.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I am very much obliged to you, Sir, I was saying that pointed reference was made to me by the ex-Minister who asked for my views on this question. Sir, I have had the advantage of talking this question over with the representatives of Labour after the discussion this morning. I wish to make my own position clear and I may also say a little later what the views of Government are on this matter. Of the many speakers who have spoken to-day, either of those who are representatives of labour or in favour of it or those who are supposed to be in favour of capital, not one of them has said that they have no sympathy with the representation of labour on the university so that you may rule out the accusation that has been made that Labour has been deliberately kept out by the capitalists. That is not the case. I should like to explain why it is that it is not possible to accept the amendment that has been moved by my honourable friend Mr. Ginwalla. It is well known that Labour even on this Council, where I take it questions affecting the interests of Labour in vital directions come up for discussion in far larger numbers than anywhere else, has got to be nominated. It is not possible so long as Labour is not sufficiently organized to create a constituency or constituencies through which Labour can be represented. I feel, Sir, that I am right in saying, as indeed was pointed out to me by the representatives of Labour themselves, that the particular constituency which the honourable member Mr. Ginwalla favours with all its communism, Bolshevism and other kinds of isms would not be acceptable to all classes of labour. And I ask those who represent Labour or wish that Labour should be represented to point out to me a constituency which can be created for the representation of Labour. I have not found any practical suggestions as to what the constituency ought to be.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : One suggestion has been made. Will you accept it ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I am not aware of it. I am told that this question would not have arisen if the representation given to the millowners were taken out of the bill. There are these amendments on the paper and therefore it would appear that it is not a question so much of the representation of Labour as the dislike of the representation of capital.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : Not at all.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I do not for a moment accept that view. I do not think that capital is given representation because Government wish to favour it, nor is the bill designed to tempt it to part with its wealth. On the contrary it has been the experience of all people in cities as well as towns that the education given at present is not practical and that in matters of education we ought to have the assistance of all bodies who employ the product which is turned out by the university. It has been a constant complaint that captains of industry and commerce do not take the interest that they ought to take in university education, and it is the desire of Government to bring in those classes of people to assist in the giving of such education as will be practicable for securing due employment for the products of the university. Nor do I put the case of the millowners on the ground which has been mentioned, namely, that the university may expect from them financial assistance. It is fair that financial assistance can be expected and found from persons who have amassed money by commerce or industry. In various countries in the world universities are being endowed by those people who have made success in life and we should desire the same thing in this country where the need is great. There can be no better object of private charity than education. It is in order that these classes may become interested that I think representation has been rightly given to them.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Why was it not included in the original bill ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA . I am not concerned with what was contained in the original bill or with what it did not contain, and if I refer to the Universities Reforms Committee's report I shall be accused as the Honourable Minister was accused of taking the assistance of a revealed volume. I was not aware of what went on in the select committee, and I am talking of the bill as we see it before the House to-day. If Labour is organised in the way the Millowners' Association or the Chambers of Commerce have been organized, one should not have the slightest objection to have representatives of Labour on the university by election. It is no use saying that by having a representative of the millowners we are only trying to create a cleavage between the industrialist and labourer. It is nothing of the kind. It is merely the lack of an organized constituency that prevents Labour from being asked to select its representative. I may go further and say that there are certain number of seats specifically reserved for nomination and it is in order to correct this difficulty of finding proper constituencies that a large number of seats has been set aside for nomination.

My honourable friend opposite suggested that if they are to come in by nomination, then raise the number from 40 to 41 or 42. Well, Sir, I cannot understand why out of 40 room cannot be found for one or two to represent labour.

Mr. A. D. SHETH : I meant out of 40.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : The honourable member did, Sir ; but not the ex-Minister. The ex-Minister will correct me if I am wrong. But, when the honourable member Mr. Sheth stated that he would like to have these gentlemen brought in by nomination, the honourable member Mr. Jadhav at once got up and asked whether the number of the nominated seats would not be to that extent increased . . .

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : To the extent of 50.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : " To the extent of 50. " Then, Sir, it is precisely that number that is causing this difficulty. Does not the honourable member think he is somewhat giving himself away. Why 50 ? We are considering, Sir, not the number of nominations. We are considering whether there is room for adequate representation of labour in the number of 40. I cannot for a moment imagine, Sir, that any Chancellor will not consider the claims of labour when he comes to select his nominations.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : So, he would have considered the claims of capital also.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I have explained, Sir, that the representation of capital is for a specific purpose. I have further stated that if any constituencies could be found which would be agreed to by labour themselves, from which a representative by election could be sent in, there would be no objection to include them in the bill. I do not think, Sir, that anything could be fairer than the position as I have now explained. I was saying, Sir, that when the question of nominations—whatever the total number, it is 40 at present in the bill,—comes to be considered, there is not the slightest doubt that the Chancellor will not disregard the very strong opinions that have been expressed by all sections of the House, and I wish to emphasize that it is all sections of the House, and not a particular party. They have all stated that they have sympathy with the claims of labour, they cannot find a proper constituency. But they would all like them to come in by way of nomination. I trust that the Council will acquit Government of the undeserved charge that they desire to keep out labour.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA (Bombay City, North) : Sir, I thank the honourable members of this House and also the Honourable the Leader of the House for sympathising with the aspirations of labour for a representative on the Senate. Some of the members have raised the objection that time has not arrived for the representation of labour. Before I come to this point, I would like first to deal with the explanation that has been asked by my honourable friend Mr. Winterbotham as to what is the constitution of the Trade Union Congress. The Trade Union Congress is a body which bears on its roll a lakh of members as representing all interests, and under the constitution of the Trade Union Congress a Provincial Committee has been organised for the whole of the Bombay presidency for dealing with provincial questions and this Provincial Committee has on its body all the members who are the representatives of all organised unions which have a proper roll, which have proper secretaries, residences and office bearers, and unions properly established. And for the whole of the presidency there is a committee of all representatives of all labour unions in the presidency. And here is a body which is more representative of labour than any body like the Millowners' Association for Ahmedabad or Bombay. They only represent the interests of mill-owners of Ahmedabad or Bombay. But here is a body which represents labour in the whole of the province. Therefore, I submit, Sir, that this body is more entitled to claim representation at the hands of this House than the Millowners' Association of Bombay or Ahmedabad. And in Bombay itself there is a body—there are two with a total membership of more than 30,000. A union like the Seamen's Union contains 10,000 members. It is a representative union, with adequate funds, proper office bearers, accounts properly audited, and with benefit fund for unemployment, insurance fund, etc. In the same way, there is another union, the G. I. P Railway Workers' Union. Their funds exceed Rs. 25,000; they have 3,000 members. Then, there is the Postmen's Union; there is the Telegraph Workers' Union; Government Peons' Union; and there are several railway workers, etc., and telegraph workers, and all sorts of workers. All sorts of persons who are working for labour, all those who represent labour, are represented on this Provincial Committee including mechanical workers. Therefore, I say, Sir, that this is a body which is constituted under constitutional methods and is thoroughly representative of all the grades of Labour, and it is, therefore, thoroughly entitled to claim representation of labour.

An Honourable MEMBER : Agricultural labour is not included. Is it included ?

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA : I am talking of industrial labour. As regards the point raised by my honourable friend, namely, whether Agricultural labour is represented, I say, Sir, that since agricultural labour is not organized yet, we have not placed them on the committee. But if it is organized, I assure the honourable member that their union will also be included. Therefore, it cannot be said that this is not a representative body.

As regards the objection or point raised by the Honourable the Leader of the House that "if you can suggest a proper and suitable constituency as really representative of labour, we are prepared to embody it in the bill," I suggest to him, what better constituency can he have than the Provincial Committee of the whole presidency which I have mentioned ? Let Government suggest any better solution : we are prepared to consider it. But we can definitely assert that this is a constituency which is a much better constituency than that of the Millowners' Association. Now, Sir, I understood my honourable friend (the representative of the Millowners' Association) to say that I stood to oppose the claims of the Millowners' Association. Far from it. I want that all industrial interests must be represented on the Senate if we want to progress with the times.

Then, Sir, the Honourable Minister showed some ignorance of what was the meaning of labour. And that I would explain. Labour means all persons who are engaged in factories, or in the docks, or in the railways, or in the Port Trust, or any other professions, as workers. His own staff, even the Government professors, can all be included in labour. Therefore, Sir, these professors or anybody who want to organize labour and work on the Provincial Committee, I assure the honourable member that they will represent labour. Therefore, these representatives of labour on the body will not be men who do not know the A B C of your education, but they will be better qualified to deal with educational problems than any other members sitting on the Senate.

[Mr. F. J. Ginwalla]

Then, as regards another point made by some members, I would just like to point out that even the Viceroy of India was a member of the Labour Government in England. He represented labour interests : the representative need not necessarily be a factory worker himself. He is a man representing labour. If labour chooses to put in Lord Haldane as a Minister, there is nothing to prevent them. There are so many persons holding important positions in the Labour Party. It is not necessary that they should all be mechanics. Mr. Thomas, who was a member of the Cabinet, was at one time an engine worker but he is not now a mechanic. He has written some books on labour. There are many others. Mr. Snowden, for instance, was a member of the Cabinet. He is a member of the Labour Party. Labour can produce able men. Labour will send any person it chooses to represent it. They must not think that labour has got no programme, no literacy, no brains. I can assure honourable members that labour can give more points to the senate and will bring the senate into line with the needs of the times than many members who find a place on the senate.

It has been contended that the millowners have been admitted because their money is needed by the university for endowment purposes. All right, by all means take their money. There is a provision in (C) and (D) for the representation of any association or person who pay a lakh of rupees or over as donation. The millowners can come through this door and therefore I do not see much point in the statement made by the Honourable the Leader of the House that because they want the millowners' money they have given them direct representation.

The question of university extension lectures has been dealt with in clause 35. Who introduced this system of extension lectures in England ? Labour did it. In this direction labour can achieve a lot by devoting greater attention to labour problems.

Then I come to the point raised by my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Kale for whom I have great reverence and respect, and therefore I do not know how on this question he has come to express reactionary views. He says that the time is not ripe and the same remark has been made by the bureaucrats who say that Indians are not yet fit for self-government and that they will not be so fit for over 500 years. If that is the view which the Rao Bahadur holds, then I am sorry for him. There is no catchword here. You are giving representation to city municipalities and district local boards. What are generally the qualifications of the members of these municipalities and district local boards ? Are we in any way inferior to those people ?

Government say that labour can come through the door of nomination. Labour never accepted the nominations made by Government to this honourable House. They raised a hue and cry against them but to no purpose. The names that Labour submitted were rejected by Government. The names of those who fight against Government were not accepted by Government and there was a great deal of discontent that the recommendations made by the Provincial Congress Committee were disregarded and that other names were accepted. This shows that Government are not prepared to accept those persons who really represent labour and therefore Labour is insistent that it must get in by the open door of election and not through the backdoor of nomination.

It has been contended by the Honourable the Leader of the House that they have given representation to the millowners because they want their money and also because the millowners can be induced to employ graduates of the university. The cogency of this particular argument I leave to the House to judge for itself. I say that if the House is inclined to carry out the suggestions of the Reform Enquiry Committee, the claims of labour should receive as much recognition as the claims of city municipalities and district local boards and as the claims of chambers of commerce and other like bodies.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, the Honourable the Leader of the House has put the question in its proper perspective. I therefore do not wish to repeat anything of what he has said. However, I would refer honourable members to the scheme of clause 13. The scheme is that every constituency provided for here elects one of themselves—principals elect one of themselves ; university teachers and teachers elect one of themselves ; so also, the head-masters. Even with reference to the corporations and the local authorities, they are to elect one of themselves. That is the scheme of the clause and according to that scheme we expect the election of labour by properly recognisable labour organisations which would send one representative of their own class who would be useful to the university. I submit that I cannot recognise the particular organisation whose claims my honourable friend has put forward before the honourable House. Even looking to the representation in this House, because labour had no proper organisation, therefore there is no right given by election and Government had to provide for representation through the door of nomination. Similarly, if as the result of elections either through the constituency of graduates or through the other constituencies, no proper representative of labour is found on the senate, it would be open to the Chancellor to consider the question of giving them representation in the manner which the Honourable the Leader of the House has explained to this House. I therefore submit that in view of the considerations which the Honourable the Leader of the House has placed before this House and the points which I have submitted to this honourable House, it will turn down the amendment.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Before I go on to the next amendment, I should like to point out to honourable members that for this one amendment honourable members have taken several hours ; and there are 52 clauses of this bill and hordes of amendments in my hand. At this rate, I do not know what progress the House proposes to make.

I suppose it would be convenient if I now ask the Honourable the Leader of the House whether he has any message to convey to the House regarding the question I had put on behalf of the non-official members, as to whether the time gained from Government business would be added to the time allotted for non-official business.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, I have put before His Excellency the suggestion that you made a few days ago, and His Excellency has been pleased to accept that suggestion, and any days that may be saved out of Government business will be added to the days allotted for private business. But it is not proposed to lengthen the proceedings of this Council beyond the 18th of this month. I hope, Sir, that it will lead to some curtailment of debates.

Mr. H. HAMILL : Sir, I move :

" In clause 13-A II for ' 10 ' substitute ' 20 . ' "

I want to ask the House to reconsider the composition of the senate in the interests of the university. I wish to draw the attention of the members of this House to the fact that the senate as it is proposed to constitute it will consist of 136 members ; that out of that number only 33 will be teachers or people concerned with education. That is, 33 teachers will come in either by direct election or ex-officio. Suppose the whole body of nominated members are teachers also. Then the total number of teachers on the senate will come to 73, that is, barely 50 per cent. of the total body. It once or twice appeared to me since discussion of the bill began that members are too much interested in securing representation on the Senate for various outside interests, forgetting that the prime function of the university is not to represent outside interests but to conduct the university education of this presidency. If it is to do so it must consist in the main of people who are carrying on that particular work. I would like to remind you, Sir, that in the university there are 29 boards of studies at present and that each one of these boards of studies must consist of not less than three members under the provisions of the present Act. Three times 29 comes to 87. Therefore we must make provision for such minimum number of educational people on the senate as shall give the university enough personnel to constitute these boards of studies. Now, I recognise that the Faculties have got the power of co-opting to them 50 per cent. of the fellows belonging to them. But this bill is brought before the House with the intention of empowering the university to advance and open up fresh departments. We must therefore make provision on the senate for more than the bare number of fellows required to man the present board of studies. I leave that question for the present and ask you, Sir, to remember that to man the present board of studies we require a minimum of 60 teachers engaged in university work. At present the bill provides, as I said, too small a number of educational people to carry on that work. Therefore I ask the House to consider the possibility of raising the number of elected university teachers and teachers from 10 to 20. This will make a very small addition indeed to the senate and will enable that body to conduct the business for which it is primarily constituted, that is, carrying on university work in this presidency.

Question proposed.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI (Bombay University) : Sir, I support the amendment moved by my honourable friend.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Why did not the honourable member so amend it in the select committee ?

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI : I am not here, Sir, to answer questions from honourable members.

[Mr. K. M. Munshi]

The position is this. There are something like 200 to 300 professors in the presidency. Representation of 10 members out of 400 is a very inadequate representation. As has been pointed out by my honourable friend Principal Hamill this increase is necessary to allow the faculty administration of the university to be carried on in a satisfactory manner. Therefore I have great pleasure in supporting the amendment.

Khan Bahadur F. M. DASTUR : I move the following amendment to the amendment of my honourable friend :

“ Add after the word ‘ teachers ’ in clause 13 II. Ordinary, (ii) the words ‘ including principals. ’ ”

Mr. H. HAMILL : I accept the amendment, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The amendment has been accepted by the honourable mover in the amended form.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Is this in addition to 13 in Clause 13 II. Ordinary A (i) ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Quite so.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : What about the amendment moved by the honourable member Mr. Hamill to that Sub-clause ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : He has not moved it.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, in order to curtail the debate, I beg to say that I am prepared to accept this amendment. I would add a word by way of explanation. My honourable friend Mr. Hamill had given notice of an amendment to Sub-clause (1) with reference to principals, by means of which he intended that all the 29 principals should come into the Senate as ex-officio Fellows. However, that has not been moved by him, and in order that the principals may be able to stand in this constituency the words “ including the principals ” have been proposed to be added. The result of accepting this amendment would be that the professors and the principals would be properly provided for and there would be less occasion for providing for them under nomination, because provision will be made for ten of them under this clause and therefore the 40 seats for nomination would be available to the classes who are sufficiently cultured and who have aspirations for being on the Senate.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Sir, I oppose this amendment. The principals have been given representation under A (i). Here “ university teachers and teachers,” that is the other professors, are given representation. If it is proposed to increase the representation of teachers and professors from 10 to 20 I have no objection. But attempt is being made to bring in principals also, and I must oppose that attempt. Out of 29 principals, 13 principals will be on the Senate under A (i). That is to say, they have got almost 50 per cent. representation. Under this amendment the representation given to the professors will be encroached upon by the principals. Now, we know that in almost all the colleges principals consider themselves as Lords of the professors, and if principals are included in this sub-clause, then they will use their authority over the professors to get into the Senate themselves, and the other professors will have no chance. When a person is the principal of a college it does not follow that he is the most competent; there may be other men who are more competent; it is by an accident that a person becomes the principal. Although there should be no differentiation between the principal and professors, and the professors should be as much respected as the principal, yet in this House the most favourably situated are given preference; everybody wants to bring in a man who is in power and the man who is not in power is shut out. I have no objection to supporting this amendment if no attempt is made to bring in the principals. Just now, there is a strike in the Gujarat College.....

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : There is no strike now.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : It might have ended now, but there was a strike. All these things are brought about by the overlordship of the principal. Therefore, we do not want to give more power to the principals and thus enable them to lord it over the professors. The principals are not to regard the professors as their subordinates, but in actual practice the principals regard themselves as the superiors of the professors, and if the principals want to get into the senate the professors will be nowhere. When we have 13 of the principals on the senate out of the total of 29, that is 50 per cent., they should be allowed to come into the senate under this sub-clause while 400 professors have only 20 seats, only 5 per cent. Therefore, I must oppose this attempt. If the honourable member Principal Haniff had moved his original amendment I would certainly have supported it, but I must oppose his later attempt to bring in the principals.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind) : Sir, I am extremely sorry that there should have been any misapprehension in the mind of the last speaker. (Rao Sahab D. R. Patil : Oh, oh :) I am extremely sorry that my honourable friend should say "Oh, oh" either to me or to the previous speakers. It is to remove some misapprehension that I wish to explain to the honourable House what this amendment is. The apprehension in the mind of the honourable member for Ahmedabad seems to be that if principals are allowed to contest seats in this constituency they will lord it over the professors in the election. The effect will be exactly the contrary. There are two electorates. One is the electorate exclusively given to principals, consisting of 13 seats, of which 8 are reserved for principals of arts colleges. Of these 8 again 5 are seats reserved at the rate of one each for each division, and the other three are to be formed into an electorate spreading all over the presidency. There are three seats for which voting will be all over the presidency. The second electorate will consist of professors and principals, and for seats reserved for this electorate principals as well as professors will enter into competition in order to be elected to the University Senate. The principals will have to compete not with the professors of their own colleges but also with professors of other colleges, and the election will be not by the professors of their own college but by 200 or 400 professors formed into a single electorate. So far as the competition with other professors is concerned, it will make the principals not the lords of the professors but the servants of the professors. There is therefore no possibility of the principal of a particular college lording it over the professors of his college. The electorate will be a single general electorate consisting of professors all over the presidency. In this general presidency electorate of 30 colleges, it is a salutary principle to allow professors and principals to contest for seats, so that the professors will not be made to feel that they are in any way inferiors of the principals but their equals, and the principals will feel that they have to compete with professors for seats on the Senate. Therefore the misapprehension in the mind of my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan is entirely baseless. I do not think he need have any fears to accept the amendment.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : Mr. President, when the motion was moved in this House to refer the bill again to the select committee it was vehemently opposed and the motion was not passed. The changes that have taken place in the mentality of honourable members on both sides of this House leads. . . . . (Interruptions).

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The honourable member can proceed with his speech without answering these interruptions.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : It shows that it would have been much better if the bill had been referred again to the select committee because it would have been a different bill altogether from the one now before us.

As regards the point raised in the present amendment of raising the number from 10 to 20 I wish only to say that in the original bill as drafted at the time of the first reading all the principals were made ex-officio fellows and I think rightly. In the select committee—I am very sorry I have again to refer to the select committee—I was in favour of making all the principals of colleges as ex-officio members and I still entertain that view. I was going to support the amendment of my honourable friend Mr. Hamill. But I now find that Government is seeking to do indirectly what they were not allowed to do directly. In the select committee, if my memory does not betray me, my honourable friend for the University was most vehement in curtailing the number of principals as ex-officio members of the senate.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : I rise to a point of order. The secrets of the select committee are disclosed. I think there must be a ruling on this point.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : What I have already said on the point is practically a ruling. The House can understand a suggestion which may have the force of a ruling that it is not proper to refer to what happened in the select committee. But I cannot quite blame the honourable member the last speaker because many honourable members and even the Honourable Minister has referred to it. I can only ask the honourable member to avoid it.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : I am quite ready to accept your ruling, but at the same time, Sir, things are so much mixed up that in order to elucidate them I cannot but refer to what took place in the select committee. When the principals were not all to be ex-officio fellows a special constituency was created for them. It was felt by some members including myself that their representation was inadequate and that something more should be done. Therefore we readily accepted the amendment to increase the seats from 5 to 10 by University teachers and teachers from among themselves. So it was thought that 5 more seats will be provided for them and that their number will thus be 13 plus 5=18. Now by this amendment that number is intended to be increased by 10 again, so that provision will be made for 28 principals out of the 29 principals in the presidency. Well, that is getting things done indirectly which one was not able to do directly. I think therefore that I should raise my word of protest. I would have liked to vote for the amendment of my honourable friend Mr. Hamill that all the principals should be ex-officio fellows. It is but right that the principals should have a voice on the Senate. But now the thing is being done under a subterfuge and I shall have to oppose this amendment.

Dr. M. K. DIXIT (Surat City) : Sir, I rise to support the amendment of the honourable member Mr. Hamill. I just want to say one word in reply to what my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan said. He said that principals lord it over professors and if they are again given another opportunity to get into the Senate by including them with the professors they may become tyrants, that is, wild men. Sir, we on this side, I mean the non-official members, who have to seek election know what election means. The election is a process of taming down a candidate who is a proved wild creature. If a principal is a tyrant the best thing is to make him seek election rather than his being made an ex-officio member. If he wishes to be elected as a member of the Senate through the electorate of University teachers and professors, he can only do so by being popular with his electorate. If his ways are unpleasant, if he does not behave well with the professors, his chances of success are few. He must be in his best behaviour if he wishes to be returned on the Senate. Thus the best way of establishing good and friendly relation between the principals and the professors, is to make both of them dependent on each other for votes.

Dr. B. R. AMBEDKAR : I rise to support the amendment. I am not really in favour of principals of the different colleges coming into the University ; because I am one of those who hold the view that if the University is to grow, the college organization must be subordinated to the faculty organization. It is my own feeling and I do not know how many honourable members share that view. If all the principals are allowed to enter they will carry into the University organization a spirit of the separatist and instead of integrating the University into one whole will make University a disintegrated body. But my honourable friend Mr. Hamill has advanced the view that a University must really contain the minimum strength of the academic element that is necessary for the University to function. He has also pointed out that the University as at present constituted does not contain the academic element in sufficient strength. Sir, I think that the point made out by the honourable member Mr. Hamill is worthy of consideration, for I think that while we are democratising the University we must not forget that the University should have a sufficient academic element to enable the University to function as a body entrusted with the educational affairs of this presidency. I do wish that while providing for the presence of this academic element into the University we could have avoided the entry of the principals for the reasons I have already given. But I find that is not now possible, because by the definition in clause 3 teachers include professors. The principals are professors and they could come in whether the honourable member Mr. Dastur's amendment is accepted or not. His amendment is only explanatory and does not introduce any new change. I therefore support it.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): I think, Sir, there appears to be some misapprehension on the part of some honourable members, because I think, as was pointed out by my honourable friend Dr. Ambedkar, the amendment only gives more representation to the educated element, and my honourable friend Mr. Jadhav and those who think with him really ought not to be frightened by the amendment. The honourable member Mr. Jadhav said he was prepared to have the principals, but to the amendment of the honourable member Khan Bahadur Dastur he takes exception. But, as was explained when the amendment was moved, the principals are also professors; the only question is whether the educational element is to be increased, so that the nominated seats, which are limited to the extent of 40, should not be encroached upon in order to make provision for some of the professors, that is to say, either professors or principals. So, I do think that as a matter of fact there is nothing to be frightened at in the amendment of the honourable member Khan Bahadur Dastur. It only explains; it only makes the meaning clearer; it leaves it beyond any doubt. So, I submit that the amendment will be carried by the House.

Mr. H. HAMILL: I do not think, Sir, that the objections to the proposal amount to very much. The honourable member Mr. Swaminarayan objects to the inclusion of principals in this clause to the amendment to my amendment, because principals are in his opinion no greater than professors. But it has already been pointed out that in our definition of "teachers" principals come in automatically. The inclusion of the honourable member Khan Bahadur Dastur's amendment in my amendment therefore does not change the validity of my amendment at all. Apart from that altogether, I put it to the Council that one of the objects that we ought to have in view is to produce the maximum of co-operation between affiliated colleges and the University, and whatever members of the college staffs may appear on University bodies, I can assure the members of this Council that the maximum co-operation will not be attained between the University and any college of which the principal is not on a University body. It is absurd to imagine that any ordinary member of a college staff other than the principal can with the same weight or influence represent the interests of his college to the University. The honourable member Mr. Jadhav objected to the amendment, on grounds which I cannot understand. If he was prepared to support an amendment which would make all principals ex-officio members of the Senate, then he ought, if he is logical, to support this amendment which makes it possible for those principals who do not come in by election under clause (A) (i) to come in under Clause (A) (ii). I, therefore, submit that the amendment should receive support from all the members of the Council.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I will accept the amendment, Sir. I have nothing to add to what the honourable members who have spoken already in favour of it have said.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The amendment proposed is . . .

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : When an amendment is moved accepted by Government, has it to be put to the House ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Yes. The amendment as amended and accepted runs thus :

In Clause 13, II Ordinary, (A) (iv), after the words "teachers" add "including principals," and substitute "20" for "10"

The clause (A) (ii) will, therefore, read as follows :

"By University teachers and teachers including principals from among themselves . . .
.....20."

Question put and carried.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : Sir, the amendment which I wish to move runs as follows :

In Clause 13 (1) II (A) (iv) delete (d) and (e).

I do not think it is necessary for me to say anything more. The mill-owners have got a very wide door open for them under the donation clause and I think it will be fit for them to enter by that clause and not to seek entrance under this clause. As representation is denied to labour, I urge that it stands to reason that the capitalists also should not get representation here. They will form a very small electorate, and especially two seats for them are rather excessive. I therefore move, Sir, that the seats given to them now by the select committee should be taken away.

Question proposed.

Mr. R. S. ASVALE (Bombay City, North) : Sir, I support the amendment.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The amendment has been moved and further discussion will be taken up to-morrow. But before I adjourn, I should like to intimate to the House that I have been given this requisition signed by several honourable members, and I find the name of the Honourable the Leader of the House also on it. Dussera holiday comes off on the 6th of October and some of the honourable members wish to go to their homes. In order, therefore, to allow honourable members sufficient time to go back, the suggestion made is whether I will allow the session to be held up to 2 p.m. on Wednesday the 10th October. (After a pause). Order, order. I am not going to take the matter up now, I am simply giving the information to the House so that they can have time to think over it till to-morrow. The House is now adjourned till 2 p.m. to-morrow, Tuesday, the 4th October 1927.

Tuesday, the 4th October 1927

The Council re-assembled at the Council Hall, Poona, on Tuesday, the 4th October 1927, at 2 p.m., the Honourable the President, Mr. A. M. K. DEHLAVI, Bar.-at-Law, presiding.

(Further consideration of Bill No. XXI of 1927, Bombay University Bill resumed.)

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. Further consideration of the amendment of the honourable member Mr. Jadhav to clause 13 of the Bombay University Bill, namely :

“ Clause 13 (1) II (A) (iv), delete (d) and (e).”

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North) : Mr. President, I rise to support the amendment moved by my honourable friend Mr. Jadhav. When the question of the representation of Labour on the Senate came up before this House yesterday, every honourable member who was in favour of the original proposition and against this amendment are now against that proposal also. The representation asked for Labour on the Senate was one member on the Senate, and yet this honourable House was not in the mood to accept that amendment, and it was thrown out with the help of the honourable members opposite. Sir, now as proposed in the bill and passed in the select committee only 10 seats have been reserved for teachers, and yet now the Honourable Minister comes forward and accepts 10 seats more to be given to the teachers. Does it not show that out of the total representation given on the Senate, a majority of the number of seats is given to the graduates of the Bombay University ? If you refer to any clause dealing with representation on the Senate, you will find that it is given to graduates. When the House is not inclined to give any representation on the Senate to anybody else except graduates, that means that the University would consist of graduates of those classes only, as it has been the case since the establishment of the University up to now. We know the history of the Bombay University, how it was established, and how these backward communities were purposely neglected when it was formed, and now, when the University is to be democratised, no provision is made for the representation of these backward classes nor do they desire to do so. In these democratic days even they do not want to help all the inhabitants of this presidency who are concerned in this matter. If such things are going on, I fear that the University in the future will consist of those people only for whose benefit the University was formed before, and nobody else. With these few remarks, I support the amendment moved by the honourable member Mr. Jadhav.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Sir, I wholeheartedly support the amendment of the honourable member Mr. Jadhav. Sir, in the original bill, the Millowners' Associations of Bombay and Ahmedabad were not given any representation, but this representation was given to them in the select committee. Now, in view of the fact that representation to Labour has been denied, in fairness and justice no representation should be given to the capitalists, namely, the millowners. Sir, in the temple of learning there should be no distinction between the rich and the poor, between the capitalists and the labourers. Here, unfortunately, we are going to create a temple of learning in direct contravention of the spirit which ought to prevail in a temple of learning. In this bill, the capitalists are given a nice place on the Senate, while Labour has been denied any place whatsoever. Sir, there is a proverb amongst us about a poet called Akho. He went to the temple dressed as a poor man in tattered clothes. At that time he was not admitted into the temple, and he was not given even a small morsel of the sweetmeats which are offered to the deity. But, later on, he dressed himself as a very rich merchant, and, in the expectation that this merchant would pay a large sum to the owner of the temple, he was taken just near the deity, allowed to see the deity from close proximity, and given basketfuls of sweetmeats. The same is the case here. We do not want to create a temple of learning in which such distinctions should be observed. If yesterday the amendment about giving representation to Labour had been carried, I should not have objected to the retention of the millowners, but here, it seems to be thought that because the millowners are rich, because the millowners might pay something, they should be kept. The expression that was used by the Honourable Minister was very enlightening. He said he wanted to rope in the millowners, as if the millowners will be roped in by the way in which it is sought to be done here. If a millowner pays a lakh of rupees, he has the right of sending a representative to the Senate, and if the Millowners' Associations pay each a lakh of rupees, the Associations will be able to send a representative to the Senate.

The Honourable Minister himself admitted that he did not have any idea that these pocket boroughs should get into the constitution of the senate. Because they have been there unfortunately he would support them. I wish he were courageous enough to take up the stand which he originally had taken and support the deletion of clauses (d) and (e) so that the constitution of the senate would be just and fair both to capital and labour. We should not give representation to the Millowners' Association because they are rich and deny representation to labour because they are poor (An Honourable Member : What about Indian Merchants' Chamber and Bombay Merchants' Chambers ?). I say they are also unnecessary. Unfortunately the amendment proposed to be moved for throwing away representation for Indian Merchants' Chamber and Bombay Merchants' Chamber was not moved by the honourable member Mr. Bole. I think the House will be well advised in throwing away the two clauses (d) and (e) and reject representation to the Millowners' Association of Ahmedabad and Bombay. I wholeheartedly support the amendment.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, I oppose the deletion of these clauses. The Honourable the Leader of the House explained yesterday how it was necessary to interest the industrial and commercial classes in the university so that they can support and largely endow money for technological studies which the university proposes to introduce. There is no contrast in this matter between capital and labour. Here is a case where if the industrial and commercial classes are on the senate it will be to the advantage of both capital and labour. It was with such a view that the select committee inserted this provision and I submit that the House should let these clauses stand.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The honourable mover to reply.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : Sir, I do not wish to take much time of the House. The Honourable Minister has assured us that there is no conflict of interest between capital and labour but I am very sorry to observe that the conflict was laid bare.....

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : I rise to a point of order. The motion before the House is for the deletion of the clause. How can the honourable member Mr. Jadhav exercise the right of reply as mover of the amendment ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The motion is for deletion of certain portions in a clause.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : I would request the honourable member to pay more attention to the work that is going on. If he had done so he would not have found time to call such points of order.

The Honourable Minister for Education has assured us that there is no conflict of interest between capital and labour. I was rudely shocked yesterday to see that even one seat was denied to labour. If the Honourable Minister had at least allowed that one seat to labour his argument that there was no conflict of interest between capital and labour could have been accepted. I am very sorry to say that I am not yet convinced that there is no conflict of interest. I have laid before the House my arguments. I am not personally against the millowners getting representation. They are doing a very necessary service to the nation and we wish them every success, because on their success depends the success of labour also. Unless capital thrives labour will not thrive. Therefore the prosperity of capital is as necessary to the prosperity of the nation as the well-being and healthy advance of labour. For that very purpose we have been asking for representation of labour on the senate. That has unfortunately been denied. I am quite sure that a day will come when labour will be heard and heard with respect, and be admitted into the senate by the front door and not let in by the backdoor as has been promised. I am rather very much suspicious about the usefulness of the nominated seats, because we sometimes find undesirable men getting nomination in certain bodies. Many a time many interests which have been over-represented in elections are also favoured in nominations. There are certain nominations to local bodies and even to the senate, which will substantiate the point I wish to make out. I do not think that I need take more time of the House by giving instances. I would impress upon this House that it is necessary in fairness to the demand of the labourers that there should not be any special favour shown to the millowners or capitalists. I am not going to shut out the millowners. Labour has been shut out by the rejection of the amendment which was moved yesterday. The capitalists will not at all be shut out because a wide door has been purposely provided for them. Both the millowners' associations of Bombay and Ahmedabad can at any time give a lakh of rupees and secure representation for them. It is unfortunate that the labourers have not got money to spare in order to secure a seat in a similar way. Therefore the millowners will not be shut out and they will like to come in their own right and not as a matter of favour. I think the capitalists should go into the senate on the right of purchase of that seat and not by the favour which they are now seeking.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I have nothing to add. I reserve my reply with regard to the remarks of the honourable member about nomination when the amendment to increase the number of nominated seats comes up.

Question put and lost.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: Sir, I claim a division.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: There is one thing I wish to point out, and this is the proper moment for it. We have had two instances of mistakes in the voting list. Yesterday in connection with clause 12 there was a division* asked for, and the tellers omitted to tick Mr. Martin who voted for the Ayes and in his stead marked Mr. Marzban who voted for the Noes. Mr. Marzban says that he voted for the Noes and Mr. Martin says he voted for the Ayes. Therefore a correction should be made to that effect in the voting list. Mr. Marzban was shown in both the lists, and therefore there will be no correction in the totals of the votes marked in both the lists. I would, therefore, repeat my request to the honourable members who go as tellers to be careful to tick the proper voters.

Question put: House divided: Ayes 14; Noes 55; Motion lost.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North) : Mr. President, I beg to move :

In clause 13 (1) II, Ordinary (A), sub-clause (iv) after “(e)” add the following sub-clauses :

“(ee) Labor Unions of the city of Bombay .. .. .	3
“(ef) Labour Unions of Ahmedabad .. .. .	1
“(eg) Labour Unions of Sholapur .. .. .	1

My reason for bringing forward this amendment is this. Yesterday when the question of giving representation to the Provincial Committee of the Trade Union Congress was brought before this Council by the honourable member Mr. Ginwalla, it was argued by some of my honourable friends that if representation was asked for specific labour unions they were willing to support it. And this is the amendment which they wanted yesterday. It has to be borne in mind that even the honourable member Mr. Winterbotham pointed out in this House that if such a specific amendment is brought before the House he might support it. Now this amendment is before the House. There are nearly 3,50,000 labourers in Bombay City, Ahmedabad and Sholapur and I am not demanding representation for the Bombay City labourers only. Yesterday when the amendment regarding the representation of provincial committees was being discussed it was pointed out that it consisted of very few members and that it was not necessary to give representation to such a small body. But here I would bring to the notice of the House that these unions do not consist of a few persons but it consists of more than 10,000 in each union. In the textile labour unions there are about 12,000 members ; in the G. I. P. Railway labour unions there are about 6,000 members and in the seamen's labour union there are about 12,000 members. There are nearly 30,000 people belonging to the labour unions and they are very well organized. The Government of India have registered these unions. We do not want the unions which have not been recognised by Government to have representation on the senate of the university. Now some of the unions such as the railway union, the port trust union and the seamen's union have been recognised by their own employers. It is only the textile union that has not been recognised by their employers, that is the millowners. I have therefore made out this case for the labourers to have representation on the senate of the university and I think the argument that Labour is not united and is not organised is not a true reason. They are organised to-day and will be thoroughly organised in few days. I believe that Government will come forward and give them the front-door entrance and not the back-door entrance. No doubt the labourers will get representation by nomination but it will not be adequate. No doubt they will get one seat by nomination, but I think it will not be sufficient for such a big body like this. I would conclude my speech with the request that the Honourable House as well as Government benches should help this moderate amendment, which is not a big request as four seats have been given to the Merchants' Chamber and the Mill-owners Association.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR (Karachi City) : Mr. President, I rise to support the amendment moved by my honourable friend from Bombay North. Sir, we heard a very eloquent speech of the Honourable the Leader of the House yesterday clearing and clarifying the position of Government with regard to representation of Labour. If I followed him aright he ultimately came down to this fact that because there were different unions who could not combine in an effort to secure for them jointly representation on the senate, it was not quite possible for this House or for Government to support the representation of the Labour unions on the senate. Sir, if the Honourable the Leader of the House sticks to that position then the amendment moved by my honourable friend really clears the difficulty. So far as the city of Ahmedabad is concerned, as you know, it is a big centre of textile industry. It might be called the Manchester of India and this is the only industry in Ahmedabad which employs over a lakh of persons. That union of textile industrial workers is very well formed. It is functioning since the last 8 or 10 years. In that union a lady like Ben Anasuya Sarabhai is the Secretary. They have a regular office; their subscriptions are collected regularly; they have a hospital and a dispensary; they have their schools and it is a model union of which the Bombay presidency may well be proud. Yesterday we were anxious to secure only one seat for Labour and so far as Bombay is concerned I do not think there is much force in the arguments that they advanced. If there is a will there is a way. If Government is anxious to give representation to Labour it is not at all difficult. As a matter of fact Mr. Joshi who is the representative of Labour on the Legislative Assembly and who is the head of the Trade Union Congress in Bombay, has organized these unions very well. But if there is any difficulty in Bombay it cannot be said that such difficulties are experienced so far as Ahmedabad is concerned. Therefore, Sir, the amendment of my honourable friend Mr. Asavale puts Government to their test, to their sincerity to see whether they actually desire to give representation to Labour. Sir, it has been asked in the course of the debate yesterday, what purpose the representation of Labour on the university is likely to secure. The honourable member for Satara went on to say that the time has not yet arrived when Labour can be given representation on the senate. Sir, I should like to deal with these points which had been raised and to which I had no opportunity to answer. Sir, as you know, in the Bombay presidency textile industry is by far the greatest industry, and largely on that account the Millowners' Association, for which the Honourable the Minister for Education seems to have some soft corner, just put in a strong plea for retaining the representation added somehow in the select committee, and since he has allowed that representation, on that very principle, Sir, since textile labour is largely affected, on that account I think these unions should be given representation. It was pointed out to us that because the millowners are employing a large number of graduates, or at any rate would employ a large number of graduates, who should be acquainted with the textile industry, therefore, it was necessary for millowners to represent their point of view, so that the graduates that may be trained in the University might have some practical knowledge of the working of the mill industry. Sir, this was the point raised by the Honourable the Leader of the House, and I think, Sir, that if the working knowledge of the textile industry from the point of view of the millowners has become a matter of necessity for the University, then I ask, Sir, is it or is it not also necessary that a labour representative ought to give his views as to what kind of knowledge a graduate who is thinking of joining the textile industry should have from a labourer's point of view? After all, Sir, these young graduates that you are turning out from these colleges are surely going to be the managers and are going to have a very large share in the affairs of the management of mills. And, Sir, since that is the case, I hope this point will at least be conceded that these managers, these assistant managers, these superintendents, and those who will be interested in the mill industry should know the other side of the shield. They should know how to deal with the problems of labour and how to work with people with whom they have to work and from whom they have to take work. So, I think it is necessary that people who are turned out by the University should have some practical knowledge, some living touch with the labour conditions and the labourers of Bombay and Ahmedabad. Therefore, on that very strong point the Honourable the Leader of the House, I am sure, will move the Government benches to vote for this proposal.

Then, Sir, again, with regard to the function of the University, if you will look at this very name "University" and you take the first word "Universe", it covers the whole of the universe (Laughter). Well, Sir, leave alone the universe, I am talking of this only one presidency, and of this presidency labour forms 90 per cent. of people, and if this University has got no purpose, if this University has got no ambition to be in living touch with this 90 per cent. of people, I ask you, Sir, whether this name "University" with a name collaborating the whole of the universe can have any practical application worthy of its name. Therefore, Sir, in England and other countries they are organising extension lectures at night, and if you want that these labourers should have the benefit of those lectures, that those lectures should be organised in a manner that would elevate the labouring classes to the largest extent, then I submit to you, Sir, that you should have a representative of labour who ought to be able to guide the people as to what kind of lectures, what kind of subjects and what kind of work in the extension lectures the lecturers should give.

[Mr. N. A. Bechar]

Then, again, Sir, I find that there is a certain amount of prejudice, there is a certain amount of hatred, towards the labouring classes and those who are doing manual work are considered to be very inferior beings, and those who associate with labour are also somehow roundly condemned, and to think of labour, to talk of labour, or to consider anything about labour, in the estimation of these aristocratic and intellectual people is mere sham. I ask those people holding these views to change their opinion. The Lords in the kingdom of England about a hundred years ago shuddered at shaking hands with labourers and their representatives, and they thought they had no use for these people. If they ever shook hands with them, they took good care to apply special soap to clean their hands. And what do you find to-day? To-day those very liberals, those very Lords, have served under Labour Government and labour members are there to-day occupying their rightful position in the British Parliament. Sir, I ask these very people to kindly think of it, for I am sure the future is with labour. In ten or fifteen years you may find a very great revolution. Perhaps people holding socialistic views, labour views, might come into power, and I ask my honourable friend representing the University as to whether he does or does not desire that people holding labour views should be actually acquainted with the problems of the University. From whom is he going to get grants if the next Minister came from Labour? Is he going to get a single farthing unless and until the labour member knows the actual requirements of the University? I go further and say that labour ought to be tried and trained in the actual problems of administration of day to day, and unless and until you begin to give him some share in the administration of your country,—and I say University is a very good ground for training,—then, I say, Sir, you are really helping to have a sort of chaos and are not making any attempt to train those who are going to be your leaders of to-morrow. Therefore, Sir, I hope that the attitude exhibited by people on the other side, as also the Government benches, will be quite reversed to-day and that they will see the reasonableness of conceding this small demand which has been made by the amendment moved by my honourable friend from Bombay. Sir, it has been argued by the Honourable Minister of Education that because the millowners are likely to give him money, therefore, let us round them up in the University, so that it may be possible for him to get some money for the University. Sir, . . .

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. May I point out to the honourable member that the question of the claims of labour unions and congress has been placed before the House in full detail for the last two days and the honourable member is taking this opportunity also to answer points which have been raised before this amendment? I should request honourable members, whoever they be, to limit their remarks to the amendment before the House and that too briefly.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR: I shall conclude, Sir. I wanted to request your indulgence in replying to this one point which is a very important point. You are giving representation to the millowners with a view that they will contribute in material wealth for the advancement of the cause of the university.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That has been argued over and over again.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : Then I sit down.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by my honourable friend Mr. R. S. Asavale. When at the time of the first reading of this bill some amendment was moved for giving representation to Mahomedans and to backward, depressed and labouring classes, certain speeches were made against the policy of introducing the question of communal representation in the sacred precincts of the temple of education, the university, but what has happened since then ? Those very members who preached long sermons have accepted the principle of communal representation in another form. They have given representation not to communities as such but to classes and as they have given representation to classes, it is but fair and just that they should give representation to the masses also.

It has been asked what good labour representatives would do in the senate. I think that if labour representatives had been there in adequate numbers, they would have shown the Senate what sort of education is required to be given at the present time to our young men. The university, in the absence of labour representatives, has only become a factory for turning out clerks who do not know what to do after passing their examinations. Had they been given technical education, they would have been able to earn their living. Therefore, I submit that it is very necessary that the representatives of labour should be on the senate.

Yesterday it was said when my honourable friend Mr. Ginwalla moved his amendment for giving representation to the provincial committee of the All-India Trade Union Congress that that body was not well represented and well organised, but here there is a definite proposal as representation has been asked for such bodies as labour unions of the city of Bombay, labour unions of the city of Ahmedabad and the labour unions of the city of Sholapur. Nobody can deny that these bodies are well organised. They are carrying on their business in a very good manner. I therefore submit that the House should not give representation to one class and deny it to another. The Honourable the Education Minister told us yesterday that he was not at first willing to give representation to millowners but that afterwards he agreed to give it to them because he had hopes of getting money from the millowners for endowing the university. This proves the truth of the old saying that money makes the mare go. But, Sir, I would request him to be fair and just to the rights and claims of the labouring classes as well and I hope that he will accept the modest amendment before the House.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Urdu) : Sir, I support the amendment which my friend from Bombay has brought forward, and I wish he had proposed similar amendment for granting representation to agriculturists upon whose combined labour we are all enjoying and running in motor cars. Here we see representation is given to Merchants' Chambers and Chambers of Commerce, Millowners' Associations and so on, but they at once get ready to cut the throats of labour when the question of representation to labour on the Senate is brought forward. When I saw yesterday's "tamasha" I was exceedingly surprised. We know how adept Government is in playing off one party against the other and holding their seat firm and strong. If to-day they pat one party on their backs, to-morrow you will find them applauding the other party and in the bargain they will strengthen their own position in the Council. What astounded me most was the fact that whereas Khaddarwallas who were reputed to be strong opponents of Government are now flocking into the Government lobby and those who were thick friends of Government are seen voting against Government. Why should we not, as brothers, decide amongst ourselves what each party would like and then claim it from Government? Mahatma Gandhi had advised his countrymen not to enter the Councils because he was certain that in the lure and glare of the Councils his countrymen would forget themselves and their duty to their own country. Here I am extremely grieved to find the sorry spectacle of Khaddarwallas themselves forgetting themselves and Mahatma Gandhi's prediction appears to have come true at least in the case of this Council.....

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: On a point of order, Sir. I wish to ask whether any member has any right to attribute motives to any other member of this House and also whether the Chair will come to our relief. The honourable member has been attributing motives to honourable members of this House. There has been a ruling given on this subject by your predecessor and it is as follows:—

"The Honourable the Finance Member is quite right. I think in this House no motive ought to be attributed by one member to another—by non-official members to Government members and by Government members to non-official members.....It will affect considerably the dignity of the House."

If the President does not come to our relief, the whole discussion will take a disagreeable form.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I was coming to the relief to some extent, but the ruling that has been quoted refers to individual attacks. Here there is a general statement made by the honourable member as to his own surprise as to how his comrades in Khaddar have gone adrift from him. I would however warn the honourable member, Mr. Haji Mir Mahomed Baloch, that if his remarks are not soon brought to bear upon the amendment, they will be ruled out of order.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: I will obey your ruling, Sir. Some of my honourable friends get delighted at my remarks, but their own position, I should like to tell them, was worse than Khadarwala swarajists till recently. Sir, my object in making those remarks was to show that we co-operate with Government while neglecting the interests of our brethren outside. In this House, all of us on this side should co-operate and do what is necessary to safeguard the interests of Labour. That is my hope, and if we cannot do it, we will be able to do nothing.

Mr. G. L. WINTERBOTHAM (Bombay Chamber of Commerce) : Sir, as I was referred to by the honourable mover of this amendment, I think it desirable to explain my position as to why I find it entirely impossible to support this amendment. It appears to me that the objection which I raised to the amendment moved by the honourable member Mr. Ginwalla yesterday applies with fourfold force to the present amendment. In the first amendment, it was proposed to give the right to elect one member to a small body. By this proposed amendment it is proposed to give the right to elect 5 members to a wholly undefined body of people who cannot, by any stretch of the imagination, be considered to constitute a satisfactory electorate. The honourable member does not even seek to define what particular unions of the various cities named should have the right to elect : he does not even say that they are to be registered unions. And even if he means registered unions, these are yet in their infancy having only received legal recognition some six months ago. How then can they be regarded as constituting a satisfactory electorate ? That, as the Honourable the Leader of the House stated yesterday, was the only serious difficulty in meeting the wishes of the representatives of Labour. If the representatives of Labour would settle down and try to evolve some amendment which would satisfactorily meet the point raised by the Honourable the Leader of the House yesterday, there would be some point in these discussions. I submit that it is pure waste of time to go on in this way. If a satisfactory electorate to send a representative of Labour to the Senate is suggested, I think the House will be only too pleased to consider it. I would ask the honourable mover of the amendment to try and put himself in the position of the Registrar or whoever is the proper party under the rules to call upon this proposed constituency to elect a member. To whom would he apply, and after having applied to one union, what would there be to prevent 15 or 16 other unions coming in and saying that they too had the right to elect a member ? Under these circumstances, I think it is quite impossible to accept the amendment.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR (Karachi City) : Sir, I wish to move a slight amendment to the clause.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The honourable member has already spoken.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : I want to move a verbal amendment.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The honourable member should have moved his amendment when he spoke. What is the amendment ?

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : I want to say with regard to labour unions, they should be textile labour unions. I want to add the word " textile " before the words " Labour Unions of Ahmedabad," so that it might be made clear.

Mr. R. S. ASVALE : I accept it.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : Sir, I rise to a point of order, as it is rather an important point. I have no desire whatever to prevent the honourable member moving an amendment, but my honourable friend has addressed the House, on the question once, and having once addressed the House, he has no right to address the House again. Moving an amendment means addressing the House, although he says only five words. Unless you permit it, the honourable member cannot speak on the same subject a second time, which is not allowed under the rules. I contend that the honourable member is out of order in rising a second time.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I do not take such a narrow view of the matter. The Honourable the General Member is perfectly right in drawing my attention to the fact, and I quite agree with him, that no honourable member has a right to address the House twice on the same subject. It is possible, and every one can imagine, that a particular amendment may suggest itself to an honourable member at any stage of the debate, and that amendment may be suggested without a speech, as the honourable member has suggested the amendment. He has only suggested it.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Can he not go to some one else ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The suggestion is to add the word "textile." The Honourable Minister for Education said that he could have suggested the amendment to another honourable member. But he can imagine easily a case in which an honourable member may go round the whole House and not find a single honourable member willing to do it.

An Honourable MEMBER : Then he cannot move it.

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL : If the ruling given by the Chair is that the honourable member has a right to move his amendment, then I have nothing to say.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : He has only suggested the addition of that word.

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL : Then I want to move an amendment to the amendment. It is as follows :

Add the word "Textile" before the word "Labour" in (ef) of clause 13.

I do not think it is necessary to make a speech. I merely move it.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALÉ : I accept the amendment, and the suggestion also.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : A suggestion is not an amendment.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : I rise to a point of order. Before an amendment to an amendment is moved, permission has to be taken to do it. I do not know whether permission was asked for or granted. Mere suggestions, I think, cannot be regarded as amendments.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That was merely a suggestion. He wished to suggest that the word "Textile" should be added. The matter has ended there.

Rao Sahab D. R. PATIL : Then I move the amendment with the permission of the Chair.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The word "Textile" is to be added before the words "Labour Unions of Ahmedabad." That has been accepted by the mover of the original amendment.

Mr. G. L. WINTERBOTHAM : May I make a speech on an amendment to an amendment to an amendment.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I do not think the honourable member can speak now.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : With your permission, Sir, I should like to move an amendment to the amendment. It is as follows :

Add the word "Registered" before the words "Labour Unions" in (ee), (ef) and (eg).

That will solve the difficulty which was mentioned by the honourable member Mr. Winterbotham.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : I accept that too, Sir

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Now, the amendment is to add the word "textile" to the unions of Ahmedabad and Sholapur and the word "registered" to be added to all the three sub-clauses. Has the honourable mover of the original amendment leave of the House to amend his amendment accordingly ?

Question put and leave refused.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : Can we claim a division on this, Sir ?

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : I do not know how we can have a division so soon.

Rao Sahab D. R. PATIL : Is the leave of the House necessary, Sir ? Will not the permission of the Chair be sufficient ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : After the House is possessed of the amendment the leave of the House is necessary.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : Sir, it is painful for me to see the temper of the House when such an innocent amendment is moved. A certain section of the House has refused leave.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The amendment to the amendment is not before the House.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : I am referring to the fact that leave was not granted to the amendment to the amendment. I think I am perfectly justified in commenting upon it, and speak on the original amendment.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Yes ; the honourable member can speak on the original amendment.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Objections were raised to the amendment as it was proposed by my honourable friend from Bombay ; and in order to remove certain difficulties an amendment to an amendment was proposed. I think it was in accordance with the suggestion of honourable members who thought that the amendment was defective in certain particulars. It is very strange that on such an occasion leave should be withheld.

[Mr. B. V. Jadhav]

It shows the temper of the House and certain members are not even willing to allow things run smoothly. They want to have things all in their own way. They are not open to reason and will not allow any say to those who in this matter have to differ from them. I do not think that it is an enviable mood of mind.

However that may be, coming to the original amendment as moved by my honourable friend from Bombay, I wish to say that only yesterday the Honourable the Leader of the House when he opposed the amendment of the honourable member Mr. Ginwalla said that the constituency proposed by him was not a regular constituency, that the members of the Congress were very few in number and therefore he could not accept it as a constituency to represent labour. But if some one would suggest a properly organised constituency he would consider the proposal. To-day we find that he has not opposed this amendment and I am led to believe that perhaps he may be thinking of supporting the amendment. I shall be very glad if he does so ; and I shall be painfully surprised if he does not. It is necessary that labour unions or at least those which are registered should have representation on the senate. Labour unions in their present stage of development are not perfect. Nobody will deny that. It does not mean to say that they are not organised bodies. They are being slowly organised and evolved and if they are encouraged properly, I think their development will be faster. If they are always snubbed their progress will be retarded to a great extent. Even in the case of our children we give them encouragement by patting on the head or by offering sweet things when they do even a trifling thing. In the same way these infant labour unions and labour organisations deserve to be encouraged by those who are in power. But I find that the temper of the House is opposed to reason. They appear to have come here with a certain set of opinions and seem determined to have their own way. I appeal to them again to see that labour which has been neglected so far be encouraged. They do deserve encouragement. They are trying to organise themselves ; they have formed a number of registered unions and their total number of membership has gone up to 30,000. If this is not a laudable effort, worthy of recognition and encouragement, I fail to see what will satisfy the opposition benches. I therefore appeal to Government to see their way to accept this amendment.

Mr. H. DOW : Sir, I rise to oppose this amendment. I wish to draw the attention of the House to one small point. It must have struck the House what a large measure of the support which this amendment has received has come from Karachi. Karachi is a large city ; as large as Ahmedabad, and a great deal larger than Sholapur. The members from Karachi who spoke on behalf of this amendment, represent labour or claim to represent labour, but what they have to say about labour in Karachi ? Nothing. Why ? (Interruption).

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order.

Mr. H. DOW : The answer is that if they had referred to labour conditions in Karachi, they would have practically had to support the position taken up by the Honourable the Leader of the House. Labour in Karachi is so unorganized that, if it is to be represented at all, it must really be by nomination in the ordinary way.

Then, the other point which I would have liked to make is one which I think would have been made by the honourable member representing the Chamber of Commerce if he had been allowed to speak. But I think the amendment proposed to the amendment has been ruled out, and therefore I cannot speak on that point, and I therefore resume my seat.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District) : Sir, I feel impelled to take part in this debate by the remarks that have fallen from the lips of the honourable member who has just sat down. He referred to Labour in Karachi. He said that Labour in Karachi was very much disorganised... (Mr. H. Dow : Unorganised)... unorganised, and he suggested from that the inference that because Labour in Karachi is unorganised and because owing to that circumstance Labour in Karachi may not be entitled or admitted to receive representation on the University, therefore Labour in Bombay, Labour in Ahmedabad and Labour in Sholapur should not be given representation on the Senate. That is the logic that the honourable member Mr. Dow commended to the acceptance of the honourable House. Well, the honourable House might have seen what logic there is in that argument. Because representation may not perhaps properly be given to Labour in Karachi, Labour in the other cities mentioned in the amendment should not be given representation. In other words, he wants to penalise Labour in Bombay, Labour in Ahmedabad and Labour in Sholapur, because the condition of Labour in Karachi is not satisfactory. I need hardly make any further comment upon this position in order to show how irrational and absurd it is.

Sir, I share the pain which has been expressed by my honourable friend to the right (Mr. B. V. Jadhav), as regards the somewhat—no, I should say not “somewhat” but “the extremely stolid”—indifference which many members of this honourable House are showing to Labour and the interests of Labour. Yesterday I listened to some portions of the speech made by the Honourable the Leader of the House when the principle of representation of Labour on the University was being considered in connection with another amendment. Well, one finds it difficult to get over one's psychology, one's habits, one's tendencies generated by one's environment. However pained I may be, I am not prepared to blame the capitalists for the stolid indifference which they are showing to Labour for their unsympathetic attitude towards Labour. But really I do not at all understand why there should be this serious objection to the representation of Labour on the University. Is the Thames going to be set on fire? Are the Mula and the Mutha going to be set on fire? Is the Back Bay going to be burned if Labour is given representation on the University? Why should honourable members be so much afraid of Labour? Is it a bugbear to them; is it a bogey to them; is it like a red rag to the bull to them? They seem to imagine that if they gave representation to Labour, Labour would in course of time become so powerful that it might lead to Bolshevism, and that these would-be Indian Bolsheviks might follow the example of Russian Bolsheviks and put down and destroy all capital and capitalism. Unless that fear is lurking in their hearts it is extremely difficult to understand the hostile attitude of some honourable members. On the contrary, Sir, if these capitalists will only realise the beneficial effects of giving representation to Labour on such bodies, they will be the first to welcome this proposal, because as I conceive it, the result of this representation of Labour on the University and similar bodies would be that Labour would come to realise the importance of higher education. Let us imagine that some men belonging to the labouring classes, let us say Hari or Govind actually working in the factories of Bombay but having some knowledge of English and able to understand the debates in the Senate, are on the Senate; what will be the result of the presence of these men on the Senate? I am sure they will feel a sense of elevation; they will feel that their status is raised; they will be coming into contact with enlightened minds; they will realise that there is a body of enlightened and intelligent men in which they have a place; they will see with their own eyes and hear with their own ears, questions of vast importance in the educational field being discussed; and they will realise what position, what greatness, what eminence men can attain by virtue of education and by virtue of culture. And the result of all that will be this: they will in due time emulate the example of their educated countrymen; they will feel that they should give higher education, more and more education, to their children. The net result will be that if you have Labour representatives on the Senate it will raise their level until it approximates more and more to the level of the higher classes. The result is bound to be that all bitterness of feeling, all sense of warfare between one class and another, if it does not altogether disappear, will be minimized. Will not this be a good result and should not this House endeavour to bring about such a result? Why should Capital fight shy of giving representation to Labour on the University.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: What is the way?

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN: My honourable friend who seems to think that his duty is to indulge in interruptions, and who therefore may aptly be called the honourable member for interruption (laughter) says "what is the way." Well, he himself won't suggest anything; he won't speak, but he will disparage the ways suggested by others.

Why should there be this hostility to the representation of Labour on the Senate? I assure the House that nothing but good will follow from having three or four representatives of Labour on the University, and therefore I strongly appeal to the House that this representation should be given. If a particular mode is not proper or if a particular method is somewhat defective why should not my honourable friend, Mr. Pahalajani, put in his suggestions to improve them. Why, on the contrary he should simply try to pick holes in the amendment before us? That is not fair. If there is a defect in the method let the defect be removed, but I do not see any defect in the particular method proposed. There are organized labour unions in the City of Bombay. Are there not?

[Mr. R. G. Pradhan]

There are. What is wrong with this method? I am told that the labour unions in Bombay have become more and more articulate; that they are becoming stronger and stronger. Then, what is wrong with this method? There are labour unions at Sholapur. What is wrong with the labour union there? It is easy for my honourable friend Mr. Pahalajani to whisper "but methods." What is wrong with this method? If it is so, then why not get up and say that it is a wrong method because of these defects. But he won't make any suggestion; he will make no speech; he will go on whispering. I submit that these methods which are suggested by this amendment are perfectly sound and it will be beneficial to have the representatives of Labour on the University. With these words I support this amendment.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): The Honourable the Leader of the House said yesterday.....

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE: I rise to a point of order. My point is that the honourable member is referring to a debate which is already past and concluded. I am drawing attention to a ruling of the President on this point. It says:

"The Honourable the President: I have allowed one or two honourable members to refer to the speeches made at a debate the day before. It is irregular to refer to any speech in a concluded debate. I do not wish to enforce that very strictly but at the same time I hope honourable members will be good enough not to refer to speeches made in a debate that has already concluded."

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I have drawn the attention of honourable members not to repeat arguments on questions which have been fully debated.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: May I rise to a point of order. I believe the honourable member has already spoken.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: A point of order has been raised for the second time. I think it will not be giving the liberty of speech fully if I were to go on these narrow lines. What the honourable member who stood up last in connection with this amendment said was the addition of the word "registered" before the word "unions." He made no speech on the amendment at all. The view taken by the honourable the General Member as well as the Honourable Leader is that as soon as a member gets up and says a word or two, whatever that may be, in connection with an amendment or motion before the House he has lost the right of speech and so he cannot speak again on the amendment. I do not take that narrow view and I would therefore allow the honourable member to speak.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHLANGIR: Did the honourable member move an amendment? He did move the amendment and you, Sir, actually put the amendment of the honourable member to the House and the House did not allow the mover to accept it. If it was a regular amendment I contend that the honourable member cannot speak again. The very fact that his amendment was placed before the House is clear proof that the honourable member did move an amendment and thus addressed the House.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I am afraid I cannot take that view. What the amendment proposed by him was, the addition of a word, and he did not speak on the amendment. I therefore give him the right to speak.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : The Honourable the Leader of the House said that he could not imagine that there would be any Chancellor who would omit the claims of Labour at the time of making nominations. We wish that the claims of Labour should not be recognised by nomination. All the labour unions of Bombay suggested the names of labour representatives for nomination to this Council but those names were set aside and convenient persons were nominated by Government. Therefore it is necessary that Labour should have regular elected representatives.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : I rise to a point of order, Sir. "Convenient names"—that is the language used by the honourable member against the present members nominated by Government. I think it is a slur on the present members who have been nominated.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Does the honourable member refer to the present members nominated ? Did he refer the words to the present members ?

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Yes, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Well, he should withdraw the words.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : I withdraw. Therefore, it is necessary that the Labour should get into the Senate through the door of election. Now they are going to nominate labour members under the power of nomination given to the Chancellor. But that is not the proper way to get Labour represented. Members who get into the Senate should preserve their independence and their independence can only be preserved if they come through the independent door of election. Therefore, the amendment is sound. It cannot be said that this is not a constructive suggestion for the election of Labour. These labour unions of Bombay and Ahmedabad are all registered bodies under the Trade Unions Act, and that would be the right thing for allowing Labour to get in. I shall not mind if this nomination is cut down from 40 to 30 even, but Labour should come through the front door of election. Therefore, I support the amendment.

Mr. R. S. ASVALE (Bombay City, North) : Sir I do not wish to take up much time of the House as the debate has taken such a long time, and from this it will be seen by the honourable members on both the sides how much importance has been given to this amendment. Now, some of my honourable friends here have suggested that the word "registered" is not before the word "unions." But I have spoken in the beginning when I moved this amendment that my intention is that the Government should give power only to those bodies which are registered, and there are at present registered unions in Bombay, in Ahmedabad and in Sholapur. I do not think there would be a single union which would not be registered under the Registration Act, and it is a right which has been given by Government now to all the unions. Government has framed certain rules and regulations for the registration of unions, and according to that, only those unions who follow those rules mentioned by the Government in the register book and when they will be accepted by the Unions, then only such Unions will have the right of registration. I do not see that there will be any fear. As I have stated before, Government are willing to give nomination to labour. Why should they not give actually the right of election, so that they should send the proper persons to the Senate of the University? They should not be afraid that, when there are so many members to be sent to the Senate, if only five people go there representing labour, the whole University will be thrown down by these people. Instead of that, it will be a great help to them to know the real position and the affair of the University.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That is repeating arguments now. Let us have some original arguments, new arguments.

Mr. R. S. ASAVAL : With these remarks, I would again request the Government benches to help this amendment and get it passed.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, I oppose this amendment. I do not wish to repeat the remarks which I made on a former occasion. However, I cannot help saying that the University principally concerns itself with higher education, and the manual labourer, as such, has hardly anything to do with a body like this. In this present House, which has been legislating for the whole of the presidency, there is no representative of labour through the door of election, because the labour has not been properly organised and Government have to nominate people in order to represent labour. And who are coming here? Does the manual labourer come here, or do people who pose as representatives of labour come here? Consequently, Sir, I submit that if at all their representatives could be brought on the University who take interest in labour, it could be only through the door of nomination. My honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan referred to election and he said labour must come through the door of election. Now, I submit, and every one of us knows, and my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan and myself know, how precarious the door of election is. Consequently, I submit that for labour to enter the door of University through the door of election is absolutely impossible, and those alone would get into the door who are not factory labourers, who are not textile labourers, but people who pose as representatives of labour but who may or may not represent labour properly in the temple of learning. I, therefore, submit that this amendment should be rejected.

Question put. House divided. Ayes, 26; Noes, 53. Motion lost.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The next amendment is the one which stands in the name of the honourable member Rao Saheb D. R. Patil. But before he moves that, I should like to inform the House, to avoid confusion, that instead of the honourable members getting up and proposing the alteration or suggestion of a word here and there in an amendment which is proposed and sitting down, they would be better advised to speak on the amendment and, towards the conclusion of that speech, they might suggest whatever amendments they wish to propose so that the question of having spoken once or twice would not arise at all, and if it is done now after having given this instruction, I would have to stop the speaker.

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL (East Khandesh District) : I move the amendment which stands in my name as follows :—

Clause .3. (f) .it the word "city" in (f) of IV in (A) of II Ordinary.
 Omit the word "city" in (g) of IV in (A) of II Ordinary.
 Omit the word "city" in (h) of IV in (A) of II Ordinary.
 Omit the word "city" in (i) of IV in (A) of II Ordinary.
 Omit the word "city" in (j) of IV in (A) of II Ordinary.

Mr. President, my object in moving this amendment is that when we want to really democratise the university and thereby widen the franchise given to the city municipalities of various divisions, why should we give this right of franchise only to city municipalities ? You will note that there is only one seat given for city municipalities in each of the various groups of the Presidency, namely, the Deccan group, the Karnatak group and so on. To my mind, Sir, the representation that is given is not adequate. Of course some other honourable member may be pleased to move an amendment that instead of one seat two seats should be given, but so far as my present amendment goes, I do not quarrel over the one seat that is allotted to the city municipalities of each of the various groups. My only grievance is why should you not give this right of representation to all the municipalities in the various divisions of the Presidency ? Why do you limit that only to city municipalities ? The Honourable the Leader of the House observed some time ago that in the case of labour there is not proper organisation and therefore there would be difficulty of election. But here there is not the least difficulty in that direction because we have got so many municipalities in each division of the presidency, so as to form easy constituencies. So there will be no difficulty about election. Again I do not say that you should increase the number of seats from one to more than one. Under these circumstances, I do not think there will be any objection on the part of the Government to accept my amendment. I do not want to increase the number of seats. I simply say, give this right of representation not only to city municipalities but to all the municipalities. That is my amendment, and I hope it will be accepted by the House.

Mr. N. E. NAVLE (Ahmednagar District) : Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by my honourable friend Rao Saheb Patil. The amendment only seeks to redress a very legitimate and just grievance on the part of the municipalities. Sir, I do not see any special reason why municipalities other than city municipalities should have been denied the right of choosing their own representatives on the Senate. As a matter of fact, those who know the affairs of these municipalities and local bodies know very well how affairs of these municipalities are carried on. Practically, the masses have very little touch with the city municipalities. The cities are dominated by the upper classes, the higher classes, and the masses in the districts have very little touch with the city municipalities. If you are going to shut up the masses from representation on the University, then I for myself will be the first to say that all the affairs of the University will be controlled by the upper classes, and the masses will be shut out. Sir, I should like to place before the House the fact that every attempt is being made to give representation to the upper classes in every conceivable way. All the principals are from the upper classes and the teachers are from the upper classes. The city municipalities are also practically in the hands of the upper classes. You are going to give representation to the upper classes by ten different ways, and you are going to shut out from the University the labouring and backward classes and the masses. Why not include all the municipalities? Why not widen the electorate? There is no harm in it. They will choose their own men, and if you want a real representative of the municipalities, there is no harm if you include all the municipalities. Why only the cities, and why not the other important towns in the district. There are various municipalities whose good work is on record, and I do not see any reason why they should be excluded from the electorate of municipalities. I therefore strongly support the amendment that is before the House, and I hope the House and especially Government will accept it.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : May I request the Government benches to lay bare their policy?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The request is made and it is for the Honourable Members on the Government benches to take the opportunity and make a statement. Yesterday, the Honourable the Leader of the House had the opportunity, or rather, took the opportunity a little too late, and if an opportunity is now taken in time and the House is informed, it would certainly be welcomed. That is all that I can say; I cannot of course compel Government members to do so.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, since you desire it, with a view that the discussion may be curtailed, I have no objection to get up now, but I have no hopes that it will be. However, I will place my views before the House. This question was considered just at the time of the drafting of the bill as well as, so far as I remember, in the select committee. The view, to which I adhere, is that as in the University the higher intelligentsia should be represented, and as in the case of the local boards, only the district local board has been given representation and not the taluka local boards; in the same way, the city municipalities as representing the intelligentsia have been given this representation and the smaller town municipalities have been left out. I submit, Sir, that in the earlier stages of constituting the Senate on an elective basis, it would not be right to make difficult the election of the right type of man to come to the University. I therefore want to stick to the draft as it has emanated from the select committee.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District) : Sir, I support the amendment. The Honourable Minister opposed this amendment on the ground that representation on the University is intended for what he called the higher intelligentsia. I confess, Sir, I do not quite understand this expression "higher intelligentsia." What does the Honourable Minister mean by the expression "higher intelligentsia." Is there a higher and lower intelligentsia? Well, if there is any such difference, I confess I do not know it. Does he mean by that expression that only M.As., or B.A., LL.Bs., or M.A., LL.Bs., or B.A., B.Sc., or men with two or three or four degrees are to be represented ? Are only such people to be represented on the University ? Does he mean that ? I am aware of the expression "intelligentsia," and I know that intelligentsia means cultured men, educated men, but I do not quite understand what he means by higher intelligentsia. If he has got some mysterious meaning, or he wants to attach some obscurantist meaning to that expression, I hope he will, when he gets up to reply, make clear what he means by that expression. But, Sir, probably it is a tautological expression that he has used, and all that he means is the intelligentsia, educated people, cultured people, should be represented on the University. That is probably what he means. Well, I have reason to expect some measure of consistency on the part of every man, much more so on the part of an Honourable Minister. I have not forgotten the dictum to which expression was given by his honourable colleague some time ago and the homily which he preached on the point. I do maintain that some measure of consistency must be shown by men who happen to occupy responsible positions, and that some measure of consistency must be embodied in legislation which is placed before the House for acceptance. I find, Sir, that the district local boards are given representation. Are the members of the district local boards synonymous with intelligentsia. (Interruption.) Again my honourable friend the member for interruption. interrupts me and says "something better." It has become a positive nuisance to sit near him.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Come on this side.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : Well, Sir, representation is given to the district local boards. How many members of a district local board do really belong to the class called the intelligentsia ?

An Honourable MEMBER : A lot of them.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : I challenge it.

An Honourable MEMBER : You do not know.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : I know. I know as much as my honourable friend does, if not more. I have seen many more winters than he has done. I have seen the working of as many district local boards as he has, and I know. Well, only a few members of district local boards can be called the intelligentsia, meaning thereby the educated and the cultured class. The majority of them, particularly as a result of the new Local Boards Act and the democratisation, the liberalisation of Local Self-government that has been brought about by that Act, mainly due to the sympathy for the masses which the Honourable Minister for Local Self-government has uniformly displayed, cannot certainly be called as belonging to this class of intelligentsia. Here then there is an electorate proposed in the bill which must not be established, if what the Honourable Minister says is true. Again representation is given to the Indian Merchants Chamber, Chamber of Commerce and Millowners' Association. They are all respectable people; no doubt. They are influential, they are rich and certainly deserve to be on the

[Mr. R. G. Pradhan]

Senate of the University. Much more so because the Honourable Minister has told us that he wants to interest them in the affairs of the University and get a lot of money out of them. I know what shrewd men of business the capitalists are. I do not think that my honourable friend Mr. Petit is likely to succumb to such temptations that are placed before him by this bill. They are shrewd men and because they are given representation they are not likely to be overgenerous with their money. It is but right that they should be given representation—they are all respectable people. But it would be stretching the meaning of the word intelligentsia, to classify all these people as intelligentsia. What I submit is this. This is not a principle which has been uniformly adopted in the bill. Taking that this is the principle adopted still I ask why certain people have been debarred from representation on the Senate? Look at the anomaly, the absurd position, with regard to the municipal electorate as it stands in the bill. Members of the city municipalities are given representation. The municipality of Phandharpur and the municipality of Bhusawal are city municipalities. Members of these municipalities will have representation on the Senate simply because they are called city municipalities. I think the municipalities of Chalisgaon, Sinnar or Malegaon are not yet city municipalities. I believe I am not mistaken and if I am mistaken I am open to correction by the Honourable Minister for Local Self-Government. I put it plainly; what is the difference between the Bhusawal municipality and the Malegaon municipality in the matter of public spirit and intelligence. With due respect to any member from the Bhusawal municipality if he happen to be here I ask what difference there is between the two municipalities. What difference is there between the members of the Sinnar municipality and Pandharpur municipality in the matter of exercising this franchise. The differentiation between a district municipality and a city municipality in the matter of local self-government is alright. But why should representation on the Senate be given to members of the Pandharpur municipality and the Bhusawal municipality and denied to members of the Sinnar municipality and the Malegaon municipality. As a matter of fact there is no difference between the members of these municipalities—the city municipalities and town municipalities—as regards fitness to exercise the right given in this bill. If members of city municipalities are going to have representation it is but fair and equitable that members of town municipalities also should have it. It seems to me that this amendment is fair and should be accepted.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir, I support the amendment. Here the bill is based on the principle of differentiation, on the principle of supporting the strong and putting down the weak. The claims of the weak are thrown out and the claims of the strong are considered. In the case of municipalities, city municipalities are given representation and town municipalities have been left out. I do not know why such differentiation should be made. It is not proposed to increase the number of elected seats. The number of elected seats is going to remain the same. But in fairness and justice all the municipalities must be given an equal chance. If the word "city" is dropped then there is no difficulty. One omission has occurred in the printed report of the select committee. In the typewritten report that was given to us for signature, on page 2 of the report of the select committee it was pointed out that the members elected by municipalities need not necessarily be from among themselves. In the printed report these words have been omitted.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Does the honourable member say that these words are omitted in the printed report ?

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : They are in the printed report but they are not embodied in the clause. It was decided in the select committee that the members elected by the district local boards and city municipalities need not necessarily be from among themselves. This is the special reason why these words were put in the select committee report. But unfortunately at the time of printing the amended bill these words have been omitted through oversight.

Mr. N. E. NAVLE : I rise to a point of order. The bill as it is before the House, is it not a true report of the select committee ? The honourable member says that some words have been omitted.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : It has yet to be ascertained.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : It was in the report that the representatives of the municipalities and local boards need not be from among themselves.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Which words have been omitted ?

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : " Not necessarily from among themselves. " These words " not necessarily from among themselves " were added in the select committee. They have been omitted.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Now, what is the definite statement that the honourable member wishes to make with reference to this ?

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : I want to make a definite statement that it was put before the select committee and passed, that the members elected by the municipalities and local boards need not necessarily be from among themselves. If that had not been so, those words would not have formed a part of the report. It was passed, and that is why it finds a place at the end of sub-section (h) of paragraph 11 of the report of the select committee. I definitely state that that matter was put before the select committee and it was passed by the select committee. By some oversight these words have not been put in the bill as it appears in the printed form.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, may I correct my honourable friend ? The statement he makes is not correct in the sense in which he makes it. He said that something was moved and carried, and yet it was left out. Now, the matter was talked over, but no one moved any amendment. You will see, Sir, the words in the report are : "The members elected by the municipalities and local boards need not, in our opinion, necessarily be from among themselves." If the amendment had been moved, these words "in our opinion" would not have been there. Consequently only the opinion was expressed there but no amendment was moved. That is the position.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Mr. President, I strongly protest against the statement made by the Honourable Minister, because I was a member of the select committee.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The question is whether that amendment was moved and passed and accepted by the select committee ; that is all, no speech please.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : It was moved and it was passed, and therefore it is said "in our opinion." "In our opinion" does not mean in our private opinion.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Will the honourable member resume his seat ? I am given to understand from the proceedings recorded by the Secretary that where it was actually the intention of the select committee that the election should be by the members from among themselves, the words "from among themselves" are used in the bill, -this will be seen from clause 13, II—Ordinary (A) (i), (ii) and (iii), - and where it was the intention that the election need not necessarily be among themselves, those words "from among themselves" are omitted in the bill, as in this particular case of the municipalities. Therefore paragraph 11 (h) of the report is satisfied.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED : In connection with this point of order, I would draw your attention, Sir, to a statement which was made yesterday by the Honourable the Minister of Education. I think he made that statement by mistake. He stated that the local boards, municipalities and other public bodies were to elect representatives from among themselves. When he made that statement the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale and myself got up to correct him, but before we could do so you adjourned the House and therefore we were not able to make that correction.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I did make that statement, and I was under that impression.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I hope the honourable member Mr. Swaminarayan understands the situation now.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Sir, if the omission of the words "not necessarily from among themselves" is to be construed that the city municipalities and local boards can elect members not belonging to those bodies, then the argument of the over-intelligence of city municipalities that was urged by the Honourable Minister does not hold good. Just as in the case of school boards persons who are experts in education but not members of local bodies are being elected, similarly here also the members that are to be elected by the municipalities may be from outside. If there is a competent man in the municipality they will elect him ; otherwise, they will elect anybody else. Therefore, the argument that the smaller municipalities will not be able to elect proper representatives is not tenable. Therefore the word "city" should be omitted.

After Recess.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Mr. President, I had no intention of taking part in this debate, but I think it is necessary to say a few words. There seems to be some misapprehension about the franchise which has been extended to the various bodies. Originally representation was confined to educationists. Now a further improvement was made so as to admit other people, that is, persons who do not belong to the education department itself. That being so in merely admitting the city municipality and district boards, the principle seems to have been that naturally in a city municipality there might be people who have received a certain amount of education or at any rate who have received education more than you find in small municipalities. For instance there is a municipality of Ashta in my district. I put it to the House whether there can be any person in that municipality who may be regarded as an educationist or who have received some kind of education. We must have the line drawn somewhere. Even in a city municipality you cannot say definitely that there will be educationists on the municipality. But the line must be drawn somewhere and therefore it is expected that in the city municipality there will be educationists and hence that principle seems to have been adopted. The whole question arises from the fact that here although franchise is widened the basis of the franchise is that the persons exercising that franchise are supposed to have some educational qualifications. Originally under the law as it stood it will be seen that registered graduates and other persons who were solely professional in the matter of education had the franchise. Now the franchise has been extended so that even other persons not belonging to the educational department are admitted and at the same time care is taken to see that the voters who constitute the electorate will be persons who may be regarded as possessing some educational qualifications. There is no question of the candidate at all. That point also was raised whether it is necessary to lay down any qualifications. It was felt that the person who would be sent up by the municipality in a division would be selected on account of his educational qualifications. It is from this point of view that small municipalities have been excluded. Again, Sir, there are about 119 town municipalities, I understand, in the Presidency, and city municipalities number about 25 to 30. Now if the electorate is widened the whole electorate will consist of 150 or more municipalities divided into 5 divisions. Now, it is for us to consider whether this electorate should be widened or whether with our experience of expenditure and trouble involved in an election, it will be easy for a candidate to approach such a large electorate which would consist of large and small municipalities. The question is whether we should not confine ourselves to this compact area. From that point of view it seems to me that the franchise has been widened for the present to certain municipalities. In course of time it may be possible to extend the franchise to smaller municipalities. I understood from the Honourable Minister that the policy underlying the bill was to extend the franchise, but not too much at once, and that was the reason why when we were considering the question of labour electorate, that objection was taken. I submit, therefore, that clause 13 is really based upon a principle which underlies the bill.

Then, I come to the point whether it is necessary that there should be this clause "from among themselves" or not from among themselves. With your permission, Sir, I would refer to what happened in the select committee, because the matter has been brought out here as a discrepancy. The honourable member Mr. Swaminarayan attempted to say that there is some divergence or discrepancy.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That has been set right and the honourable member has accepted the situation.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : I know. But how the misapprehension has arisen, I may just mention with your permission. I mean why this apprehension arises quite honestly.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : If the honourable member refers to the point that the election need not be from among themselves, that has been set right. I do not think any reference need be made to that again.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : Sir, I mean to say, in order to put the whole House in possession of what occurred in the select committee.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I do not think the House is curious to know that.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : Very well, Sir. I just wanted to mention it because it seemed to me that again members might labour under a misapprehension ; otherwise I had no mind to take up the time of the Council. But the clause itself means exactly what it says, because, so far as the local boards and municipalities are concerned, the candidate who is to be sent out need not be a member of those bodies. Wherever it is said that he must be from among themselves, the candidate must belong to one of the electorate. Here, it need not be so, and that, I think, is perfectly clear if you read the several clauses that appear there. So, with these few remarks, I would certainly leave the clause as it is.

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR (East Khandesh District) : Sir, the explanation that has been given by the Honourable the Minister of Education with regard to the present clause that preference was sought to be given only to the intelligentsia so far as the University was concerned and that therefore town municipalities are excluded is not satisfactory, and I take exception to that argument and explanation.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Will the honourable member speak up ? I can't hear him.

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR : I take exception to that statement on the ground that I do not believe that the city municipalities have a better intelligentsia than what we find in the town municipalities, because the municipalities are so constituted that it is not a body where only intelligent people go. On the contrary, the majority of people that go there go on an altogether different basis. Intelligence is not a criterion which determines their election to the municipalities. Similar is the case with regard to local boards, because I do not for a moment admit that the members on the district local boards can at all be said to be people belonging to higher intelligentsia than the people who are elected to the town municipalities. Similarly, another argument that was advanced was that just as taluka local boards are excluded from the bill, the town municipalities, are also excluded and because District Local Boards are given the franchise the city municipalities are also given the same and it is on that ground that the provision is made in the way it is. As a matter of fact, taluka local boards are to a certain extent subordinate bodies to the district local boards. But in no case is a taluka or town municipality a subordinate body to the city municipality. It is altogether an independent body. But, Sir, as I said at the time of the first reading of the bill, I take exception to the representation of either the municipalities or the district local boards, because the University is not a body on which representation need be given to these bodies. The local boards and municipalities are not concerned with higher education or with the various questions which will crop up in the University ; they are only concerned with primary education. With these remarks, I resume my seat.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : Sir, one of the great men once said, " Save me from my friends," and I think I read that sentiment in the face of the Honourable Minister when my honourable colleague from Satara (Rao Bahadur Kale) was on his legs. The argument which my honourable friend from Satara advanced in support of the attitude which I think the Honourable Minister has taken on this question has been sufficiently answered by the honourable member who spoke last, and I need not refer to it. But I have to point out one thing, Sir, that the mentality of the Honourable Minister for Education is exactly the same as was the mentality of the late Mr. Tilak when he addressed a political meeting at Athni. It was before the Reforms Act came into force. And he said : " What have the petty merchants and what have the agriculturists to do in the Council ? Are they to plough in the Council, or are they to hold the balance in their hands ? " Well, that is the attitude, I think, which the Honourable Minister has taken on this question of labour representation. But unfortunately for such persons, I shall say that the agriculturists have actually come into this Council and they are, I think, working the plough. The seed has not yet been sown, but I trust that it will be sown before long and there will be a good harvest. And, at the same time, the tagdiwalla, the man with the balance, too, has come into this Council and he also expresses his point of view, and many a time he is heard with respect. So, I think I may assure the Honourable Minister for Education that the voice of the labourer, as well as that of the agriculturist, and that of the petty trader, will be heard even in the hall of the University. He has knowingly or unknowingly made room for these men. He has given representation to the district local boards and, as everybody knows, the district local boards are now constituted of men who have interests in land and who are actually tilling the soil. They have got the vote and they have the right to send their representatives to the district local boards, and in the city municipalities even the labourers who live in a hired room for which a rupee per month is charged as rent have got a vote, and, as everybody knows, in this way a large number of voters have to elect the few councillors to the city municipality. But I want to place before this House, Sir, a glaring injustice that has crept in. The population of the presidency is divided for the purposes of this Act into five divisions,—the linguistic divisions or educational divisions as they are called. These divisions, again, Sir, are divided into certain jurisdictions, the district local boards and municipalities. For the purpose of election to district local boards the municipal areas are excluded. The persons living within the municipal areas are not represented upon the district local boards and municipalities have representation of their own. As a matter of fact, under the present bill the inhabitants of district local board areas will be represented in the university, so also the inhabitants of city municipalities, but the inhabitants of town municipalities will not be represented on the university at all. They are penalised and I think that that was due to an oversight on the part of the select committee. I do not think that that question was raised and decided. It was through an oversight that this omission was made and the omission has been brought to the notice of this House by an honourable member of a city municipality, who is generous enough to extend the privilege to his less fortunate brethren. So I claim that justice should be done to the town municipalities. In the case of city municipalities, I shall say that as their number is very small in each division, the number of voters will be very small. Thus it will be a very small constituency—in fact it will form a pocket borough and under democratic ideas a pocket borough should not be encouraged. For instance in the Konkan Division consisting of the districts of Nasik, Thana, Kolaba and Ratnagiri, the number of city municipalities will not be more than three, so that they get the right to elect a member. It is a pocket borough and so I think it should not be encouraged. It will be worse than a rotten borough. In the Central Division there will be hardly half a dozen city municipalities and they will enjoy the right of electing one member. It is again a pocket borough and only six voters will have to vote for one seat. That is not a very sound position. The town municipalities which have been left out altogether should also be included and should be given a vote so that the constituency will be widened a little and democratised to a certain extent. This is a demand which deserves careful consideration at the hands of this House and at the hands of the Honourable the Minister.

I need not take much time of this House. I pity the mentality of some of the honourable members who do not want to extend the franchise to district local boards and municipalities at all, but I think the representation of district local boards has been left unchallenged and therefore it will pass into law. While the question of the representation of city municipalities is before this Council, I urge, Sir, the necessity of widening this franchise and abolishing the pocket borough system which is now being foisted on this Council in this clause. I think it will be better for all if the constituency is widened and if the right of electing a Fellow is given to the town municipalities as well.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : I rise to support the amendment moved by my honourable friend Rao Saheb D. R. Patil. Sir, the object of giving representation to city municipalities is to give the privilege of representation to the intelligentsia, but, Sir, I see that an amendment is to be moved for asking some statutory grant to finance the affairs of the university. Sir, may I ask whether that amount of grant is to be collected only from the intelligentsia or is it to be collected from the common coffers of Government ? If it is to be collected only from the intelligentsia, then I have nothing to say, but if it is to be taken from the common coffers of Government, then I think there is no ground to give a different treatment to town municipalities as distinguished from city municipalities. There should be no taxation without representation and therefore the town municipalities are equally entitled to enjoy the right of representation on the university. I therefore hope that the Honourable Minister will see his way to accept the amendment as proposed.

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL (East Khandesh District) : Sir, I am glad to find that my honourable friend from East Khandesh, Mr. Pataskar, contradicted the Honourable the Education Minister and the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale as regards their statements that intelligent persons cannot be found in the taluka towns, but unfortunately, the latter portion of the speech of my honourable friend Mr. Pataskar was not encouraging. He had no courage to say whether he wanted to support or oppose the amendment, and he did not go beyond making some remarks, and he concluded his speech after passing certain remarks here and there. In his speech he referred to the incompetency of the members of district local boards and for that reason he said he was opposed to granting the right of franchise even to district local boards. Unfortunately for him, however, he has had no experience of district local boards and therefore I think he is not the best authority. So far so good. Mr. President, I do not understand the mentality of those persons who are willing to give the right of franchise to city municipalities but not to town municipalities. Does the Honourable the Minister of Education want to say that there are not intelligent men in the talukas ? In almost all the talukas we find pleaders belonging to all classes, especially the higher classes. Take the case of the Chalisgaon municipality. Perhaps our worthy Mr. Pataskar may stand as a candidate and get himself elected. Where is the difficulty of getting intelligent persons ? I do not see it myself. Do we not find intelligent people in places like talukas ? I say there are so many intelligent and educated people, some of whom have received college education and who can be proper persons to go to the university. Under those circumstances, I do not see the least reasonable ground to say that we shall not find intelligent people even in talukas. Of course, it has been made sufficiently clear in the bill that any outsider can stand as a candidate. The voters will see for themselves as to what candidate they should choose. My honourable friend Rao Bahadur Kale asked, what is the position of the voters? Well, I ask him the question, what is the position of the voters who elected him to the Legislative Council?

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : The Council is quite different from the University Senate.

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL : Yes. The Council is different from the Senate. All right. But as I have already stated, there are competent people, intelligent people even in talukas. If that is so, what argument has the honourable member got to advance against the amendment? I think he has no argument against it. He wants to do it simply because he wants to confine the right of sending a representative to the Senate to the city municipalities alone. That means giving a right to pocket boroughs, as rightly observed by my honourable friend Mr. Jadhav.

I think the amendment itself is very reasonable. But there is one difficulty in its success, namely, the obstinacy on the part of the Honourable the Minister of Education. He does not want to move an inch here or there. He means to say "No, no; the bill must be passed as it is sent from the select committee." All right, Sir, if he is firm as a rock, I cannot help it. But I would appeal to his conscience. Let him think over it himself and come to the right conclusion. If he does not want to give up his obstinacy, let him stick to it, but I hope, in the interest of the wider franchise given in this bill, he will be moved with compassion, and will change his mind and come to the right conclusion that the amendment should be accepted.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, there is no question of compassion in a matter of this kind; it is not on the ground of compassion that the franchise is given but on the ground of qualifications. Honourable members know that we have got on the statute book the District Municipal Act for the smaller municipalities, and my honourable colleague, two years ago, has given to the city municipalities another Act with larger privileges to people who pay less taxes than those that are paid in the smaller towns. If it were a question of adult suffrage, it was quite a different matter, but wherever there are organisations or corporations of this sort, the franchise is graded according to the work to be done in the association by the members who are returned there. Consequently, I submit that there is nothing of the idea of a pocket borough in limiting the franchise to city municipalities and district local boards. The policy of the bill is to give representation to the various interests as far as possible, through well organised corporations or authorities.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Are not town municipalities well organised?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I do not wish to be interrupted. So, the pocket borough idea which was put forward by the honourable member Mr. Jadhav is not a correct one.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : It is a rotten borough.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : It was urged by one of the honourable members representing Labour that every one pays taxes, and consequently there was no reason why he should not have a vote. We have not come to that stage, neither for the municipalities, nor for the taluka local boards, nor for the district local boards, nor even for the Legislative Council. Under these circumstances, we have to grade the franchise according to the culture that we find with reference to the University in all areas.

I was rather surprised at the honourable member from Nasik (Mr. R. G. Pradhan), who has been returned here by the votes of a rural constituency running down his voters by saying that they know nothing, or they are less cultured.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : I never said they know nothing. I have never run down my constituency ; the honourable member is misrepresenting me.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : If that was not the meaning of what he said, then there was no meaning in it. He said that there is less culture in rural areas than in urban areas. I say that for the rural areas the best culture could be found in the district local boards, and for the urban areas the best culture could be found in the city municipalities, and there is no idea of pocket boroughs in this arrangement. I therefore respectfully submit that the honourable House will turn down the amendment.

The question was put to the House. The President declared that the amendment was lost.

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL : I claim a division, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I think these divisions to record votes by names have been too frequent, without much effect. I shall now resort to the method of asking honourable members to stand up in their places and record the number only.

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL : The only point is that the names ought to be recorded.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I have heard the point that certain honourable members want the names to be recorded. That has been done in many instances to-day, and may be done later on too, because the greater portion of the bill is still before the House.

Those in favour of the amendment will please stand up in their places. (After a count). Twenty-four members have voted for it.

Those against the amendment will now please stand up in their places. (After a count). Fifty-eight have voted against the amendment.

The amendment is lost.

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL : The other portion of the amendment remains to be moved.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Not here : later on.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED (Hyderabad District) : Sir, after what the Secretary has just shown, it is abundantly clear what the decision of the select committee with regard to sub-clauses (f) to (o) was. The Honourable Minister made yesterday a statement, under a misapprehension, to the effect that these local bodies were to elect only a member from among themselves. I think now he agrees that the local bodies are free to elect any representative they choose either from among themselves or from outside anybody to represent them on the Senate. If you still consider that the point is doubtful please allow me to move the amendment.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, in clause 13, II Ordinary, you find the words "from among themselves" are used where they are meant to be so. As regards university teachers the election is from among themselves; as regards head masters it is from among themselves. With regard to public associations and bodies these words are not used and so they do not apply to them. Therefore I think there is no necessity to move this amendment. What my honourable friend says is correct.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : It has been explained in the House in connection with the question raised by the honourable member Mr. Swaminarayan, by me, and the same thing has been repeated by the Honourable Minister now. That is recorded in the proceedings. It is, however, certain that it is not a part of the bill. I am not sure whether it is quite necessary to move the amendment. Still I allow the honourable member to move it.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED (Hyderabad District) : Sir, I move :

"In clause 13, II A after the sub-clause (o) add the following explanation as explanation No. 2:

"The city municipalities and district local boards mentioned in sub-clauses 5 (f), (g), (h), (i), (j), (k), (l), (m), (n) and (o) are free to elect a person, who need not be a member of the city municipality or a district local board, to represent them on the senate."

If the Honourable the Minister of Education goes down to sub-clause (v) he will find that registered graduates are to elect 25 senators; and according to his interpretation they are free to elect anybody they choose. The graduates may do so. I have no objection to it. But I want it to be made absolutely clear that the municipalities and district boards are free to elect anybody they choose. I think it is a desirable amendment. By the addition of this explanation it will be clear that the district boards and municipalities will be free to elect anybody they choose to represent them on the senate; and he need not be a member of those bodies. That is the object of my amendment and as desired by the select committee Government are bound to accept it.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I am prepared to accept the amendment.

Question put and carried.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : Sir, I move :

"In clause 13 (1) II (A) (v) add the following words at the end of the sub-clause : 'formed into five divisional constituencies.'"

[Mr. B. V. Jadhav]

The registered graduates constituency is to elect 25 members. As the graduates are scattered over the whole of the presidency in all the five divisions, it will be unmanageable. The members that will stand for election will not be very intimately known to most of the graduate voters. For instance a candidate from Sind is not likely to be known to the voters in the Karnatak or Maharashtra. I therefore propose for the convenience of the electors that the constituency should be divided into five divisions and seats should be apportioned among them in proportion to the number of graduate electors in each division. The constituency will be a compact one and at the same time the candidates will be known to the respective voters, so that there will be a better election and easier election. In university elections cumulative voting is not allowed and if 25 candidates are scattered all over the presidency it will not be very convenient to anybody. Therefore I propose that this amendment should be accepted, and the number of registered graduates should be divided into five constituencies according to the educational divisions which are recognised. The seats should be apportioned in proportion to the number of registered graduates in each division. I do not want that five seats should be allotted to each division, because in certain divisions it will be found that the number of registered graduates is much larger than in other divisions. Therefore I say that the seats should be divided in the proportion of the number of registered graduates in each division.

Question proposed.

Mr. R. S. ASAVLE (Bombay City, North) : Mr. President. I rise to support the amendment moved by the honourable member Mr. Jadhav. He has already explained why this division of the electorate should be made. We have decided just now that in the case of the city municipalities there should be a territorial division and 4 divisions have been made for this purpose, and therefore there is no harm in giving representation by divisions to registered graduates. There is no question here as to whom representation should be given; only registered graduates in each division will be given the right of voting. As has been pointed out by the honourable mover of the amendment, in one division there may be a larger number of registered graduates than in another; and if so representation may be given to those divisions according to the number of registered graduates in the divisions. The point is that every group must get representation on some principle or other. I presume therefore that this must be the reason as to why this amendment has been brought before this honourable House. I hope Government benches will accept the amendment.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, at an early stage, I wish to express my view. I am not going to accept this amendment, because when a constituency like the registered graduates has to return representatives to the University, the graduates returned to the University should be men of presidency reputation and should not be frogs in a well, that is, they should not be men of only parochial reputation; they must have a reputation for learning, educational status and all that extending over a great part of the presidency, and they must possess a name for their interest in education. Therefore I am sorry I cannot accept the amendment.

Mr. H. HAMILL : Sir, I wish also to oppose the amendment or rather to suggest that instead of dividing this electorate into provincial divisions, we should divide it into faculty divisions. What the University requires is to see that there is a sufficient number of members whom the Syndicate can assign to faculties. If some amendment be made by which that will be secured in this sub-clause, I think it will be a good thing. Five for example, should represent the faculty of arts ; five science ; five medicine ; five engineering ; five law. Otherwise, I am afraid that the twenty-five elected by the registered graduates will one and all be lawyers, and much as I respect lawyers, I think we will have too many of them on the University.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind) : Sir, I agree with the Honourable Minister for Education that it is necessary that the representatives of the registered graduates should be men elected by graduates from all over the presidency, but I wish to remind the honourable member the ex-Minister of Education that an attempt has been made in the bill whereby has been given to each province an opportunity to return its own graduates. I refer to clause 48, which reads :

"Every election to any authority of the University under this Act shall be made according to the system of proportional representation by means of the single transferable vote in such manner as may be prescribed by Statutes."

His arguments therefore to allocate to each division a number of the graduates are of little value. I may point out to him that his object will be gained by the system of proportional representation which has been provided in the bill in clause 48. Every graduate when recording his vote can give the first preferential vote to the best persons in his own division. Opportunity is therefore provided for to select the best men in his own division. Therefore, there is no danger whatever of particular divisions going unrepresented. The honourable member Mr. Jadhav's object will be gained by clause 48. If there is a smaller number of graduates in a particular division the number of first preferential votes will be small, and therefore the number of graduates they will be able to send up will be small ; if there is a large number the number of first preferential votes will be large and the number of representatives will be proportionately large. Therefore, as every opportunity has been given to every division to send representatives in proportion to the number of graduates in that division, this House need not pass this amendment.

Dr. M. D. GILDER (Bombay City, North) : Sir, I would like to point out the difficulty in the way of dividing this constituency into five divisions. The Fellows of the Senate are to be divided into five equal lots for the purpose of vacating office, and every year one-fifth of the Fellows will be elected. Therefore, of these 25, five will be elected every year. Now, every year the number of registered graduates will change, and if we are going to adopt the principle of fixing representation for a division according to the number of graduates in that division, are we to change the number every year? I have thought over this matter, because I myself wanted to move an amendment of this nature, but I find that it will not be practicable or workable. Hence, I oppose this amendment.

Mr. G. L. WINTERBOTHAM : Sir, I desire to move an amendment :

After the figure "25" insert the following words : "one-fifth of this number to be graduates in arts; one-fifth in science; one-fifth in medicine; one-fifth in law; and one-fifth in engineering."

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That is no amendment of this amendment. It is a separate amendment, and therefore time-barred.

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR (East Khandesh District) : Sir, I think the registered graduates are given the right of voting not on account of their residence but on account of their particular qualifications. From that point of view, it is not desirable to divide them territorially. Similarly because there are a smaller number of registered graduates in one division and a larger number in another, it is not desirable to divide the constituency into territorial divisions. I think the registered graduates are enlightened enough to be able to choose the best men available, and their constituency should not be divided as proposed by the mover of the amendment. I see there is a fear in some quarters that more lawyers may get into the Senate than is necessary. I do not think the fear about lawyers is in any way founded on very sound grounds. I am therefore against this territorial division of the constituency of registered graduates, and I oppose this amendment.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : Sir, I move a closure.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I accept it.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Sir, I do not think I need say much, as I have already stated what I had to say. I think the amendment is worthy of being accepted by the House.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, I need hardly say anything beyond what I have already said. But I would say a word. It was said by an honourable member in another connection that a particular thing was going to be a pocket borough. Now, take the instance of the Karnatak. There you may have a few graduates. Take the instance of the Central Division. There may be particularly in the Marathi speaking division larger number of graduates than in Gujerat. Therefore I oppose the amendment.

Question put and lost.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED (Hyderabad District) : Sir, I move that—

In clause 13-A (vii) delete the words "of whom one shall be the representative..... senate."

This amendment is put in as a matter of protest. I want to move this amendment to show how in giving the principle of election to a constituency the principle of nomination is introduced. The clause as it stand reads as follows :—

[Mr. Noor Mahomed]

“Five by the Legislative Council of the Governor of Bombay, of whom one shall be the representative of the University on the Council if he is not already a member of the senate.”

That is how it has emerged from the select committee. The original bill contained the provision that the Legislative Council of the Governor shall send 5 representatives to the senate. But, Sir, we have grown a little clannish and therefore we have got here one more seat reserved to be filled in practically by “nomination” for the member of the university if he does not happen to be already a fellow of the Senate. This is what I call giving by one hand and taking away with the other. Such a thing ought not to have occurred, but it has occurred and therefore I lodge my formal protest against the way we have been treated all round. I want to proclaim to the world that the whole bill has been conceived in a wrong spirit and I very much regret that it should have been so.

Question proposed.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : I support the amendment. This comes under the heading “Elected as prescribed below.” But the proper place for this is “ex-officio members”. It has been put down under part D Ordinary. Now if a member of the university in the Legislative Council is not a member of the senate it is open for him to seek election to the senate rather than that he should go in as an ex-officio member from the Legislative Council. The original intention of the bill was not that. Otherwise, just as there are so many provisions, one more section could have been added that the member of the university in the Legislative Council will be an ex-officio member of the senate. If the member for the Bombay University could come in to the Legislative Council he could as well very easily get the votes of the registered graduates and get into the university. It would be very easy for him to do so. Registered graduates elect twenty-five fellows. Therefore it will be twenty-five times easier for him to be elected on the senate. I would say here that it is more or less an insult to the person who represents the University on this Council to go into the senate by such a back door provision. I think, therefore, that these words must be taken away. I support the amendment.

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL (East Khandesh District) : I have given notice of a similar amendment and I therefore support the amendment. It is I think an insult as was stated by the last speaker, to the representative of the University. In my opinion he deserves to be there and ought to be there. But there are other ways for him to get in there. There are 25 seats for election by registered graduates who belong to the intelligentsia and they may elect this brilliant intelligentsia. I do not think there will be any difficulty for my honourable and learned friend to get himself elected by any one of the constituencies. I think he ought to get in by election. So I think in the interests of the intelligentsia the honourable member for University instead of talking with the Honourable Minister should make a speech in favour of this amendment. May I request, the Honourable Minister to listen to the discussion instead of talking to the honourable member Mr. Munshi? I bring this fact to his notice that it is an insult to the honourable member the representative of the University in that he is allowed an entrance through the back door. I trust that those who deal in the nation-building departments will at least come to the rescue of my honourable and learned friend who is a lover of democracy, so that he may not go into the Senate by the back door. Lovers of democracy including my honourable friend Mr. Munshi should not subject themselves to this insult which the Honourable the Minister for Education has given to the representative of the intelligentsia.

[Rao Saheb D. R. Patil]

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North): I rise to support the amendment moved by my honourable friend Mr. Noor Mahomed. From the speech of the honourable mover and the two supporters of the amendment it will be clear how this side of the House is treated. The Honourable Minister knows that at the present time he has got the full support of those who were previously not with him.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. I think that every honourable member ought to take it that every other honourable member is acting according to his convictions and no assertions of that kind need be flung at honourable members.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE: As it has been proposed that out of the five members that are to be sent from this Council one should be that gentleman who is actually elected by the University, if he be thrown out from this Council, it is really, as stated by the previous speaker, an insult to the gentleman who has been elected by the majority of the graduates of the presidency. With these few remarks, I support the amendment.

Mr. G. L. WINTERBOTHAM (Bombay Chamber of Commerce): Mr. President, I do not really think that it is possible for any one to support this amendment moved by the honourable member Mr. Noor Mahomed. The only thing I have to regret is that the honourable member sitting on my left was not in a position to move the amendment which stood in his name on the paper immediately preceding this one, because I cannot for the life of me understand why this Council need be represented on the Senate. Has it got representation on the Bombay Municipality? As far as I know, it has not. But if it is to be so represented would it not be ludicrous not to send as one of the Council representatives the representative of the University itself? Why should he stand for election? If this Council is to have 5 representatives on the Senate, then one of the obvious members to be sent there without any election at all is the representative of the University itself, and I hope that the honourable member will not press his amendment.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: Sir, I rise to support this amendment. The reasons are quite obvious. As a matter of fact, the member of the University on this Council, if he desires to be a member of the Senate, as well, he can very easily come through the graduates' constituency, and therefore, provision for him need not be made in the Act. The provision is an insult, as has been said by one or two previous speakers, to the intelligence of the member representing the University, and this Council ought to remove it. There is no necessity of making this special provision and I have great pleasure in supporting the amendment.

Mr. S. C. JOSHI : Mr. President, I rise to support the amendment. The only object of having this clause inserted in this bill is to see that the representative of the Senate on this Council is the true representative of the University and not only in name. The proper course for this would be to amend the rules of the Bombay Electoral Rules and to make it compulsory that the representative of the University, who is going to contest the election for the Bombay Council to be a fellow of the Senate, and that is the proper course for him to come into the Bombay Council, if he is to be the representative of the University. He ought not to be a mere representative of the graduates, but of the Senate. And to make a change here and to reduce the number of fellows of this Council on the Senate would be entirely wrong. I, therefore, whole-heartedly support this amendment.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District) : Mr. President, I feel the force of the argument advanced by the honourable member Mr. Winterbotham that there is no reason why this Council should have representation on the University. I think it would have been better if that clause had been entirely deleted. However, as the clause stands, I do not realise that there is any force in the particular argument advanced by the same honourable member that the University member on this Legislative Council should be an ex-officio member of the University Senate. He clinched his argument by saying : Who would have better knowledge about university matters if not the University member himself ? I do not agree with him there, and I do not accept the position that simply because a particular individual happens to be elected for the constituency of the Bombay University, this Legislative Council should send him also as a member to represent it on the Bombay University.....

Mr. G. L. WINTERBOTHAM : Is he not likely to know most of the subjects coming up before the University ?

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : I do not much believe in it. Any particular member representing the University may know a lot about University matters. But it is not simply knowledge that counts, or ought to count, with voters. Right principles, right attitude, right policy, right method, and right temperament ought also to count with the voters. Personally, with due respect to my honourable friend Mr. Munshi, if this Legislative Council had the right of electing members to the University, I would not vote for Mr. Munshi simply because he represents the University here. From what I have seen of him from the speeches he has made. I personally do not regard him as one who would be best qualified to represent this legislature on the University.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : I will not pursue that question. I only wanted to.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : This clause does not contemplate the honourable member Mr. Munshi at all. It is a member, whoever he may be, whenever that election comes on, who may represent the University here at the time.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : I simply illustrated that point,—and I do not want to pursue it further,—in order to combat the argument advanced by my honourable friend Mr. Winterbotham which amounted simply to this, that we would be bound, as it were, to elect to the University, the gentleman, whoever he may be, whether he may be the honourable member Mr. Munshi or somebody else, who is elected as the representative of the University in this Legislative Council. It appears to me that if this right of sending representatives to the University on behalf of this Legislative Council is sought to be retained, the better course would be to elect all and not to make any one an ex-officio member. Therefore, though I agree that it would be much better if this clause has been deleted altogether,—and if such an amendment could be moved now, I would be prepared to support it,—I think this provision that the University member here should be an ex-officio member on the Senate should go.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : Mr. President, I find that this amendment has created a certain amount of excitement in this honourable House, which I do not think is quite justified. On the face of it, I admit that it appears to be quite illogical that this House should send as their representative to the Senate the representatives of the University in this House. The honourable member who represents the University in this House, is by this clause, sent back to the University as our representative. That appears to me to be illogical. But it is not so very illogical when we come to consider whether the honourable member is really the representative of the University. It appears to me that the expression used “a representative of the University” is misleading. The honourable member does not represent the University ; he represents the graduates of the presidency, and the graduates of the University are not the University.

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL : It is a play upon words.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : No, it is not a play upon words. He is normally called a representative of the University but he is returned by a constituency which is not directly connected with the University, and, therefore, it may happen that that constituency, namely, the graduates, may return an honourable member who is not a member of the Senate, and therefore if he does not happen to be a member of the Senate, it is just as well that this House should make him a member of the Senate. There are thousands of registered graduates. They do not constitute the University.....

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : The members of the senate have also a vote.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : Along with the graduates. He represents only the graduates.....

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : No, No. He represents the members of the Senate also.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : I think my position is quite clear, that the so-called representative of the University is a representative of the graduates of this presidency. He is not sent here purely and simply as a representative of the Senate, but he is sent here by a wider constituency. Therefore, if it so happens that the representative of the graduates does not happen to be a member of the senate, it is just as well that when this House has an opportunity of sending five members to the Senate, they should send the representative of the graduates. Surely one of the fittest persons in this House to be on the senate would be the representative of the graduates in this House. He is elected by what is called the most intellectual constituency. If he is elected by the most intellectual constituency, I think we should show him a little preference and send him by right to the Senate. That is the point I believe that was made out and emphasized when this amendment was included in the bill. The whole trouble has taken place because the honourable member is described as a representative of the University, and on the face of it I again admit that it appears to be illogical, but when we consider it a little further, it is not so illogical. In the present case I understand that the so-called representative of the University happens to be a member of the Senate, but I understand that on one occasion the representative of the registered graduates did not happen to be a member of the senate and that was rather an impossible position, and, therefore, it only means this that if we are to send five representatives of this House to the senate, we by law are forced to send one member who happens to be returned to this House by the graduates of the presidency.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI (Bombay University) : Sir, I would not have spoken on this matter at all had it not been for certain references which have been made to me in connection with this amendment. This debate has given me many surprises. My honourable friend from Nasik, Mr. R. G. Pradhan, told me the other day that he was the greatest authority on constitutional law in India. But it seems that he never read Standing Order V, 7 (2) (ii) which says that a member must not make a personal charge against any other member. That is one surprise.

There is a second surprise. Another member who spoke before me thundered against the principle of nominations—a member who all his life has been praying and praying for nominations.

With regard to this particular amendment, I may mention that it is the rule in almost every English university that the member of Parliament for that university gets his seat on that university. In all the universities in England.....

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Is he sent back by the Parliament ?

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI : Yes. As a rule the Parliament returns a member to the senate. Even in the case of the representative of the University, he is elected not by the senate but by the whole body of registered graduates of the university to the Parliament and that member, as of right, goes on the senate. The reason for this has already been explained by my honourable friend, Sir Cowasji. Before I proceed, I might as well make it clear that the one instance which induced me to suggest this amendment was not my instance because I am already on the senate, not of Dr. Paranjpye either because he was on the senate long before he came here, but the instance of an erstwhile leader of the opposition in this House, who was a popular leader of this assembly, upon whom I have always looked with pride, I mean my friend Mr. Jayakar. He was a member representing the Bombay University in this House but he was not on the senate. The reason why the member representing the Bombay University in this House must be on the senate is this. The persons who go to the senate are not persons who take part in the political agitations of the country. Most of them are interested in the academic problems of the university and go to the senate as educationists having for some reason or other a great interest in the higher education of the presidency. The man who comes here as a representative of the registered graduates is not only an academician, somebody who is not only interested in higher education of the presidency, but further who has got a standing in the public life of the presidency as a public man. Mr. Jayakar came into this Council both as a person interested in the higher education of the presidency and as a public man. It may happen that the politician, who is also an academician, may be interested in coming here and taking part in the legislative council, but he may not have the time or the energy or the inclination to contest an election for academic purposes or to take an active interest in the academic life of the university. Therefore, he may not choose to undergo the double trial of getting elected by 7,000 registered graduates for coming here and then again seek election from 1,800 registered for going into the senate. The only object therefore of this clause is that a time may arise when it may be necessary for the member of the university in this Council to be connected with the university affairs in such a manner that he may adequately represent not only the large body of registered graduates but also to a considerable extent the interests of the senate. If I may with great humility refer to the present question of the reform of the university, in a debate like this, just conceive the position of a member for the Bombay university, who is so disconnected with the senate that he has no place therein and is not in touch with what is going on there. That will be an anomaly and it is only to correct that anomaly and to put the representation of this Council on the senate on a proper basis that the select committee thought that in the rare event when the representative of the Bombay University here is not on the senate, he should go there as of right, and Sir, I really thought that this was such an obvious proposition that if at all this House is going to send anybody, the one man who is here in the name of the university would be sent on the senate, that it would find ready acceptance at the hands of this Council; otherwise it would create an absurd position and therefore, Sir, I submit that this clause, as it stands, ought to be accepted.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division) : Mr. President, I am extremely sorry that the bill was not referred to the senate. The Senate would have scouted the idea of sending to it as a member, ex-officio, the representative of the University on this Council. Sir, what business has the representative of the University to come here, if he does not know the affairs of the University, or the proceedings of the Senate. My honourable friend Mr. Munshi gave the instance of Mr. Jayakar, the only instance of a person who has been a representative of the University in this Council who was not on the Senate. In former times, the Honourable Sir Chimanlal Setalvad has always been a member of the Senate ; Dr. Paranjpye has always been a member of the Senate. Let me tell you, Sir, that Mr. Jayakar was not a member of the Senate because he did not choose to be one as he non-co-operated, not that he could not be elected or nominated to the Senate. Such a difficulty will not arise now, because now the whole thing is reversed. Formerly, there were four-fifths nominations ; now there are four-fifths elected members ; the whole thing is reversed. I cannot think of any member for the University in this Council who will not be elected, if he likes to be elected as a senator by the graduates. Therefore, Sir, I do not think that this is right provision. Moreover my honourable friend does not say why the member for the university should fight shy of standing as a candidate here to be elected to the Senate. This House will always be pleased to choose him as a senator, if he was not already one, but why should he fight shy of standing as a candidate ? Why should he claim it as a matter of right ?

Now, with due respect to the honourable member for the Chamber of Commerce, I think he understands very little about the University, and for him to come forward and advocate such a course does him no credit. If we interfered in the affairs of the Chamber of Commerce, he would surely resent it.

In this bill, Sir, we have got the right of sending only five members from this Council to the Senate. I was sorry to hear one of the honourable members saying that he would not like to have any representation of this Council on the Senate. Allow me to tell him that the Senate did not think so, and does not think so, and the Senate ought to know. The Senate say that the Legislative Council should send five representatives. That is the opinion of the Senate, and I do not see any other expert opinion could be successfully pitted against it. Personally, I think that this Council should send 10 members instead of five, because, if there is any representative body in the whole of the presidency competent to send representatives to the senate it is this Council. I would personally have preferred to have a larger representation for this Council. But surely, when we have only five, to take away one from the five does not seem to me to be justifiable. Therefore, there is no point in the argument advanced by the honourable member Mr. Munshi, and it is not necessary that the member for the University in this Council should be ex-officio on the Senate.

There is one more point. My honourable friend the General Member, I am afraid, was not right when he said that the honourable member for the University was only a representative of the graduates, and not of the University. The graduates are the members of the University, the Senators are the Fellows of the University and they together form the University, and therefore he is rightly designated as the member for the University. With these words, I support the amendment.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Sir, I rise to support the amendment. I think this clause is nothing but another form of nomination and reserved seats. Sir, nomination and reserved seats are meant for those who are not competent enough to get elected, but here provision of this kind is made for one who is competent enough to get elected in this Council as well as outside the Council. I submit, Sir, that the proper wording of the clause ought to have been " of whom one shall be the representative of Labour." But the policy throughout the bill seems to be to give representation to those who are able to take care of themselves, and shut out those who are not able to take care of themselves. That seems to be the policy of the present bill, and therefore, I do not think any pleadings would be of any avail, when there is a determined effort to turn out all the amendments moved by the other side.

An Honourable MEMBER : I move the closure.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I accept it.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED (Hyderabad District) : Sir, I shall be brief. I wish to say only that though I am to be defeated on this amendment, therein lies my victory. I want to show the spirit in which this University Bill has been conceived and is being pushed on, to keep out various classes and communities educationally backward and how the Senate is to be monopolized.

Sir, various arguments have been brought forward to show that the graduates are the most intellectual people, and therefore, when their representative comes into this Council he should be sent back automatically to the Senate. That is to say, the representative of the University is so great an intellectual person that this House should not be given the right to say whether he should or should not be sent as its representative on the Senate ; he should be automatically sent to the Senate. We are to make a shuttlecock of him ; the University is to hit him here, and we are to hit him back to the Senate. This clause, Sir, is not in the interest of all classes ; it is certainly to the advantage of only the advanced classes, in whose interest this bill is being pushed through. I say this bill is a mockery.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, in the bill as it was sent to the select committee, the words were " by the Legislative Council of the Governor of Bombay." Those were the only words there, but in view of the instance of Mr. Jayakar who, though he was returned to this House by the graduates of the presidency, did not happen to be on the Senate, and in order to provide for a case of that sort, as has been explained by my honourable colleague, this addition was made by the select committee. There was no idea of reserving any seat for any one, much less for the present representative in this House of the registered graduates. He may be here for a year or two, and may not be here again. But the provision here has been made for a representative of the registered graduates in this Council to be on the Senate, if he is not already a Fellow there; and looking to the communal atmosphere, which is sometimes supreme, it is necessary that this clause should be allowed to stand as it is.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The House will remember that I referred to the request of some honourable members that the House should meet to-morrow at 10-30 and adjourn at 2 o'clock in view of the Dasara holiday the day after, so that some honourable members may be able to go back to their homes. I hope honourable members have made up their mind whether to accept this proposal or not. (Honourable Members expressed agreement) Any dissentient? (Honourable members: None). The House will meet to-morrow at 10-30 and adjourn at 2 p.m.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir I move :

In Clause 13 (1) II (B), change the figure " 40 " into " 30."

It is only in this country that has lost its independence that the vicious principle of nomination is embodied in every Act. If we go to the local boards, we have got nominated members ; if we go to municipalities we have got nominated members ; if we come to this august House, the Bombay Legislative Council, the nominated members are still staring us in the face. This is the result of our having lost our independence. Because a foreign government is ruling over us, in order to serve the interests of that foreign country we are being faced with nominated members. If it be possible for me to have my own way I would do away with the principle of nomination altogether in the Senate which is to represent the intelligentsia of the presidency and which is to work for the education of the high and the low living in the Bombay Presidency. When the honourable member Mr. Hamill moved his amendment to raise the representation given to University teachers and teachers from 10 to 20, the argument was advanced that it will not be necessary if that amendment was passed to nominate principals who as teachers would be enabled to enter the university. Also the principals could come through their special constituency. Now that that amendment has been passed, and the number has been raised from 10 to 20 in that sub-clause, the necessity of this abnormally large number of nominated Fellows is no longer necessary. At that time it was clearly stated that some of the persons whom Government might nominate would be able to come into the Senate through election. Now, we find that Government are trying to bring their own men in various ways. Under ex-officio members we have five. I did not move the deletion of the Chief Justice of Bombay High Court, the Director of Public Instruction, the Surgeon General to the Government of Bombay, the Director of Agriculture or the Secretary to Government in the Public Works Department, because I wanted to reduce the number of nominated Fellows from 40 to 30. Government have already five officers of theirs as ex-officio Fellows, and again they are going to have the lion's share of the seats on the Senate by having 40 seats for nomination. In all other bodies, local boards, municipalities, and in the Legislative Council, we do not find nominated members to exceed more than 20 per cent. of the total number of seats. But here in this body where there should be no nomination—in a place where educated men are to debate and direct the education of the province, the principle of nomination should be done away with—in such a place we are to have out of 140 seats—I feel the total number will not be above 150—40 seats are to be nominated seats, and about ten seats ex-officio. That is to say, there will be about 33 per cent. actually coming in through the door of nomination. Sir, I myself belong to the most backward community in Gujarat ; in my community, out of 14 lakhs of people there will not be more than 14 graduates. Still, I wish to point out to members of the backward communities that it is a chimera that by giving the power of nomination to Government their interests will be served. It is chimerical for them to think that their interests will be served by nomination. Nomination is a bad principle. The people who come through the door of nomination will serve the interests of Government much more than the interests of the communities whom they are supposed to represent. They will not be answerable to any electorate for their conduct in voting on any important question that arises. Therefore it is necessary that the backward communities should try to represent their interests by elected representatives of their own rather than trust to a foreign Government to nominate men to represent their interests.

Again, when we have allowed the Vice-Chancellor to be nominated by Government, why should Government have this abnormal number of nominated Fellows? Sir, in the original Senate 80 per cent. of the Fellows were nominated, and everybody was raising a hue and cry against that large number of nominated Fellows and the University was regarded as an official department. Now, under this bill also we have a large number of nominated Fellows and the University is going to be dominated by officials. Therefore, it is necessary that this House should reduce the number of nominated Fellows. When the number of seats given to principals, University teachers and teachers have been raised from 10 to 20, I think the number of nominated seats can be reduced from 40 to 30.

Question proposed.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The House is adjourned till 10-30 a.m. to-morrow Wednesday, the 5th October 1927.

(Further consideration of Bill No. XXI of 1927, Bombay University Bill, resumed.)

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Government Bills, Bill No. XXI of 1927. clause 13, Mr. Swaminarayan's amendment that '40' be changed into '30'.

Question again proposed :

In clause 13 (I) II (B), change the figure '40' into '30'.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Sir, I have heard such a great tirade against nominations in this House. But when the time for nomination comes, if there are five nominations to be made, I receive no less than 50 applications. At least, this proves that nominations are not considered as bad as is made out by the last speaker. I might give him certain instances when Government have nominated the pick of the people. The present leader of Gujarat, my honourable friend Mr. Patel, was once a nominee of Government on the municipality and then he entered the Council, and without that nomination I am afraid he may not have obtained the fame and name that he has achieved today. If I mistake not, your predecessor, Sir, was also a nominated member on the Council. There may be many other instances. I do not quite remember whether Mr. Gokhale was a nominated member, but I think he was.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : He was.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : So, I have given the names of three illustrious nominated members who were given the opportunity of entering into the local bodies or into the Council by the door of nomination. They have shown as sturdy an independence as any honourable member in this House. But if my Honourable friend is opposed to the principle of nomination, I do not think it is fair to me to be plagued with applications when the time of nomination comes.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Urdu) : Mr. President, I rise to support the amendment moved by my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan for reducing the number of nominated members. I will give one instance, the instance of the Karachi municipality, where out of 54 members 6 are nominated by Government. I have seen their work both in this Council and in the municipality. One Mahomedan gentleman was nominated by Government. The Collector of Karachi had recommended two names. One was Khan Bahadur Wali Mahomed Hassan Ali, and the other.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : In my opinion all these references to names are not desirable nor in order. The honourable member had better not mention any names.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH : Very well, Sir. I will not mention names. In these nominations a man who had rendered 25 to 30 years' useful municipal service and was a capable man, was left out and a man was nominated who had little or no experience of municipal work and in fact who had never had any connection with municipal affairs at all. So, out of these 40 members who are to be nominated by Government, who knows who will come in ? We do not know whether mere flatterers or those who wish to fawn on Government will come in, or whether men of any stuff at all will come in. If in the case of Karachi municipality our experience has been that men without any experience or ability have been nominated, how can we be at all sure that good and suitable men will come in by nomination in this case ? It is the duty of those members who have been returned to the Council by the people, who are elected by the people, to have due regard to the interests of the people and not to be carried away by anybody's influence. Yesterday, my honourable friend Mr. Noor Mahomed moved an amendment, and although a high responsible Government member samjaoed the Honourable Minister it was not acceptable to an important member and thus the amendment was rejected showing that there were more ministers than one to decide. That should not be the case. Members must vote according to their own independent opinion and conscience. I, therefore, strongly urge that the principle of nomination should not be encouraged and the number of nominations should be as small as possible.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Sir, I rise to oppose the amendment moved by my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan. Sir, there was a time when nomination was flagrantly condemned. But times are changing fast and with times men and parties are also changing fast. Sir, when the Reforms Scheme came into existence, there was the boycott of the Council. Then, after that, there came the entry into the Council with the object of mending the Councils or ending the Councils. Then came the vow of silence. After that, there was a walk-out and a walk-in. And, finally, came the acceptance of Ministerships and Executive Councilorships, and what has happened the other day—that was a sight for the gods to see—members of the Swaraj party, members of the Khaddar party, members of the nationalist party, members of the independent party, trooping into the Government lobby, siding with the Government Members, for giving their approval to the principle of nomination !

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I did not know that there was a Khaddar party in the House.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : There may be, Sir. I do not know. There are so many parties. After his experience of the municipal elections, who knows if my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan does not want nomination ? (Laughter).

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Certainly not.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : My honourable friend says, Sir, "Certainly not". When he came into the Council in 1925, he boycotted every Government function. But I was surprised to see him once in the Government House. Now, Sir, as times are changing, men are also changing. A time would come when they all would also seek nomination. Who knows ? Then, why blame the nominated members only ? Sometimes nominated members show more independence than the elected members. They (elected members) have given a pledge that their policy would be to oppose the Government. And where is that policy gone during the discussion of this University Bill ? The policy is quite the reverse. to support the Government, whether they were right or wrong. Then, why condemn the nominated members and nomination ? When you shut the front door for these backward classes, who are not able to get in by election, then, of course, they should not be blamed if they seek election by the back door. So, I say nomination should not be condemned wholesale and therefore, I oppose the amendment. I may also say that I am not for reducing the number but for increasing it. I submit that the number of nominations should be increased from 40 to 50. Sir, the nominations are meant for those who are in the minority and who cannot get in by election. But at the time of nominations also, men who can easily get in by election try to seek nomination. There is so much rush. So, it would be better if the number is increased from 40 to 50. With these words I oppose the amendment moved by my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan.

Mr. F. OLIVEIRA : Mr. President, I rise to oppose the amendment. I know that the soul of India to-day cries against communalism. I know that the interests of India have been sacrificed by the spirit of communalistic strife. I know that the best minds of India are engaged at present in order to meet this evil. I represent a community which is small in numbers, and this community in matters of open election stands little or no chance of success against the vast numbers of other communities. If the major communities had up to now shown a broad spirit in the matter of elections and had not thought and acted in terms of Hindus, of Mahomedans, or of Parsees, had looked at the best interests of India, and had extended support and justice to the smaller communities, then it would have been my duty to support this amendment, as we are anxious to move in matters political and educational along with them. But, having regard to past experience, we find that a minor community absolutely thrown out in the struggle. As long as such a feeling prevails, where are the chances for my community, namely, the Indian Christian community, to come in by election? The only door open to them is the door of nomination, and therefore I think it is my duty to oppose the amendment and to support the principle of nomination. The community I represent is, in the matter of education, well advanced, the proportion of the educated stands as high as that in any other community. I believe it is not below that of the Parsee community. Government is aware of this fact that my community is ranked among the advanced classes.

There are several special privileges given to what are called backward and depressed classes. These privileges are denied to us. When it comes to our seeking election through a general constituency and competing with other advanced classes, we find ourselves hopelessly outnumbered and forsaken, and that is the reason why we are driven to seek shelter under nomination. I hope the amendment will be rejected, as, far from there being any case made out for decreasing the number of nominated seats, there is every ground for increasing that number.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR (Karachi City) : Mr. President, I support the amendment which my honourable friend from Ahmedabad has moved. Before I go to the other points, I should like to dispose of one contention made by the honourable member (nominated) from Bombay. He tells us that the elections are carried on entirely on communal lines and that if there is any way for the smaller or minor communities, it is through nominations only and he said that his past experience of elections led him to that belief. Sir, I want to disabuse his mind of that belief not in reference to any other areas of which he may probably not be aware but of the city of Bombay from which he hails. You know the city of Bombay has the right of sending 5 representatives from the non-Muhammadan constituencies and what do we find? We find that 4 Parsis out of a total of 5 seats allotted to Bombay were actually returned to this Council. If that is not the proof of the urbane outlook of the people of Bombay who belong to the Hindu community which contains a great majority of voters in Bombay in the non-Muhammadan electorates I fail to see what strong and cogent proof he requires to convince him that we do not look upon communal considerations in matters political.

Sir, having disposed of that point, I should now like to refer to some of the salient points on this question. I support this amendment firstly on the ground that was made out by the honourable member who has been nominated for the purpose of this bill from Bombay, my friend Mr. Hamill, who suggested that ten seats allotted to the teachers and professors of colleges should be increased to 20 in order that some of the pressure might be relieved on seats reserved for nomination. He made out that if these 10 seats were not increased to 20, Government would have the necessity and the recourse of nominating at least 10 men out of the 40 reserved for nomination in order that the academic work of the various Faculties might be carried on satisfactorily. Sir, I therefore deduce that having secured all that was wanted or necessary for the purpose of academic work, these 40 seats would now be reserved only for representation on communal lines. I take my stand upon that point and say that since 10 seats that would have ordinarily gone to the people of academic qualifications have already been secured by election, there is a necessity of corresponding reduction of nominations by 10. That is one point which is very strongly in favour of the amendment which my honourable friend from Ahmedabad has moved.

Now, I go to the question of the nominations and the Government strength in the Senate. I have carefully analysed all the electorates and the representation granted to each constituency, and I find that out of a total of 142 members proposed under this bill, no less than about 75 will go to Government. You find under the ex-officio group Government is going to monopolise out of 9 seats at least 6 seats; out of principals who have been allotted 8 seats, I am sure no less than 3 will fall to the lot of Government members. Then again, we have increased the University teachers and other teachers' seats from 10 to 20, and I am sure that 12 Government members will easily get elected out of that number. Then, again, Sir, if you go to headmasters and the other people who have been grouped together, 2 are bound to be returned out of the 5 who will vote for Government. Ten will be elected by the Faculties, and I am sure that all these 10 seats will be captured by Government. Then again there are 5 members to be returned by the Legislative Council. We had some experience of how these elections are made when this House was called upon to elect members for various committees, and I know the amount of strength which Government possess. With that strength Government are bound to return 2 men whom they will back up out of the 5.

The strength of nominated members, namely, 40, is reserved to them exclusively. That is how I count 75 out of 142. My honourable friend from Ahmedabad spoke yesterday saying that not more than 20 per cent. of the total strength ought to be reserved for nomination and no more. Sir, if you analyse these figures I have just placed before you, you will find that Government has got not 20 per cent. but more than 50 per cent., namely, 86 out of 142, and I fail to see, since in the very preamble and the aims and objects of this bill it has been shown that the object of this bill is to democratise the Senate, where the democracy enters in the constitution. I think that we ought to reduce the number of nominated seats from 40 to 30.

It has been argued that the Muhammadans, and Marathas, a backward community, which belong to the Great Shivaji and who should never talk of being backward but somehow call themselves backward, are not likely to get due representation through the open door of election through general constituencies. You know that the proper door of election has been restricted to the extent of 25 seats for the registered graduates.

The other seats, something like 5 for the local boards and 5 for the municipalities, are open to them, and I am sure that the district local board seats will be captured by the people with whom they are in sympathy or those who are in sympathy with them. So, so far as actual, proper, thorough representation by election is concerned, it is only 25 seats, and I put it to you, if you are going to have only 25 elected seats in the strictest sense of the term, how on earth can you justify 40 seats for nomination? Again, when you see that only 25 members are going to be elected from a general electorate, you have to consider what should be the minimum nominations which these communities should secure. There are 4 divisions in this presidency for administrative purposes, and as they represent 2 divisions, they can claim not more than about 10 seats. The Mahrattas in the Southern and Central Divisions, on the basis of the 25 seats which have been reserved for strict election, could be able to secure only 6 or 7 seats, but assuming that they are given 10 seats out of nominations still you will have 20 left.

Now, let us examine the position and the case of the Musalmans. Sir, they form no less or no more than about 17 per cent. or 19 per cent. of the population of this presidency.

An Honourable MEMBER : Question.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : That is a mis-statement.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : My impression is that it is not more than 17 per cent. In any case, I am sure it is not more than 20 per cent.

Honourable MEMBERS : No.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : Beyond saying that my figure is wrong, you are not able to say whether it is 25 per cent. or 30 per cent. I assume that I am right in the absence of any figures. Now, Sir, looking to the percentage of their population to the total population, which is about 19 per cent. let us see how many seats they are entitled to out of a total of 142. It should not be more than about 20 seats. If they are entitled, according to their population to a total of 20 seats, and since there is a chance of their getting themselves elected by registered graduates, and also from the local boards and the municipalities, their number would come down in the case of nomination. But I assume that all those seats may not come to their lot by election, and that they would require the fullest representation on a nominated basis, still, leaving aside the seats, reserved for people holding academic qualifications, which is a sine qua non for the existence of the University, 20 seats are more than they can actually demand by reason of their population. Therefore, if my honourable friend from Ahmedabad is willing to allot 30 seats for nomination, I think, Sir, that is all that is required for the purpose.

We have been told that the depressed classes also require nomination. But I have included the depressed classes, so far as the Central and Southern Divisions are concerned, among the Mahrattas; they are backward communities and the depressed classes also are now included in the backward communities. Having disposed of these two points with regard to the representation of communities, I now come to the general point.

My contention is that in India you find nominations and Government patronage filtering down from the Legislative Council and members of the Executive Council down to the smallest body, namely, the village panchayat.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Again, that is a mis-statement. There is no nomination in panchayats.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR: Sir, in the municipalities, district local boards, taluka local boards, and other bodies, there is nomination by Government. If there is no provision for Government nomination on the village panchayat, it is very good of the Government indeed.

Now, Sir, my contention is that the system of nomination is very demoralising, and the more you try to give representation by a system of nomination, the more you demoralise the people and come in the way of their coming into their own, because it is my firm belief that unless and until a man makes an effort to come into his own by the dint of his own ability, mere patronage can never make any community great. Therefore, I am entirely against the system of nomination, but my greatest objection is with regard to the political conditions. In the report on Reforms which the late Mr. Montagu and Lord Chelmsford made for submission to the British Parliament they have made the point very clear, and it has been incorporated in the constitution, which is known as the Curtis Diarchy scheme. Now, according to diarchy, certain departments have been transferred to the Ministers, who are responsible to the people of the presidency, who elect the members of the Legislative Council. Now, Sir, what do we find? Is there any element of responsibility? Sir, my greatest complaint is that the Government has really not entered into the spirit of the Reforms.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. I think this is digressing into a very different question.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR: Sir, let me submit to you that you have allowed the previous speakers to go into questions and matters strictly extraneous to the discussion under this clause, and I take my stand upon that. I wanted to say that unless and until the Government say "Hands off the transferred departments; let the people's representatives manage these departments; give us an opportunity to adjust our differences and difficulties in our own way," I fail to see that there is any prospect of real advancement.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN: Hear, hear.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR: The Honourable Minister for Local Self-government says, hear, hear. I echo his sentiment only to the extent that my appeal to the Government is, if they are sincere in transferring control by instalments to the people of India, they should not actively meddle in the transferred departments which they claim to have transferred, in the manner in which they are doing. I see that the Government is not anxious and willing to transfer the control even in matters of education and other departments. Sir, I appeal to them, if they have any vision of the future of India, that they should with the greatest delight and good-will tell the people to manage themselves into parties and that the Government should not shift the forces by combinations with one or the other party and play the role of a dictator. But that unfortunately is the position which Government has assumed even in matters of transferred departments such as education. Therefore, I do not think that there will be any real training in the art of responsible government, for which we have been asked to take training under their hands. That is the position which I wanted to place before the House, and it is no use saying to the people of India "Because of your caste and religious differences, it is necessary for you to have a guiding". I appeal to them in the words of Lord Durham who made the greatest charter for the freedom of Canada, I appeal to them in the name of Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman who made the greatest charter of freedom for South Africa. All these differences did exist in those places; there were the French people in Canada, there were the English people in Canada; there were religious differences; they were at loggerheads, and they were trying to cut each other's throats. Lord Durham said "Unless and until you give them power to carry on their own administration, and make them feel that it will affect the welfare and interest of Canada, the people will fail to realise what is good and what is bad for them."

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I would again request the honourable member to limit his remarks to the subject before the House.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : Sir, I will now conclude, since I find that it is not possible for me, within the limited scope of discussion, to speak on this matter. My only feeling is that in matters of education and in matters of local self-government official members should really not participate in the voting.

An Honourable MEMBER : Is it relevant, Sir ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : It is not relevant.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : You are deciding by voting.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. I call that irrelevant.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : If you call that irrelevant, I will simply sit down.

An Honourable MEMBER : Sir, I move a closure.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I accept the closure.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Sir, I was very much surprised to hear some arguments from the honourable members who opposed this amendment and the foremost among the opponents was the Honourable the Minister of Local Self-Government.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Not a word did I say about it. I only disabused his mind of certain wrong impressions.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : The Honourable the Minister of Local Self-Government at least spoke in favour of nomination.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : I only brought to your notice, Sir, some illustrious persons who were nominated.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : He gave illustrations of the Honourable Mr. Patel, Gokhale.....

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Also an illustrious member of my own community—Sir Ibrahim.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : The Honourable Mr. Patel and Gokhale were not so eminent when they were nominated as they became afterwards.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. The issue before the House is not as to whether the Honourable Mr. Patel and Gokhale rose to eminence through nomination or not. That was merely referred to by way of an example by the Honourable the Minister of Local Self-Government and it should be left there.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : I merely wanted to say that they rose to eminence after seeking the suffrage of the people.

This method of nomination has got the most demoralising effect. The Honourable Minister for Local Self-Government referred to the number of applications received for nomination. I think people that apply for nomination are toadies and sycophants.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Some of the applications are from the people of the advanced classes.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : I do not mean to say that there are no sycophants in the advanced classes. Even in the advanced classes there are a number of sycophants.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The debate is drifting.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Then the honourable member Mr. Bole made a reference to my failure in the municipal elections and made an insinuation that I would perhaps seek membership through the door of nomination. I certainly repudiate that insinuation. I never entertained any idea of entering through nomination. While I was coming into the Hall it was suggested by some persons that I would be nominated even without my asking for it. (Honourable members : Question.) If even without my consent my name appears in the gazette as having been nominated I would refuse the offer.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Nobody is going to make the offer.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : I do not want it. I would never apply for it.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : All these remarks are irrelevant. Let the honourable member proceed with the amendment before the House.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : The honourable member Mr. Oliveira said that because there is nomination people belonging to different communities make their voice felt. There ought not to be such patronage through nomination. People should come up by their own capacity, by the power inherent in them and the power they possess. The honourable member Mr. Bechar has already pointed out how the whole constitution becomes an official constitution through direct nomination by Government. Nearly 50 per cent. of the total become officials. In the guise of democracy, the university senate will become a Government department as it was in former days. Really speaking the constitution will be autocratic in the garb of democracy. I strongly urge that the nominated members should be reduced from 40 to 30.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, I oppose the amendment. I am not prepared to reduce the number which is at present in the bill to any figure less than 40. In the present constitution of the senate the nomination is four-fifths. In the present bill it has been reduced to about one-fourth. We cannot all at once make the senate a thoroughly elective body, because there are certain gentlemen, who possess as much self-respect and honour as those who spoke against nomination and who do not wish to wade through the troubles and worries of elections. In order to bring in such men it is necessary at this stage to keep a certain number of nominated seats and the number 40 cannot possibly be reduced.

Question put and lost.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED (Hyderabad District) : Sir, I beg to move -

" In section 13 (1) II (B) change the figure 40 into 50. "

[Mr. Noor Mahomed]

The sea is sometimes known to throw up its dead and is also known to yield up sometimes its secrets. The passage of this Bill is also full of mystery and secrecy. One secret was let known by the honourable member, Mr. J. C. Swaminarayan, to this honourable House regarding the attitude in this bill of the Honourable Minister for Education. He said that this bill was based on discrimination, between the strong and the weak. I would strongly urge on the attention of the honourable the official members who will be led to vote against this amendment to kindly consider the situation that has been created by this bill. I admire the discipline—the Light Brigade spirit—of the honourable members opposite who will go into any lobby for the sake of the Minister without questioning the nature of the subject on which they are voting. But I do hope that in a matter like this at least the chief of the staff will bring to the notice of the general officer commanding as to what the situation is. I am very sorry that the chief of the general staff has not brought to the notice of the commanding officer, namely, the Leader of the House, the position in which a large body of people inhabiting this presidency will be landed, as a result of the enactment of this Bill. Sir, while admiring the discipline among the official members, I request them to pause and consider the effect of this Bill and I would therefore request them for a hearing. We have got a Government composed mostly of Indian members in this Presidency to-day. The Leader of the House Sir Chunilal is an Indian; the General Member is an Indian; the three Honourable Ministers are Indians. I expected that such a Government will not allow the introduction of the worst form of communalism into a place which was called by the Honourable Minister for Education as the shrine or the temple of learning by vesting all power in the hands of a small community and keeping out all the other communities, as this Bill does. The official votes are in the keeping of the Honourable the Leader of the House, who is rightly reputed to be a powerful man. To the entrenchment of his position, power and prestige, we can also justly claim to have contributed a little; and we did not expect that his strength would be utilized against us. I know that honourable members opposite will not go into the “Noes” lobby on this amendment, if the Leader of the House left them alone. The honourable members will be good enough to consider as to how many Mussalmans would be elected senators under the bill. In the whole of the Presidency only from the Sind Local Boards, can only one Mussalman be elected to the Senate, and, that too if all the Mussalman members of the local boards combine together and give their vote to a single person. There can be no Mussalman elected by the University teachers of Sind, because there are not enough Mussalman university teachers. As regards the 25 seats given to the graduates, not even one Mussalman will be returned, if past experience can be our guide in this matter. As regards this Council, four members are allowed to be elected to the Senate, and even these four will be elected by rotation, one member every year; so, there will generally be no opportunity for a Mussalman member being returned to the Senate even from this Council. I am only putting forward the case of Mussalmans. There are honourable members representing other communities and other interests who will put forward their case; I am simply putting forward our position under the bill as it affects the Mussalmans. Is it fair that the Mussalman community with its vast numbers in this Presidency, with also a culture of its own, should have only one representative in the Senate of the University, which is to be a shrine of learning of the creation of the Honourable Minister? We are told, Sir, that we are fighting for communalism. Now, may I ask who started communalism? The University Reform Committee's report says that the Anjuman-i-Islam of Bombay should be given representation; but the Honourable Minister for Education has taken that out. The University Committee also recommended that other bodies representing the non-Brahmins and other interests should be given representation on the Senate; they have also been taken out. It is the Honourable Minister who took them all out. In all seriousness I ask who started this communalism? We have not started it. It is the Honourable Minister who started it, by creating University constituencies in such a manner as to have the effect of keeping out Mussalmans and other educationally backward communities, who are anxious to send qualified representatives to the Senate if they were given the chance to do so. The honourable member from Ahmedabad said, that this bill is based on discrimination between the strong and the weak. The attempt of the other side is for the usurpation of power in the University; the attempt on this side is for self-preservation. An attempt for self-preservation cannot be called communalism. Usurpation of power for a small community is certainly communalism. It has been argued that Parsis do not want any representation and they have generally been returned by advanced Hindus to Councils. Those who talk of Parsis coming by election forget the virileness of that community; they forget that by reason of their superior economic position and by reason of their vast charities and benefits to the city of Bombay, they wield great influence in that city. I am sorry the honourable member for Karachi who contested a seat with a Parsi in his constituency and defeated the Parsi should have come forward to talk of the Parsis being returned by Hindus. ....

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : Sir, I stood for Labour and I got my seat on that principle. All the other candidates were defeated because of that.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED : Sir, even Labour is not devoid of religion. Honourable members who talk of nationalism should not quote very often the case of Parsis. For instance the honourable member Dr. Gilder, a Parsi, sitting opposite me wields a tremendous amount of influence on account of the great good he does as a doctor. If he had not been doing that good, and had not the power and prestige of his community in the town of Bombay behind him, the cry of religion would certainly have prevailed. The Parsis do not succeed anywhere except Bombay and their position at Bombay is exceptional. Therefore, the case of Parsis of the town of Bombay should not be flung in our face, in season and out of season. The advanced Hindus cannot help the entry of Parsis at Bombay and not that they love it or want it. Sir, in asking for a share of representation on the board of the University we are not fighting for loaves and fishes, for the University has none to distribute. We are not scrambling here, like children, for sweetmeats. We are not quarrelling here for deputy collectorships, mukhtiarkarships or head murshiships. The University has none of it. The fight here is on a higher principle. We want to see that our culture is not destroyed by the University of Bombay in the manner it has been doing till now. I will in this connection refer you to the minute of two eminent Mussalmans, Sir Fazulbhoy Currimbhoy and Mr. Mirza Ali Mahomed. What do they say of the University as it affects us? At page 175 both these gentlemen say :

"The Bombay University is an Eastern University and I think it is its first duty to preserve the languages, culture and learning of the East. The University has now been in existence for nearly 70 years and the methods employed have failed to foster, encourage and preserve the Islamic languages, civilization and culture. The study of Arabic is dead; that of Persian is fast dying and the University having recently decided that a vernacular may be taken as a subject of study instead of a classical language at the school leaving examination, the study of the classical languages of the East will be seriously affected."

Then Sir, they go on to say :

"[We] disagree with the recommendation of the Committee against Women's College. If the recommendation of the Committee has any meaning it must go to the length of requiring that no Women's College shall be affiliated to this University, however well-equipped or well staffed the College may be. No question of co-education can arise so far as Muslims are concerned. I think it is wrong to call upon the Muslim community to give up pardah if they desire to get the benefit of higher education."

This is the attitude which the University has adopted towards the education of our girls. What is the effect of this policy of the University on the Muslims in Sind? If a word of Sindhi language is derived from Persian or Arabic it is taken away from the text books. The honourable members sitting opposite can understand the nature of this heinous attempt if the English words derived from Latin are taken away from the text books and dictionaries; and that is what is actually being done through the agency of the Bombay University. Books are prescribed that contain the least number of words derived from Persian and Arabic and yet we had no control in the past and are to have none in future in the matter of prescribing books, in the working of the University. This is a matter, Sir, about which we feel strongly and we really want that there should be representatives from our community on the University to protect our culture, our studies. After all, Persian and Arabic are classical languages and they constitute an important branch of learning. The Honourable Minister for Education has done nothing to give representation to these branches of learning. You would, therefore, see that the Honourable Minister has done us the greatest possible injustice and harm. Now, there are only 40 seats given to the Chancellor for nomination; and there are the depressed classes who have had no voice in the University, there are my honourable friends, the non-Brahmins, there is the Labour, all clamouring for representation and only 40 seats are available to go round. Nobody is going to be satisfied with that small number. Are we not, with the culture behind us, justified in asking for proper representation on the University? If we have no right, let the Honourable Minister say so. Let them search their hearts and say whether they do not feel that what we ask for is right and proper.

A report has been circulated abroad that the non-Brahmins and we have made a common cause to oust the Minister. Let me take this opportunity of saying that there is absolutely no truth in that. Certainly we do not approve of the policy of the Honourable Minister for Education. We completely disagree with it. It is ruinous for us, and for all educationally backward communities; but there will be no under-hand bowling by us or from us. We are fighting a straight and clean fight; and we expect the Honourable Minister to be as open and frank as we are. The painful part of the whole business is that we are in a minority in Bombay Presidency. It is painful for us to feel that we cannot rely on the Minister for giving us legitimate protection. You will be surprised to know that seven months ago a report was sent out, just as the one now sent out on the working of the present Council; and it was to this effect:

"As an independent member remarked, it would be the easiest thing to throw out the present Ministers.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI: Is it relevant to the discussion?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I have not yet heard him.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED: The report proceeds:

"It may now be safely stated that the most responsible and patriotic members have decided to retain the deciding power in their hands, but to exercise it not rashly, but by guiding and controlling the policies of the Ministers. How far they succeed the future alone can tell."

This was nearly seven months ago, published by the political correspondent of the Bombay Chronicle in its issue of 11th March 1927; and the report has come true. Responsible and patriotic members are indeed controlling the policy of the Minister!

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM: I rise to a point of order. I should like to know whether newspaper quotations are allowed during debate.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: No. They are not usual.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED: Yesterday evening you saw, Sir, that we have to deal with not one Education Minister but with many Ministers. If we have one Education Minister we can please him, but we cannot please 13 Education Ministers.

Question proposed.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District): Sir, I rise to support the amendment. The charge is usually made against my honourable friends the Musalmans and the party to which I belong that we are very communal in our feelings and that we are asking for communal representation and communal advantages. My friend the honourable mover of this amendment has made his reply as to the charges brought against his community. I have, Sir, to-day a painful duty to discharge by showing to the House how the non-Brahmins are falsely charged with communal spirit and caring for communal interests. The non-Brahmin party, Sir, came into existence to protest against the communalist spirit of the advanced community.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. I would allow the communal spirit to be exhibited on this amendment to the extent as to how communal spirit is necessary to obtain a voice in the University and not the history of some parties which showed communalism or not.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : I had no intention, Sir, to give a history of the whole movement. But I wanted to show that the charges laid against us are not proved by actual facts. We had to form a party to protest against the spirit of communalism which was pervading the advanced communities and who have all along tried to exclude us to preserve their monopoly.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : But that is not the point at issue, though.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : As a matter of fact, Sir, although this bill is a very liberal bill and has provided for an extended Senate, a cursory examination of the way in which seats are provided through various electorates will show that none of the communities which are usually termed or classed as backward have got any fair chance of being elected. My honourable friend from Sind has shown that there is barely a chance for one Mahomedan to get into the Senate from the district local boards of Sind. From the three divisions, the Bombay Division, the Central Division and the Southern Division in which this Brahmin, non-Brahmin question prevails, I am very sorry to observe, Sir, that the communities are so very disorganised and the interests of the advanced communities are so very strong that it will hardly be possible for the backward communities to return even a single member from these three constituencies. We cannot even hope to get a seat in any other way. The town municipalities are entirely disenfranchised. Provision has been made that only the city municipalities should have a voice, and I need hardly say, Sir, that in the city municipalities the non-Brahmin communities or the backward communities have no chance. (Rao Bahadur R. R. Kale : Question.) It may be a "question" to the honourable member Rao Bahadur Kale or to my honourable friend from Sind. But it is a fact, and facts cannot be denied. I would ask my honourable friend that he should wait for a few days, till this new Act comes into force and the elections take place, and see. And I shall be really very glad if my prognostications are falsified. But I am quite convinced that hardly a member will be returned from the city municipalities. Then, under those circumstances, Sir, there is no chance for the backward communities, and although the door of nomination is open to us, one can easily see what little advantages the backward communities have derived up to this time. Before 1924, Sir, there was hardly any member in the Senate representing the Hindu backward community, and in nine months from January 1927 up to now,—I am speaking subject to correction,—

[Mr. B. V. Jadhav]

I doubt whether even a single member has been nominated. I for myself have very little faith in the efficacy of nomination, but there is some chance. There are a few members in the Senate simply on account of the powers that are reserved to the Chancellor for nomination, and, therefore, I am claiming, Sir, that the number 40 should be raised to 50 in order to give the backward communities a better chance. It might be argued by the Honourable Minister, Sir, that as practically all the principals will now be provided with seats on the Senate and for that very purpose ten additional seats have been given to University teachers and professors, so ten seats from among the nominated members will be released, which would in the ordinary course have gone to the principals, and those ten seats will be made available to candidates of the backward communities. When this sort of argument was put forward in this House, I raised my protest that the Honourable Minister was seeking to do indirectly which he failed to do directly. On the present occasion, I have to make the same protest. He may try to show that the number of nominated members is substantially raised from 40 to 50 as 10 more seats will be released for backward communities. But I think he would have done it more honestly if he had increased the number from 40 to 50 and reserved 10 places for his principals,—principals of colleges. But he had not the courage to do so, and I shall say even on that occasion I was not convinced by his argument and I am afraid I shall not be convinced if that argument is trotted out again. The number 40, Sir, is very inadequate taking into consideration the vast increase in the numbers of the advanced communities that will be brought into the Senate. In order to give an adequate share to the backward communities and to the Mussalmans, it is necessary that the number of men who can enter into the portals of the University should be increased, that is, the door of nomination should be widened a little, and I therefore claim, Sir, that the number should be raised to 50. I, therefore, support this amendment.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division) : Mr. President, I rise to support the amendment which has been moved by my honourable friend Mr. Noor Mahomed for the increase of nominated members from 40 to 50. I must confess that I have some sympathy for the contention of persons like my honourable friend Professor Swaminarayan, who are altogether opposed to the principle of nomination, and who maintain that if the little finger of nomination be let in, the whole monster, horns and tails and all, will be let in. But, Sir, I have no patience with people like Mr. Munshi, honourable member for the University, who have no objection, in principle to nomination, and who indeed prefer it to election as was observed in the instance of the Vice-Chancellor. These gentlemen have conceded the necessity for the reservation of as many as forty seats by nomination for Muslims and the backward classes and yet the proposal merely for a slight increase in them suddenly reminds them that nomination is communalism and they must fight against it. Swallowing a camel and straining at gnats. They pretend to discover that the backward classes and the Mahomedans as such must not have any voice in the management of the University. Sir, these are venerable arguments which have been invariably used by persons like Mr. Munshi. What are the grounds of their objection? First, they argue that the problem of the University or of higher education is not a political problem and therefore political considerations should not be imported into it. I maintain, Sir, that the problem of higher education in India has become a political problem. Is it not a fact that communities which were politically insignificant in pre-British period have, owing to higher education alone, acquired a predominant place in the political situation of the present day? On the other hand can it be denied that Moslems and other martial races who were rulers before the British, have, owing to lack of higher education alone, fallen from their position and been reduced to insignificance? In order to prove my contention I shall quote the opinion of the Sadler Commission, which is the highest and the latest authority upon the subject, which, moreover, had as one of its members the most distinguished Hindu scholar and patriot, Sir Ashtosh Mukerjee, the Vice-Chancellor of the Calcutta University. In the chapter on "Government and the Universities" page 251, the Commission says:—

"We have felt that the system of university training in India, deeply affected as it is, and always has been, by the movements and thought and the methods of teaching and study prevalent in Britain, cannot be adequately re-constituted unless those who are responsible for its re-constitution hold in mind the whole organised movement of ideas, the whole organisation of learning and study, in the great complex of varied nations of which India is a part. Ultimately like all educational problems, ours is a political problem, and among the highest of political problems; and being called upon to discuss the university system of Bengal at a time when the political system of India is being re-shaped..... We have felt that we could not deal adequately with our theme unless we envisaged it in the light of these momentous happenings."

The second objection is that there is nothing in the affairs of the University which requires safeguarding of communal interest. I maintain there is. Ninety per cent. of the pupils would not care to go to the University if the highest and lowest posts in Government service were not dependent upon University tests and if admission into learned professions did not require its degrees. Even admitting that all examinations are impartially conducted who can say that the members of the backward classes in the syndicate will not be able to suggest means for their advancement or point out defects which hamper their progress? Here also I shall quote the opinion of the Sadler Commission. They have devoted a special chapter to the special educational needs of the Mussalmans. In which they say:—

"We appreciate the truth of the statement which we have quoted from the Fifth Quinquennial Review of Education in Bengal that, until the Mussalmans, are educated sufficiently to be able to take an interest in the affairs of public life, it is difficult to conceive of Bengal as a part of a self-governing dominion within the British Empire; and we accept the corollary namely, that the only possible way in which these people can be made to realise their privileges and responsibilities, as citizens of the British Empire, is by giving them effective access to every grade of modern education..... The problem involved in the education of Mussalmans has been, and still is, a cause of serious perplexity to the Government of India and the local Government..... We have sought to safeguard the Muslim position all along the line. In the constitution which we have proposed for the re-organised university we have provided for the inclusion in the Senate of the representatives of Registered Muslim graduates as also of the representatives of the Muslim community and we have also suggested that the Chancellor should have power to nominate a certain number of members of representatives of particular communities not adequately represented. In designing the Syndicate we have provided that out of 17 members 3 at least must always be Mussalmans."

Further in order to ensure the safeguards provided for the minorities, they give the following powers to the Chancellor :—

"In our view it is the principle duty of the Chancellor to act as an impartial judge between the various interests and communities which must be represented in the university, and to ensure that none of them has reasonable ground of complaint."

Lastly, they say :—

"But there remains yet another function, more general and more difficult to define in exact terms, which it, nevertheless, seems to us essential, that the Chancellor should undertake, in a university embodying so many and such diverse and possibly conflicting interests as the re-constituted Calcutta University. If any college, or community, or any special interest in the university thinks it has been denied equal opportunities, there ought to be a right of appeal and we therefore propose that in such a case the aggrieved body should have the right of formally approaching the Chancellor with a petition that an enquiry should be held and that the Chancellor should, if in his judgment, there is prima facie case for enquiry, he should do so. We hope and believe that this power of appeal to the Chancellor would rarely be used or need be used, but its very existence would be a safeguard against possible dangers and, give re-assurance to some timid elements."

These are the opinions of the highest authority, and none but those actuated by religious bigotry or political jealousy would say that communities have no need to be specially represented on the senate. The case is very strong in the case of my community. The Mussalmans of India have a culture of their own; and a civilization of their own. They have their own languages; their own medicine and music; their own architecture and their own history. Therefore, Sir, they require due share in the management of the university where all these might be developed for the good of the country. The Muslims are not against the system of election, but the bill does not provide any constituency by which they could be safely returned. Representation by election has been denied to them. In the "revealed book," the report of the Reform Committee, there was a provision for the direct representation of Mahomedans by election. viz., through Anjuman-i-Islam of Bombay. The Minister, has set it aside. I want to ask him whether he does or does not think that the Mahomedan community and other minorities should be represented on the senate. At one time he says 40 seats are reserved for them by nomination; at another time, as for instance in reply to Mr. Swaminarayan, he says they are reserved for the purpose of getting in distinguished persons of all kinds. This brings me to the consideration of the question, viz. Why should the constitution of the university be at all changed? It is given out that it should be changed because that body has to be democratised. How are you going to democratise? Is it by allowing the advanced classes to retain the monopoly of university affairs, which they had in their own hands for the last 70 years? If so, I do not see that this Bill will do any good to the backward classes the Marathas or the Mahomedans and it is futile for them to move amendments. Democratisation must mean that equal chances should be given to all the communities not only to pass examinations or to get admission into the portals of the university but also for the management of the university affairs. As there is no chance for us to get admission through election to the senate, the only chance for us lies in nomination.

[Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad]

But whatever the method of representation is to be given to Moslems it should be adequate and effective. Sir, even if 40 seats were given to the Mahomedans or to the Marathas, the advanced classes will not lose anything. Even then they will be in a strong majority in the University and easily maintain their own position. With their knowledge, with their experience, with their start of 70 years, they need not be afraid of any harm if due share in the government of the university is given to the minorities.

Sir, let me turn for a minute to another matter. A highly controversial measure like this ought to have been decided by the consensus of opinion of all parties. But my honourable friend the Minister has never been so kind as to consult me or any Muhammadan representative here upon this question. I do not know what he has been doing behind the purdah, but I know this of late.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I might inform the honourable member that I do not keep the purdah; anybody could approach me.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : I did not say that the Honourable Minister refused to see any one. I said he did not take any Moslem into his confidence (interruptions).

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : In the last 2 or 3 days I understand the Honourable Minister has succeeded in teaming the shrew of Swarajists by her own tactics. He can do nothing without keeping her in good humour. But in order to be in good humour, she insists upon the Minister and the Government being in bad humour with the Muhammadan and backward communities. In accepting that condition, the Honourable Minister has defied the Moslems and turned a deaf ear to all their amendments. I am very sorry that diarchy has been exhibited in its worst form in the regime of the present Minister. I cannot help remarking that on such occasions we feel how injurious it is that the best of our intellects should prefer to go to the reserved side of the administration. If the bill had been in the hands of the Honourable the Leader of the House, we should have had for the cure of our educational ills the prescription of a great physician instead of the pill of the advertising quack that we have at present. I am very sorry to observe that the Honourable Minister is not competent to deal with such a bill. He is not an educationist neither has he had any experience of University affairs. He was never even fortunate enough to be nominated as a member of the Senate. It is a misfortune that this bill, instead of coming into the hands of a great scholar like Dr. Paranjpye, has come into the hands of a Minister who has no original ideas or a policy of his own.

Mr. A. D. SHETH : You ought to have been there; that would have been better.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : I have said what I thought and felt. I do believe that Government do not like any communities to be dissatisfied. But dissatisfaction is there and will assert itself. Sir, nothing is settled which is settled wrong, and you are settling this bill on wrong lines.

But we have a very disagreeable instance in this House of suspicion regarding the conduct of the present Syndicate. The other day, when I supported the motion that Government grants to colleges should be directly distributed by the Syndicate, up against me rose the representative of the University and Honourable Members Mr. Pahalajani and Mr. Jairamdas. They said, human nature being what it is members of the Syndicate would not be able impartially to deal with colleges because of their mutual jealousies, and at last carried the motion that money should always be directly distributed to the colleges by Government. If such is the apprehension entertained by members of this Council belonging to the advanced classes with regard to the honesty of the most gifted sons of the University, is it unreasonable in the Mahomedans to fear that their interests would suffer at the hands of the advanced classes in the Senate and the Syndicate? Let me give you the most recent instance. Hitherto, one Mahomedan senator was elected by the Senate to the Syndicate in addition to one from the Law Faculty. It was Mr. Mirza. At the last election, he was thrown out. There were four seats, for which two Moslems, two Europeans, two Parsis and two Hindus stood as candidates. Two Hindus and two Parsis got in. There is no cumulative voting. Moslem candidates mostly received Moslem votes, and the Europeans those of the Europeans. It is futile to argue that communal considerations do not enter into University elections, or for that matter into any elections. There are the backward classes, the Labour classes, the Jews, the Indian Christians, the Anglo-Indians, and so many other classes. Will it be possible to provide for all of them by these forty seats? I say, even if there were fifty seats, it would be difficult for them to be properly and adequately represented. It is a matter of life and death for the Moslems that they should be adequately and effectively represented both on the Senate and the Syndicate. In my speech on the first reading of the Bill, I pointed out how favouritism and communalism was introduced in English education by Government and how we were left behind; how Government established a Sanskrit College for the Brahmins and no Arabic College for the Moslems; how special facilities were given to Brahmins and how the backward classes and the Mahomedans were entirely neglected. Government now realises how our backwardness has become a source of trouble both politically and economically, and from the point of view of appointments and patronage. If our position in the government of the University is satisfactorily secured, it will automatically settle all other questions.

Now this bill is before the House. It is not always that such a bill is on the anvil. It will affect future generations. It will affect the political, the economic and the social side of the Mahomedan community and of the Mahrattas, and, therefore, I appeal not so much to the Honourable Minister, because he has made a new alliance and given a deaf ear to our appeals, but to other Members of Government and to such Members of the House as are not carried away by party passion, because not a single amendment is accepted. We have set forth our demands, and unless they are satisfied now, the bill will have to be altered again and again until the law gives reasonable facilities to all the minorities. My honourable friend Mr. Mansuri has been giving out that he will organise a party and beat the Moslems and the Mahrattas in the game of communalism. I admit he has done so with a vengeance.

Now, Sir, I do not wish to take up any more time of the House. I appeal to Government once more not to be carried away by the exigencies of the moment, but to do their duty towards us. The educational problem is at the root of all our troubles. It requires a statesmanlike solution. The Leader of the House can, if he likes, give the right lead. The Honourable Minister has rejected every amendment and is determined to carry the bill through without a single alteration.

Sir, I support the amendment which has been moved by my honourable friend, Mr. Noor Mahomed.

Mr. J. B. PETIT (Bombay Millowners' Association) : Sir, I am neither a Hindu nor a Muhammadan, and can therefore claim to speak with a certain degree of impartiality on this important question. It is but right and proper that both the Muhammadan community and the non-Brahmin sections of the people should claim on the Senate of the University a representation commensurate with their importance and numbers in the presidency. But, Sir, the point of view that we have got to consider is not merely that certain sections of the people should be represented on the Senate of the University compatibly with their numbers, but also with their educational status and cultural attainments. When this question is considered from that stand-point, I think this House will not find it difficult to come to the conclusion that sufficient power has been kept in the provisions before us for the proper representation of both these classes on the Senate of the University.

You will find, Sir, that the number of nominated members provided for in the bill comes to as much as 27 per cent. of the total strength of the senate. Let us pause for a moment and consider who are going to be the nominees of Government on the senate. It is very largely those very people who will find it difficult to come into the senate through the other channels provided for in the bill before us. I have no doubt in my mind that in making nominations, an attempt will invariably be made to supply the deficiencies of the elections ; and the Mahomedan community, the non-Brahmin sections, the interests of Labour and the like, will form the bulk of the nominations, commensurate with their importance, numbers and educational attainments in the presidency. But, Sir, when even that point is considered, I am not convinced that the Mahomedans and non-Brahmin classes will find it impossible to come through the other channels which are provided for in the bill, as for instance, through the city municipalities and district local boards. I am assured by those who are closely connected with these bodies, that both the Mahomedans and the non-Brahmins will find it easy to be represented on the senate now and again through these constituencies. Even assuming for argument's sake that they will not be continuously and regularly represented through these channels, I venture to think that they will be almost surely represented through the channel of nomination. It is particularly with such an end in view that the number of nominated seats has been purposely fixed at such a high figure as 40. Those members of the select committee who are here will remember that there was a strong feeling among a large and important section of the members of the select committee that the number of nominated seats should be substantially reduced. A similar feeling was also given expression to in this House and it was very properly turned down, as it was rejected in the select Committee, because attention has to be paid to the legitimate claims and importance of the Mahomedan community, the non-Brahmin classes and similar other sections of the public. When so much has been done, I do not think it is right or fair of them to ask this honourable House to extend that limit and add to the number of seats beyond the figure which has been very properly and rightly fixed at 40, after a full and comprehensive consideration of all the important issues and interests connected therewith. I venture to think that the number is proper and adequate. To add to it, will be to reduce the solidarity of an elected senate. While, therefore, I sympathise with the very legitimate aspirations of both the communities to which expression has been given in this House, I do not think that they have made out a case for increasing the number of nominated seats. I have no doubt that whatever claims they have and whatever case they have made out will be fairly represented on the senate through the instrumentality of nomination for which the figure has been purposely fixed at 40 for their benefit. Under these circumstances, I hope the House will reject this amendment.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Sir, I oppose this amendment. I do not understand why the backward classes and the Mahomedans should be brought into the argument. The fellows are to be nominated by the Chancellor who is the head of the administration. What I mean to say is that these nominated members will not be representatives of the various communities but they will represent Government. I do not know how the non-Brahmin and Mahomedan members feel that their interests would be safeguarded by raising the number of nominated seats. People who will be nominated by Government will help, watch and safeguard the interests of Government.

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL : What are the interests of Government ?

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : Political.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Therefore they have committed a great error in imagining that their interests will be safe in the hands of Government. I do not think that the principle of nomination should be introduced in the bill, because this principle was introduced in the old bill—80 per cent. of the fellows were nominated. That number has now been reduced to 40. I would like to see that the whole of it is removed. Rather than that it was decided that the nomination should not be reduced. Therefore let it remain at the figure 40 but on no account it should be increased beyond the figure that has been put down in the bill. Therefore I oppose the amendment which seeks to raise the number of nominated seats.

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL (East Khandesh District): Sir, I had no mind to speak on this amendment. But after listening to the remarks of my honourable friend from Bombay that, looking to the number of non-Brahmins, they will surely get themselves elected through local boards and that therefore there was no necessity to increase the number of seats, I feel I should enlighten him on those points. I do not know whether he has any knowledge of the local boards, and whether he knows the existing state of affairs in the local boards. He has no statistics before him to come to the conclusion that the nomination provided in the bill is quite adequate. He then stated that no proper case has been made out for the increase in the number of nominated seats. What are his grounds for saying so? Does he know it for certain that people from the backward classes will be returned by the district boards? He does not know. Still he has come to the conclusion that no case has been made out for the increase of nominated seats. His conclusion is no good conclusion because he has not got the materials before him enabling him to come to that conclusion.

I quite realise that if we want our men to be represented in the university they must be men of culture, that is to say, persons belonging to the intelligentsia as was stated by the Honourable Minister yesterday. I do agree with him there. But if we increase the number of nominations, Government will see that men of culture alone are nominated on the senate. I do not say that men with ploughs in their hands should be nominated. I never meant that. Agriculturists would not care to be on the senate. When I say that there ought to be adequate representation I mean that competent men out of the backward classes should be nominated by Government. Let there be no doubt or fear in the mind of the Honourable Minister that there will not be a sufficient number of men belonging to intelligentsia in the backward communities fit to represent them in the temple of learning. We want only competent men. In the interest of the backward communities the nomination should be increased. As was observed by one honourable member there will be applications for being nominated from different communities. Government must make provision for all these communities. So far as even higher education goes, there will not be any difficulty in finding a sufficient number of men from among the backward classes to be nominated to the senate. As higher education is making good progress now, there will not be the least difficulty in finding competent men. In order to satisfy the minorities the number of nominated seats should be increased. I do not see the least reason why this amendment should not be accepted. My fear is that the Honourable Minister will be firm as a rock. He will not move an inch. I know my cry is in the wilderness. At the same time I must advocate the cause of justice and I advocate it and resume my seat.

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by the honourable member Mr. Noor Mahomed. I fully go with him when he is asking for raising the number of nominated seats from 40 to 50. I come to represent those classes which have no voice at all in the Senate or any other public bodies. It is through nomination that my honourable friend Dr. Ambedkar and myself have been able to come here and voice the feelings of the dumb millions behind us weltering in ignorance and suffering. I do not understand why there should be a hue and cry from the opposite benches—the elected members and non-official members most orthodox Hindus—who have got only lip sympathy with the backward and the depressed classes, and who in season and out of season, whenever they have to harangue crowds from public platforms to please Government, say that they have the interests of the backward and the depressed classes at heart and that as Hindus their interests are always identical with the interests of the backward and the depressed classes of the Hindu community. Here, in the speeches made by them during the last three or four days, nothing has been said about safeguarding the interests of the backward and the depressed classes, by members belonging to the advanced and higher classes. It is only members of the backward classes who are labouring hard and endeavouring to safeguard the interests of the depressed classes as well as of Muhammadans and Mahrattas. Sir, in the name of justice, may I ask for fair and adequate representation of the backward and the depressed classes on the Senate? There is the plea made out by the Honourable Minister for Education that only the higher intelligentsia should be represented on the Senate. Sir, is that the plea for representation of the backward and the depressed classes, who have not yet taken the lion's share of the education which has been given by the British Government? I am sure it is the desire of the British Government to give adequate and equal justice to the depressed and the backward communities, but I am sorry to find that our own countrymen and our own co-religionists, viz., orthodox and bigoted Hindus put great obstacles in the way of the Government officers: it is they who are tying down the hands of these officers. Sir, it is not the Muhammadans who are against us. I may tell frankly that the aspirations of Muhammadans and the backward and the depressed classes are the same; we are sailing in the same boat. Sir, who are our obstructionists, who are our opponents, who check and throw cold water on our aspirations, who nip in the bud the aspirations of the backward and the depressed classes? If I may be frank, it is the so-called advanced and higher classes of orthodox Hindus. I feel very sorry to say that. Whenever the question of census comes up, these classes claim the depressed classes as their own in order to strengthen their number, for political purposes. In actual practice, these depressed classes are disowned by Hindus; they are neither Muhammadans nor do they belong to other minority communities; they are Hindus to the core yet they are thrown overboard. Whenever any personal gain has to be achieved by the so-called higher classes of Hindus, these depressed classes are counted as Hindus.

Here, Sir, we are not asking for anything from any religious point of view or from the social point of view, because they may come forward and say Government should not interfere in our religions and social matters. The experience of the educated members of the depressed classes has been bitter. Whenever any aspiring young man seeks to enter the higher or subordinate Government services for which he is fit, the answer he receives always is : " Look here, my dear young man, the whole of Hindu community is against you. There are practical difficulties in the way." On the very floor of this Council Hall answers to my honourable friend Dr. Ambedkar from the official benches were that there were practical difficulties. Any explanation of those difficulties was withheld, but what can that explanation be ? No explanation except this, that the whole Hindu community was against us. Under these circumstances and handicapped condition, to whom are we to look for help and protection ? It is to the Government. Sir, we are invariably asked by the opposite benches how we are going to get protection from the Government or the official benches. Sir, whatever education we have received, and whatever enlightenment we have got, decidedly we have got them after the advent of the British Government and from the Government. It is the missionaries who allowed us entrance into their schools and high schools when other private schools and high schools did not allow us. Let me say it, to the credit of the missionaries and Government that it is they who, without distinction of caste, creed or religion, brought to us the torch of education and enlightenment. Here we are under the protection of the British Government, and are speaking face to face with the most orthodox and the most bigoted Hindus in this Hall and telling them that we are not going to sit quiet any more and suffer all the inequalities, oppression and injustice they have done to us for the last two thousand and five hundred years. The masses are awakened.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI : Sir, is this in order ? We are discussing the raising of nomination from 40 to 50. Are we discussing the advantages of British rule ?

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Sir, we are discussing the system of nomination under British rule. This system was not in vogue in preceding rules. When one seat was asked for Labour on the senate by election we saw the whole rank and file of the opposite benches going to the division lobby against our pleadings to vote with Government against election of one labour member. There we saw the Swarajists going to the division lobby with Government simply to gain their own object, to prevent backward and depressed classes from being elected on the Senate. Sir, whenever any question of grants for educational institutions or the University or any nation-building objects come to be discussed they would fight tooth and nail against Government demand for grants and now I was surprised to find the Swarajists, the Nationalists and other'ists going to the Government lobby. I hope the Government benches will not mistake their attitude and will not be led away by their short-lived support. Their best friends are those who are toiling at the risk of their lives and at the sacrifice of their interests to serve their country and who proved faithful by their deeds to their masters.

My honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan in moving his amendment to reduce the number of nominations from 40 to 30 expressed his view that only distinguished men should be nominated. Now, those distinguished persons will come from the most advanced communities and also from the English officials. The advanced communities would not have any regard for our interests. There may be a soft corner in the hearts of the Government officers for the depressed and oppressed. But let me assure the House that there is not a single soft corner in the hearts of the orthodox and bigoted Hindus. We may perhaps expect something by way of sympathy and support from the Muhammadans and we have received good treatment at the hands of the Muhammadans, indeed better treatment than what we would get from the Hindus.

Now coming to the question of minorities, they are shut out of election. Who shuts them out? It is those honourable members who are sitting on the opposite benches. It is those who strengthen the hands of Government. I do not blame the British people; I blame my own countrymen who are against the aspirations of our young men. As for the Muhammadans, they have got the best defenders. They have got Moulvi Rafiuddin and Mr. Noor Mahomed, barrister and pleader. As to the depressed classes I have narrated to you the grievances of the constituency which I represent from Gujarat. I appeal to the Leader of the House, who, I know is the great friend and champion of the depressed classes.....

An Honourable MEMBER : He is a Hindu, I believe.

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : He may be a high class Hindu, but he is high class in his heart and noble in ideas and actions. There are honourable exceptions just as the late Sir Narayanrao Chandavarkar, Mr. Gokhale and Gandhiji, Mr. Deodhar, Dr. Paranjpye, who are all high class Hindus. We do not look upon them as our opponents but as best friends and we bow to them with respect and reverence and, Sir, we have got the greatest regard for Sir Chunilal. I would, therefore, appeal to him, and other honourable members not to come in the way of giving more seats to these minority communities, the backward and depressed classes, so that they may be adequately represented in the senate.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI (Bombay University) : Sir, the last few speakers appeared to me, if I am to borrow the phraseology of another world, to be more or less whining at the fact that we, the members on the popular side, have chosen to support this bill; and the last speaker seems more in a mood to appeal to the Government benches saying "You are our masters; we have befriended you; why have you forgotten us?" It seems to me that we must raise the level of our discussion. Whether the senate is to have 40 members or 50 members must be judged not from any other criterion, but from the criterion of the efficiency of the university itself. Nobody says that the academicians who belong to the backward classes and the scholars who, by reason of their birth, are not in a position to get into the university by elections should not have a place in the university. Nobody is of the opinion that the backward classes and the Muhammadans should be shut out from the university. And, I thought at one moment that the phantom of communalism with regard to this question was quieted at the first reading of the bill and the speech which was made by my venerable friend the Registrar of the University I thought was a sufficient answer to the allegation that the university is actuated by communalism. I do not propose to go over that ground again. The whole point in issue before us, excepting the irrelevant things that have been said, is whether the nomination should be raised from 40 to 50. Now, the total strength is 144 seats and out of this number something like 10 or 11 are ex-officio. That leaves 133. Out of this 133 you have got 40 for nominations; and the remaining 92 include two classes: one the academicians who will be, to a large extent, controlling the academic destinies of the university and who are absolutely necessary and the other for representatives of local boards and municipalities. It is really unfair to the framers of the bill to say that they are against the ambitions and aspirations of the backward classes. These constituencies of municipalities and local boards were specially framed and in the select committee enlarged, so that persons from the backward communities may have a chance of coming in. In that connection I feel that my honourable friend Mr. Jadhav who complained about the non-Brahmins, ought not to have any grievance at all. He is unfair to his own community in that he says it is backward. In the Southern Division, the city municipalities of Belgaum, Bijapur, Dharwar, Hubli and Gadag have as a president an elected person who is a non-Brahmin. The districts boards of Belgaum, Bijapur and Dharwar have elected non-Brahmin presidents. So far as taluka local boards and town municipalities are concerned most of the presidents are non-Brahmins. They are an advanced community in that division and it is unfair to say that they are backward. The honourable member is, therefore, as I say unfair to his own community.

This clause 13 appears to me more or less in the nature of a long table spread with delicate viands and every one who is hungry wants to be there. Everybody is ready to scramble for as much as possible. I beseech this House to look at this question from the stand point of the university. If it is a question of money to be distributed or wealth to be circulated the question of Labour and Capital can come in. If it is a matter of any patronage or office the different classes may fight with one another. But, Sir, in a place where the acquisition, spread and pursuit of knowledge is the only concern, it is not only fair but just that you must have only the best academicians of the presidency. Therefore, the 40 seats reserved for nominations is quite enough, as they are to supply sufficient places for all leading academicians in the different backward communities.

But the principle, which has been put forward in connection with these nominations, to my mind is very unsound. The system of nomination is not intended for favouring one community or another. It is only intended to supply a method by which leading academicians, to whatever community they may belong, who have no chance of coming through the elections, can come in. And from that point of view I think 40 seats are quite enough. They are five more than what the

[Mr. K. M. Munshi]

University Reforms Committee recommended, and to that extent it is a distinct advance made by the Honourable Minister of Education towards giving further rights to the communities who expect nominations. Then, further, Sir, add to it the 15 members from the municipalities and local boards. The result is that you have got 55 for representation of the classes who do not hope to come in through elections, while the representatives of the registered graduates are only 25 ; no more. Sir, my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan said that ordinarily one would not find a place for nominated members on the University. But we all recognise the necessity of nominations. We all recognise that in this country, at any rate, it is necessary to have them so that certain classes who cannot be returned through election may have a place. But that does not mean that the University should be swamped by persons who are not university men, who cannot adequately and efficiently assist the work of the University.

But, Sir, to my mind, arguments of this kind do not appeal to the honourable members who have spoken for this amendment. It seems to me that their whole object is to throw all sorts of remarks at the devoted heads of the Honourable the Minister of Education and of those who have for the last three days assisted Government in carrying through the bill as accepted by the select committee. Now, Sir, the select committee, on which every shade of opinion was represented, after a careful consideration, has prepared the bill, and in any country, in any civilised country, people would be glad that in a matter of this progressive kind, where a university constitution is to be reframed, an enlightened Government and the members of the popular party are at one in seeking reform. But, Sir, different considerations have come in. And the reason is very clear. We have been taunted, we have been twitted, for following the Government in the Government lobby. Sir, it sounds like nothing but a complaint that the occupation of my honourable friends is gone. Some members seem to think that it is their prescriptive right to see wisdom in the Government measures and would deny to us the liberty of voting with Government even if Government bring in a measure which the popular party could claim as their own. It is, if I may say so, an element of Parliamentary Government that if a Minister, responsible Minister, is placed and enthroned on the official benches, and if such a Minister proposes a measure which is supported by a number of people who have assisted him in being promoted to the office, then, even if the measure of this kind is satisfactory to both the sides concerned, the Government and the popular party, the popular party should vote against it. What is surprising in it ? There is nothing in the cry that this conduct of ours is extraordinary. I say, Sir, that there is the fullest justification for me to say that in this measure the politically advanced members, people who are here as representatives of higher political opinions, are at one with the Government, and I say, Sir, that it is a proud day for the Government as well as for ourselves that we are here to see eye to eye with Government in this measure and do our best to assist it with our votes. We are here,—and when I say, Sir, “ we,” I speak for myself, and my friends who have not sworn to destroy all Government—I say we have been sent here by our constituencies to see that the Government is run on the most progressive and most beneficent lines, and it is our privilege, as it is the privilege of anybody on one side of the House or the other, that, when the occasion arises, we should stand up like one man and help Government, and show that “we are with you whenever you put through a measure which is in accordance with our wishes.”

One member who spoke said that he did not see behind this measure any systematic policy. Sir, the policy to any one who has eyes to see is clear enough. You have got a constitution which has been made more representative; a Senate which is more representative; a Syndicate which is more efficient; a post-graduate board which is to control the teaching activities of the University—and you have got a grant—an amendment for which is to come still, but to which His Excellency the Governor has given his sanction. In addition to it, you find a number of provisions which are all for the extension and the development of the University. At the same time, you find in it the autonomy and the independence of the University retained unimpaired as before, and you have also seen that some retrogressive measures or proposals, though they come from influential quarters have been ruthlessly suppressed out of respect for the popular wishes. What greater policy, what nobler policy, can any Government follow than that? Sir, if I was merely a person who lived and had my being as a pillar to prop up a rival Minister, if I was a petty-minded place hunter bereft of politically mindedness, anxiously watching for the fall of a Ministry, I would, with tongue in my cheek, denounce the Education Minister and say, “You have no policy; you are useless; it would have been much better if somebody other than you had been in your job.” But not having the ignominy of being such a creature, I say, Sir, there is a policy behind this measure and I say.....

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED: On a point of order, Sir. Is it relevant for an honourable member on this side who is not a Member of Government to describe what the policy of Government is? I understand the honourable member representing the University, who is not on the Government benches and who is only a representative of the University, is describing the policy of the Government as an authority on that subject. I want to know whether he is qualified to do so.

Mr. S. K. BOLE: Sir, he is trying to say what he would have said if he had been occupying the Government benches. (Laughter).

The Deputy PRESIDENT: I think there is no point of order involved in this. The honourable member may proceed.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI: Sir, my honourable friend Mr. Noor Mahomed need not worry. He has had his say, and I know his attitude. He has described us as blindly voting with Government! I have already told you what the correct position is. I may tell my honourable friend that what he has been doing all these years for any measure whatsoever, we are prepared to do in connection with this beneficent measure. And we will do it not only in this measure, but in any measure where Government is prepared to fall in with the popular wishes. Sir, we have been sent here by our constituencies, not for the purpose of jeopardising the interests of our constituencies, no' for the purpose of making Government impossible, not for the purpose of playing into the hands of those who are here to hunt for their own jobs. We are here, Sir, to speak in the name of the progressive people of this presidency, and it is our right to say to the Government that "we agree with you." In spite of the taunts and jibes which we hear, it is our privilege to go into the Government lobby if Government has justified its existence by bringing forward beneficent measures and invoking the assistance of the popular side.

[Mr. K. M. Munshi]

There is one thing more and I have done. Sir, unnecessarily the communalism has been invoked by some of the speakers in this debate. Unnecessarily the charge was brought that we are making this a communal affair. My honourable friend Mr. Noor Mahomed and others have charged the Honourable Minister with communalism. Sir, either we give up communalism and simply be politicians dealing with each other as brother to brother or, if my honourable friend wants it, we fight with each other on this question of communalism. Sir, we had had enough of this. We are quite willing to meet our Mahomedan brethren, to sit round a table and discuss all these questions and settle on what each of us wants, just as we have been doing with several others including European officers. If, however, communalism of the worst character is going to be brought in in this manner at every moment and if we are to be told "you shall do this otherwise we shall do this or that;" then I warn my friends that it will raise the spirit of communalism in us just as well as in them. Therefore, I beseech them to remember that Bombay has up to now taken pride in being non-communal. We have so far in this Council tried to keep away the most pernicious doctrine of communalism. We do not believe in communalism. Men like me do not believe in the differences of religion—men like me have ceased to have this kind of influence around us. Why should we be driven into the arms of communalism? Here we are discussing a bill which is purely non-communal in character. It is a question of the higher interests of this presidency as a whole. It is a question of the university of our presidency which is catering to the needs of every community and every race and, therefore, I ask members, even if they disagree and even if they want to have amendments moved, to refrain from making remarks which raise quite unnecessarily the monster of communalism which makes people feel that they are here not for doing their duty or for carrying on university legislation but to fight the ugly brute of communalism. Now, I have done. I oppose this amendment with all the vigour that I can command.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind) : Sir, I must confess that I was surprised to find on the agenda paper an amendment from my friend, the honourable member Mr. Noor Mahomed, asking for the increase of the nominated strength on the Senate from 40 to 50. As the Honourable members of this House will remember, the honourable member

[Mr. Jairamdas Doulatram]

Mr. Noor Mahomed had proposed a similar amendment, an amendment having the same effect, on the occasion of the first reading of the bill, and we had a number of other amendments—more than half a dozen—dealing really with the same principle which is involved in this amendment and which has been brought out in the course of the discussion. All these amendments, including the one asking for the increase of nominated members from 40 to 50, were withdrawn and withdrawn unconditionally, and in the speech which my friend the honourable member Mr. Noor Mahomed made on that occasion, this is what he said on page 836, Volume XX, Part IX, proceedings of the last session :—

“ Sir, Mussalmans and Maharattas are sometimes accused of being communalists. The way the representatives of the backward communities withdrew their amendments yesterday, I think they have shown thereby that they have higher ideals of nationalism than the honourable member Mr. Munshi who spoke so much of his ideals. His idealism is brittle. By withdrawing those amendments we have shown that we have greater regard for the university of Bombay than the gentleman who represents it and talks airily about nationalism. ”

I want to know where that nationalism has gone which was preached by the honourable member Mr. Noor Mahomed that day. Has it become brittle ? Or is it that he was talking of one kind of nationalism that day and to-day he is talking of another variety of nationalism ? I believe that it is the recent change in the situation which accounts for this change in his estimate of nationalism, but I do not want to go into that matter as I regard it as irrelevant to the discussion of the subject before the House. Sir, I believe that it is reasonable that every community, or rather every section of the people which is backward in education should have reasonable opportunities of making their voice felt in the administration of the university affairs, but I am not one of those who believe that every section of the people, whether or not it is educationally backward, but simply because its members believe in a particular religion or they are followers of a particular creed or because they have adopted a particular caste, should be represented on any body . . . . .

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : How can a caste be adopted ?

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : You believe in being born in a caste, I believe in the adoption of a caste. My point is that I can understand the argument that those sections of the people which are educationally backward should be allowed some representation, but it is really a question whether the Mahomedans of the presidency proper are educationally backward. I would like to go into the figures of literacy and educational advance and show that they have made far more progress than most of the other sections of the population and that their progress in education is greater than the proportion of their population, but I do not want to go into those details. I want to contest this principle that because a section of the people follow a particular faith, it is sufficient ground for representation on the university senate. Sir, I believe that in this country we are faced with a very difficult problem. We have sections of the people following numerous faiths—we have the Jews in India, we have the Buddhists in India, we have the Sikhs in India, we have the Parsis in India and we have the Indian Christians in India, and really I believe we are driving ourselves into a very dangerous corner when we grant communal representation on the University Senate merely on the ground of religion. While it is true that the non-Brahmins of the Presidency proper are backward, the non-Brahmins of Sind are not backward. Similarly the Brahmins of the presidency proper are advanced in education but the Brahmins of Sind are not advanced in education; the Mahomedans of the Presidency side are advanced in education but that the Mahomedans of Sind are not advanced in education. Therefore, I do not want to agree to the principle that simply because a section of the people follows a particular faith, therefore, they should be represented on the Senate.

Sir, much has been made of the plea that the Mussalmans of India have a culture of their own, that they have a civilisation of their own and my friend the honourable member Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad said that they have a medicine of their own, and also music of their own. I know that the Arabs or the Unanis have a system of medicine, but I am surprised to learn that the Mussalmans of India have special music and special medicine of their own. Sir, 90 per cent. of my Mahomedan brethren have been born, bred and brought up in India, since time immemorial, and only a small percentage is of foreign descent. Similarly the Indian Christians are born and bred up in India ever since time immemorial. The civilisation to which they look back, the culture to which they look back, the systems of medicine and music to which they look back, are the systems of their own country, i.e., of this country. I think that just as it would be unreasonable for the Indian Christians to talk of the culture of Italy, or of the medicine of France or of the music of Germany, similarly, it would be unreasonable for the Mussalmans of India.....

The THAKOR OF KERWADA : Sir, is the honourable member in order when he refers to the civilization, etc., of Italy. France and Germany ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I think the subject was referred to by previous speakers.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : I would not have gone into this matter but for the fact that it was referred to by the previous speakers. I was saying that it was thus unreasonable for the Mussalmans to look back on any foreign culture but that they should regard Indian culture as their own as it is of every other section of the Indian people.

A complaint has been made that the University has destroyed the Sindhi language. A vague allegation was made; I wish it had been substantiated by instances. I know, on the contrary, that attempts have been made to destroy the Sindhi language by some of our Muslim friends. I do not want to go into the details of those attempts but I will give just one instance to make my point clear. We have all read the story dealing with the incident of the chakris of Rama, and how on the occasion when Bharata and Rama parted, Bharata the younger brother, to show his respect for his elder brother, and as an indication of his future behaviour put Rama's chakris on his head. But we were told that the word chakri was not a proper word, and so the word was changed into juta, and so we were asked to teach our little boys that

[Mr. Jairamdas Doulatram]

Bharata placed the " shoes " of Rama on his head. I do not know how far that can be said to be a justifiable change. I would remind my honourable friend Mr. Noor Mahomed that Sindhi is a Prakrit language, which is closely related to Sanskrit in its grammatical construction. The majority of the words in Sindhi have a close connection with Sanskrit, and the mere fact that some words from Persian happen to be in the language does not entitle any one to give it a Persian origin or a Persian bias. If there is an attempt to remove unnecessary foreign words, it is not killing Sindhi ; it is improving Sindhi.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED : Quite right.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : The one reason which my honourable friend Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad gave for insisting that the number of nominated seats should be increased from 40 to 50 was that men like Mr. Mirza Ali Khan and the honourable member himself were not elected on the School Leaving Examination Board, and he told us on the occasion of the first reading of the bill that for the sake of modesty he did not want to discuss his personal question. I am much interested to see and to learn that my honourable friend Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad is a very modest man. But he discussed the in tance of Mr. Mirza Ali Khan. He said that that gentleman and my honourable friend himself were rejected because they were Muhammadans. I wish to know whether there were any other considerations having nothing to do with religion which were responsible for the non-election of my honourable friend and the other gentleman he has mentioned. My own view is that the special clause put in this bill gives every reasonable protection to the followers of any faith. The clause 6 says :

" No person shall be excluded from membership of any of the authorities of the University or from admission to any degree or course of study on the sole ground of sex, race, creed or class, and it shall not be lawful for the University to adopt or impose on any person any test whatsoever relating to religious belief or profession in order to entitle him to be admitted thereto as a teacher or student or to hold any office therein etc."

If it is a fact that Mr. Mirza Ali Khan and my honourable friend Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad were rejected because of their religion, then the remedy is in their own hands. They can go to court and prove that it was nothing but the mere fact of their being Muhammadans which came in the way of their being elected to the School Leaving Examination Board. I believe there is no point in that argument of my honourable friend.

Then my honourable friend said that the Muhammadans must have adequate and effective representation. To me it appears that the claim to have effective representation is absurd. What does he mean by effective representation ? Is it suggested that the Muhammadans or other communities as such should have sufficient representation to make their demands effective ? Is it suggested that they should have enough representation to make it certain that their proposals are invariably passed by the Senate ? I cannot understand what is meant by adequate and " effective " representation. A minority can never be effective ; it must always remain a minority. I could understand a demand for reasonable representation. I have not the slightest doubt that every section of the people which is educationally backward will have reasonable representation on the Senate through the channel of nomination, not because it follows a particular faith but because it is educationally backward. To me it appears that all arguments alleging unfairness in the matter of nominations are arguments against the impartiality of the Chancellor, and that such arguments should proceed from the honourable member Moulvi Rafiuddin Ahmad is a great surprise to me. I believe, Sir, that these 40 nominated seats will be sufficient for every backward section to have reasonable representation, and therefore I oppose the amendment.

Dr. B. R. AMBEDKAR : Sir, I rise to support this amendment. If I had agreed with the views which my honourable friend Mr. Munshi holds on university reform and the functions of the university, I would certainly not have risen to support this amendment. But I find that both as a person who takes an interest in university reform and as one coming from the backward communities I am in fundamental disagreement with my honourable friend Mr. Munshi. Sir, my honourable friend Mr. Munshi seems to hold that the University is merely a body for the purpose of making statutes and regulations, that it is a body which is merely concerned with holding examinations, and with providing post-graduate courses in University Departments of Education to be started under this bill. Sir, I think that that is a very narrow view of the University. One of the fundamental functions of the University, as I understand it, is to provide facilities for bringing the highest education to the doors of the needy and the poor. I do not think that any University in any civilised country can justify its existence if it merely deals with the problems of examinations and the granting of degrees. Now, Sir, if it is the duty of a modern university to provide facilities for the highest education to the backward communities, I think it will be accepted as a corollary that the backward communities should have some control in the University affairs. Sir, I look upon the University primarily as a machinery, whereby educational facilities are provided to all those who are intellectually capable of using those facilities to the best advantage, but who cannot avail themselves of those facilities for want of funds or for other handicaps in life. Now, Sir, it is said that the University is primarily a concern of the intelligentsia and of the educated classes, and that as the University is to function properly it is necessary that it should be controlled by what are called the educated classes. I would accept that principle, if the educated classes who are going to control the University possessed what we call social virtues. If they, for instance, sympathised with the aspirations of the lower classes, if they recognised that the lower classes had rights, if they recognised that those rights must be respected, then probably we, coming from the backward communities, might well entrust our destinies to what are called the advanced communities. But, Sir, for centuries we have had the bitterest experience of the rule of what are called the higher and the educated classes. Sir, I think it is hardly to the credit of the advanced classes that there should exist in this country a large part of the population which is known as the criminal tribes. It is certainly not to their credit that there should exist in this country a population which is regarded untouchable. Surely, they could have raised the status of the depressed classes, they could have raised the status of the criminal classes. They could have brought their culture to us and made us equal to them, if they had only the desire to do so. But they have never done so in the past and do not mean to do anything in that direction in future. By their callous neglect of us and by their active hostility to our progress they have convinced us that they are really our enemies. There is no doubt that it is their desire to keep us where we are. I do not wish to refer to the debate that has gone on for the last few days. But there is not the slightest doubt about the fact that the opposition benches which looked upon Government as their enemy sided with it now with the sole object of defeating us on this vital question. There is no other excuse for their conduct except that they wanted to defeat the claims of the backward communities for representation through nomination. It is for that reason that they have joined Government whom they opposed in season and out of season. Sir, can we have any trust in an intelligentsia so narrow, so illiberal in its views.

My honourable friend Mr. Munshi said that if it had been a question of division of any material benefits he would probably consent to the introduction of communal representation on the Senate. But I wish to remind him that the backward classes have come to realise that after all education is the greatest material benefit for which they can fight. We may forego material benefits, we may forego material benefits of civilization, but we cannot forego our right and opportunity to reap the benefit of the highest education to the fullest extent. That is the importance of this question from the point of view of the backward classes who have just realized that without education their existence is not safe. It is for this reason that the fight for increase of seats is being made.

There is another point to which I wish to refer. It has been stated several times that since the principals in the different colleges have been given separate representation it will not be necessary to increase the number of nominated seats, because, if the principals had not been given direct representation on the University, Government would have been obliged to use at least 10 seats to make for them. And that as separate provision has now been made for them the whole number of 40 seats will go to the backward classes. Now, Sir, I submit that it is for that very reason that the number of the nominated seats should be increased for ensuring adequate representation of the backward classes. It can never be guaranteed to us that the principals of different colleges who have got direct representation as a result of the amendment of the honourable member Mr. Hamill would necessarily be friends of the backward communities. I have had sufficient experience of these principals, and I am sure that those who will be elected to the Senate will be from the upper classes and they will never come to the rescue of the backward classes who are clamouring for education. If the Honourable Minister has added 10 seats more to the strength of the upper classes in the Senate he should come to the rescue of the backward communities and equalize the balance. That can be done only by adding 10 more seats to the seats that have already been provided in the bill. Sir, we have expressed our fears and our doubts. I think it is only fair that in a matter like this, where the feelings of the backward communities are so high and where they think that their interests will not be safeguarded unless they get representation on the senate, Government should consider whether it is proper that Government should use its official force to put the backward classes at the mercy of the upper classes. I think it would be wise and I appeal to the Honourable the Leader of the House to leave this question to the free vote of this House. Let the House decide in any way it likes best. With these remarks I support the amendment.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Sir, I have no desire to go at any length over the points which have already been raised. But I wish to make one or two observations on the crucial points which struck me as important in this debate. I regard and have always regarded with feelings of pain and regret the introduction of communalism in a sacred place—in the temple of learning which the university is. If communalism is to be introduced into it then I say good-bye to all nationalism. It is there we receive the training for the spread of nationalism—it is in the sacred temple of the university. The honourable member Khan Bahadur Dastur when he spoke on this question at the time of the first reading stated that so far as he had been able to see, in his experience of 30 years he was never able to perceive the least trace of communalism brought into the affairs of the university. It is culture that we have to obtain there. The honourable member Dr. Ambedkar remarked that all the educated people in the senate have not done sufficiently for the backward classes. I do say that it might be due to circumstances not within their power or control. So far as the Deccan Education Society is concerned from the very beginning they have done everything in their power and thrown open their doors to encourage education among the backward communities. The honourable member then referred to the poverty of the backward classes which stood in their way. May I ask the honourable member whether Gokhale and Paranjpye do not belong to poor families? They studied by the lantern lights in the streets. I submit poverty does not come in the way. What is really needed is the desire and the will to reap the benefit of education. I have often heard the argument that owing to poverty the backward communities have not derived the benefit of education. It may be true to some extent but what is really needed is the desire and the will to derive the benefit of education and enter the temple of learning. We have before us the example of the ex-Minister and the honourable member Dr. Ambedkar. (Interruption) I am talking about people who come out of poor families. I am talking of poor people belonging to the depressed classes who have risen to eminence by their own effort and will. My only submission is that we should make some allowance for the environment and the system which has prevailed. Government might have done more and our own people might have done something more. Under these circumstances, it is no use condemning wholesale the educated classes in the university. I have always been hoping for the day when the educated classes of all the communities will stand side by side in the senate of the university.

Something was said about members co-operating with Government. I submit that one half of Government as it is constituted is your own government. Representatives of the people like myself have always thought that it is their duty to press on the attention of Government the real demands of the people and exact out of them as much as they can and see that the machinery of Government proceeds on progressive lines. To that end we must all endeavour. I do not think that all the members on this side form the opposition to Government. There is the ministry which is a part of Government and we ought to co-operate with it.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : The honourable member has definitely joined the ministry.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : It is not full responsible Government. But still the people's representatives in the Council, whenever they feel that the proposals adumbrated by members of Government, especially by members of Government who are representatives of the people, are for the benefit of the people, must see that they are carried through and do not succumb to obstruction. Some members have now adopted the spirit of co-operation with Government. If this spirit had prevailed ever since the Reforms came into force, then the state of things would have been better today. If all members, irrespective of Swarajism or any other 'ism' had been actuated by the same spirit, then the official members of the Council would have been obliged to come down. If even now we combine—our strength is 86—we can make the Government do whatever is necessary. Only we must not show the narrow and sectional spirit which comes in the way of our efforts.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District) : Sir, on this particular question.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : As the time for adjournment is drawing near, the speeches should be short in proportion.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Sir, it may be taken next day.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : This is the most important question.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : On this particular question, I feel that I am on the horns of a dilemma. I have been opposed in principle to nomination and in particular, to giving what may be reasonably described as excessive nomination to Government, because my fear has been, and my knowledge tells me, that often nomination is abused by those in whose hands it lies. On the other hand, I have always recognised the fact that in the peculiar conditions of this country, we cannot entirely do away with nomination. I also feel very much sympathy with the point of view which has been pressed in this Council by my esteemed friend Dr. Ambedkar. I confess his speech has made an appeal to me, and that appeal has been persuasive, coming as it does from one who, I am convinced, is not actuated by any caste or communal feeling, but is really inspired by the love of elevating the condition of the classes which he represents, and so worthily represents in this Council, in order that in the ripeness of time those classes also may take their legitimate place in the national life of the country. I do admit that coming as it does from such a man that appeal has had a great effect on my mind. I do not propose to refer to some of the remarks which have been made by my honourable friend the member for the University and the honourable member for Satara. It appeared to me from those remarks that they were, just as the lady in the proverb, protesting too much ; that something was biting them, pricking their conscience. My honourable friend Dr. Ambedkar has sufficiently replied to my honourable friend the member for the University. No sensible man will say that Government should be opposed in season and out of season ; but on the contrary on the other hand, no sensible man will say that Government should be supported in season and out of season, even on matters which are clearly detrimental to popular interests. If that is the conception of co-operation with Government which my honourable friend the member for the University has, well, it is a conception which he is welcome to have.....

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI : I have not said so.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : I am very glad to hear that that is not his conception.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI : I think the honourable member was not here.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : I was here. I listened to the honourable member's speech carefully. However, I do not propose to refer to that matter further. Coming to the amendment, the question is very simple. I do not think there are diehards here who are prepared to bring forward an amendment to the effect that there should be no nominations at all. The principle of nomination has been accepted ; and the only issue is whether the number of nominations should be 40 as proposed in the bill or it should be 50,—only a difference of 10, and we are fighting over this small figure of 10. Why should there be such heat and acrimony and bitterness in such a small trivial matter ? Well, I put it to the Honourable Minister and the Honourable the Leader of the House, if on such a point we cannot arrive at a compromise. Is it such a difficult matter that we cannot talk over it and come to an agreement ? Is it not possible for the Government or for the Honourable the Minister of Education just to have a talk with my honourable friend Mr. Noor Mahomed or with the leader of the Muhammadan party or with the leader of the non-Brahmin party and arrive at an agreed solution ? It seems to me to be the most reasonable step that any reasonable man would take under the circumstances. If I had been the Minister of Education I would have certainly taken this course, and I do sincerely hope that this course will be adopted by the Honourable the Leader of the House. If this is not done, my honourable friend Mr. Noor Mahomed and others will be justified in thinking that there is something behind the scenes which prevents the Honourable Minister from coming to a compromise on this issue. With these remarks, Sir, I will conclude and I reserve my liberty of action with regard to voting until I have heard the Honourable Minister.

Khan Bahadur S. N. BHUTO (Larkana District): I rise to support this amendment. Sir, I do not want to go into the details of this bill as its merits and demerits have amply been discussed. Really speaking the discussion which has been going on for the last three days is simply disgusting to me. The only object with which this amendment is moved is to record our protest so that it may be understood and fully known that a bill of this nature has to do nothing so far as the Moslem community and backward classes are concerned. I only regret that the discussion of this bill and particularly the tone and spirit shown by our advanced class friends will have far-reaching effect and I really feel that it is a fit test as to whether we Mussalmans should favour further reforms at all when Royal Statutory Commission comes to enquire into it, if this is the fate of the minority. Sir, so far as the Minister is concerned we do not blame him for this unfair and unjust attitude as he seems to have been compelled by circumstances created by his own class of people to take absolutely no notice of our protest. What is more disappointing is that even our friends the Government benches with whom we have all along been friends and helped them at critical and most important questions have not taken any notice of our protest. As regards those who are on this side of the House they soon forget obligations. I don't think they could have forgotten our timely help when we came to their rescue. But on a question like this we find that they are too selfish not to take full advantage of the situation they have created. They consider purely their own interests and have forgotten all principles they talk of. I do not think either party can do for long without help and co-operation of Muhammadan members. Time is not far when one of the parties, Government or opposite benches, is sure to seek our help and we are watching with interests how they approach us after having left us in lurch like this.

Mr. A. D. SHETH: I move closure.

The Honourable PRESIDENT: I accept it.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED (Hyderabad District): Sir, many honourable members have spoken on this amendment but not one of them has tried to prove, in the remotest degree, that we are going to get more representation on the senate than at least one member as a result of the formation of the various constituencies of the University. The Honourable Minister raises his hands in astonishment! In reality we are more astonished than the Minister looks to-day at the results of the actual working of the dyarchical system of Government.

Another point that I made was that an attempt was being made to kill our culture and the proof of it is in the report of the University Committee. Therein the view of the majority appears to be that any culture which is not "indigenous" should be destroyed. My honourable friend Mr. Jairamdas said that Sindhi was a branch of Sanskrit; and there you can see for yourself, Sir, the mentality of those who are going to represent us, the people of Sind, on the Senate.

Mussalmans have been connected with Sind now for over a thousand years; and Persian and Arabic words have crept into our own language imperceptibly, so much so that we do not now realize their being foreign words at all; and my honourable friend, the chief exponent in Sind of this policy of weeding out all Persian or Arabic words and all words derived from those languages, would not give any room in our text books for Sindhi household words such as "Basar" (onions), "Thoom" (garlic) or "Mori" (drain) simply because they are of Arabic origin and would like to have instead of them some Sanskrit words, of the indigenous culture! He would not therefore give room for them in our dictionary. His speech has shown to the honourable House the difficulties we are facing. If any proof were needed to show that our fears are genuine, it has come from the mouth of the honourable member himself. Mussalmans are not being given any representation on the Senate; and even Sind will send such principals, head masters and others on the Senate as will help to kill Persian and make our own language, Sindhi, a foreign language to us. That is why I protest against this bill, and urge that the number of nominations be increased from 40 to 50, to enable the Chancellor to give some chance of representation to the different interests that go unrepresented under this bill. My friend, Dr. Solanki, has explained to the honourable House the great difficulties under which the so-called "depressed classes" labour, and Mr. Jadhav has shown how their community the non-Brahmins are affected by this bill; and so far as we are concerned, with all our best endeavour, we can hope to have not more than one Mussalman member on the Senate, and that through the local boards of Sind. That would also be possible only when Mussalmans put one candidate and there is no disunion among them or else there would be no chance for any Mussalmans being returned to the Senate at all. When pressed for representation for the Labour, the Honourable the Leader of the House, Sir Chunilal, referred the advocates of Labour to these 40 seats reserved for nomination. So, Sir, every discontented element is being referred to these 40 seats, which, in the circumstances, are not enough.

The honourable member, Mr. Munshi, tried to frighten me by speaking loudly. I assure him his noise has no terror for me. In a competition between him and myself in talking loudly I can beat him hollow. Sir, he has tried to show that the voting we have had during the last few days on this bill has been ideal voting in the reformed Council in the whole of India. I perfectly agree that in the transferred departments the members on this side of the House must have a deciding voice; and the Minister should be responsible to the elected representatives in this House. With that position no one can have any quarrel. But my grievance is quite different. In a parliamentary government, the leader of a party can become a Minister; and as a leader he is to lead his flock and is not to be led every now and then, as is happening now in this bill. He must retain for himself the right of deciding for himself whether he should or should not accept any amendment of a clause ; and should not delegate it to his "followers" ; and his decision must be accepted by his followers. That is the difference.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : Is not the Minister to be responsible ?

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED : Quite so, Sir, he has to be. But if the Minister has to run to his party or the so-called followers every five minutes to decide for him what decision he should take on any particular clause of the bill or any amendment moved with regard to the bill, then I say that "the parliamentary government" as witnessed in the case of this bill is a farce ; that is reducing dyarchy to a farce.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, as the time is limited, I do not wish to take up much time in reply. In spite of the kind courtesies of some honourable members of the House who have taken part in the debate on this bill, I desire to assure the honourable members of this House, and particularly those belonging to the Muslim and Maratha communities, that I as Minister of Education am in charge of the interests of the various populations in the whole of the presidency and they may be sure that, as far as lies in my power, I shall try to protect, as I have hitherto done, the interests of all classes and communities which require to be protected.....

Mr. R. S. ASVALE : On a point of information,.....

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I am not going to give way to anybody. Sir, my honourable friend Moulvi Saheb referred to an instance even in his speech to-day that in the University the Mahomedan community was not receiving its proper due, and the honourable member Mr. Jadhav also questioned me as to what I had done for one or the other of the communities, during the nine months that I am here, with regard to any nominations upon the University Senate. Sir, during the short time that I have been here, out of the three nominations that have been made, one was of Syed Nawab Ali in September—or this month—and the other was of Sir Fazalbhoy Currimbhoy ; and so, in the nominations the Mahomedan community has had more than its due. (An honourable member : What about the third ?) I am questioned about the third nomination. The third is also a non-Brahmin, Principal Rawlinson. (Laughter.) The honourable member Moulvi Saheb talked about many things which are beside the mark. There is no question about nominations, whether they should be provided for or not. They are in the bill. The question only is what should be the number of nominations ? No one says that Mussalmans should not be on the Senate. No one has said it, and in a temple of learning, as I have said before, all votaries of learning are entitled to have a place and all have equal rights. But being a temple of learning, it is only the votaries of learning, the exponents of learning,—to whatever classes or communities they may belong,—will have a right to come and will also have a right to find a place by nomination.

[Dewan Bahadur Harilal D. Desai]

A reference was made, Sir, to Islamic studies by the honourable member Mr. Noor Mahomed. Now, very shortly the Andheri College is going to be opened, where the Islamic studies are to have a preference over all other studies, and consequently they cannot accuse Government of neglecting the Arabic studies. And even if one were to look at the University Reforms Enquiry Committee,—a report which has been described by my honourable friend Mr. Moulvi as a revealed book,—there also were on it two Mahomedan members, Sir Fazalbhoy Currimbhoy and Mr. Mirza Mahomed Ali Khan, and their recommendation with reference to the number of nominations was only 35, whereas the Senate has put it at 40. Originally, I myself was inclined to put it at 30. But before I put in the bill for the first reading, it was raised to 40. So that, the number was increased beyond even the recommendation of that committee, and if honourable members would refer to page 156 of the report, they will find that only one member was given by it out of 24 to the managing committee of the Anjuman-i-Islam in the said report. Even to the municipalities and the district local boards only 4 members for each were given, whereas in the bill there are more than that, and the rural interests are, I submit, adequately represented in the scheme of the bill. The Mussalman population as well as the Maratha population live in large numbers in rural areas, and the district local boards have a sufficient number given to them, through which they can very well come, and it is not restricted, as the honourable House has noticed yesterday, to the members of those bodies, but advocates of Islamic learning and Islamic studies like the honourable member Mr. Noor Mahomed can also come in.

There was a remark also made by the honourable member the Moulvi Saheb that a man like Mr. Mirza Ali Mahomed Khan was recently defeated. But who was instrumental in defeating him? My honourable friend the Moulvi Saheb was a rival of Mr. Mirza Ali Mahomed Khan, and if they had not quarrelled among themselves, perhaps Mr. Mirza Ali Mahomed Khan would have succeeded....

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : I strongly protest against that....

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I do not want to give way and I do not want to be interrupted. That was an election to the Syndicate. Consequently, if communities cannot agree among themselves and pit one against the other, then they have no right to accuse either the Minister of Education or the Government for the results that follow.

Sir, the criticism was that the University as at present constituted is dominated by teachers and professors, and the University Reforms Committee wanted that the University should have a sprinkling also of the men of affairs. Consequently, in the scheme of this bill provision has been made for both. And lastly, I would submit to the honourable House that sufficient provision having been made for professors, including principals, by raising the number allotted to them from 10 to 20, there is no reasonable cause for complaint that the just aspirations of the 'votaries of learning in the various communities which are considered as educationally backward will have no place in the number of nominations. I, therefore, submit that the amendment will be rejected by the House.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : May I ask the Honourable Minister whether principals of colleges will not be nominated in future ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : My honourable friend Mr. Jadhav was till recently holding a responsible position and, having now been out of it, wants me to give an answer which would be against the responsibilities of my office.

Question put. House divided. Ayes 26 : Noes 49. Motion lost.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I suppose the two honourable members whose amendments follow, namely, the honourable member Mr. Jadhav and the honourable member Mr. Bole, do not wish to move them.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : The second part of Mr. Bole's amendment will have to be moved.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The last part is also in a separate amendment rejected by the House and the first is just now rejected. I do not think either would be in order now. Does the honourable member Mr. R. G. Pradhan wish to move his amendment ?

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : I do not want to move it.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : In that case I can dispose of clause 13 now.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Sir, I wish to raise a point of order on the amendment of the honourable member Mr. Bole. As a matter of fact, there are two portions of that amendment. The first is that the number of nominated seats should be increased from 40 to 50, and the other is, whatever the number of nominated seats may be, 3 seats should be reserved for Labour. It is true that the House has shown its unwillingness to give any special seats to Labour by election, but that does not mean that the House has expressed its opinion that even from among the nominated members no seats should be set aside to represent Labour.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I understand the amendment to mean that the number 40 should be increased to 50, and out of the 50, 3 seats should be reserved for Labour. If the second part of the amendment were an independent amendment by itself, it would have clearly stated that 3 out of the nominated members should be representatives of Labour. That was Mr. Joshi's amendment. In its present form, I think it is out of order.

Clause 13, as amended, ordered to stand part of the bill.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The House is now adjourned till 2 p.m. on Friday, the 7th October 1927.

Friday, the 7th October 1927

The Council re-assembled at the Council Hall Poona, on Friday, the 7th October 1927 at 2 p.m., the Honourable the President, Mr. A. M. K. DEHLAVI, Bar.-at-Law, presiding.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order, Questions.

PROVIDENT FUND SCHEME

Mr. M. G. BHOSLE (West Khandesh District) : Will Government be pleased to state how many resolutions and memorials regarding the adoption of Provident Fund Schemes with gratuity in lieu of pension, have been received by them from Government servants, individually and from recognised associations and from whom ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : The attention of the honourable member is invited to the reply given on 5th August 1927 to clause (b) of the question put by Mr. H. V. Pataskar (East Khandesh District) printed at page 1421 of the Bombay Legislative Council Debates, Volume XX.

SCHOLARSHIPS IN GUJARAT : CLASSIFICATION OF COMMUNITIES

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the classification of the various communities of Gujarat into advanced, intermediate and backward made in the census report for 1921 and accepted in Chapter XV of the report on Public Instruction for the year 1923-24 is still accepted for the purposes of awarding scholarships mentioned at page 189 of the Civil Estimates for the year 1927-28 ;

(b) if the reply to the above be in the negative, the reasons for departing from the 1921 census report ;

(c) whether it is a fact that the cultivating and artisan classes are included in the class of intermediate Hindus ;

(d) the principles on which the scholarships referred to in (a) are awarded ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) No.

(b) It has been found that some of the communities in the Northern Division classified as Intermediate in the census report are educationally as advanced as some of the castes included among the Advanced classes and therefore such communities have been excluded from the benefit of special educational concessions available to non-Brahmin backward communities.

(c) Yes, for the purposes of the census report only and not necessarily for concessions in educational matters.

(d) The scholarships are awarded to pupils belonging to communities which are educationally backward. In addition to this the age of the candidate, the marks obtained by him at the last University, School or College Examination and the circumstances of the parent or guardian are taken into consideration in awarding the scholarships.

SUKKUR BARRAGE LANDS : NEW SETTLEMENTS

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether in view of the new settlements on the hitherto waste lands under the Barrage, increase in police, courts, roads and railway expenditure has been decided upon by Government ;

(b) if so, what facilities will be provided for the new settlers.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : (a) and (b) Additional facilities of all kinds will naturally be provided when the time comes but at present no detailed decisions have been reached.

EDUCATION : DEPRESSED CLASSES AND BACKWARD HINDUS

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind) : Will Government be pleased to state —

(a) when they have last reviewed the progress of education among depressed classes and backward Hindus in the Bombay Presidency ;

(b) whether it is their intention to issue a report reviewing the progress of education among above sections of the population in the past ten years ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) In March 1924.

(b) No. In the opinion of Government it is as yet too early to do so.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : Have Government published the result of their inquiries made in March 1924 ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : So far as I know, they have not.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : Have Government any objection to publish it ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I will consider it.

GOVERNMENT HIGH SCHOOL, HYDERABAD

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind) : Will Government be pleased to state —

(a) whether it is a fact that Government have ordered the opening of an extra division for the first standard in the Government High School of Hyderabad.

(b) the maximum limit fixed for admission of students in that division and the number fixed for Hindu and Muhammadan students ;

(c) the number of Hindu and Muslim students who joined the class before the vacation and the number of those who joined after the vacation ;

(d) the total number of students who are now in the extra class who had already found accommodation in other schools in Hyderabad (or in other towns where they or their parents resided) when the extra class was opened ;

(e) whether they will place on the Council table copies of resolutions issued by Government in regard to the opening of the extra division this year and last year ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Yes ; for the last and current years only.

(b) The maximum limit fixed for admission is 30, 15 being Hindus and 15 Muslims.

(c) No boy was admitted before the vacation as the question of the percentage of admissions of Hindus and Muslims was pending before Government for final sanction.

(d) Twenty-three students of the extra class had already found accommodation in other local schools.

(e) It is regretted that the request cannot be complied with as the preambles of the Resolutions contain or cite the reports of Government officers which are intended for the information of Government only.

LLOYD BARRAGE : REVISION OF ESTIMATE OF RECEIPTS

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that they are revising the estimates of the receipts side of the Barrage project ;

(b) if so, to publish the result of such revision ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : (a) No.

(b) Does not arise.

HONORARY MAGISTRATE, PALGHAR

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they think of the creation of a Bench of Honorary Magistrates at Palghar ;

(b) whether there is any demand in that behalf from the public ;

(c) if so, whether the circumstances have changed in any way since their answer to similar questions was given during 1926 ;

(d) whether they are aware of the educational qualifications of the personnel proposed for such a Bench ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a), (b), (c) and (d) No proposal for the creation of a Bench of Honorary Magistrates at Palghar is before Government. Nor are they aware of any public demand for one.

EKRUK TANK (CANALS, SHOLAPUR)

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR on behalf of Mr. N. G. MAJMUDAR (Sholapur City) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the mileage to which water was run in the perennial canal of the Ekruk Tank at Sholapur for letting out water for rabi cultivation during the five years 1917 to 1922 ;

(b) the time the water takes to reach the 11th mile, the 22nd mile, and the 27th mile of the perennial canal from the time it is let out from the tank ;

(c) the time taken to reach the 5th mile of the left bank of the canal ;

(d) the time taken to reach the 3rd mile and the 11th mile of the right bank of the canal ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : (a) Rabi irrigation was allowed on the Ekruk Tank Perennial Canal during the five years 1917-18 to 1921-22 up to the mileages as shown below :—

				Miles
1917-18	..	..	..	11
1918-19	..	..	..	23
1919-20	..	..	..	19
1920-21	..	..	..	19
1921-22	..	..	..	19

(b) The time water will take to reach a particular mile depends upon various factors. Assuming that the perennial canal is running full, the water will take about 16 hours to reach the 11th mile, about 32 hours to reach the 22nd mile and about 41 hours to reach the tail. The total length of the canal is a little over 26 miles.

(c) The length of the Left Bank Canal is 4 miles and the time taken by water to reach the 4th mile will be about 6 hours.

(d) About 4 or 5 hours to reach the 3rd mile and about 16 to 18 hours to reach the 11th mile.

Ekruk Tank Canals : Irrigation Acreage

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR on behalf of Mr. N. G. MAJMUDAR (Sholapur City) : Will Government be pleased to state the probable acreage that could be irrigated by the various lengths of the Ekruk Canal, and the quantity of water that would be wasted due to leakage or evaporation, etc., by supply of water to the following various lengths of the canals :—

(a) the right bank of the Ekruk canal for the first 3 miles, for the subsequent 7 miles, and the final 6 miles ;

(b) the left bank of the Ekruk canal for the first 3 miles and the subsequent 3 miles ;

(c) the perennial canal of the Ekruk Tank from the 19th mile to 24 miles, and from 24th mile to 27 miles ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : (a) The irrigable areas under command of the different lengths of the Right Bank canal of the Ekruk tank are :—

Total length, 18 miles

Length			Area
Miles 1 to 3	..	..	1,107 acres.
Miles 4 to 10	..	..	2,237 „
Miles 11 to 18	..	..	1,131 „

(b) The irrigable areas under command of the different lengths of the Left Bank canal of the Ekruk tank are :—

Total length, 4 miles

Length			Area
Mile 1 to 3	..	..	665 acres.
Mile 4	..	..	130 „

(c) The irrigable areas under command of the different lengths of the Perennial canal of the Ekruk tank are :—

Total length about 26 miles

Length		Area
Mile 19 to 24	.. ..	1,580 acres.
Miles 25 and 26	.. ..	1,060 „

It is not possible to state definitely what quantity of water will be lost in transit in giving supply to the different lengths of the canals mentioned above. The loss however is assumed to be 50 per cent. for the upper reaches and 70 per cent. for the tail portion.

ROAD PROJECT : AHMEDABAD-BHADRA

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI (Ahmedabad and Surat Cities) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware of the fact that there is practically only one principal road known, viz., Richey Road leading from the railway station to Bhadra on which the main vehicular traffic and motor buses run ;

(b) the number of (1) private cars, (2) motor buses, (3) horse carriages (private), (4) hackney carriages, plying in the City of Ahmedabad ;

(c) whether they had made any proposals to the municipality for a parallel relief road from the railway station to Bhadra ;

(d) whether any plans have been prepared by the consulting engineer to Government for the same :

(e) the number of accidents that occur in the city especially on this main road and the number of human lives that are lost every year owing to heavy vehicular traffic ;

(f) what has become of the said proposed relief road ;

(g) what steps they propose to take in the matter to save so many precious human lives and accidents ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : (a) Yes.

(b) (1) 456, (2) 84, (3) 724, and (4) 510.

(c) No ; but schemes have been prepared for the relief of congestion of traffic by the Consulting Surveyor to Government at the instance of the Municipality.

(d) No.

			1925	1926
(e)	Injuries resulting in deaths	.. ..	6	10
	Grievous injuries	.. ..	7	4
	Slight injuries	.. ..	150	179
	Total	.. ..	163	193

Note.—On those in 1925, 64 occurred on the main road, viz., Richey Road, 3 resulting in death. Of those in 1926, 59 occurred on Richey Road, 2 resulting in death.

(f) and (g) The Relief Road scheme is abandoned for the present as it involves dishousing of a very large number of people, and cannot be taken up before some arrangements are made to provide houses to these persons.

For this purpose, two Town Planning Schemes, viz., Ellis Bridge and Kankaria have been prepared and they are now before Government for their consideration.

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI : In view of the fact that the number of deaths has increased from 6 to 10 and grievous injuries from 150 to 179, do not Government think it advisable to revive the Relief Road scheme ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That is a suggestion for action.

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI : In the 1st list.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That cannot be done now. That question will arise after finishing the 4th list. I will give my opinion about it.

BOMBAY PORT TRUST : HOUSE-RENT ALLOWANCES

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI (Bombay University) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that officials in the Dock Department of the Bombay Port Trust draw allowances or house-rent in addition to their salaries ;

(b) whether the members of the staff are paid any allowance or house-rent ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : (a) All married officers of the Dock and other Departments of the Trust draw house allowance or are provided with quarters. In the latter case, the quarters are rented on a percentage of salary basis ;

(b) No. The Trust generally follows Government practice in the matter of grant of house allowances.

IRRIGATION TANK AT UNTADI, TALUKA BULSAR

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that there is a big irrigation tank at Untadi, taluka Bulsar ;

(b) the area of the tank, the area of land assessed to himayat under it, when it was last repaired and the annual irrigation revenue levied on the land under the tank.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : (a) There are two irrigation tanks at Untadi, taluka Bulsar, in charge of the Public Works Department, viz., (1) the Biban tank in R. S. No. 580 and (2) the Gam tank in R. S. No. 811.

(b) The subjoined table furnishes the requisite information in respect of the two tanks :—

Serial No.	Name of tank	Area of the tank	Area of land assessed to himayat	When last repaired	Annual irrigation revenue
1	2	3	4	5	6
		A. g.	A. g.		Rs. a. p.
1	Biban tank .. ..	6 4	31 13	1926-27	60 13 2
2	Gam tank .. ..	16 20	65 26	1903-04	118 0 10

CITY SURVEYS, SURAT

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that in city surveys particularly in Surat indicative survey numbers are given to individual tenements in one and the same building owned by one and the same person, and that separate sanads are issued for every such indicative number formed in the recent revision city survey ;

(b) if the reply is in the affirmative, the law and authority under which this procedure has been adopted ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes, where such tenements actually stand on different land (building sites), not being superimposed on identically the same land.

(b) Under sections 132 and 133 read with clause 11 of section 3 of the Land Revenue Code.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : I want to know whether the indicative survey numbers is the same as the survey number ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : The original survey number is retained with subsidiary numbers.

CAUSEWAY OVER TITUR RIVER, CHALISGAON

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR (East Khandesh District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that the construction of a causeway on the Titur River at Chalisgaon on the Chalisgaon Outram Ghat Road has caused silting up of the river and the diversion of its current towards the side of the old town ;

(b) whether it is a fact that the causeway being unprotected on the river-sides is dangerous in rainy season ;

(c) whether it is a fact that the causeway is in a very unsatisfactory condition owing to the wearing out of stones in many places ;

(d) whether they have considered the advisability of having a bridge in place of the present causeway ;

(e) whether they propose to issue orders to improve the causeway ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : (a) The construction of the causeway over the Titur River near Chalisgaon has caused accumulation of sand on the upstream side. As regards diversion of the current towards the old town, the situation of the openings is not such as would tend to have this effect and there is no definite evidence that such diversion has occurred.

(b) During the period of actual floods with the water-level above the formation level of the causeway it is dangerous for traffic to pass over it, there being no guard stones on the central portion of the existing causeway.

(c) The local stone available for the paving of the causeway being soft, the paving has worn away and the surface has become very rough.

(d) In view of the present financial stringency and especially in view of the fact that there are many masonry works which are urgently required on many of the roads in the East Khandesh Division, the question of replacing the existing causeway by a bridge cannot be considered at present.

(e) Arrangements to provide guard stones on the central portion of the causeway have been made. Cement concrete paving has been provided for a small area of the causeway. If this paving is found to wear well, it is proposed to replace the remaining worn paving with cement concrete next year.

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR : With regard to the reply to (b) do not Government consider it urgent to have the bridge instead of the causeway ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : There are so many others that are equally urgent and this will be considered along with them.

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR : Are not Government aware that concrete paving has been washed away ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Government are not aware.

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR : Will Government make enquiries ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : I want notice.

SCHOOL BUILDING AT VINCHUR, NASIK DISTRICT

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the building in which the Local Board School at Vinchur, taluka Niphad, district Nasik, is located in unsuitable and insanitary, and condemned as such by local officers, educational and other ;

(b) whether it is a fact that the area of the building is only 1,200 square feet, and yet about 190 boys are accommodated therein, though according to departmental rules, the accommodation is enough only for 120 boys ;

(c) whether it is a fact that a resident of the village by name Vishnu Vyankatesh Kachole has offered his building, which is about 2,200 square feet in area, for the school for the same rent as is paid for the existing building ;

(d) whether it is a fact that Mr. Kachole's building is much better, more sanitary and more suitable than the present one ,

(e) whether it is a fact that Mr. Kachole, though a Brahmin, is quite willing to agree that boys of the depressed classes may be allowed to sit inside ;

(f) what action the Education Department has taken to see that the school is removed to Mr. Kachole's building ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Yes.

(b) The owner of the school house gave some additional rooms for the use of the school in 1926-27 and the area of the school house at present is 1,940 square feet and not 1,200 square feet. The present accommodation is sufficient for 190 boys at the rate of 10 square feet per boy.

(c) Yes.

(d) Mr. Kachole's building is better and more suitable.

(e) Yes.

(f) The matter was referred to the Chairman, District School Board, whose reply is awaited.

EDUCATION OF CHILDREN OF GOVERNMENT SERVANTS AT NASIK

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District) : Will Government be pleased to state what provision has been made for the education of the children of those who are employed in the Government Distillery, the Security Press, etc., at the Nasik Road ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : There is a school located in one of the Distillery buildings, teaching up to the Vernacular IV Standard and open to children of employees in the Distillery, the Security Press, etc.

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN : Is the school referred to in the reply intended for the children of the depressed classes ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : No.

SCHOOL AT PIPARIA

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether there is a school in the village of Piparia, taluka Mandvi, district Surat ;

(b) whether the village people have applied to Government for opening a school in this village ;

(c) whether there are 39 boys and girls fit for attending the school in this village ;

(d) whether the village people are willing to give a building for the school free if a school is opened in this village ;

(e) whether Government have considered the request of the village people for a school in their village, and if so, what decision they have arrived at ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) No.

(b) Yes.

(c) It is understood that there are about 35 boys and girls who would join the school, if one is opened.

(d) No. They agree to build a chhapri (hut) for school purposes.

(e) Pending the solution of the differences between the District Local Board and the Department, the request of the village people could only be entertained when some moribund school in the district has to be closed for want of numbers and attendance, or the financial situation improves.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Is it not the rule that a school should be opened where there are 35 pupils to attend the school ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : But the rule is general.

HOSTELS FOR DEPRESSED CLASSES IN GUJARAT

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that the number of the depressed class population is very great in Gujarat ;

(b) whether it is a fact that no steps have been taken as yet by them to open boarding houses for the boys of these classes in the principal cities of Gujarat, viz., Ahmedabad, Surat, Broach, Kaira and Godhra ;

(c) whether they intend opening boarding houses or hostels at any of these cities in the near future ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) The number of the depressed class population in Gujarat is 249,639.

(b) Yes.

(c) No definite statement can be made at present.

SCHOOLS : COMPULSORY STUDY OF HINDI

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have considered the question of making the study of Hindi compulsory in the primary and secondary schools in the presidency and in Gujarat in particular ;

(b) if so, what conclusion they have arrived at ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) and (b) The question of providing instruction in languages other than the recognised vernaculars, particularly Hindi, is under the consideration of Government.

DHOLERA VILLAGE SITE : RIGHTS OF CITIZENS

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether copies of all the old documents in possession of the citizens of Dholera have been supplied to the Collector of Ahmedabad District ;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, what action Government have taken to safeguard the rights of the citizens of Dholera over the village site of Dholera ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Copies of some of the old documents have been lately supplied to the Collector.

(b) The question is under consideration.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : How long will it take to come to a decision ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I am unable to inform the honourable member.

LAND TRANSFER FEE CHARGED BY INAMDAR OF SAHIJPUR BHOGA

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Inamdar of Sahijpur Bhoga, a village in North Daskroi Taluka of Ahmedabad District, charges a fee of Rupee one for the transfer of land from the name of one Khatedar to another by sale or inheritance, calling it Sakar Najarana of the Inamdar ;

(b) if so, what steps they have taken to stop that illegal levy of the Inamdar on the cultivators ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes. The Inamdar states that at the time of mutation of names he charges a customary nazrana. The amount is not fixed at one rupee, but varies in different cases.

(b) No steps have been taken as no complaint has been received from the tenants nor have any facts been adduced showing that the charge is an illegal one.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Under what section of the Land Revenue Code is this Sakar Najrana levied ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Under no section.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Why is it allowed to be charged if it is not provided in any section of the Land Revenue Code ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : It has not been shown to be illegal.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : It is not provided in any section of the Land Revenue Code : that means that it is illegal.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : It is a private transaction between private parties.

LAND REVENUE COLLECTION : INSTALMENTS

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is true that the minimum amount of land revenue payable in one instalment has been increased by them from Rs. 5 to Rs. 20 ;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, the reasons why the poor cultivators paying land revenue between Rs. 5 and Rs. 20 have been deprived of their right to pay their land revenue in two instalments like the other more well-to-do cultivators ;

(c) if the answer to (a) is in the negative, whether Government are aware that talatis compel the cultivators to make all payments of land revenue between Rs. 5 and Rs. 20 in one instalment, and what steps Government have taken to stop the said practice of talatis which presses more heavily on the poor cultivators ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) No.

(b) Does not arise.

(c) No such cases have come to the notice of Government.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (In Urdu) : Sir, may I ask my question at page 9 of this list ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I want to bring to the notice of honourable members that if they have questions to ask they must be in their places at the proper time. This moment I notice that we have some time at our disposal and I shall make an exception and allow. In future, they must be careful : I will not allow it. At any rate, I am not going to allow supplementary questions.

AIDED SCHOOLS IN KARACHI : GRANTS

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that as a general rule no middle or high school is recognised, unless it has worked for more than a year to the satisfaction of the Educational Department ;

(b) the recurring and non-recurring grant-in-aid paid last year in Karachi to—

(1) the Model High School started last year, which now maintains Sindhi classes only ;

(2) the Gujarati Middle School, started last year and attended by Gujarati Hindu students only ;

(3) the Mission High School ;

(4) the Karachi Academy High School ;

(c) whether it is a fact that, as a rule, grants for 1926-27 were paid on the basis of expenditure incurred during the year 1925-26 ;

(d) the amount of expenditure incurred in 1925-26 by each of the four schools mentioned in clause (b) above, respectively, and the proportion of the grant-in-aid to the expenditure in each case ;

(e) whether they are aware that—

(1) the Karachi Academy High School has a total existence of over ten years ;

(2) that it received annual grant-in-aid of about Rs. 2,500 when it was only a middle school branch of Madressah Hasani ;

(3) that it is now a high school managed by an educational society, registered under Act XXI of 1860, composed of prominent and leading Parsi, Hindu and Muslim gentlemen ;

(4) that it is attended by Hindu as well as Muslim students having Gujarati and Urdu as their vernacular ;

(5) and that it only receives Rs. 1,800 as grant-in-aid ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) As a rule, a new school should be in working order before it is inspected by the Department to ascertain its fitness or otherwise for recognition and registration. There is no rule that it should necessarily be in existence for at least one year before it is recognised.

(b) Grants as under were paid in 1926-27 :—

		Recurring Rs.	Non-recurring Rs.
(1) Model High School, Karachi	..	8,227	2,325
(2) Karachi Middle School	..	1,514	....
(3) C. M. S. High School, Karachi	.	11,322	....
(4) Karachi Academy	..	2,015*	....

* Rs. 1,895 ordinary, Rs. 120 extra.

The Model High School, Karachi, admits non-Sindhi boys to standards V, VI and VII. The Karachi Middle School is not reserved for Gujarati Hindu students only. It is open to all Gujarati-speaking communities. Hindus, Parsis, Muhammadans, etc. In fact, there are pupils from the Muhammadan, Parsi and Jain communities studying in this school.

(c) Yes. But the Model High School, Karachi, and the Karachi Middle School were paid grants under rule 6 of the Grant-in-aid Code as these schools were started in order to accommodate boys who could not be admitted to the N. J. High School, Karachi, owing to the gradual abolition of the Double-Shift System.

(d) The first two Schools were not in existence in 1925-26 [vide answer to (c) above]. With regard to the other two schools the admitted expenditure in 1925-26 was as under :—

C. M. S. High School, Karachi	Karachi Academy
Rs.	Rs.
34,730	11,349

The proportion of grant-in-aid to expenditure works out as under :—

C. M. S. High School, Karachi	Karachi Academy.
Approximately 33 per cent. calculated on expenditure for 1925-26.	Approximately 17 per cent. calculated on expenditure for 1925-26.

(e) (1) No. The VII standard was opened only on the 1st April 1927.

(2) Yes. The grants received were as follows :—
Rs.

2,200—Ordinary grant.

335—Special as a Muhammadan school.

180—Supplementary.

Total .. 2,715

- (3) Yes, but standard VII was opened only on the 1st April 1927.
- (4) Yes, but boys of the Borah community are in the majority.
- (5) It received Rs. 2 015 as grant last year.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO : Is the Honourable Minister aware that the number of students in the Academy is much more than in any of the other two schools ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Yes, it appears so from the figures.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO : Then, why is it not given more grants ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : All these questions are being considered on their merits, and if the honourable member has any facts about any particular schools he can bring it to the notice of the Minister for Education.

Mr. M. S. KHUHRO : Cannot the Honourable Minister see that the grants made to the Academy is small in spite of the fact that it has more students and is more useful ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : If the honourable member will be pleased to discuss the matter with me afterwards I will explain to him.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : It has been pointed out by the honourable member Mr. Khuhro that the particular school he referred to (the Karachi Academy) has more students than the Model High School and the other schools. Is it a fact ? I know it is not a fact. Is it also a fact.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : One question at a time.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : Is it a fact that the Karachi Academy has more students than the Model High School or the Gujarat Middle School ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I cannot exactly tell you (Inaudible).

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : Is it a fact that only Hindu Gujarati boys are learning in the Gujarat Middle School ? I know there are some Muhammadan students also in that school.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I have already said that it is open to all Gujarati speaking communities.

ANNEWARI : ADWAL AND JALIA

Mr. A. D. SHETH (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Commissioner, N. D., had received an application from the talukdars of Adwal and Jalia to reconsider their case ;

(b) what has the Commissioner done in the matter beyond forwarding the same to the Collector ;

(c) whether the Commissioner during his last visit to Dhandhuka Taluka visited these villages to understand for himself the case ;

(d) if answers to (b) and (c) are in the negative, their reasons for the same ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) The Commissioner received an application from the talukdars to the effect that they apprehended that the annewari framed by the local officers would not be correct and praying for suspension.

(b) As the petitioners had not stated whether they had applied to the Collector or not, the petition was returned to them for submission to the Collector.

(c) and (d) The Commissioner did not visit these villages, as no further petition was received by him.

Mr. A. D. SHETH : With regard to (e), will the Honourable Member kindly state the names of the villages which the Collector visited ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I require notice of that.

Mr. A. D. SHETH : The villages mentioned in my question (e) are villages on Bavaliari side. Did the Collector visit those villages ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I am unable to say whether the Collector toured on that side.

Mr. A. D. SHETH : My question was "whether the Collector visited any of the villages on Bavaliari side" and the answer is not clear. I want to know whether any of the villages on the Bavaliari side were visited.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I shall enquire about this and inform the honourable member.

AHMEDABAD COLLECTOR IN DHANDHUKA TALUKA

Mr. A. D. SHETH (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Collector of Ahmedabad camped at Dhandhuka for over a week in the month of January ? If so, for how many days ;

(b) whether there was a complaint then that crops had been spoiled a good deal by excessive rains and by insects in some villages of the Taluka ;

(c) whether just at the time of the Collector's camp in the Taluka the Taluka Local Board of Dhandhuka had appointed a committee to inquire into the reported bad conditions of crops and consequently of people and the committee had already toured when the Collector was camping at Dhandhuka ;

(d) whether it is a fact that the Government themselves thought it fit to suspend revenue collections in full in about 20 villages and half in some ;

(e) whether the Collector visited any of the villages on Bavaliari side, where Government decided to give full suspensions ;

(f) the total number of villages where the Government gave total or partial suspensions as also of those for which the Local Board Committee made their recommendations ;

(g) whether the Collector attempted to understand the situation from the Local Board Committee or any one or more gentlemen of that committee ? If not, why not ;

(h) the total number of villages he visited out of 156 villages of the Taluka during his camp in Taluka and what he did to correctly understand the situation of distress in the Taluka ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes, for nine days from 13th to 21st January 1927.

(b) Yes.

(c) Yes.

(d) Yes, in 19 villages full suspensions were granted.

(e) Yes. The Collector visited some of the villages where full suspensions were granted.

(f) Full suspensions were granted in 19 villages and half suspensions in 19 villages. Out of the 11 villages recommended for full suspension by the Local Board Committee, half suspensions were granted in eight and in the remaining three the full revenue was ordered to be collected.

(g) The Local Board Committee did not call upon the Collector and represent the facts to him whilst he was at Dhandhuka : but he had the Committee's report before him when he passed his orders.

(h) The Collector actually visited six villages and he saw the crops of several others on the way during his stay in the Taluka. By this means he was enabled to appreciate the situation in the Taluka.

ANNA VALUATION, DHANDHUKA TALUKA

Mr. A. D. SHETH (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state —

(a) whether the Collector of Ahmedabad had received a report of the Dhandhuka Taluka Local Board Committee of the conditions and the anna estimates of crops in some of the villages in the Dhandhuka Taluka ;

(b) whether the Collector gave any consideration to this report when passing final order of revenue collections in those villages, and if not, why not ;

(c) whether it is a fact that the Assistant Collector considered the anna estimates of the Dhandhuka Taluka Local Board Committee and agreed with most of them ;

(d) whether in view of the fact that the Local Board Committee had made a special tour and inquiry in the affected villages and in view of the further fact that the Assistant Collector after a personal tour and inquiry had agreed to most of the conclusions of the committee, the Collector took any particular care to understand the situation in those villages and made any particular inquiry before passing the orders of revenue collections ? If not, why not ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes.

(b) Yes.

(c) The Deputy Collector, Dholka Prant, considered the anna estimates of the Dhandhuka Taluka Local Board Committee and agreed with some of them only.

(d) Government are satisfied that the Collector made all reasonable enquiries before passing orders.

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI : Sir, question No. 1 in page 23.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Which is the list which the honourable member refers to ?

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI : First list.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, I am very loath to raise any question about your allowing questions to be asked from the previous lists, but I find, Sir, that honourable members here do not even possess copies of the question lists Nos. 1 and 2, nor have they any files from which they might answer supplementary questions. I would like to know, Sir, whether you would allow questions from lists which were placed three, four or five days previously to be put now. If there is any question of particular importance which an honourable member wishes to ask, perhaps you might allow an exception ; but generally speaking it would be very difficult to go back to lists which are many days old.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I quite agree with the Honourable the Leader of the House, and I have said quite as much. If the honourable members are not in possession of their files and their lists, I do not allow the questions.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : I do not think there will be any difficulty in allowing these questions to be put, if you disallow any supplementary questions.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I have already said that I would not allow supplementary questions, but honourable members have not got the lists.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : They may simply say " as printed. "

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I think it is unreasonable that questions should be asked from the first list when we have gone through three other lists. The honourable member could have taken the opportunity to ask his question when the other lists were before the Council.

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI : Sir, I informed the Secretary immediately the other day, and he told me that I might ask for permission when the next list of questions was before the Council, and I now put the questions accordingly.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : It must be clearly understood that it is really a matter of the time of the House more than the convenience of the Members of Government. After the third list was finished, no other list has been placed before the House until to-day, and it would be legitimate if questions were asked from the third list to-day, because there was no opportunity to any honourable member who was absent on the day the third list was before the House to ask for permission between that day and to-day. But it would not be reasonable to ask questions from the first two lists.

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI : Then, may I ask my questions in the third list ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Yes.

AHMEDABAD CITY WALL

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI (Ahmedabad and Surat Cities): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have received any memorial from the public of Ahmedabad, both Hindus and Muhammadans, regarding the demolition of the city walls, Ahmedabad Scheme No. 5;

(b) if so, the names of the memorialists;

(c) the main grounds put forward in the representation;

(d) whether they are aware of the fact that the Muhammadan members of the Ahmedabad Municipality, one and all, are against the demolition of the city wall scheme;

(e) whether they are aware of the fact that the city walls were built by four Ahmeds (including King Ahmed Shah) and twelve Bavas who were and still are held in great reverence both by Hindus and Muhammadans;

(f) whether they are aware of the fact that the said city walls of Ahmedabad are considered to be very sacred by both the sister communities;

(g) whether they are aware of the fact that the portions of the city wall to be demolished are its northern and eastern portions;

(h) whether they are aware of the fact that the windward side is always the southern and the western one and not the northern and eastern one;

(i) whether they have made any enquiries as to the fact that there is no scope for any further expansion of the city on its northern and eastern sides owing to the close proximity of the mill area on both these sides;

(j) what steps they propose to take in the matter?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN (a), (b) and (c) Already replied to.

(d) Nine out of 12 Muhammadan members in the Board have voted against the scheme. The remaining three were absent.

The scheme was passed unanimously in 1919 and 1923 when all the Muhammadan members including some of the present members who have now voted against had supported the scheme even though the former scheme affected a much larger area and a greater number of houses.

(e) and (f) Already replied to.

(g) Some portion of the Northern, Eastern and also the Southern part of the wall is proposed to be demolished.

(h) It is not always so. Occasionally the wind does blow from the eastern side also.

(i) There is considerable scope for development on both the sides as there are a large number of open plots in the proposed scheme which are capable of being developed.

(j) Already replied to.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : May I be allowed to ask Rao Saheb Desai's questions from the third list?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The honourable member who puts the question was absent and the honourable member who was deputed to ask the question was also absent. I do not think therefore it is reasonable to allow it.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Before we proceed with the business I wish to move the adjournment motion of which I have given notice . . . .

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : My consent has not been obtained. I have several motions like that to be considered.

(Further consideration of Bill No. XXI of 1927, Bombay University Bill, resumed.)

Clause 14 (Office vacated by leaving India) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 15 (Vacating of office) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 16 (Term of office of ordinary Fellows) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 17 (The appointment of a Fellow may be cancelled).

The Local Government may, on the recommendation of the Senate supported by at least two-thirds of the whole number of Fellows, cancel the appointment of any person appointed or elected a Fellow of the University. As soon as such order is notified in the Bombay Government Gazette, the person so appointed or elected shall cease to be a Fellow.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : I move :

In clause 17, Substitute "three-fourths" for "two-thirds."

Sir, . . . . .

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. Before we proceed with the discussion, I should like to bring to the notice of the honourable House that the amendments, as I have already pointed out, are many and so are the clauses before us. We have taken a number of days for this bill and honourable members will save their time if they limit their speeches and if only a few speak on each amendment. Otherwise I would be readily willing to accept closures and in that case I would naturally disappoint many honourable members.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Sir, this clause has been taken from the old Act. It is an antiquated clause. It gives power to the senate to disqualify a member of the senate. Such a thing should not be allowed and it would be desirable to delete the whole clause. But if it must remain, such a power as disqualifying a fellow of the senate should be made as impossible as possible. Sir, there should be some symmetry in the bill. The appointment of the rector which was not at present necessary was provided by a statute which requires a majority of three-fourths of the whole number of fellows. This is a matter more important than that. It is a question of disqualifying one of their colleagues and unless there is a very strong reason for it the senate of the university should not be allowed to utilise this power. Therefore in order to preserve the symmetry of the bill and in order that such power may not be lightly used on all occasions I should like to provide that at least three-fourths of the whole number of fellows must be required for the purpose of cancelling the appointment of the fellow elected or appointed to the Senate of the university. I therefore move that "two-thirds" may be dropped and in its place "three-fourths" may be inserted.

Question proposed.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR (Karachi City): Mr. President, I rise to support the amendment moved by my honourable friend for the Ahmedabad rural. Sir, when this bill was discussed in this House at its first reading I had taken a strong exception to this provision. I have then pointed out that the Honourable Minister for Local Self-Government in his Major Municipalities Act and other Acts had altogether done away with the disqualifying clause. And as such surely a member of the senate is certainly not considered as inferior to a member of the municipality in integrity or any other attributes and that there is hardly any reason for adding this unworthy clause in the bill. Sir, it has not been pointed out to this House that during the existence of so many years of this university a fellow was found unworthy to sit on the senate and that recourse had to be taken to disqualifying him for certain unworthy acts which he had committed. In the absence of any proof of that kind I think the time has come to remove that clause altogether. After all, Sir, this provision gives no definite description as to the circumstances in which a member may be disqualified and since it has been left to the discretion of the senate by a two-thirds majority to unseat a fellow elected by his constituency I think it is reasonable that at least three-fourths of the number, as proposed by my honourable friend from Ahmedabad, should be provided. As a matter of fact, Sir, I personally feel that this power is not necessary at all until and unless you are able to define the circumstances in which alone a member can be unseated. It is a very dangerous clause to be allowed to pass without protest and the least you can do is to put this clause on a par with the question of the appointment of the rector. I therefore strongly support the amendment.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI (Bombay University): Sir, I rise to support the clause as it stands and I oppose the amendment moved by my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan. I have only one consideration to urge namely that some persons are very difficult to please. This clause is a distinct advance on the clause as it stood at the first reading. But if this clause is altered as is now sought to be done it would reduce the university to this position. If a fellow is convicted and sentenced to rigorous imprisonment for 7 years for criminal misappropriation and breach of trust still he will continue to be a fellow of the university and take part in the control of the university.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: That is not the point. The point is whether the number should be two-thirds of the whole number or three-fourths.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI: The number 'two-thirds' is of the whole number. As I have already mentioned, Sir, three-fourths of the members is an impossible number to achieve, and, therefore, it is necessary for the University to retain this clause and not to reduce the clause to such an impossible one as to make it inoperative. The only fear which I expressed at the first reading was that some public man who invites the wrath of the Government might be deprived of the fellowship by a two-thirds of the number of fellows present. But that danger has now disappeared for this reason, for the number is now increased to two-thirds of the whole number of fellows. Therefore, there must be first, roughly 100 fellows, who must be prepared to consider the person concerned as an undesirable. And secondly, the last part of the clause has been removed, the effect of which is this: If he is nominated, then necessarily Government will have the right to renominate him if they want. But, if he is an elected fellow, then all that he has got to do is to go back to his constituency and get himself re-elected. So, the deletion of the last clause is a distinct improvement and it would invariably prevent a public man of any standing from being driven out of the University by any amount of influence that may be exerted against him into the Senate. Therefore, Sir, I think this clause as it stands is really in the interests of the University and must be allowed to stand.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North) : Mr. President, I had no mind to speak on this amendment, but, as the previous speaker the honourable member for the University has spoken that three-fourths number of the fellows will not be found in the University Senate when this question comes in there for the discussion, then I am afraid I must ask him as to how is it that the amendment that was passed for the appointment of a Rector required that a three-fourths majority is necessary will be found in there at that time? Why was that amendment passed at all when a majority of three-fourths will not be obtained? There a majority of three-fourths will be obtained, but here in the case of discontinuing the fellowship of a gentleman it will be very difficult for the Senate to get the three-fourths majority! I was really astonished to hear the member for the University saying in the one case they can get the majority and in another case they would not. It is quite absurd, and I am quite sure they have decided only to pass the bill as it is, as per their compromise with the Minister of Education and nothing else. With these few words, I resume my seat.

An Honourable MEMBER : I move the closure, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I accept the closure.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Sir, the honourable member for the University said that a man convicted of criminal offence may have to be caught hold of. But I assure him that no such person will be caught hold of. This clause is to be used against men who are working in the political field, and, therefore, we should wish that the majority must consist of three-fourths and not of two-thirds. Of course, there may be 40 or 45 fellows who may be directly nominated by Government, and there may be others also who may not like the presence of extremists, and then they may come forward and disqualify a fellow like Mr. Ghate. They should not be allowed to do so with such a small majority as two-thirds for the purpose. It is clearly a barbarous and uncivilised way of disqualifying. It is handed down from the Act of

[Mr. J. C. Swaminarayan]

1857, and it must have been passed at the time of the mutiny. But when we have gone so far, such a barbarous clause ought not to be allowed by the Honourable Minister for Education to remain on the statute book. But if it is intended by the Minister to retain it on the statute book, he must be generous enough to grant a three-fourths majority as in the case of the Rector. Otherwise, if he does not allow a three-fourths majority and if he sticks to his guns and wants two-thirds majority, then we have every reason to believe that he is not standing for the democratic ideal which he ought to represent when he is a popular Minister. Therefore, I hope he will be generous enough to grant three-fourths majority and not stick to his guns in season and out of season.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, the original clause 7 of the Act of 1857 provided that the Governor of Bombay in Council may cancel the appointment of any person already appointed as a fellow. There, the power was absolute in the Governor in Council. Consequently, in the present bill the power has been in the first instance left to the Senate, and the Governor in Council cannot of his own accord or decision move in the matter, and it has been further safeguarded by providing that unless two-thirds of the whole number of fellows agree to the cancellation, the provision of the section shall not apply. Under those circumstances, Sir, I submit that the apprehensions of my honourable friend are not well founded, and the section as safeguarded as it is at present was allowed to stand in the select committee with the addition of the words "whole number" in order to provide a further safeguard. Under those circumstances, there being three safeguards, the intervention of the Senate first, then the intervention of a two-thirds vote, and thirdly two-thirds of the whole number of fellows, I submit that the honourable House will allow the clause to stand as it is and will turn down the amendment of my honourable friend.

Question put. House divided. Ayes, 11 ; Noes, 45. Motion lost.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I would again request honourable members not to insist on divisions if particularly the results are as we have seen. There might be important amendments although they may be lost, and I can understand the spirit and the feeling of certain members that a division should be asked for, so that names might be recorded, but not in every case.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : Sir, I move the following amendment to clause 17 :—

In clause 17, add the following words at the end :—

“ and he shall not be eligible for re-appointment or re-election until the disqualification has been removed by the local Government by a notification in the Bombay Government Gazette.”

This clause, as originally drafted by Government, contained these words but they were disallowed in the select committee by a very narrow majority. It is considered necessary that even if the senate passes a vote of disqualification against a particular member, there must be another chance for that member to represent his case. The amendment is intended to provide a sort of an appeal. If a member is disqualified on insufficient evidence or for unsatisfactory reasons, then if this amendment is carried he will have an opportunity of representing his case before Government and he will thus be able to save himself the ignominy of being thrown out of the senate. I therefore hope that Government will support this amendment and the original clause, as drafted by Government, will be finally passed by this House.

Question proposed.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI (Bombay University) : Sir, only one word. On Saturday my honourable friend Mr. Jadhav spoke as a champion of the people. Now, when the Honourable the Minister of Education is proposing a clause which is really in favour of the people, my honourable friend finds fault with it. The only effect of this deletion is this, that if there is an elected Fellow, and his appointment has been cancelled by two-thirds of the whole number of Fellows, then all that he has got to do is not to ask the Local Government to remove his cancellation but to go back to his constituency and get re elected. That is the result of the clause as it stands. But no, my honourable friend Mr. Jadhav, who in the last division was carried away by the fascinating eloquence of my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan and went into the lobby with him, now suddenly turns against popular opinion to such an extent that he is prepared to hand over to Government the right of deciding whether a Fellow whose election has been cancelled should be elected by his constituency. He is willing to hand the power over to the Government when the Government say that they are prepared to part with the power. That is the position, and I submit that the amendment should be rejected.

[Mr. K. M. Munshi]

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Sir, the honourable member for the University (Mr. Munshi) says that the effect of the deletion of the words proposed to be added by the present amendment will be that the Fellow will be eligible for re-appointment and re-election. Now, if that is the intention, then in order to remove any ambiguity in the construction of this clause, let it be stated in clear terms that he shall be eligible for re-appointment and re-election. I do not think that the Honourable Minister will have any objection in putting down those words to clear up any ambiguity. Let the words "and he shall be eligible for re-appointment and re-election" be added at the end. Remove all ambiguity, if that is the intention.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Is that a new amendment which the honourable member is proposing ?

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : No, it is not a new amendment. I want that the intention of the legislature should be made clear.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : How can that be done, except by an amendment ?

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : I am not moving an amendment. I am making a speech. Sir, the honourable member for the University has stated in so many terms that the intention of the clause is that the Fellow whose appointment is cancelled may be re-elected or re-appointed.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : I rise to a point of order. It is not on the amendment before the House that the honourable member is speaking, but on something else.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I understand that the honourable member wants only to support the amendment.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : No, Sir. In reply to the amendment, it has been stated that the effect of the deletion of the words at the end of the clause is that the man will have an opportunity of going back to his electorate if he wants to be re-elected. I want the Honourable Minister to make that clear. If it is the intention of the legislature that the deletion of those words will have the effect of making the man eligible for re-appointment or re-election, I do not think that there will be any objection to those words being added.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : There are only two courses left open to the honourable member, either to support the amendment or oppose it. There is no question of adding any words to the clause.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Certainly, I oppose the amendment, because if the effect of the deletion of those words is what was explained by the honourable member for the University, then it is an advance on the original clause. But it is necessary that the ambiguity should be removed, and the facts stated clearly. I think it is possible for the Honourable Minister of Education to do it, when he replies to this amendment.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN (Bombay City, South) : Sir, I do not understand why the select committee decided to omit the last paragraph of the clause. The clause as it stands amended by the select committee is absolutely inoperative ; because, suppose a member appointed or elected becomes so obnoxious and so intolerable that the Senate decide to cancel his appointment, what happens if the man is re-appointed at once by Government or re-elected ? The position becomes quite incongruous. The clause, as it stands, has no meaning. The power that we want to give to the Senate to oust a man for a certain period does not work at all if you give the man the chance of coming again to the Senate. I think that the select committee might have done better to allow that man to be out of the Senate for the life time of that Senate. I do not know, Sir, whether you will allow an amendment to the amendment of Mr. Jadhav to be moved saying that the words " and he shall not be eligible for re-appointment or re-election for the remaining life of the Senate " should be added.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That is not an amendment to the amendment. It is a negation of the amendment.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN : The honourable member Mr. Jadhav wants that the person shall not be elected again until the local Government removes the bar. I say that the amendment might be amended this way, namely, add the words " and he shall not be elected for the life time of the Senate." Only in that case will the clause be operative. If you, Sir, rule the amendment out of order, then I have nothing to say.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The amendment is :

" Add the words ' and he shall not be eligible for re-appointment or re-election until the term of the office of that particular Fellow expires.' "

Does the honourable member want the words " until the disqualification has been removed by the local Government," etc., to remain ?

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN : I do not want those words to remain. All that I want is that he should not be re-elected or renominated for the rest of the term of his office.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That means that the rest of the words should go.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : The amendment appears to be to delete all the words from my amendment and put the words he has suggested instead.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I cannot allow it.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI (Belgaum District): Sir, I oppose the amendment moved by my honourable friend from Satara (Mr. Jadhav). The retention of the clause as it stood in the original bill means an encroachment upon the right of the electorate. For various reasons, the Senate may reject a Fellow, but there may be other considerations for which the electorate may wish that he should be elected again and be on the Senate. It may be all right for the University to say that a particular man should not be on the Senate, but it should not have the right of saying or dictating to the electorate which particular man should be chosen. The effect of retaining the clause as it was in the original bill therefore means an encroachment upon the right of the electorate, and therefore the words that appeared in the original clause have been omitted in the select committee. On this ground, therefore, I oppose the amendment.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District): Sir, the honourable member for the University has given me a status that of the tribune of the people. I am really very thankful to him for the compliment. The people of Satara have sent me here to plead their cause and the cause of the down trodden people in other districts. I regret to observe, Sir, that the honourable member for the University is not very solicitous for preserving the dignity of the University which he has the honour to represent. The section as it stands says that the senate by a two-third majority can cancel the appointment of any person either elected or nominated as a fellow of the university and as soon as such an order is published in the gazette the person ceases to be a fellow. That is the clause as amended by the select committee. The honourable member for the university says that it gives liberty to the electorate to elect him again and to question the judgment of the senate. If the same man is sent back by election it means that the electorate are of opinion that the two-thirds of the fellows present at the meeting that disqualified the fellow are fools or something very akin to them. My amendment if accepted will leave the Government to accept the decision of the senate or to reconsider it and not allow that person to contest the election again until his disqualification has been removed by Government. It gives a certain sort of protection to the senate or else if the protection is not there the same person may be re-elected and the two-third majority of the senate may reject him again. This game may be played a number of times. (An Honourable Member: Demonstration.) Yes.

There was a time in the history of the British Parliament, Sir, when on some religious sentiment a man was not allowed to take an oath and sit in the Parliament and he had to seek election over and over again in order to show that the affirmation or oath was not exactly in the form in which the nation wanted it. This was a protest against a particular rule, and there was no slur on the legislative body for that decision. There are no such circumstances in the case of the vote of the senate. The senate will have to decide upon the circumstances of the election or upon the character of the man that has been sent to that body as to whether he is fit to be associated with, in other words, whether he is fit to be a member of the senate. If two-thirds of the fellows come to the conclusion that he is not a fit person for being associated with, there ought to be no chance of appealing to the electorate and the electorate should not have a chance of re-electing him to show that the fellows of the senate are not in their senses. The honourable member representing the university has not really seen what is to the interest of the learned body which he represents here. I hope he will not oppose it when he finally votes upon the amendment.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, logically speaking the clause as it stood before the bill went to the select committee was and ought to be a proper part of this provision. However the select committee wanted to make this concession in favour of those whose appointment as fellow has been cancelled on the recommendation of the senate by the local government. It was argued that such a man should be allowed to stand for re-election and that to compel him to go to the forum of the local government will be hard on him. Therefore he was given the concession of going back to his electorate and place his case before it whether he has been rightly or wrongly disqualified as a fellow. Under these circumstances the provision was cancelled and a concession was given to the man who has incurred the displeasure of the senate. Therefore I think that the select committee having come to that conclusion the House will keep the clause as it stands without the amendment proposed by the honourable member Mr. Jadhav.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : On a point of information. Does the Honourable Minister think that the members of the select committee or majority of the members of the select committee are endowed with a faculty of infallibility ?

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : I want to know whether the interpretation of the honourable member Mr. Munshi is correct that a person who has been disqualified by the senate and re-elected by the electorate will be allowed to sit in the senate.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : There is no bar to a fellow whose appointment has been cancelled to stand for re-election.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Will that disqualification come in the way of his sitting in the senate ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : What view the senate may take after such a person is re-elected I cannot say.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : There are two circumstances in the clause : one is re-election and the other is re-appointment. What is the honourable member's question ?

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : If, after rejection, a person is re-elected or re-appointed will the senate give him a seat ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : As I said before the latter part ought to have been there and the select committee as a matter of concession took that view. So far as I am personally concerned I am not against the amendment.

[Dewan Bahadur Harilal D. Desai]

Question put and carried.

Clause 17 as amended ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 18 (Powers of the Senate) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 19 (Faculties) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 20 (The Syndicate)

(1) The executive government of the University shall be vested in the Syndicate, constituted as follows from among the fellows :

- (a) the Vice-Chancellor ;
  - (b) the Rector, if any ;
  - (c) the Director of Public Instruction, Bombay ;
  - (d) seven persons elected by the members of the Academic Council from among themselves, provided that each faculty shall be represented by at least one member ;
  - (e) nine persons to be elected by the Senate from among the Fellows who are neither Principals, University Professors, University Teachers, Teachers nor Head Masters.
- (2) Every member of the Syndicate shall hold office for three years, or until he ceases to be a fellow, whichever period is shorter.

(3) The Senate shall frame Statutes prescribing the manner of election of elected members of the Syndicate and the conditions governing their term of office.

(4) If in the case of any election the question is raised whether any person is or is not a Principal or a University Professor or a University Teacher or teacher or head masters, the question shall be decided by the Vice-Chancellor.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Sir, I beg to move :

In clause 20 (1) (b) add the words " and the Chancellor shall nominate three to represent special interests. "

The appointment of Rector has been agreed to ; so, I do not move the first part of the amendment to delete " the Rector, if any. " Under the bill, the members of the Syndicate are to be elected. As honourable members of this House know, although there may be qualified Fellows in the Senate, it is very likely that they may not be elected to the Syndicate. Therefore, I think it would be proper that the Chancellor should be given the power of nominating three persons to the Syndicate. Sir, I know that the Honourable Minister stands on firm ground and that he will not budge an inch. I hope, however, that in this case the argument of efficiency and the bogey of communalism would not be brought forward. I hope that he will see his way to accept this amendment.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I would ask the honourable member if he does not think that this amendment would fit in better after (e).

Mr. S. K. BOLE : I have no objection.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, I rise to a point of order. The present clause 20 was clause 19 in the original bill which was before the House for the first reading. When the original bill was before the House for the first reading, there were amendments for having nominations to the Syndicate which the honourable members Mr. Noor Mahomed, Mr. Bole and Mr. Khuhro had given notice of. With regard to these amendments, it is recorded in the official proceedings of the Council at page 726 (Volume XX) :

"The Honourable the President. The next amendment is from the honourable members Mr. Khuhro and Mr. Bole : It is :

"Clause 19 : In sub-clause (d) at the end of the word " Fellows " add the words " provided that at least five of them will belong to the Mahratta and allied castes, depressed classes and the Mussalman community in such proportions as may be fixed by the Chancellor."

So that, it was an amendment for nomination by the Chancellor to the Syndicate. It was not moved. You, Sir, will find at page 726 of the Debates (Volume XX) that Mr. Jairamdas Doulatram asked you :

"Do I understand, Sir, that these being amendments of principle, if they are not moved before the first reading is passed, they cannot be moved afterwards ?"

And you said : "It is so." Previous to that, there was also a clear statement made by you to that effect at pages 724-725 of the Debates (Volume XX). So, in view of that, this amendment which seeks to introduce the principle of nomination to the Syndicate is, I submit, out of order.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Sir, may I be permitted to say one word ? I should like to point out to the Honourable Minister that that amendment was for the nomination of specific communities, such as the Muhammadans, the Marathas and others, but this is a general amendment, not dealing with any particular community at all. I do not think that comes in the way of your accepting it.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I certainly think that the amendment in form is of a general nature but in purport it would come to the same.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMED : I would like to say a word. The principle of nomination is already in the bill ; it is not a new principle but only the extension of the same to the syndicate. The amendment that you ruled out last time was on the ground that it had singled out particular communities for nomination. Here it is a general principle. Whether nomination to the syndicate should be allowed or not is a relevant matter.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : It may be different in form, but the purport is the same. I, therefore, do not allow it.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : I move :

In clause 20 (1) (e) delete the words "who are neither principals, university professors, university teachers, teachers nor head masters."

These words were not in the original bill. I do not think, Sir, that principals, university professors, university teachers, teachers and head masters should be ineligible for a seat on the syndicate. It is necessary that these men who form such an important part of the personnel in university teaching should not be debarred from working on the syndicate. I therefore move that these words should be omitted.

Question proposed.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind): I strongly oppose the amendment proposed by my honourable friend Mr. Jadhav. I regret that such an amendment should have been proposed. The syndicate is the executive body and it is, as it were, the committee of management carrying on the function of the non-academic portion of the senate. For carrying on the academic functions there is a separate council which is the academic council. Therefore this change is necessary. If you look at the provision as it stood originally you will find that we have the Vice-Chancellor and the Rector, the Director of Public Instruction, seven persons elected by the faculties from among the principals, university professors, etc., and nine persons, including at least one head master from among the fellows. We had 16 people that were to be elected from the professors and other principals. It made no distinct provision for allowing the election of non-expert people who are not connected with the Educational Department. It was therefore considered necessary and it is very necessary that when special representation is given to the academic council, namely, seven persons elected by the members of the academic council, the Director of Public Instruction and the Rector or the Vice-Chancellor, in all ten members, the non-academic portion of the senate should have a voice in the syndicate. Therefore the words "who are neither principals, university professors, university teachers, teachers nor headmasters" were added. If this amendment is carried the result will be that it would be difficult for any person who is a non-expert or a non-academician to come in. It was for this purpose that this provision was made. If these words are deleted only four seats at most will be made available for the non-expert people. I think my honourable friend should not press his amendment, because the opportunity given to non-academicians to enter the syndicate would be denied. I therefore submit to the House that this amendment should not be allowed.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District): I do not think, Sir, that I should take up the time of the House by speaking on the amendment. I think the principals and teachers should not be made ineligible for a seat in the syndicate.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: The complaint against the syndicate at present is that it is dominated by teachers; consequently by one sub-clause, namely, clause (d) seven persons are to be elected by the members of the academic council from among themselves, provided that each faculty is represented by at least one member and clause (e) provides for the election of nine persons by the senate from among the fellows and the restriction was added in order that the academic council may not out-number the others on the syndicate. I submit that it is deliberately put in there and the clause therefore should be allowed to stand.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: May I ask for leave to withdraw the amendment?

Question put and leave granted.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : Sir, I beg to move that :

In clause 20 (1), add sub-clause "(f) three persons nominated by the Chancellor from among the Fellows."

I am sure, Sir, that an objection on a point of order might again be raised that this amendment is out of order. I beg to state, Sir, that it is not out of order. I have not referred to any communal matters in this amendment. I only say "three persons nominated by the Chancellor from among the Fellows." As a matter of fact, Sir, all bodies have men nominated by Government. All the municipalities and district local boards have nominated members ; and in the case of the municipality for the city of Bombay, which is deemed as the biggest and best municipality, Government has a right of nominating certain members on their own behalf, not only on the Corporation but also on the standing committee. I claim, Sir, that the same provision is needed in the case of the Syndicate also. Under the bill the Senate has been greatly democratised. The majority of the senators will be elected men, and as the present constitution goes, Sir, all the special interests will, I am afraid, be not fully represented on the Senate. Therefore, it goes without saying that the constitution of the Syndicate also will not be fully or thoroughly representative, and, therefore, it is necessary that the Chancellor should have the power of nominating a certain number of members on the Syndicate to represent such interests as are not represented. To give the Chancellor the power of nominating men on the Senate and on the Syndicate.....

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : I want to raise a point of order. The point of order is that the principle of nomination, I understand was a matter for the first reading. The question is whether it could be introduced at the second reading. Apart from the question of communal representation, the question was whether any nomination of persons on the Syndicate is a matter of principle or not. I think it was ruled that it was a matter of principle. It is not a question about communities or anything. The question was the principle of nominating on the Syndicate was a matter of principle and consequently you ruled that, if at all it could be moved, it could be moved on the first reading.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I do not remember. Is there a ruling ?

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : The ruling is based upon that, not on any particular form of amendment. The question was whether anything by way of amendment which goes to say that there should be nomination on the Syndicate is not a question of principle. That ruling governs the decision given by the Chair on the last occasion.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : No ; I think this is stretching the point too far. But, however, for the benefit of the House and for refreshing my own memory, I shall refer to the rulings on the point on the occasion.

(The Honourable the President read portions of the rulings.)

[The President]

There was a long discussion, I remember, on the question of communal representation ; and the whole discussion was directed towards that point mainly, and strongly objected to by the Honourable Minister. And the House came to a conclusion and a decision thereon. These amendments as to whether three or two, or by nomination or election are matters of detail.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I only want to draw your attention as to how the words are proposed there and on which you, Sir, gave the ruling. The ruling would only apply to nomination by the Chancellor and nobody else.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I must repeat that the question of communal representation was hotly discussed as a question of principle, and the House has decided it. Now, there is no question of communal representation in this amendment.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: Sir, when I addressed the House on the first reading, I pointed out that the principle of nomination to correct any omissions for the representation of special interests was purposely put into the bill by the Honourable Minister, and I read certain passages from the statement of the objects and reasons to prove my contention.

The principle of nomination is not foreign to the enactment. Nomination has been put in the body of the bill in the case of the senate and it is not a new principle at all. Whether there should be nominated seats on the syndicate is a matter of detail. What constituency should there be in the election or nomination of the senate is also a question of detail, and therefore even communal interests were allowed to be discussed in this House in the second reading about the constitution of the senate. I therefore hold and I am very much obliged to you, Sir, for giving the ruling that my amendment is not out of order. I offer for the consideration of this House that as there is a fear that certain interests will not be adequately represented on the senate, the Chancellor should be given the power of nominating only three men on the syndicate. In all the bodies in India from the Legislative Assembly and the Council of State downwards and on all municipal and local boards and on all other elected bodies, Government have a right to nominate members. India is a country in which all the various interests cannot be adequately represented by any provision made by legislation or by any scheme of electorates. It is therefore thought necessary to provide some corrective and the corrective is left in the hands of Government. In this case I propose to give the Chancellor power to nominate only three men to represent those interests which will not otherwise be properly represented and I trust that the House will accept my amendment.

Question proposed.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North): Sir, I rise to support the amendment moved by my honourable friend Mr. Jadhav and in doing so, I need not add any remarks of my own to what he has stated already except that as the Government has been in the habit of appointing members on all bodies, whether elected or not, such as district school boards and Bombay City municipality in the standing committee and that of the Improvement Trust and assemblies, they should accept this amendment.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind) : Sir, the decision given by the Chair is there, but I must place before the House the fact that the very identical point has been decided in this Council at the first reading. At the first reading, some amendments were tabled.....

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : On a point of order whether the honourable member will be justified in questioning your ruling now at all.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I do not suppose he is attempting that. If he does, he is out of order. He is pointing out what has gone before.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : I am not at all questioning your ruling, Sir. I have got the original amendments in my hand and the honourable member Mr. Noor Mahomed is mentioned on that page which you read just now. The amendment has been actually referred to and these are the words :—

“ Add new clause (e) after the words “ three members nominated by the Chancellor.”

Those are the words without any reference to communal representations or to communal members and these are the words in which the honourable member from Hyderabad, Mr. Noor Mahomed, had moved his amendment “ three members nominated by the Chancellor ”.....

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED : I did not move it, Sir.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : Exactly. He did not move it because the Chair ruled it out of order as it was considered to be a matter of principle. The Chair actually gave a ruling on these three amendments.....

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : The honourable member is going to question the ruling given by the Chair just now, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The honourable member is according to his lights, referring to the facts that have gone before. The ruling is there and I am not going to change it.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : I say, Sir, that the matter having been held to be matters of principle at the first reading, the matter was actually waived by the three honourable members, Messrs. Khuhro, Bole and Noor Mahomed, one of the amendments being exactly in the form in which the present amendment is. The dispute as to these matters of principle which can be raised only at the first reading has ended. I cannot understand the object of this amendment proposed by my honourable friend Mr. Jadhav. There is no necessity for it. I am surprised to find, that in any executive body formed out of an elected body, there are nominations to be brought in by Government. We have got municipalities. I think the honourable mover is a member of the Satara municipality. If he is not, I am sorry for him, but if he is, he will find that in the municipality of Satara there is a managing committee which is a body elected out of the general body but on which there are no nominated members. On the managing committee of a district local board there are no nominated members. Now, the amendment seeks to introduce a new principle altogether in the matter of the syndicate which up to now has never obtained therein. The syndicate has been in existence ever since 1857. When the Act of 1904 was passed during the days of Lord Curzon at a time when reaction was on foot it did not even then provide for nomination on the syndicate by the Chancellor. The honourable mover is trying to introduce a new principle now and it is more or less done, as was said yesterday, for introducing communal representation which has been laid at rest by the vote of the Council day before yesterday. I am sorry that the honourable member Mr. Jadhav should have restarted that debate. It will create a new precedent if we lay down that there should be nominations by the Chancellor to the syndicate.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Sir, I oppose the principle of nomination introduced in this amendment. Nomination is a very dangerous weapon in the hands of Government. I remember that when the Primary Education Act was passed a permissive provision was made about nomination of members to school boards. The words used were "Government may nominate," and at that time the Honourable Dr. Paranjpye, the then Minister for Education, gave an assurance that this permissive power of nomination to school boards would be used very rarely by Government, but unfortunately I find that this power has been used very often, perhaps in almost all cases. In that Act it was provided that if it be necessary to represent special interests, then Government may nominate members to school boards. But in season and out of season people have been nominated to school boards, and I can point out a sorry illustration.....

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : The "sorry illustration" which the honourable member is giving seems to be out of order, Sir.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : I wish to point out how the principle of nomination becomes very dangerous in the hands of Government.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Has the honourable member Mr. Pahalajani been delegated the power of the President ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. Such questions affect the dignity of the House.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : I was merely trying to show how dangerous the power of nomination becomes if left in the hands of Government. In the Surat school board there was not the slightest necessity to have nominated members and yet Government did, under this permissive power, nominated three persons and thus converted a minority into a majority.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : I rise to a point of order. The honourable member is saying that Government is incompetent to nominate, not that the principle of nomination is bad.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Where is the point of order ?

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : In the case of the Ahmedabad municipality also, though all the interests were represented, Government nominated persons to the school board. Therefore, even to give a permissive power to Government, is giving a dangerous weapon in their hands. But in this amendment, the compulsory power of nominating persons is handed over to the Government. The amendment says "three persons nominated by the Chancellor from among the Fellows." That is to say, it is a compulsory provision, and every time three persons will be nominated by the Chancellor, and on an executive body like the Syndicate, such a power should not be entrusted to Government. I do not think that the interests of the backward or any other communities will be served by delegating such a power to Government. The result of this amendment will be that Government will nominate persons to safeguard their own interests. They will not do any good to any community. I think these communities are moving in a chimerical atmosphere, if they think that their interests would be served by nomination by the Chancellor. Therefore, I oppose this amendment, which has for its object the introduction of three more persons on the Syndicate nominated by the Chancellor.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED (Hyderabad District) : Sir, I support the amendment. It is clear, that the fear in the minds of some of the honourable members is that a minority would be converted into a majority with the addition of nominated members ; and that fear is really responsible for not allowing nominations on the Syndicate ; that is the fear of honourable members who oppose the amendment, and I think that is the fear of the Honourable Minister also, and I maintain that this fear is communalism only expressed in another form. To keep out educationists getting on the Syndicate by the nomination door lest the majority of advanced Hindus should become a minority is the worst sort of communalism that could be introduced into a University ; it is simply the fear that they will not be able to keep all the power of the University under their own hand that is responsible for the opposition to the nominated members on the Syndicate. We have heard one honourable member, belonging to the so-called democratic party in this House opposing this amendment. England is believed to be the most democratic country in the world. and yet, on the Syndicate of the London University the Crown has the power of nominating six members. Some of the honourable members sitting here support the Honourable Minister, only because they want to remain clannish. I strongly support this amendment, because that is the only way of making the Syndicate a really efficient body. Otherwise, clannishness will continue to reign in the University.

Mr. N. A. RECHAR (Karachi City) : Sir, I rise to oppose the amendment moved by my honourable friend from Satara (Mr. Jadhav). The same point of view has been represented by the honourable member from Hyderabad (Mr. Noor Mahomed), and he has cited the case of the London University, forgetting—I do not know how he forgot it—that so far as the London University is concerned, six seats is the only number which the Government has the power of nominating, whereas, in this case, as it is, Government possess the majority of seats on the Senate, which means that Government has the bulk of the share in the administration of the University, and now, by this amendment, my honourable friend wants nomination on the Syndicate also. Sir, I quite sympathise with the feelings and aspirations of those honourable members who are supporting this amendment, which they are doing largely in order that the interests of backward communities might be safeguarded and under the conditions through which we are passing, certain kinds of safeguards may be considered necessary, and are inevitable. But, Sir, I put it to them whether or not 40 members who are going to be nominated on the Senate, largely in order to represent the interests of these communities is not a sufficient safeguard. If that is so, those members in their turn have the power of influencing the elections to the Syndicate. And if these 40 members who have the power of influencing the election to the Syndicate, so far as the 9 non-academic persons to be elected by the Senate are concerned, concert together and use their voting strength, I am sure the 3 members whom they want to be nominated by Government on the Syndicate, can be secured to them by election, with their strength of 40, and I suppose with the combination of some more. I do not know then why they are simply thinking of nothing but Government nomination and Government patronage. They do not want to stand to the slightest extent on their own legs. They have no confidence in themselves that their voting strength on the Senate will secure to them what they want, namely, corresponding representation on the Syndicate according to their numbers. Therefore, I think that it is a very slavish policy and a slavish mentality to fall back upon Government for every little thing. I think, Sir, that they ought to take their courage in their own hands, and if they find after three or four years working that these 40 members on the Senate are unable to secure to them the required representation on the Syndicate, then it would be time for them to come back to the Council and say that in spite of this provision their difficulties have not been solved, and then members like myself would sympathise with them, and it may be possible for them to plead with some reason. If they want that everything should be done by nomination, then I fail to see what progress we can make.

An Honourable MEMBER: Sir, I move the closure.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I accept it.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District): Sir, when discussion is going to be stifled in this House.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: What is the object or aim of the statement which the honourable member has made?

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: There were so many honourable members who wanted to speak on this important amendment, that I think closure was prematurely applied for by the Government benches, and Government is rather solicitous of getting the bill passed as it is.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I think every honourable member of this House is entitled, according to his discretion, to move for a closure, and the closure comes into effect only when the Chair accepts it, and it is the Chair when it accepts the closure that puts a stop to the discussion. Therefore the word "stifle" can only be used for the President, which I hope the honourable member does not do.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : I never intended to use it in that sense. I wanted to bring to your notice that up to this time Government members and Secretaries of Departments had never applied for a closure. I think for the first time they have done so.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : No, they have done so repeatedly.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : I think that duty was generally relegated to the nominated members.

I do not think I need say much on this point. The principle of nomination has been recognised in this bill, and I do not think I am going out of the right path if I ask for nomination on the Syndicate as well. Honourable members who opposed the amendment have trotted out certain arguments which need not be answered at all. The honourable member from Ahmedabad (Mr. Swaminarayan) said that Government always misuse the power of nomination that is in their hands. But if the Members of Government or if Government collectively are not fit to be entrusted with the power of nomination, it does not follow that the Chancellor is not in a position to make proper nominations, and here the power is proposed to be entrusted to the Chancellor and not to the Government.

I assure my honourable friend from Ahmedabad that by this he need not expect that a blunder will be committed. As regards the words of encouragement given by the honourable member from Sind I may express my gratitude to him. Forty members will be nominated by the Chancellor and it does not follow that all the 40 seats will go to the backward communities, and the Mussalmans. It is certain that all the principals ought to be on the Senate. Thirteen will come through the direct electorate created for them. Some more may get in through other provisions made in the bill. But it is plain that one or more will not find a place on the Senate. Therefore it is that those who will not be members of the Senate will have to be nominated by the Chancellor, or a number of the nominated seats will be taken up by principals. It goes without saying that until the Andheri College comes into existence and is in full working order, I do not expect that even one principal will belong to either the Mussalman community or backward community. So, all the 40 seats will not go to them. There are certain interests which will have to be given seats on the Senate. (Mr. N. A. Bechar : You will get all the seats.) I may state for the information of my honourable friend from Sind that I do not expect that even 20 seats will go to the Mussalmans and non-Brahmins. In a house of about 150 members 20 men even if they stand together will not be able to do much. In the University there is no cumulative voting. There is one vote only for each candidate. It is rather hard to secure adequate representation through election. We have been asked to wait and see the results of the election that will take place. We are very certain about the results, because we have tasted often the fruits of such elections. I propose therefore that Government ought to retain the power of nominating certain members to the Syndicate. Government have retained already this power to nominate to the standing committee of the Bombay Municipal Corporation. I ask that the same principle should be recognised in the case of the University also. I therefore propose that the Chancellor should have the power to nominate 3 Fellows to the Syndicate.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, since the incorporation of the University of Bombay in 1857 up-to-date, that is, during the last 70 years, there has not been nomination to the Syndicate. (Interruption.) I do not want to be interrupted. In the Act of 1857 there was nothing of nomination to the Syndicate, though all the fellows were nominated. In Lord Curzon's University Act of 1904, section 14 (3) refers to the constitution of the Syndicate and there too no nomination was provided. Up to the present day we have no nomination on the Syndicate.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED : Does the Honourable Minister mean that there should be no provision whatsoever for "nominations" in the Act passed by the provincial legislature?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I wish to draw the particular attention of the House to the history of the Bombay University as regards the constitution of the Syndicate during the last 70 years. During the discussion of the Act of 1904, the honourable member of the Government of India in charge of the bill said :

"There is a great deal in my honourable colleague's (Mr. Gokhale) account of his own University which I can cordially accept and I will admit that if the Bombay University stood alone the case for a Bill of this character would not be so strong as it is. The Western Presidency has enjoyed the advantage of being led in educational matters by men not only of great ability but of great wisdom."

So, the affairs of the Bombay University from 1857 to 1904 were conducted without any nomination on the Syndicate in a manner which received the unequivocal approval of the member in charge of education in the Government of India in 1904. Thereafter also the Syndicate has worked without any nomination very satisfactorily. I personally consider that it would be vicious to introduce this principle of nomination in the Syndicate and consequently it has been kept out.

A reference was made by some honourable members to municipalities and local boards. Perhaps they have not worked on those bodies. I may draw their particular attention to the provisions of the City

[Dewan Bahadur Harilal D. Desai]

Municipalities Act. Under Act III of 1901 there is no nomination provided for the managing committee. In the Major Municipalities Act of 1925 also there is no provision for nomination on the standing committee. So also in the Local Boards Act of 1923 there is no provision of nomination on the standing committee. The Bombay Municipality stands on a different footing and I do not consider that whatever is there should be followed by the University. This is a matter in which I think honourable members will allow the provision as it has been made by the select committee, and refuse to introduce the vicious principle of nomination on the Syndicate.

Mr. H. HAMILL : Sir, I move :

That in sub-clause (4) of clause 20, the word "head-masters" be replaced by the word "head-master."

It is really a question of language. The plural is to be replaced by the singular.

Question put and carried.

Clause 20 as amended ordered to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 21 (Powers and duties of the Syndicate) ordered to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 22 (Constitution of the Academic Council)

The Academic Council shall consist of the following members, all of whom need not be Fellows :—

- (i) The Rector, if any, otherwise the Vice-Chancellor ;
- (ii) Deans of Faculties ;
- (iii) such number of representatives not exceeding five of the University Professors and whole-time University teachers, as may be determined by Statute ;
- (iv) two Headmasters to be elected by the Senate from among the Fellows ;
- (v) twenty representatives of the Boards of Studies or groups of Boards of allied Studies as may be determined by Statute ; and
- (vi) five persons elected by the Senate from among Fellows.

Mr. H. HAMILL : I beg to move :

After the word "Vice-Chancellor" in line 7 of clause 22 (1) add the word "chairman."

I submit, Sir, that the Rector when he is appointed or the Vice-Chancellor ought to be chairman of the Academic Council. If either of these officers take part in the deliberations of the Academic Council it is only right that he should be the chairman of that body. The Rector or the Vice-Chancellor will be the principal executive officer of the University and it is incumbent upon him to guide the deliberations of the Syndicate and the Academic Council.

Question proposed.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I accept it.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : I rise to oppose this amendment. Sir, there was a provision in the original bill that the Rector, if any, or the Vice-Chancellor should be the chairman of the Academic Council and if you will refer to original section 23 or the new section 24 (1) it was provided that "the Rector, if any, shall be the chairman of the Academic Council. If there is no Rector the Academic Council shall elect its own chairman." These words were deliberately omitted by the select committee as it was the intention of the select committee that the Rector or the Vice-Chancellor should not be the chairman of the Academic Council. It was therefore provided that the Academic Council shall elect its own chairman and the power is given to the Academic Council. Now it is intended to centralise all power in the hands of one individual and if power is thus centralised it will become nothing but an autocracy. It was the intention of the select committee that the Rector or the Vice-Chancellor should not be the chairman of the

[Mr. J. C. Swāminarayan]

Academic Council. In the Academic Council the work that is to be done relates to academic matters and the members of the Academic Council will exercise their right of election and will elect the proper man who will be the fittest person for guiding the academic deliberations of that council. The Vice-Chancellor has been given under this bill all the powers. He is to be everywhere and it was only for that reason that the select committee provided that in the academic council the academicians themselves will elect a chairman who will guide their deliberations. When the select committee has taken out these provisions deliberately an attempt is now made to reintroduce the provision that was taken away. Now, Sir, we have always been adhering to what has been done in the select committee whether right or wrong. Some of the provisions were inconsistent and unsymmetrical and these provisions have been retained as they were because they were added by the select committee. The only argument advanced was that the select committee has done this and it must be adhered to. For example the provision was made that the member of the University who is elected by the graduates of the University should represent this council as an ex officio fellow, and although that provision stood at a place where it ought not to stand the argument that was advanced was that this was done by the select committee and therefore the Honourable Minister must stick to it. He would not budge an inch. But here the whole fabric is to centralise all power in the hands of one individual, namely, the Vice-Chancellor who will be appointed by Government. What is being done in the select committee is also thrown out. I strongly oppose this attempt to undo what is done by the select committee. It is right that he should preside over the syndicate, but he should not poke his nose in every affair. Let the academicians and people belonging to the teaching profession decide what is necessary to be done in the Academic Council. I oppose the amendment.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR (Karachi City): Sir, I entirely agree with the complaint made by my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan that the Government through its nominated Vice-Chancellor is allowed to dominate the whole University. But I find, Sir, that the honourable member for the Ahmedabad district himself has been responsible partly for creating the situation. If he had only taken care to omit the provision that the Vice-Chancellor should be ex-officio member on the Academic Council the position would be entirely different. You make that provision and then you tell the Vice Chancellor that he should sit there only as an ordinary member. It is an anomalous position. If the honourable member had the fear that the Vice-Chancellor would dominate the University in all its walks of life then that administrative head should not have been made ex-officio member on the Academic Council. Having committed himself to that position it is now difficult for him to try to get out of it. In this case I personally see some force of reason in the Government proposal, but I complain about the way the whole bill was hurried through the select committee and I am sorry that this House is not being treated fairly

[Mr. N. A. Bechar]

But under the circumstances there is no other go. I think my honourable friend will be well advised not to press his amendment.

Mr. H. HAMILL : I would like to point out that the argument that the work of the Academic Council is academical and therefore ought not to be presided over by the head of the University will not hold water. The work of the University is academic. The executive head of the University is primarily responsible for the efficient discharge of the University's prime function. The Syndicate has in addition to its academic functions, other executive duties to discharge. Nevertheless the fact that the executive head of the University is the president of the Syndicate ought not to be allowed to exonerate him from the duty of guiding the academic policy of the University. This policy is framed by the Academic Council. Hitherto I am afraid it has been difficult for a Vice-Chancellor, who is not directly concerned with academic matters, to acquit himself of his responsibility as the head of the University in academic matters. I maintain that that is a wrong position. If the Vice-Chancellor is the executive head of the University, then he must identify himself with the academic policy of the University and guide and support that and be responsible for it, and for this reason I think that, so long as we have no Rector, the Vice-Chancellor ought to be the President of the Academic Council.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, I have nothing to add to what the previous speaker has said, except that when the Vice-Chancellor is on the Academic Council, it would be absolutely incongruous that there should be any other chairman. He is the executive head of the University and, when he is on the Council, he ought to have the right to preside.

Question put and carried.

Clause 22, as amended, ordered to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 23 (Election of the Academic Council), ordered to stand part of the Bill.

Clause 24 (Powers of the Academic Council).

The Academic Council shall elect its own Chairman consistently with the provisions of the Act.

(2) The Academic Council shall frame regulations as provided in this Act and shall have the following powers :—

- (a) to regulate teaching and examinations within the University ;
- (b) to determine and maintain the standards of examinations, remaining responsible for the maintenance of such standards ;
- (c) to make regulations laying down courses of study subject to the approval of the Syndicate ;
- (d) to propose to the Syndicate institution of new University teaching appointments, their duties and emoluments ;
- (e) to propose to the Syndicate schemes for the constitution of University Departments, Faculties and Boards of Studies ;
- (f) to make regulations for the award of University scholarships and prizes ;
- (g) to recommend to the Syndicate appointment of examiners ;
- (h) to make regulations prescribing equivalence of examinations ;
- (i) to arrange for co-ordination of studies and inter-collegiate lectures ; and

(j) to make regulations prescribing the conditions to be complied with by candidates not being students of any College, for degrees, diplomas, licenses, titles, marks of honour, scholarships and prizes conferred or granted by the University ;

(k) to exercise such other powers as may be conferred on it by statutes ;

(l) generally to advise the University on all academic matters.

Clause 24, as amended, ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 25 (The Board of Post-graduate Studies).

CHAPTER VII.—The Board of Post-graduate Studies.

(1) The Board of Post-graduate Studies shall consist of :

(1) the Vice-Chancellor so long as there is no Rector ;

(2) four members appointed by the Syndicate ;

(3) four members appointed by the Academic Council one of whom shall be a University Professor.

(2) The Board shall subject to the Act, and Statutes, Ordinances and Regulations framed thereunder control and co-ordinate post-graduate teaching and research in the University Departments, and the Colleges and shall recommend to the Syndicate what teachers in the Colleges shall be recognised as University teachers for post-graduate instruction and research.

Mr. BALAK RAM : Sir, I move the following amendment :

For sub-clause 25 (1) (1), substitute the following :—

" the Rector, if any, otherwise the Vice-Chancellor :—the Chairman."

This amendment is necessary because the sub-clause, as it stands, is incomplete and makes no provision for the situation created by the existence of a Rector. Also there is no provision for a chairman.

Question put and carried.

Clause 25, as amended, ordered to stand part of the bill.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : May I bring to the notice of the Chair that at this stage the amendments of the honourable member Dr. Ambedkar, which had been postponed, will have to be taken up ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : We will leave that over.

Clause 26 (Boards of Studies) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 27 (Other bodies) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 28 (Committee of Selection) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 29 (Degrees, diplomas, licenses, titles and marks of honour) ordered to stand part of the bill.

[The President]

Clause 30 (Honorary degree) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 31 (Cancellation of degrees and the like and their restoration) :

(1) Where evidence is laid before the Syndicate showing that any person on whom a degree, diploma, license, title or mark of honour has been conferred by the Senate or who is an Honorary Fellow, has been convicted of what is, in the opinion of the Syndicate, a serious offence, the Syndicate may after giving the person concerned an opportunity to explain propose to the Senate that the degree, diploma, license, title or mark of honour or Honorary Fellowship be cancelled, and, if the proposal is accepted by not less than two-thirds of the Fellows of the Senate and is confirmed by the Chancellor, the degree, diploma, license, title, mark of honour or Honorary Fellowship shall be cancelled accordingly.

(2) The degree, diploma, license, title, or mark of honour may subsequently be restored on good cause shown.

(3) The procedure for the restoration of a degree, diploma, license, title, or mark of honour, shall, as far as is practicable, be as in sub-section (1) of this section.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Sir, the amendment which I propose is :

“ In clause 31 (1), line 17 substitute ‘ three-fourths ’ for ‘ two-thirds ’.”

Sir, this clause is concerned with the cancellation of a degree, diploma, license, title, or mark of honour by the Senate. Now, the majority of the Senate which is provided for the purpose of cancelling a degree or diploma is two-thirds of the Fellows of the Senate. My amendment is that the word “ two-thirds ” should be dropped and the word “ three-fourths ” should be inserted instead. Sir, this is a very important matter, and nobody should be lightly deprived of his degree. Sir, in this clause serious offence is mentioned, but the nature of that serious offence is not put down ; merely vague words like “ serious offence ” are put down. Sir, I think that these serious offences do not probably mean criminal offences or other offences. Most probably, as long as India is under foreign rule, the most serious offence will be work in the political field. Therefore, as this clause may be used against political workers, I think that the majority necessary for the cancellation of a degree or diploma should be raised to three-fourths. Nobody should be lightly deprived of his degree or diploma, and I therefore strongly urge that the words “ two-thirds ” should be dropped and “ three-fourths ” substituted. I hope the Honourable Minister will accept my amendment.

Question proposed.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR (Karachi City) : Sir, I support the amendment which my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan has moved. Sir, of the crop of amendments which have been moved by him, the Honourable Minister for Education has not shown the slightest gesture in agreeing to any one so far. I think, Sir, wisdom cannot be always on one side ; (Honourable Members : Hear, hear) and I am sure if he had approached all these amendments with an open mind and with a spirit of give and take, he would have certainly found some amendments worthy of consideration and acceptance. But, Sir, we have gone on with the discussion of various amendments, and with regard to the amendments to which the Honourable Minister has decided to turn a deaf ear, my honourable friend from Ahmedabad has been most unfortunate. I appeal to him not to disappoint my honourable friend in every case. I think that this particular amendment is a harmless one, since I understand from the honourable member for the University that there has hardly been any occasion for the University to take the action contemplated in this clause. Moreover, Sir, my honourable friend the mover is quite right in asking for the utmost conservatism in this matter, which is the very bone with the opposite benches, and as such they should show the same amount of conservatism in depriving people of the degrees which they have well earned. Then again, Sir, three-fourths majority which is proposed is the only safeguard against the vague and loose words used, namely "serious offence." Serious offence has never been sought to be defined, and the only safeguard is the safeguard of a large majority which would have to decide whether any particular case does or does not constitute a serious offence, for which the man is to be deprived of his degree. As this power is not likely to be exercised so freely, I think a rise in the percentage of safeguards that my honourable friend proposes will not be found difficult for the Honourable Minister to agree to, and I am sure he will show some reasonableness.

Mr. H. HAMILL : Sir, I beg to oppose the amendment. The provision in the bill is the same as the provision in the existing Act, and a review of the history of the provision will, I think, serve to quieten the fears of people who intend to commit political crimes. There have been, in the history of the University, two cases in which degrees have been withdrawn by the two-thirds majority, which is at present required, and in one of these cases the degree was subsequently restored, and that too with the approval of the Government of Bombay.

An Honourable MEMBER : What was the offence ?

Mr. H. HAMILL : It was complicity in murder, and the degree, as I say, was subsequently restored with the concurrence of Government. These are the only cases in which degrees have been withdrawn in the whole history of the University, and I think they ought to satisfy the Council that a two-thirds majority is quite sufficient safeguard.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Sir, I have only one word to say. When we want to punish a man it is necessary that we should provide sufficient safeguard that he is not unnecessarily punished. That is the reason why I want to substitute three-fourths instead of two-thirds. The honourable member Mr. Hamill said that a certain man was so punished for complicity in a murder case. He has not pointed out whether it was complicity in a political murder. Complicity in a political murder will naturally arouse the anger of the senate and in order to provide sufficient safeguard I strongly urge that three-fourths should be provided for two-thirds.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, I oppose the amendment of my honourable friend. That is a provision which has been inserted in the bill in order to provide for cases of people who have been convicted of serious offences. This has been carefully considered by the select committee and I request the House to allow it to stand as it is. I do not see any reason why this House should be so soft-hearted for people who have been convicted after a regular trial.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : The Honourable Minister stated that for a man convicted after regular trial. But it is not so stated in the provision here.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : ' Convicted ' means after regular trial.

Question put and lost.

Clause 31 ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 32 (Annual Accounts) :

(1) The fees charged by the Senate shall be carried to one General Fee Fund for the payment of expenses of the University.

(2) The accounts of income and expenditure of the University shall, once in every year, be submitted to the Government of Bombay for such examination and audit as the Government may direct.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI (Bombay University) : Sir, I have great pleasure in moving the amendment. With regard to the form of my amendment Sir, I wish to ask your indulgence a little. As you know, Sir, the sanction of His Excellency under 80-C of the Government of India Act has been obtained for this amendment. The amendment is in three parts. When the sanction was given I was informed that the third part of the amendment was not quite proper. Therefore I beg leave to drop it. The amendment I propose to move runs as follows.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I would ask the honourable member to move the first part of his amendment to which sanction has been given by His Excellency. Then he can suggest whatever alteration he wants to make.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI : In the original amendment it was :

" The university shall have a fund to which is to be credited..... "

In lines 31 to 35 of the draft bill the same words are to be found in the clause as it stands. It would be redundant to use the same words again in the next sub-clause. So, I omit that portion and move the amendment as it is on the sheet of amendments which runs as follows :

" (2) In the said fund, the Government shall contribute annually towards the recurring expenditure of the University Departments a sum equal to the amount of grant-in-aid, contributions and donations provided for in the budget for the year 1927-28. And Renumber the original sub-clause (2) as sub-clause (3). "

In the budget of 1927-28 one lakh and twenty-two thousand five hundred rupees have been provided for by way of grant-in-aid, contributions and donations to the university. The object of this amendment is to convert this budget provision into a statutory grant. By this the university will be at liberty to use this amount for several of its departments. In the very preamble of the Act it has been mentioned that the object of this bill is to facilitate the development of the university as a teaching university. It is necessary that this amount should be earmarked for developing the university departments. Therefore, this amendment has double benefit : one inasmuch as it provides a statutory grant instead of a budget provision ; and second inasmuch as it is a contribution earmarked for the university departments. In that way the object of this bill will be achieved much more effectively than if the amendment were not there. I trust the Honourable Minister will be pleased to accede to this amendment.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : As the amendment sanctioned by His Excellency has been recast, has the Honourable Minister any objection to the form of the amendment ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I have my own form which I shall move as an amendment to the amendment :—

“ In clause 32 add a new sub-clause (2) as follows :

‘ That Government shall contribute to that fund a sum of Rs. 1,17,000 per annum to be utilised for the recurring expenditure of the University departments. ’

Renumber sub-clause (2) as (3). ”

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : There is an amendment to the amendment.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, the present budget provision is Rs. 1,22,500. Last year's provision was Rs. 72,500, out of which Rs. 5,500 were allocated for particular purposes, and consequently they have to be spent by Government on those particular objects. For the current year a grant of Rs. 50,000 was also provided for in the budget for the objects recommended by the University Reform Committee, and this forms part of the Rs. 1,22,500. We cannot give away Rs. 5,500. Therefore, deducting Rs. 5,500 out of Rs. 1,22,500 we get Rs. 1,17,000, which is the amount which every year will be contributed for the recurring expenditure of the University departments.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : Sir, I beg to suggest some formal amendments. The marginal note of clause 32 is “ annual accounts. ” This should be changed into “ University Fund. ” The heading of Chapter IX, under which this clause comes, is “ Degrees ” : as a matter of fact this clause deals with quite a different subject. I have, therefore, to suggest that at the top of clause 32 we might add “ University Fund ”.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I understand that the marginal note is corrected by the office. Therefore, there need be no amendment to that. The only amendment, therefore, that the honourable member suggests is that there should be a head note “ University Fund ” to clause 32. Is that right ?

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : Yes.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I suppose the Honourable Minister will include that in his.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I have no objection.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Sir, I regret very much that I have to oppose this amendment. Sir, it is said that the University is a 75 years old institution, and as such it should be able to stand on its own legs. Now the masses are crying for primary education, and it is the primary duty of Government to supply funds for that, but Government say that they have not enough of funds and, therefore, primary education is starving. When Government is asked to pay some grants to the University, may I ask whose money is that ? It is the money paid by the ryots and the masses. When on behalf of the masses and on behalf of the ryots some share in the management of the institution was demanded for them, a deaf ear was turned to that demand. But when funds are required for the University, then the funds provided by the masses are to be utilised for that purpose ! Sir, the proper course would be to levy a tax on the intelligensia and pay it to the University. Let there be a graded tax on graduates, pleaders and advocates,—a small tax on graduates, more on pleaders and still more on advocates. Government should collect money in this manner and pay this grant from that collection. They are going to manage the whole show and the money is to be supplied by the poor masses ! It is proper that those who call for the tune should pay the piper. But here the thing is quite different. They want to manage the whole thing and the monies are to be supplied by those who have no hand in the management, which is quite unfair and unjust.

Sir, I do not know what would be the effect of my speech, because I know although it has been said that this bill is brought in for the democratisation of the University, I don't see any democracy ; it is all hypocrisy. The Honourable Minister, with his whip, has outbureaucrated the bureaucrats. That appears from the stiff attitude he has maintained while the bill is being discussed. He has a strong majority behind him ; therefore, he is not inclined to meet us. If that is going to be the attitude of the Honourable Minister. I say good bye to such sort of brown bureaucracy. With these words I oppose the amendment.

Mr. P. J. MARZBAN (Bombay City, South) : Sir, the honourable member Mr. Bole wished to know what would be the effect of his speech. I, for my part, wish to tell him plainly what effect it has on me. This same honourable member moved heaven and earth sometime ago to let the backward classes take a very active part in the University affairs. Here is one of the samples of that class; his speech shows what would happen if gentlemen of his calibre were to come in large numbers into the University. Sir, my honourable friend Mr. Bole cannot make bricks without straw. If the whole University bill is not to become a farce, you must have money given to the University. Now, we want Government to help us with money and here is the honourable member Mr. Bole, standing up and saying " Oh, they are quite competent to tax themselves." Sir, as the House is aware, Government at present is paying Rs. 50,000 and besides we are getting Rs. 67,000 from the Government of India. The Bombay Government is paying its mite towards primary education. But secondary and higher education is absolutely starved. The time has come when we should ask the Government to pay greater attention towards secondary and higher education. It is for this purpose that this reasonable amendment has been brought forward by the representative of the Bombay University and I am sure that every right-thinking man will support it. I support the motion.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division) : Mr. President, it is a great pity that my honourable friend Mr. Bole has thought it fit to oppose this amendment. Sir, as a member of the backward community he ought not to show narrow-mindedness towards any expense with regard to education. Let me tell him that even for primary education the money that is spent for higher education is useful. Because you cannot have good teachers for primary education without higher education and I do not think that it would be wise on the part of any member of this House to oppose any grant for educational purposes. I further hope that there would be no more speeches supporting the view which my honourable friend Mr. Bole has taken. We, as the backward, ought to come forward and say that more money should be spent on higher education. Our grievances in regard to university government are different matters. If there is no good university and if there are no funds set apart for its growth all communities together will suffer. I strongly oppose the view that has been taken by my honourable friend Mr. Bole and support the amendment which has been moved by my honourable friend Mr. Munshi. The other day I had advised members of the senate that it would be wise on their part to approach the members of this Council for more grants for the University, in order to bring pressure upon Government. We should all say that the sum is too small and that more money should be sanctioned.

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL : From whom ? From the intelligensia ?

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : I will not harp upon the weakness of the Honourable Minister (Laughter). I do not think that any member, whether he belongs to the advanced classes or the backward classes, can afford to say " the university should not be given more money than it is being given at present ". Sir, I have no more to say. I do hope that Government will from time to time increase this amount and that this is not the final contribution from Government. I hope that year after year Government will add something to this grant. With these remarks I support the amendment.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : I support the amendment. The honourable member Moulvi Rafiuddin said that Government should be more generous and that more amounts should be given. But unfortunately this is the sum provided as the statutory grant for the university and I think the Honourable Minister should not be given small pin-pricks and deduct something out of this. Of course it would be very good if he should stick to the original sum, namely, Rs. 1,22,500. He should not be narrow-minded and cut down this amount by Rs. 5,500 by pin-pricking.

Mr. N. A. BEHAR (Karachi City) : Mr. President, if you will permit me I should like to add a few words to the discussion that has gone on on this question. When the question of the appointment of the rector was being discussed I made very clear reference to the Honourable Minister realising the implication of the responsibilities that he was taking in retaining that clause against the opposition of members on this side. Thereby I was trying to hint that he would provide certainly very good sums for the purpose of carrying on the post-graduate work. Sir, somehow, by common consent, he has agreed to make a statutory provision of Rs. 1,17,000 which is provided in the budget for the current year. So far as that point is concerned the compromise which has been made may be acceptable to the House. But my only fear is that if we limit this provision to Rs. 1,17,000 the Honourable Minister will be going on on wrong lines and the member for the University will also have committed an error in accepting the amendment in the form in which it stands at present. It would be difficult for the university to demand larger sums thereafter because this will be a statutory provision. My own feeling is that one word more should be added and that is "at least Rs. 1,17,000" so that it can be argued that this was the minimum provision that Government was bound to make for the purpose of advancing higher education. That will give the university a handle to press its claims for further grants. We know how even in the case of primary education the statutory grants provided under the Act have been cut down and the educational institutions are suffering. And though a definite sum may be specified in the Act, if these words "at least" are added before the sum, it will be a good thing.

An Honourable MEMBER: "No less than" is better.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR: That is an improvement upon the language. The members on this side must insist upon some such improvement in the amendment proposed.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District): It is not my intention, Sir, to oppose the amendment accepted by the Honourable Minister. But I want to place before this House certain facts that have come out in the debates on this subject. The honourable member Mr. Hamill has told us that the University of Bombay has failed up to this time to spend all its income in furthering the advance of research and University teaching, that the University is in the habit of accumulating funds like a miser and have nearly Rs 13 lakhs invested in securities from which they are getting a large amount in the shape of interest. If this University has shown such disinclination to spend on necessary expansion, I do not see whether it will rise to the occasion now and be more lavish in spending on research and post-graduate teaching. The University requires an overhauling. The methods of the University up to the present day have not, I am very sorry to observe, been very satisfactory. I hope things will improve and the University will like to spend more on post-graduate teaching. At present the University professors that have been appointed have not, I have good reason to suppose, given satisfaction. If the expansion of post-graduate teaching that will take place hereafter on the strength of this statutory grant, is to go on the same lines on which the University has been working upto this time, then I think there will be a very great disappointment to those who really wish the University to advance.

The honourable members in this House and some in the University, I think, are very eager to denounce communalism whenever they get an opportunity or even where there is no occasion. But what they have been practising is real communalism in spirit. They have certain hobbies, they have certain favourites, and they want to provide for certain individuals and are guided, though not openly, at least secretly, by a spirit of communalism. I hope the University will take more care in the future and will try to do things in a better way. At the same time, I must record my protest along with the honourable member Mr. Bechar that the Honourable Minister has not been doing enough for the advancement of primary education. He was very careful to provide a substantial grant, a special grant, of Rs. 50,000 to the University this year, although he has not recognised the statutory liability of Government in allotting more funds for the expansion of primary education. You know, Sir, that the expansion of primary education was held in suspense from 1921. No new schools were allowed to be opened and no extra assistants were given to old schools where the number of pupils had increased, because Government said that the control of primary schools was going to be handed over to the local bodies and it was for the local bodies to share one-third of the burden. The Primary Education Act was passed in 1923, the local board elections took place, the majority of local boards and municipalities took over control of the schools. They have levied additional taxation. They have provided the one-third funds for the additional expenditure that is needed, and now Government is backing out on the plea that there are no funds. Government is, I submit, though not legally bound, at least morally bound, to provide the two-thirds of the funds and it is the duty of the Honourable Minister to provide funds for the expansion of primary education. I do not mean to say that he ought not to make provision for higher education. But at the same time, he ought not to lose sight of primary education altogether as he seems to have been doing. He has been, I think, taking shelter under the wording of the Primary Education Act.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: What is the amendment before the House? The proposed amendment to the original amendment is, briefly speaking, that a specific sum mentioned be provided for the University. How does the subject of primary education and the attitude of the Education Minister arise?

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: My contention is that the poorer people who want the rudiments of learning should not be lost sight of and it is the duty of the Honourable Minister and Government to provide funds for primary education before they think of lavishing their surplus money on higher education. The claims of primary education are at least of equal importance to the claims of higher education.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Then, I understand the Honourable member is opposing the amendment as well as the amendment to the amendment. Is that so?

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: No, I am not doing anything of that sort. I am simply registering my protest against the conduct of the Honourable Minister.....

An Honourable MEMBER: I move the closure.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I accept the closure. The honourable mover will reply.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI (Bombay University) : Sir, I am very glad that in this matter, at any rate, the Council is a happy family, except, of course, for just exceptions which are always found in every family. I have only one thing to add and that is with regard to the amendment of the Honourable Minister for Education.....

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL : Oppose it.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI : Thank you very much for the advice. I find Sir, looking at the grants that are given that a sum Rs. 5,500 is not given, really speaking, for University purposes, but it is a grant given to the University to perform functions different from its ordinary powers. It is given for the purpose of supplying information to students going abroad, and, therefore, legitimately speaking, it should be excluded from the amendment as I have moved. I accept the amendment moved by the Honourable Minister. There is only one word. Sir, in this connection that I want say, and that is to express my tribute to His Excellency the Governor for kindly giving his sanction to move this amendment. In the matter of University education, he has always made it clear that though he may be the Governor, he is also the Chancellor. With these words, I accept the amendment of the Honourable Minister.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Has the honourable member the mover of the original amendment the leave of the House to accept the amendment since proposed ?

Question put and leave granted.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I now put this amendment to the amendment :

In clause 32, add the following as sub-clause (2) :

“ Government shall contribute to that fund the sum of Rs. 1,17,000 per annum to be utilized for the recurring expenditure of the University departments. ” and renumber the present sub-clause (2) as (3) and add the words “ University Fund ” as head note to the clause.

Question put and carried.

Mr. BALAK RAM : Sir, if this amendment is carried, may I ask what happens to the head note. I think the Chapter will have to be renumbered as Chapter X.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Yes ; the honourable member the Legal Remembrancer is right, that there is a further addition to be made to this amendment, namely :

“ Renumber clause 32 as Chapter X. ”

Question put and carried.

Mr. BALAK RAM : Sir, I move the following amendment as a consequential amendment :—

Add the words “ and renumber the subsequent Chapters accordingly. ”

Question put and carried.

Clause 32, as amended, ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 33 (Statutes, Ordinances and Regulations).

CHAPTER X.—STATUTES, ORDINANCES AND REGULATIONS

33. (1) The Senate may, from time to time, make Statutes not inconsistent with this Act, for all matters relating to the University.

(2) in particular, and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such Statutes may provide for—

(a) the declaration of any person to be a teacher under section 3 (h) ;

(b) the declaration of other bodies to be authorities of the University as provided in section 7 (6) ;

(c) the manner of election of the elected Fellows and the elected members of the Syndicate and the Academic Council and the term and conditions of their office, the maintenance of a register of registered graduates and the filling up of casual vacancies in the Senate, the Syndicate and the Academic Council ;

(d) the powers of the Vice-Chancellor ;

(e) the appointment, conditions of office, powers and duties of the Rector, if any, and the Registrar and of the officers and servants of the University ;

(f) the prescribing of offices the holders of which shall be ex-officio Fellows under section 13 (1) (B) (vii) ;

(g) the constitution, reconstitution or abolition of Faculties.

(h) the procedure at meetings of the Senate, the Syndicate, the Academic Council and the Faculties and the quorum of members to be required for the transaction of business ;

(i) the duties of the Academic Council ;

(j) the constitution and powers of Boards of Studies ; the functions of each such Board, the procedure of such boards and the quorum of members to be required for the transaction of business, and the attaching of each Board to one or more Faculties ;

(k) the holding and control of the matriculation examination ;

(l) the constitution, powers and duties of the authorities of the University save as provided in this Act ;

(m) the institution and conferment of degrees and the granting of diplomas, licenses, titles and marks of honour in respect of degrees and examinations ;

(n) the registers of graduates and students to be kept by the University.

(o) the institution of pension or provident fund for the benefit of the officers, teachers and other servants of the University ;

(p) all matters which by this Act may be prescribed by the Statutes ; and

(q) generally, all matters relating to the University for which there is no provision or insufficient provision in this Act and for which provision is, in the opinion of the Senate, necessary.

Mr. BALAK RAM: Sir, I move the following amendment to clause 33 :

In clauses 33 (2) (c) and (h), for the words " and the Academic Council " wherever they occur, insert the words " the Academic Council and the Board of Post-Graduate Studies. "

My amendment proposes to put in some words which were left out by oversight. The Board of Post-Graduate Studies was created by the select committee, and certain consequential amendments were overlooked at the time. My amendment seeks to make good that omission.

Question put and carried.

Clause 33, as amended, ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 34 (Framing and operation of statutes) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 35 (Ordinances how made) :

(1) Subject to the provisions of this Act and the Statutes, the Syndicate may frame Ordinances to provide for all or any of the following matters, namely :—

- (a) the admission of students to the University ;
- (b) the courses of study to be laid down for all degrees and diplomas of the University ;
- (c) the conditions under which students shall be admitted to the degree or diploma courses and to the examinations of the University, and be eligible for degrees, diplomas licenses, titles and marks of honour ; and the form of the certificate to be produced by a candidate for examination under section 37 and the conditions on which any such certificate may be granted ;
- (d) the recognition of colleges and hostels ;
- (e) the conditions to be complied with by schools desiring recognition for the purpose of sending up pupils as candidates for the Matriculation Examination and the conditions to be complied with by candidates for the Matriculation Examination whether sent up by recognised schools or not ;
- (f) the residence and conduct of students ;
- (g) the number, qualifications and conditions of appointment of University Professors and University Teachers ;
- (h) the fees to be charged for courses of instruction in the University given by University professors and University teachers, for tutorial and supplementary instruction given by the University, upon admission into the University and for continuance therein, for admission to the examinations, degrees and diplomas of the University, for the registration of graduates and for other purposes of a like nature.
- (i) the conditions of appointment, the mode of appointment and the duties of examiners ;
- (j) the conduct of examinations ;
- (k) the conduct of business of each Faculty and the appointment of the Dean of each Faculty ;
- (l) the duties and powers of the Boards and committees to be appointed by the University jointly with any other University or body ;
- (m) the discipline to be enforced in regard to the graduates and under-graduates in so far as they come within the jurisdiction of the University for purposes of study and examination ;
- (n) the extension of University teaching in any suitable centre within the Presidency by means of University Extension Lectures or otherwise ;
- (o) the rules to be observed and enforced by Colleges in respect of transfer of students ;
- (p) the functions of each Faculty ;
- (q) the fee ( if any ) to be paid for the entry or retention of a name on any register ;
- (r) the inspection of Colleges and the reports, returns and other information to be furnished by Colleges ;
- (s) the registers of students to be kept by Colleges ;
- (t) the appointment and duties of Professors and University Teachers ;
- (u) the mode of execution of contracts or agreements for or on behalf of the University ;
- (v) generally, all matters which by this Act or by the Statutes, may be provided for by the Ordinances and all matters for which provision is, in the opinion of the Syndicate, necessary for the exercise of the powers conferred, or the performance of the duties imposed on the Syndicate by this Act or the Statutes.

Provided that the Syndicate shall not arrive at any decision in regard to matters referred to in clauses, (h), (c), (d), (q), (i), (j), (n) and (o) without inviting and receiving a report thereon from the Academic Council.

(2) All Ordinances made by the Syndicate shall, except as otherwise provided by this Act, have effect from such date as it may direct ; but every Ordinance so made shall be laid on the table of the Senate as soon as may be. The Senate shall have power, by a resolution passed by a majority of not less than two-thirds of the members present at the meeting, to cancel or refer for reconsideration any such Ordinance.

(3) The Vice-Chancellor shall, on the application of not less than fifty members of the Senate, suspend the operation of any such ordinance until the Senate has considered it as provided in sub-section (2).

Mr. BALAK RAM : Sir, I move the following amendment :—

In sub-clause (2) of clause 35.—

(i) after the words “ as soon as may be ” insert the words “ and shall be considered by the Senate at its next meeting ” ; and

(ii) for the words “ the meeting ” substitute the words “ such meeting ”.

This amendment has become necessary because a similar amendment was made by the select committee in clause 36 (2) at pages 23 and 24 of the printed bill. Clause 36 (2) lays down that all regulations framed by the Academic Council shall be placed on the table of the Senate as soon as may be and shall be considered by the Senate at its next meeting. I believe the intention of the select committee was to make a similar provision for the Ordinances of the Syndicate, which is a body superior to the Academic Council, but through an oversight this was not done. My amendment seeks to make good that omission.

Question put and carried.

Clause 35, as amended, ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 36 (Regulations how made).

(1) The Academic Council may make Regulations consistent with this Act and the Statutes and Ordinances to carry out the duties assigned to it thereunder and shall submit them to the Syndicate for approval.

(2) All Regulations when approved shall, except as otherwise provided by this Act have effect from such date as the Academic Council may direct ; but every Regulation so made shall be placed on the table of the Senate as soon as may be, and shall be considered by the Senate at its next meeting. The Senate shall have power, by a resolution passed by a majority of not less than two thirds of the members present at such meeting, to cancel or refer for reconsideration any such Regulation.

(3) If the Syndicate does not approve of a Regulation the Regulation shall, on a requisition by at least five members of the Syndicate, be referred to the Senate who shall thereupon have all the powers of the Syndicate in this connection. If the Regulation is accepted by the Senate the provisions of sub-section (2) shall not apply to it.

(4) The Vice-Chancellor shall, on the application of not less than fifty members of the Senate, suspend the operation of any such regulation until the Senate has considered it as provided in sub-section (2).

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, by an oversight, in sub-clause (4) of clause 36 a reference to sub-section (3) has been omitted and therefore I move the following amendment :—

In sub-clause (4) of clause 36 add the following at the end :—

“ or sub-section (3). ”

Question put and carried.

Clause 36, as amended, ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 37 (Certificates required of candidates for examination) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 38 (Existing colleges) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 39 (Affiliation).

(1) A College applying for affiliation to the University shall send a letter of application to the Registrar, and shall satisfy the Syndicate and the Academic Council—

(a) that the College is to be under the management of a regularly constituted government body ;

(b) that the qualifications of the teaching staff and the conditions governing their tenure of office are such as to make due provision for the courses of instruction to be undertaken by the College ;

(c) that the buildings in which the College is to be located are suitable, and that provision will be made, in conformity with the Statutes and Ordinances, for the residence in the College or in lodgings approved by the College, of students not residing with their parents or guardians, and for the supervision and physical welfare of students ;

(d) that due provision has been or will be made for a library ;

(e) where affiliation is sought in any branch of experimental science, that arrangements have been or will be made in conformity with the Statutes and Ordinances for imparting instruction in that branch of science in a properly equipped laboratory or museum ;

(f) that due provision will, so far as circumstances may permit, be made for the residence of the Principal and some members of the teaching staff in or near the College or the place provided for the residence of students ;

(g) that the financial resources of the College are such as to make due provision for its continued maintenance ; and

(h) that the College rules fixing the fees (if any) to be paid by the students have not been so framed as to involve such competition with any existing College in the same neighbourhood as would be injurious to the interests of education.

The application shall further contain an assurance that after the College is affiliated any transference of management and all changes in the teaching staff shall be forthwith reported to the Syndicate.

(2) On receipt of a letter of application under sub-section (1), the Syndicate shall—

(a) direct a local inquiry to be made by a competent person authorized by the Syndicate in this behalf ;

(b) make such further inquiry as may appear to them to be necessary ; and

(c) report to the Senate on the question whether the application should be granted or refused, either in whole or in part, embodying in such report the results of any inquiry under clauses (a) and (b).

And the Senate shall, after such further inquiry (if any) as may appear to them to be necessary, grant or refuse the application or any part thereof.

(4) (3) Where the application or any part thereof is granted, the decision of the Senate shall specify the courses of instruction in respect of which the College is affiliated ; and, where the application or any part thereof is refused, the grounds of such refusal shall be stated.

(4) An application under sub-section (1) may be withdrawn at any time before an order is made under sub-section (2).

Mr. BALAK RAM : Sir, I move the following amendment to clause 39 :—

In sub-clause (2) (c) after the words “ and the Senate shall, after such further inquiry (if any) as may appear to them to be necessary ” insert the words “ record their opinion on the matter ” and omit the words “ grant or refuse the application or any part thereof. ”

The effect of this amendment, if accepted by the House, will be to restore clause 39 to its original form. As the proposal will be discussed in detail by Mr. Hamill and others, I content myself with moving the amendment without further remarks.

Question proposed.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Sir, I oppose the amendment moved by the honourable member Mr. Balak Ram. The select committee, after full deliberation, has decided that this power should vest in the Senate. The power of affiliation should not be taken away from the Senate and given away to the Government. I strongly oppose this attempt again to transfer this power from the Senate to Government. In the original bill, Government was given this power, but in the bill, as amended by the select committee, the power is given to the Senate. Now, this is a very important and crucial matter. The power which has been given by the select committee to the Senate is again attempted to be given to the Government, and I must make a very strong protest against the attempt which is now made. Sir, my speech may be a cry in the wilderness, because I see that consultations are going on behind the scene, and this power which has been given to the Senate is likely to be again given to the Government. This is the power for which the honourable member for the University has very bitterly fought at the time of the first reading, and I shall read some extracts from the speech which he made on the floor of this House. On page 805, of the Bombay Legislative Council Debates, Vol. XX, part XIX, dated 27th July 1927, the honourable member Mr. Munshi has characterised this power as a grossly parental power. I shall read out the exact words which he used at that time :—

[Mr. J. C. Swaminarayan]

“Then again, there is another power which has been reserved to Government and is, I consider, grossly parental. I want that also to go—and that is the power of affiliating the colleges. The position stood thus before the 1904 Act came into force.”

Mr. H. HAMILL : I rise to a point of order. I think every member of this honourable House has heard the honourable member Mr. Munshi's speech. They have had his speech in their hands to read, and to read it out again in the Council is a waste of time.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : There is no point of order there. But the honourable member is not going to read out the whole speech ?

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : No, Sir ; only extracts. He went on to say :—

“By the Act of 1857, it was competent to the then Universities to affiliate or disaffiliate any college without having recourse to Government. By the Act of 1904, which many of us know as the Curzon's Universities Act, that power was taken away and the Senate was reduced to the position of an advisory body.”

These are the words spoken by the honourable member on the floor of this House. Further on he said :—

“This is a power which I consider not only unnecessary but something which the tradition of the Bombay University does not require.”

He then quoted the fight that was carried on by the late Honourable Mr. Gokhale in the Imperial Council at that time, and the memorable words of Sir Thomas Raleigh have been quoted by the Honourable Minister to-day as well as by the honourable member for the University on that day. To-day, the Honourable Minister has quoted Sir Thomas Raleigh as having given a very good certificate to the management of the Bombay University. Sir, further on the honourable member Mr. Munshi said :—

“As a matter of fact the Senate of the Bombay University, I know from personal experience, is the most stringent Senate so far as affiliation is concerned ; and there is no reason why this power should be taken away from the Senate and given to the Government of Bombay. I further state that the same argument which was applied to the University of Bombay in 1904 stands good today. It cannot now be suggested by the Honourable the Educational Minister who was responsible for appointing our Vice-Chancellor that in his time. . . . .”

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : This is practically the whole speech.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : No, Sir ; I am only reading extracts :
 “.....that in his time the Senate of the University of Bombay has been conducted on any lines different from or inconsistent with the traditions laid down by his predecessors. And therefore, Sir, I ask this house to give back to the University the power which it enjoyed before 1904 and the power which the Government of India would have given to the Bombay University had it been possible for them to do so.”

Sir, this is the fight that went on on the floor of this House. Now, the select committee has given this power to the Senate. Now, I want to know from the honourable member for the University, representing the cause of the Senate, what attitude he now takes upon this question, and whether he wants to go back upon what he has said on the floor of this House and support Government, because just now people are being led by the nose and vote in any way they like. (“Hear, hear” and interruption.) This is a very important matter. An attempt is made to take away the power that was given to the Senate by the select committee. Sir, this is a matter which has been decided by the select committee. Whenever it suited his purposes, the Honourable the Education Minister has defended many items only on the ground that the points involved had been approved by the select committee and were therefore sacrosanct, when he was not able to find out any other argument to support his case. The select committee decided that the election to the Syndicate by the Senate was to be conducted in such a way that principals, university professors, head masters, teachers, etc., would be excluded ; the whole teaching profession is to be excluded, and the Senate is to elect only from non-professional men. Even on such an important matter, Government have stood by the decision of the select committee, and they have not budged an inch. And just now the power for which the representative of the University has fought so ably at the time of the first reading is sought to be transferred to Government. I want to know from the honourable member what attitude he is now going to take up on this question, and I want to make it clear whether he proposes to follow in the footsteps of those who, whatever may be the consequences, in season and out of season, whether right or wrong, whether they hold particular views or not, stand firm and support Government. Here it is a question of the most educated persons, the most enlightened persons, the most highly cultured persons, and I want to know whether he is going back on what he stated on the floor of this House, and supporting Government (“hear, hear” and interruption) whatever may be the consequences. I am going to ask for a division on this important matter, so that the people at large would know how the voting has taken place.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR (Karachi City) : Mr. President, when this question came up before this Council at the time of the first reading, I had strongly criticised the power which the Government wanted to take in the matter of affiliation of colleges, and I was glad to see that at least in that respect the select committee had made an improvement and an advance on the original bill, by giving to the Senate the power which the Government wanted to usurp. Sir, we hoped that after the bill had emerged from the select committee, at least in this matter, the select committee's recommendations would not be disturbed, and that the small amount of freedom and independence left by the Act would be retained.

[Mr. N. A. Bechar]

However under what circumstances, it is not possible for me to know, does the honourable member the Legal Remembrancer want to restore that power to Government. At the time of the first reading I pointed out that so far as the grip of the Government over the colleges was concerned it was secured to them already by the amount of grant-in-aid which they give to every college. That power of giving grant is quite sufficient for imposing all conditions which Government think necessary but so far as affiliation is concerned University should be the final authority. It was the final authority before 1904 and since that time although Government have the power there should be some advance in the stage and this is one of the directions. As it is, the University sends its own committee to conduct enquiry as to the advisability of affiliating colleges. It completes all processes and at the last stage Government are given the power to reject or accept the recommendation of the Senate. In fine, I submit that Government should relax its rigours so far as affiliation is concerned to a certain extent. What we want is that there must be some advance in the powers that are enjoyed by the University. And I do not understand the somersault which is sought to be taken by members on this side of the House. I hope the sentiments expressed by the honourable member from Ahmedabad will have some salutary effect upon members on this side for the sake of their own honour, for the sake of their independence and for the sake of showing that they have not gone down altogether on their knees to Government. They ought to maintain their independence and show in these matters where the independence of the University is concerned that they are not prepared to compromise. In matters politics compromise may be necessary but in details and not on matters of principles. I do know that the honourable member representing the University has made compromises. Some of them have agreed to this compromise. Yet when he is prepared to compromise upon a fundamental principle and that of the independence of the University, I fail to see what purpose this bill is likely to serve. Colleges are the bodies which the University has to deal with. If the power to affiliate or not is not given to the University I do not know what shadow of independence is left to that body. Therefore I think that this side of the House will not agree to the amendment moved by the honourable member the Legal Remembrancer and I am sure this amendment will be thrown out summarily.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) : (Addressed the House in Urdu) : Sir, I rise to oppose the amendment moved by the Legal Remembrancer. I endorse every word that has been said by the honourable member Mr. Swaminarayan when he opposed the amendment. The honourable member said that it was agreed in the select committee that the power of affiliation should vest in the University and that the national party members were now trying to go back upon the decision arrived at by the select committee. The nationalist party in this House is supposed to voice the feeling of the public and as such they ought to oppose this amendment and reject it. Some members of the national party seem to think that Mahomedans, and non-Brahmins are opposed to the Honourable Minister of Education, but I can assure them, that so long as he continues to have support from Government, his position is quite safe.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order. order. The honourable member should not refer to any speech that has not been made in this House. It is irrelevant.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH : I only wish to point out why national party has taken up this attitude which is against public interest. When it was suggested—and an amendment was moved to that effect—that the vice-chancellor should be elected by the Senate it was thrown out by the House.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : How is that relevant now ?

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH : I refer to it in order to show how the powers of the University have been taken away one after another. I submit that the decision of the select committee should be respected by all including the members of the national party. I trust that Mussalmans and non-Brahmins as a body will reject the amendment. They have been flattering the Government seven years and as a reward the Government have given them a sound slap. The national party will have to face the same treatment. I trust the national party will see reason and reject this amendment.

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL (East Khandesh District) : Sir, when we want to consider the amendment moved by the honourable member the Legal Remembrancer we have to see whether the decision of the Senate is to be respected. So far as the decision of the Senate is concerned, we know very well that the Senate will consist of the high class intelligent people. The question here is whether we have to respect the high intelligence of the intelligensia or whether we must accept the amendment of the honourable member the Legal Remembrancer. There is a conflict between democracy and adaptability to circumstances. So, whether we should accept the amendment of the honourable member the Legal Remembrancer is a question for the honourable House to consider. The decision of the Select Committee deserves to be accepted. At the same time there is some sense in the amendment moved by the Legal Remembrancer. Having regard to these circumstances I am put on the horns of a dilemma. Therefore, I do not either oppose the amendment or support the original clause.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : Sir, I rise to support the amendment, because it is word for word the same as mine. But I have to congratulate myself and the House on the changed mentality that is seen this day. For the last two days the report of the University Committee was looked upon as a revealed book, and every now and then that report was quoted from. When occasion arose the bill as returned by the select committee was held forth as a document of perfect wisdom coming as it did from the majority. The virtue of infallibility which was attributed to the majority view is now gone and Government have seen the wisdom of accepting this amendment. The omission of the words now sought to be restored was voted by a very narrow majority in the select committee, and that narrow majority was looked upon up to this time as composed of persons who were gifted with wisdom which saved them from committing a mistake. Now that cloak has been snatched away and Government have accepted this amendment, I offer my sincere congratulations to them.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI (Bombay University): Sir, I am very glad to find myself in agreement, at any rate in the later stage of the discussion of this bill, with my honourable friend Mr. Jadhav. So far as the thunders of my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan are concerned, I can assure him that they will be very well reported in all the papers with which he is concerned.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I think that is an insinuation.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI: I am sorry: I withdraw it. At any rate, I am sure, Sir, his speech will have a wonderful effect and will point him as one of the glorious hopes of the public life of the Presidency. My honourable friend has rightly anticipated that I am going to support this amendment. He is a clever mathematician and used in his speech all the information which I gave him in a confidential conversation. I may assure him that if I were always a champion of lost causes; if I were an apostle of unpractical wisdom; if I were the man to speak of things which are never likely to be carried; if I were here merely for delivering speeches as in a debating society; I assure him I would have fully agreed with him and joined him. But we are here, at any rate I am here, not for the purpose of performing rhetorical acrobatics or for championing lost causes, but for a very practical purpose; I am here to see that to the best of our ability I am able to compromise, to negotiate, to deal with Government and to deal with other parties in this House, as man to man and friend to friend, and to evolve some kind of harmonious policy which will redound to the credit of this House. It is with that object in view that we have been sent here and not for the purpose of taking up the precious time of this honourable House by discussing things which will never be carried into the region of practical politics

Although in the select committee I strongly favoured the deletion of the clause, at a later stage two considerations induced me to accept this amendment as a compromise. I can assure the honourable member Mr. Swaminarayan that I am not ashamed of any compromise—either this or any other.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: You are not ashamed of bargaining away the right of the Senate for which you yourself fought.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI: My honourable friend is, I know, as I have already said, the champion of lost causes, and as I am but human I do not propose to compete with him in his superhumanity.

[Mr. K. M. Munshi]

Sir, the first consideration which induces me to accept this compromise is this. My honourable friends the non-Brahmins in the select committee were very much against the deletion of this clause. Sir, all of them, including my honourable friend Mr. Jadhav and Mr. Chikodi, were strongly against the deletion of this clause. They were apprehensive that the Senate, as it would be constituted, may on some occasions do injustice to Karnatak or non-Brahmin institutions. I myself felt and do feel still that the Senate will not do that injustice. But we are here to compromise; we are not here for the purpose of merely proving the righteousness of one's point of view. We are here to sit down and compromise and carry the majority with us, and out of that consideration alone I have accepted this particular amendment.

Then, Sir, there is another consideration which induces me to accept this compromise, and it is this. The select committee conceded the power of disaffiliation to Government. So, the result was that affiliation remained with the Senate and disaffiliation with Government. So, if the Senate affiliated a college which Government thought should not be affiliated, the college might be disaffiliated by Government, and thus there would be a deadlock between the University on the one side and Government on the other. I do not want to see a deadlock between the University on the one side and Government on the other.

These two considerations have compelled me to accept this compromise, and as I have already told you, Sir, I am not at all ashamed of it.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED : Sir, may I enquire for my information and for the information of other honourable members here, when, where and why and between whom that compromise exactly took place. Since the fact of a compromise having taken place with regard to this bill has been mentioned in the House now and has been publicly and authoritatively declared to be a fact, I think the House should know all facts about it.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI : I am not in a witness box here.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division) : Sir, I was delightfully surprised to hear my honourable friend Mr. Munshi offering explanation of his inconsistencies. I am rather in sympathy with my honourable friend Professor Swaminarayan and other members on this side of the House who thought that the flag of freedom and the cause of the people was safe in the hands of the honourable member Mr. Munshi and who therefore made him leader and admiral of their fleet, only to find that this admiral steered the fleet right into the port of the enemy. He has betrayed their cause. I thought that the new party of the advanced classes who has now become the allies of Government would cease to abuse the whole bureaucracy and the alien Government, but I find that is not so. Members of the bureaucracy on the other hand are ordering long spoons to sup with new friends. We of the backward communities would have been delighted if the spirit of compromise of which we heard so much from Mr. Munshi had been shown to us by him to the same extent as shown to Government. I would then have really thought that he was a man of great statesmanship. As it is he seems to me to be only a statesmonger. I have great sympathy with the amendment of my honourable friend the Legal Remembrancer. We are carrying on a fierce struggle against supreme prejudice and sublime mediocrity, against inveterate foes and candid friends. Principles have been thrown overboard, I am afraid, by the new allies on both sides. I do not blame them. But, Sir, we at least have stood faithfully by our principles in our support and I do claim some sympathy for our just cause from the Government benches. I am afraid the new union would end in divorce court. But I do not want to hear inconvenient disclosures.

Mr. H. HAMILL : Mr. President, I rise to support the amendment. It is refreshing to me to hear honourable members accuse one another of inconsistency. I am sure however that those who are inconsistent will thoroughly enjoy explaining their position to their electorates. At the same time I do feel that over this amendment a great deal of our time has been wasted—a great deal more than it deserved. Between the year 1857 and the year 1904, that is a period of 47 years, the university was at liberty to affiliate colleges on its own authority. During that period it affiliated 14 colleges and recognised 1 hospital. Between the year 1904 and 1927 when the power of affiliation was in the hands of Government, this is during a period of 23 years, Government affiliated 12 colleges and recognised 10 hospitals. That is nearly one educational institution each year. I submit therefore that with such a record to the credit of Government no party in the House has any reason to fear that Government will exercise its power of affiliation to the detriment of anybody. I may point out that on one occasion only, so far as I am aware, Government refused to accept the recommendation of the university senate and on that occasion there was no subsequent demand either in the press or in the university senate for Government to review its decision. Government felt that too many colleges were being affiliated and so refused to recognise a college which pressed for affiliation. The matter dropped there ; not a word more was said either in the press or anywhere else. On that occasion Government were quite right and the university senate wrong. On another occasion Government delayed affiliating a college and the result was an increase in the efficiency of the college. I therefore submit that, if we retain the power of affiliation in the hands of Government, educational interests will be safeguarded and the efficiency of colleges increased. I therefore support the amendment.

Major W. ELLIS JONES : I move the closure.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I accept it.

Mr. BALAK RAM : Considering the late hour I do not wish to use my right of reply.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I have nothing to add.

Question put and carried.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : I demand a poll.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Those honourable members who are for the amendment will stand in their places.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : I want the names to go on record.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : It is left to me to decide as to the manner of the division. If the honourable member disputes it I should like to refer him to the Standing Order which says :

“ The motion shall be put by the president as a question for the determination of the Council. Votes may be taken by voices or it shall be taken by division if any member so desires. The president shall determine the method of taking votes by division. ”

Division does not necessarily mean going to the lobby. If the honourable member insists I would ask the honourable members to stand up in their places and count the votes.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : I insist upon a regular record being kept.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : There is no insisting about it. Chapter V, rule 11, is clear.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : The convention is being broken in this case. We have always been going to the lobby whenever a division has been claimed.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I call upon those honourable members who are in favour of the amendment to stand in their places. (42 members stood up). Now, those who are against the amendment will please stand in their places. (3 stood up). I find that 42 are for the amendment and 3 against it. The amendment is carried.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Sir, I move the following amendment :

In clause 39 (2) add a sub-clause (2a) as follows :—

“ The Registrar shall submit the application and all proceedings, if any, of the Academic Council, the Syndicate and Senate relating thereto to the Government, who, after such enquiry as may appear to them necessary, shall grant or refuse the application or any part thereof.

Question proposed.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I accept the amendment on behalf of Government.

Question put and carried.

Mr. H. HAMILL : Sir, I beg to move the following amendment :

In clause 39, sub-clause (3) ; (a) Restore the original numbering ; (b) Restore the deleted words and delete “ decision of the Senate. ”

Question put and carried.

Clause 39, as amended, ordered to stand part of the bill.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The House is now adjourned to half past ten to-morrow, Saturday, the 8th October 1927.

Saturday, the 8th October 1927

The Council re-assembled at the Council Hall, P. ona, at 10-30 a.m. on Saturday, the 8th October 1927, the Honourable the President, Mr. A. M. K. DEHLAVI, Bar.-at-Law, presiding.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. Questions.

SCHOOLS : ADMISSION OF DEPRESSED CLASSES

Mr. N. A. BECHAR (Karachi City) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) what effect has been given to the Resolution of the Government regarding admission of the children of the depressed classes in common schools ;

(b) in what municipal and local board areas the children of the depressed classes are given admission in common schools ;

(c) whether any undertaking is demanded from private secondary schools particularly, that they will freely admit children of the depressed classes ;

(d) whether it is a fact that students belonging to the Meghwar community were not admitted by secondary schools with Gujarati vernacular ;

(e) if so, what steps they propose to take to obtain admission for these boys in future ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) From the reports for the year 1926-27 received from the Educational Authorities it appears that the orders of Government of the subject have been observed generally in the schools maintained by local-bodies in the Presidency, viz., by District Local Boards and Municipalities.

(b) In all except in the case of the following schools in the Surat District :—

1. District Local Board School at Gothan.
2. District Local Board School at Madhar.
3. District Local Board School at Morthan.
4. District Local Board School at Motavarachha.
5. District Local Board School at Sania Hemad.
6. District Local Board School at Kharvasa.

No information is yet available so far as the schools under the control of the District School Board, Belgaum, and five Local Authority Municipalities in the Southern Division are concerned.

(c) No.

(d) The Honourable Member presumably refers to the schools in Karachi. If so, the answer is in the negative.

(e) The question does not arise.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : Why is not some kind of an undertaking taken from managers of schools receiving Government grants with respect to the admission of children of the depressed classes ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Hitherto no steps have been taken because it would be rather hard to press that condition on the aided schools.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : Is it not a fact that Government have issued a resolution to the effect that any school that does not admit children of the depressed classes will not be given any grant-in-aid from Government ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : It is so, there is a resolution to that effect.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Why is it not put into operation ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : It cannot be put into operation forcibly but steps are being taken to persuade people to come in line with the spirit of that resolution.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : If persuasion does not avail, why are not more strict measures resorted to ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : There have been no complaints except the question put by the honourable member and consequently no occasion has arisen for more strict measures.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Have not complaints been drawn to the attention of Government through this question.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : There are no specific complaints brought to the notice of Government.

LAND REVENUE, KOLABA DISTRICT

Sir VASANTRAO DABHOLKAR : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the land revenue of the Kolaba District for the current revenue year has been fully recovered ;

(b) if it has not, how much revenue is outstanding, and whether the failure to recover it, is due to the agitation against payment, accounts of which have periodically appeared in the newspapers ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) The revenue for the year 1926-27 was fully recovered except for the sum of Rs. 25-8-6 due from the lessee of a plot of land in Matheran. The whereabouts of the lessee are not known.

(b) Does not arise.

Sir VASANTRAO DABHOLKAR : May I know the area of the plot at Matheran ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I want notice of that question.

Sir VASANTRAO DABHOLKAR : The answer to (b) is "Does not arise". Does it mean that the reports that have appeared in newspapers from time to time are not correct ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I do not know to which reports the honourable member is referring.

Sir VASANTRAO DABHOLKAR : Reports regarding the collection of revenue at Alibag.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : So far as the reports refer to difficulties experienced in the collection of the revenue, they are incorrect.

SCHOLARSHIPS : PROPORTIONATE AWARD TO COMMUNITIES

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District) : Will Government be pleased to state--

(a) the number of children attending educational institutions in this presidency per mille of the population of Muhammadans and of each class of Hindus as classified in the late census ;

(b) whether it is a fact that the figure for Muhammadans is 84 per mille and that of intermediate Hindus 41 per mille ;

(c) if the reply to (b) above be in the affirmative, the amount spent on the scholarships mentioned in question No. 6 in Gujarat during the year 1925-26 per mille of the population of the intermediate Hindus as mentioned in the last census and of Muhammadans for their uplift ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) The following table gives the required information :—

Presidency Proper (excluding Sind)
	Hindus.			Muhamma- dans.
	Advanced	Inter- mediate	Back- ward
Population ..	1,444,955	9,083,618	3,770,706	1,369,075
Number of children attending educational institutions (re- cognised).	226,238	406,847	110,863	119,415
Number of children per mille of the population.	157	45	29	87

Figures, as they stood on 31st March 1926, are given as presumably the Honourable member would like to be supplied with the latest statistical information available.

(b) The figures 84 for Muhammadans and 41 for Intermediate Hindus given in part (b) of the question are for 1924-25 and 1923-24 respectively.

(c) The amount spent on the scholarships per mille of the population of the Intermediate Hindus and Muhammadans was Rs. 2-2-0 and Rs. 19-13-0 respectively during 1925-26.

SIND ALLOWANCE

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether Sind allowance is given to (i) members of the Indian Service of Engineers, (ii) the Provincial Service of Engineers and (iii) Upper Subordinates of the Public Works Department serving in Sind ;

(b) whether it is a fact that officers of the two last mentioned classes do not get it ? If so the reasons for not granting the allowance to them ;

(c) whether Sind allowance is given to members of All-India Services and to the members of the Provincial Services serving in Sind ;

(d) if the reply be in the affirmative the Departments whose officers get that allowance ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : (a) The allowance is given, subject to certain conditions, only to members of the —

(i) Indian Service of Engineers (Irrigation Branch) ; and

(ii) Provincial Service of Engineers (Bombay Engineering Service).

(b) No. Only the Upper Subordinates do not get it. They are nearly all natives of Sind, and hence there is no appreciable hardship entailed by exposure or isolation in their case. Moreover the spheres of their duties are limited compared with those of Divisional and Sub-divisional officers.

(c) and (d) The allowance is given, subject to certain conditions, to members of All-India Services and Provincial Services under the Revenue, Judicial, Forest, Public Works (Irrigation), Police and Medical Departments, and to the Deputy Director of Agriculture in Sind.

PUBLIC WORKS SECRETARIAT STAFF

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of candidates from the Hindu backward communities appointed in temporary and leave vacancies in the three years 1924-25, 1925-26 and 1926-27 in the Public Works Secretariat, Bombay, both in the upper and lower divisions ;

(b) how many candidates from the advanced communities were similarly appointed during the same period ;

(c) how many candidates from the backward and advanced groups were made permanent during the same period ;

(d) whether recruitment to the upper division is generally made by direct appointments ;

(e) the number of posts in the upper division filled by promotion from the lower division in each year ;

(f) the number of persons from the backward communities who were so promoted ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : (a), (b) and (c) The necessary information is given in the statement attached.

(d) Yes, after due consideration is given to claims of deserving clerks in the lower division.

(e) One only, in the year 1925-26.

(f) Nil.

Statement showing the number of appointments in the Public Works Secretariat Staff

Year	No. of candidates from the Hindu backward communities appointed in temporary and leave vacancies. (Clause (a) of the question)		No. of candidates from the advanced communities similarly appointed during the same period. (Clause (b) of the question)		No. of candidates made permanent during the same period. (Clause (c) of the question)
	Upper Division	Lower Division	Upper Division	Lower Division	Backward	Advanced
1924-25	12	3	7	5	..	4‡
1925-26	6	12	2	....	3†	7†
1926-27	8	11	3	....	....	....

** These were permanent clerks of the Lower Division appointed to act in temporary and leave vacancies in the Upper Division.

† These men were employed in this Department in acting and temporary vacancies for a long time prior to the issue of the Finance Department orders regarding the percentage proportions of communities, etc.

‡ These are the four permanent men taken over from the Industries Department on its abolition.

BOARDING HOUSE : THAR AND PARKAR

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind) : Will Government be pleased to state—

- (a) whether it is a fact that the district local board of Thar and Parkar maintains a special boarding house for Muslim students ;
- (b) whether the rent of the boarding house is paid by Government ;
- (c) whether the rest of the expenses are borne by the board ;
- (d) the number of students in the boarding house ;
- (e) the number of such students who are in receipt of scholarships ;
- (f) the figures of literacy among intermediate and backward Hindus in the district ;
- (g) the figures of literacy among Muslims in the district ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Yes.

(b) The rent is actually paid from the Educational Local Funds, which are reimbursed by a Government grant equal to the expenditure.

(c) Yes.

(d) 130.

(e) 39—Government scholarship holders.

2—Private scholarship holders (1 holding a scholarship granted by Khan Bahadur Mir Ghulam Mahomed Khan and the other holding a scholarship awarded by Khan Bahadur Mir Allahdadkhan).

(f) The figure of literacy among Hindus of all classes is 10,212 (58 per mille of population). Separate figures for Intermediate and Backward Hindus are not available.

(g) 4,535 (i.e., 21 per mille of population).

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED : Is it not a fact that the district local board is maintaining a boarding house for Hindu students at Mithi and is going to open another at Mirpurkhas ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I believe it is so.

SUKKUR GAUGE LEVELS

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether their attention has been drawn to the low levels of 5 feet to 8 feet at the Sukkur gauge in the river Indus in Sind during the months of May, June and July for the last and the current year, i.e., the years 1926 and 1927 and the probability of consequent suffering to crops in Lower Sind (Non-Barrage area) when the Barrage at Sukkur is not operating ;

(b) what they propose doing for the non-Barrage areas in Karachi and Hyderabad districts when the level of water is artificially raised from 5 feet to 11 feet at Sukkur after the Barrage is in operation ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : (a) Yes.

(b) Systematic improvements of the canal systems both in Hyderabad and Karachi Districts are at present under the consideration of Government.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : What is the nature of the systematic improvements referred to in the reply ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : I am afraid it will take a considerable time to explain what the improvements are.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : Any idea in brief ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : I think the honourable member is aware of some of the improvements that are taking place in Hyderabad and Karachi districts. He knows that the Fuleli and other canals are being improved.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : Are Government referring to the system of modules ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : Not particularly. Honourable members will recollect that when the Barrage was sanctioned, Government gave an undertaking that certain canals in Southern Sind would be improved. This House has already provided money for certain improvements, and I trust will continue to provide the necessary funds to enable Government to carry out that undertaking.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : Is not the Honourable Member in a position to give an idea in brief as to the nature of the improvements ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : Generally, the canals are remodelled, by bunds being strengthened, curves cut off, and canals straightened out.

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of agricultural implements purchased by them during the last year ;

(b) how many of them were foreign and how many Indian ;

(c) whether in the case of foreign, similar Indian implements were not available ;

(d) whether the department approached any Indian firms to get similar implements manufactured in India ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) 168.

(b) 71 Foreign : 97 Indian.

(c) In almost all cases in which foreign implements were purchased similar Indian implements were not available. As regards the Chhatanooga Mill purchased by the Professor of Agriculture, a similar Indian type was available ; but the foreign type was purchased in order to illustrate the different types for teaching purposes at the Agricultural College, Poona.

(d) Yes.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : May I ask whether an Indian type similar to the foreign type purchased in order to illustrate the different types was not available ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : I presume so. I have not got definite information, but if the honourable member will give me notice, I will make enquiries.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : May I know whether any of these implements are such as are worked by power ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : At any rate, I have seen some which are worked by power in the Agricultural College.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : Are they out of these 168 ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : I cannot tell you that.

TEAK TREES ON MALKI LANDS : RIGHT OF OCCUPANT

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that one Trimbak Narayan Sathe of Khalapur, taluka Karjat, in the Kolaba District, applied for permission to cut teak trees in his Malki survey number 147 of Kalote Mokashi in the said Peta of Khalapur in the beginning of January 1927, and that a final reply was given to him by the Divisional Forest Officer, Kolaba, on 22nd June 1927, informing him that Government have stopped sales of such trees in Malki numbers, under Government Resolution No. 8581-24, dated 2nd May 1927, and that such trees will hereafter be sold by public auction ;

(b) whether the right of occupants of Malki numbers to fell ancient teak trees of original growth in Malki numbers is taken away by the said Resolution ;

(c) whether under the new system when such trees are sold wholesale, the occupant of the Malki number is to be consulted and given the option of selling them himself after paying the royalty of 8 annas per tree ;

(d) whether there is any reason why when the occupant of the Malki number is prepared to cut such trees in his Malki number after paying the royalty of 8 annas per tree he should not be allowed to do so ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) The facts are as stated in the question, except that the Divisional Forest Officer replied to Mr. Sathe's application of 17th June 1927 and not to that of January 1927 which he never received.

(b) The royalty trees of original growth on malki lands are Government property. Permission to cut them for domestic use and not for sale was given to the occupants on certain conditions. The original teak growth in the north of Kolaba having, however, reached maturity, it was found necessary, in the interests both of the provincial revenues and of forest conservancy, to replace the method of occasional retail fellings and sales to the occupants by wholesale fellings and sales on a commercial basis. After the trees have been cut the occupants will have the benefit of their aftergrowth.

(c) and (d) The trees are Government property and will be sold by Government wholesale. Until lately they were sold to the occupant at a prescribed scale rate and not at 8 annas per tree as stated in the question.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : Is it not a fact that the application was originally made on the 21st January 1927 to the Collector, and the same application was forwarded to the Divisional Forest Officer in June, after receiving a reply from the Collector ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : I have not got the original application with me, but if notice is given I will make enquiries into the matter.

EKRUK TANK CANALS : REPAIR CHARGES

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR on behalf of Mr. N. G. MAJMUDAR (Sholapur City) : Will Government be pleased to state the estimated cost of repairing for supply of water for irrigation purposes—

(a) the right bank of the Ekruk canal for the first 3 miles, for the subsequent 7 miles, and the final 6 miles ;

(b) the left bank of the Ekruk canal for the first 3 miles and the subsequent three miles ;

(c) the perennial canal of the Ekruk Tank from the 19th mile to 24 miles, and from 24th mile to 27 miles ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : (a) The approximate cost of special repairs for the first 3 miles of the Right Bank canal of the Ekruk tank will be Rs. 7,600. No estimate of the cost of repairing the remaining miles can be given unless actual surveys are carried out.

(b) The total length of the Left Bank canal is only 4 miles. The approximate cost of special repairs to the first three miles will be Rs. 6,300 and that for the remaining one mile Rs. 2,200.

(c) The estimated cost of special repairs for miles 19 to 24th of the perennial canal of the Ekruk tank will be Rs. 8,000 and that for miles 24th to 26th Rs. 2,800 approximately. The total length of this canal is about 26 miles.

EKRUK TANK WATER : DISPOSAL OF APPLICATIONS

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR on behalf of Mr. N. G. MAJMUDAR (Sholapur City) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the representatives of the agriculturists at Sholapur have applied as regards the early disposal of their applications for the supply of water from the Ekruk Tank for irrigating lands in Sholapur ;

(b) whether Government can arrange to dispose of their applications in the month of December instead of February as requested by the agriculturists ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : (a) Yes.

(b) There is no objection to the disposal of applications in the month of December instead of February.

GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS : COST

Sardar G. N. MUJUMDAR (Deccan Sardars and Inamdars) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that an English copy of the Village Sanitation Act (19 pages) costs Annas 3 while a Gujarati one containing 10 pages only costs Re. 1 ;

(b) if so, the reasons for the difference ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : (a) Yes.

(b) The governing factor in fixing the selling price of a publication is the number of copies printed.

GIRLS' HIGH SCHOOL : AHMEDABAD

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI (Bombay University) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that some girls were refused admission in the Girls' High School, Ahmedabad, on the ground that there was not enough accommodation in the school to admit more girls ;

(b) if the answer to the question (a) be in the affirmative, whether it is a fact that the Girls' High School, Ahmedabad, is the only institution in the city of Ahmedabad where girls can take advantage of English education ;

(c) whether they intend in the near future to increase the staff and the accommodation in the Girls' High School, Ahmedabad ;

(d) whether they are aware that on account of want of space some of the classes of the Girls' High School, Ahmedabad, are held in the open verandah even in heat and rains and for practical work in science the girls have to go to the P. R. Training College for men ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Yes.

(b) No.

(c) The plans and estimates for a new building for the Girls' High School, Ahmedabad, have already been sanctioned. Owing to financial stringency the provision proposed to be made in the current year's budget on this account was, however, subsequently omitted. The staff is adequate and sufficient to meet the present need.

(d) Yes, because the Laboratory is common to both institutions.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : May I ask when this was sanctioned ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : We have given administrative sanction.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : When was it given ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I think last year.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : When will provision be made in the budget ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The question will be considered at the next budget time, and funds permitting, the provision will be made.

INSPECTORS AND SUB-INSPECTORS IN THE EXCISE DEPARTMENT

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of inspectors and sub-inspectors appointed in the Excise Department during the last three years with the caste, religion and qualification of each ;

(b) whether they have fixed any standard of qualification for these posts as in other departments ;

(c) if the reply to (b) is in the affirmative, what are they ; if in the negative, why no standard is fixed and whether Government intend to fix it now ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : (a) Two statements, one relating to the Presidency proper and the other to Sind, are placed on the Council Table. The Sind statement contains information for the period beginning with 15th May 1921, from which date the Salt and Excise Department in Sind was reorganised.

(b) and (c) Candidates for these posts must ordinarily be not over 25 years of age, must possess good moral character, good physique, suitable educational qualifications (the minimum being usually Matriculation or School Leaving Examination) and general fitness for intelligent outdoor work which in most cases involves considerable physical endurance.

AIDED ANGLO-VERNACULAR SCHOOLS AT RATNAGIRI

Mr. B. R. NANAL (Ratnagiri District): Will Government be pleased to state—

- (a) the number of aided Anglo-vernacular schools in Ratnagiri;
- (b) whether it is a fact that while boys from some of the schools are admitted into the Ratnagiri High School, without charging any admission fees, boys coming from other schools are charged such fees;
- (c) if so, the reasons for making this discrimination between school and school in the same town?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) 2.

(b) Yes

(c) One is a feeder school to the Ratnagiri High School and the other is not.

GRAZING GROUND, PIMPARKHEDE

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR (East Khandesh District): Will Government be pleased to state whether it is a fact that the whole forest area in the limits of the village of Pimparkhede, peta Bhadgaon, district East Khandesh, has been closed to the agriculturists of that village for grazing their cattle?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN. The forest area within the limits of the village of Pimparkhede was closed temporarily to grazing up to 1st September 1927 in the interests of forest conservancy: but other forest areas were available to the villagers within which they could have grazed their cattle

BANDHARA AT SAVKI VILLAGE

Mr. R. G. PRADHAN (Nasik District): Will Government be pleased to state—

- (a) whether there is a Government bandhara at the village Savki, taluka Kalwan, district Nasik;
- (b) whether, some years ago, they had decided to extend it and to dig irrigation channels;
- (c) if so, why was the extension not made;
- (d) whether they are aware that the extension of the bandhara would be beneficial not only to agriculturists in Savki but also to those in the neighbouring village of Thengoda?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: (a) Yes.

(b) and (c) Yes, there was originally a proposal to extend this bandhara and channel but it was subsequently held in abeyance in favour of the Girna Canal extension which was more economical and profitable.

(d) The extension of the Savki Channel will not be beneficial to the irrigators of Savki and the neighbouring village of Thengoda unless there are prospects of an assured enhanced supply of water, which is not at present available from the Chankapur Reservoir.

TAX ON TOTALISATOR BETTING

Mr. HOOSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA (Bombay City): Will Government be pleased to state what rates they have been charging under totalisator tax on the amounts placed on the totalisator since the tax was levied ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : By Government Notification, Finance Department, No. 4397-A dated the 8th December 1925, the totalisator tax was levied at 2½ per cent. on all monies paid into any totalisator by way of stakes or bets in the City of Bombay and the Cantonment of Poona. By Government Notification No. 4397-A dated the 17th June 1926, the tax has been raised to 4 per cent.

ANALYSIS OF 'DAMRO'

Mr. A. D. SHETH (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state whether the so-called grass corn 'Damro' used by poor people in the Dhandhuka Taluka has been examined by the Government Chemical Examiner ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : It has been examined by the Agricultural Chemist to Government.

Mr. A. D. SHETH : Will the report of the Agricultural Chemist be placed on the Council table ?

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : It can be placed on the Council table.

REVENUE COLLECTIONS : DHANDHUKA TALUKA

Mr. A. D. SHETH (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that a committee of the Dhandhuka Taluka Local Board have reported that crops in Mandvipura in the Dhandhuka Taluka in Ahmedabad District were only three annas in a rupee and that the people had no means of livelihood and no credit and were in a very bad condition ;

(b) whether it is a fact that the Mamlatdar of the Taluka reported that half revenue, etc., should be collected from the village ;

(c) whether it is a fact that this half revenue has been found difficult to collect and people have already left the village in search of work elsewhere ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes. The crop estimate of the committee was taken into consideration before the annewari orders in respect to the rabi villages were passed.

(b) Yes.

(c) No difficulty was experienced in recovering the land revenue. Out of Rs. 481-15-3 to be collected Rs. 417-11-0 were collected without resort to coercive measures. Most of the people of the village are Bhavads and Kolis and their custom is every year to migrate to various trade centres, such as Viramgam, Baroda, Cambay, Bhavnagar, etc., for labour and cart-hire, after the Kharif crop has been reaped.

DRINKING WATER FOR DHEDS : GHEJ

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK on behalf of Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that there is a fairly large population of Dheds in the village of Ghej, taluka Chikhli, district Surat ;

(b) whether it is a fact that there is no suitable arrangement for the supply of drinking water for the poor Dheds in this village ;

(c) what they intend to do to remove this grievance of the Dheds of this village ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) and (b) There are in this village two "falias" (streets) in which Dheds live. The residents of the eastern "falia" have no complaint to make. In the western "falia" there are 30 residents. There is one private well in this "falia," but it dries up in the middle of the fair season and water can then only be obtained from the Khareda river, about one mile away.

(c) The provision of wells for drinking water is a function of the District Local Boards, which are subsidised by Government to the extent of two-thirds of the money spent by them on village water supply. The needs of this particular village have already been brought to the notice of the District Local Board by the Collector of Surat.

PROCESSION : SHIVAJI TERCENTENARY

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the Palkhi procession in connection with Shri Shivaji Tercentenary celebrations in Bombay was not allowed to pass by the Supari Baug Road ;

(b) whether they are aware that this action of the authorities has created great discontent amongst the Hindu public ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) It is understood that the honourable member refers to the Palkhi procession which was to have taken place on the 3rd May 1927, but which was cancelled by the organisers. It is not a fact that permission for that procession to go along the Supari Baug Road was refused.

(b) Does not arise.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Is it not a fact that permission was asked to take out the Palkhi procession on the last day of the Tercentenary celebrations from Parel through Sopari Baug Road, and that the permission was refused ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I am not certain of all the facts of the case, but so far as the permission to take out a procession to Sopari Baug Road is concerned, I understand that permission was given. It is stated in the reply that it is not a fact that permission for a procession to go along the Supari Baug Road was refused.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : What were the conditions laid down ? Were there any restrictions ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I must ask for notice of that question.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Did not a deputation on behalf of the Celebration Committee wait upon the Commissioner of Police, who replied that no permission would be given to take out this Palkhi procession by the Sopari Baug Road ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : That is not a fact.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Is it not a fact that an elephant was not allowed with the procession ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I understand that is so.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Was not an elephant allowed in the procession later on started by the Swami of the Prativadi Bhayankar Math ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I ask for notice of that question.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : On what grounds does the Honourable Member say that it is not a fact, when I myself was a member of the deputation ?

HOSTELS FOR DEPRESSED CLASSES

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the precise number of Government hostels in the presidency proper in the different districts of the presidency for depressed class boys ;

(b) whether provision has so far been made by them to provide hostel accommodation for students of the depressed classes in secondary schools in each district of Gujarat ;

(c) whether they intend to start Government hostels in districts where there are none at present ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) One at Poona.

(b) No.

(c) No definite statement can be made at present.

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : When will Government be able to make a definite statement.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : As soon as funds are available.

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Is not this question seriously considered by Government ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : There are many things Government are considering seriously and for want of funds they could not give effect.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : Do not Government find a few thousands of rupees for the depressed classes ? They say in season and out of season that they have no funds ?

SECONDARY SCHOOLS : FEES FOR MAY

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they issued a circular to recognised secondary schools to the effect that in view of the School Leaving Examination being held and finished in the month of April no school fee shall be charged from the candidates sent up to the School Leaving Examination for the month of May ;

(b) whether it is a fact that some of the schools have charged the school fee for the month of May from candidates sent up by them to the School Leaving Examination ;

(c) if the answer to (b) is in the affirmative, the names of the schools that have charged the fee for the month of May in defiance of the circular mentioned in (a) ;

(d) whether they have taken or intend to take any steps against those schools that have defied the said circular ;

(e) whether they have taken any steps to see that the fee charged in contravention of the circular is returned by those schools to the respective candidates ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) A circular was issued to Government secondary schools that the fees for the month of May should not be recovered from the students sent up for the School Leaving Examination. A copy of this circular was sent to the Educational Inspectors asking them to bring the orders issued to the notice of the Head Masters of Government secondary schools and of all aided and recognised secondary schools for their information and for such action as they considered necessary. The Educational Inspectors were also asked to suggest to the Managers of the aided and recognised secondary schools that it was desirable, both in the interests of the schools and pupils, to adopt a similar rule.

(b) Yes.

(c) In most of the aided schools fees for the month of May are charged as stated, but as the circular was only for information the Managers cannot be said to have acted in defiance of the circular issued.

(d) It is not considered desirable to interfere with the discretion of the Managers provided they make the rules regarding fees known to the parents before admitting their children.

(e) The question does not arise.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : How is it that in spite of the circular the managers have collected the fees from the students for the month of May ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The answer to that part is to be found in the reply given both in (a) as well as in (d).

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Is it true that the circulars sent by the Educational Department are not followed by the managers ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I am not prepared to answer that general question. If my honourable friend gives me any specific instance I can tell him.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Is not the Honourable Minister aware that no student that appears at school leaving examination attends school in the month of May, because his examination is finished in the month of April ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Everybody knows that the schools are closed then.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Then why do they charge fees for the month of May from students appearing at the school leaving certificate examination ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The answer in (d) is clear which says :

"It is not considered desirable to interfere with the discretion of the managers provided they make the rules regarding fees known to parents before admitting their children."

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Next question.

Dr. M. K. DIXIT : One supplementary question, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I have called the next question.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT RESOLUTION NO. L.C.—1145-B,
DATED 24TH JUNE 1927

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Will Government be pleased to place on the Council Table the Government Resolution No. L.C.—1145-B of the Revenue Department of the Government of Bombay, dated 24th June 1927, together with all the accompaniments pertaining to the said Resolution ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : A copy of Government Resolution No.—L.C. 1145-B., dated 24th June 1927, with its accompaniments, is placed on the Council table.

GOVERNMENT OF BOMBAY

REVENUE DEPARTMENT

Resolution No. L. C.—1145-B

Bombay Castle, 24th June 1927

Letter from the Secretary, Anna Valuation Committee, No. A.V.C., dated 3rd September 1926—Submitting the report* of the Committee appointed by Government in their Press Note No. L. C.—1145-B. dated 28th June 1924.

RESOLUTION.—The report is a majority one. Of the eleven members, Messrs. Pratt and Anderson were unable to sign it, as the former had retired from service and the latter was on leave out of India. Two members, Mr. H. L. Painter, I.C.S., and the Thakor Saheb of Amod, have appended minutes of dissent. The thanks of Government are due to the members of the Committee for the care with which they have conducted the enquiry and formulated their recommendations.

2. Paragraphs 1 to 5 of the report do not call for comment. The Committee's main recommendations are contained in paragraphs 6 to 11.

3. Paragraphs 6 and 7.—In his dissenting minute of 26th January 1926 the Thakor Saheb of Amod states his objections to the procedure proposed in paragraph 6 for the valuation of crops, and suggests that an advisory committee consisting of agriculturists and inamdars and presided over by the Mamlatdar would be more suitable. Government regret that it is now too late to consider the Thakor Saheb's suggestion, which should have been brought before the Committee. They approve the procedure suggested by the Committee in paragraph 6, with the reservation that clauses (i) and (ii) of it should be amalgamated, the subsequent clauses being renumbered.

In his dissenting minute Mr. Painter proposes to exclude paragraph 7, as he considers that sufficient publicity is already provided for in paragraph 6 (ix). Government agree with Mr. Painter and consider that it will be enough if the procedure laid down in paragraph 6 is amplified by so much of the proposals in paragraph 7 as relate to the *Printed as an appendix to this Resolution.

submission and consideration of petitions of objections against the valuations published under (ix).

The form of procedure as thus revised and approved by Government will be as follows:—

“ 6. (i) A Committee shall be formed for every village for which an anna valuation is to be prepared consisting of the Circle Inspector (as Chairman), the Talati or Kulkarni, the officiating Revenue Patil and two representative agriculturists selected by the Circle Inspector.

(ii) The Circle Inspector shall give not less than three clear days' notice of his visit to the village.

(iii) The Committee shall meet in the month preceding the harvesting of the main crops of the village and record its opinion as to what the anna valuation should be for each of them.

(iv) This opinion shall be signed by each member of the Committee. If the Committee is not unanimous, each member shall record his opinion over his own signature or mark.

(v) The opinion or opinions thus recorded shall be forwarded by the Circle Inspector to the Mamlatdar, who shall proceed to make a provisional decision.

(vi) The Mamlatdar shall fix a date by which the opinion or opinions referred to in section (v) above shall reach him.

(vii) If the opinion or opinions are not received by the date fixed by the Mamlatdar, he shall make his provisional decision on such other data as may be available.

(viii) The Mamlatdar shall publish his provisional decisions in the taluka kachari and in the chawdis of all the villages concerned.

(ix) Any objection to the provisional decision of the Mamlatdar shall be made within fifteen days from the date of its publication in the taluka kachari or chawdis, and all objections which have been submitted to his superior officers, whether in person or by petition, shall be taken into account by the Mamlatdar, before he makes his final decision.

(x) Unless the Mamlatdar, on a consideration of the objections presented or for any other reason, sees fit to amend his provisional decision, such decision shall stand as his final decision. In any case where he amends his provisional decision, the amended decision shall be published in the same manner as the provisional decision.

(xi) The Mamlatdar's decision, if revised by the Collector, shall be similarly published in the taluka kachari and the chawdis.

(xii) The Collector may select any field in any village of the taluka for a crop test with a view to checking the accuracy of any anna valuation.

It must, however, be understood that for the purposes of the suspension of land revenue annewari valuations are required only in seasons below the average or, in good seasons, when there are suspended arrears of revenue to be collected.

4. Paragraph 8.—In his dissenting minute Mr. Painter objects to the whole of this paragraph except the first sentence. Government consider, however, that the Committee's recommendations (a) and (b) are intended simply to determine the standard to be applied. The statistics referred to indicate nothing more than what is to be regarded as the average quantitative outturn of land of average classification in the village. Then, this standard having been determined, the valuer, by making quantitative estimates of the actual outturn for a number of particular fields of average classification, will be in a position to determine what ratio the average outturn of the season bears to the outturn of a normal season, or, in other words, whether the crops should be valued at say 12, or 8, or 6 annas. On this understanding Government accept the Committee's recommendations.

5. Paragraph 9.—The Committee recommends that the number of rain gauge stations should be increased. Government will give effect to this recommendation as funds permit.

6. Paragraph 10.—Government endorse the opinion of the Committee and are considering proposals for the conduct of a series of crop experiments.

7. Paragraph 11.—Government agree with this proposal and will take steps to carry it into effect as soon as possible.

By order of the Governor in Council,

*Appendix to the Government Resolution, Revenue Department, No. L.C.—1145-B.
 dated 24th June 1927*

REPORT OF THE ANNEWARI COMMITTEE

This Committee was appointed by Government in pursuance of the following resolution moved by Mr. Navle and carried at a meeting of the Legislative Council held on 20th March 1924 :—

This Council recommends to the Governor in Council that a mixed committee of official and non-official members of this Council, with a non-official majority, be appointed to consider the most suitable method or methods of fixing the anna valuation of crops.

2. The Committee sat on the 24th and 31st July 1924 and on the 12th March 1925. It now presents to Government the recommendations embodied in the following paragraphs.

3. The Committee has given its careful consideration to the alleged defects in the present system, the chief of which are that an insufficient number of fields are examined by the revenue officers to enable them to arrive at fair conclusions, that the opinions of the agriculturists themselves are not taken sufficiently into consideration and that the original estimates framed by the subordinate revenue officials, the Talatis and Circle Inspectors, are too frequently enhanced by the higher officials. In order to remove these defects the honourable mover of the resolution, which gave rise to this Committee, laid before it a scheme, the principal feature of which was that the crop valuation should in the first instance be done by a small committee, consisting of the Circle Inspector, the Patil, the Talati (or Kulkarni) and two local agriculturists, whose opinion, if unanimous, should be accepted as final. In the event of a difference of opinion the scheme proposed that the matter should be referred to another committee, composed of the Mamlatdar, the President and Vice-President of the Taluka Local Board. In the event of a further disagreement, it was proposed that the matter should be referred to a third committee, consisting of the Collector and the local Member of the Legislative Council representing the rural area concerned and the President of the District Local Board.

4. After a careful consideration of this scheme the Committee has found itself unable to recommend its adoption on the main ground that it did not provide sufficiently for the control and supervision of the higher revenue officers, that the procedure proposed was unworkable by reason of its elaborate formality and delays, and that it would place the responsibility on persons imperfectly qualified for such a task owing both to a lack of experience or training and to personal bias. The Committee as a whole is of the opinion that it is of the utmost importance to enlist the advice and co-operation of the agriculturists themselves in the earlier stages of the process of anna valuation, but in view of the short space of time, in which it is possible to frame an estimate, which can only be done when the crops are standing and the season of harvesting approaching, it is quite impracticable to adopt any elaborate system of check and countercheck. In order to arrive at fair conclusions within the brief time available a simple system of valuation is absolutely inevitable.

5. A considerable difference of opinion exists on the question of the number of villages that should be examined at the time of making the valuation. A detailed examination of each and every village in an area in which the seasonal conditions render an anna valuation necessary is not, the Committee thinks, within the range of practical politics. The Committee has therefore considered whether it would not be feasible to divide each taluka into homogeneous groups on the basis of the season's rainfall and to select in each group one village in which to hold a detailed examination of the main crops. There is in the view of the Committee much to recommend this proposal, provided that the actual division of a taluka into homogeneous groups and the selection of villages within the groups be placed in the hands of a Committee, the majority of whose members are selected by the agriculturists from among their own numbers. The main objection to this proposal is that there would be a danger of wrong grouping, which would vitiate the whole valuation. There would also be a danger of the wrong selection of a village as typical with the result that the group valuation might be either too high or too low. In these circumstances the Committee thinks it would be preferable to continue the present system, under which as many villages as possible in each affected area are examined by the revenue officers. The Committee, however, attaches the greatest importance to these officers acting in much closer co-operation than at present with the local agriculturists, and to make this possible it makes the following specific recommendations to Government and strongly urges their adoption.

6. (i) That the Circle Inspector should be assisted by two representative agriculturists in each village for which he prepares an anna valuation.

(ii) That a Committee be formed for each of these villages, consisting of the Circle Inspector himself (as Chairman), those two representative agriculturists, the officiating Patil and the Talati (or Kulkarni).

(iii) That the Circle Inspector shall give not less than three clear days' notice of his visit.

(iv) That the Committee shall meet in the month preceding the harvesting of the main crops of a village and record its opinion as to what the anna valuation should be for each of the main crops.

(v) That this opinion shall be signed by each member of the Committee. If the Committee is not unanimous, each member shall record his opinion over his own signature or mark.

(vi) That the opinion shall be forwarded by the Circle Inspector to the Mamlatdar, who shall proceed to make a decision.

(vii) That the Mamlatdar shall fix a date by which the opinion must reach him.

(viii) That if the opinion is not received by the date fixed by the Mamlatdar, he shall make his decision on such other data as may be available.

(ix) That the Mamlatdar shall publish his decision in the taluka kacheri and in the chawdis of all villages concerned.

(x) That the Mamlatdar's decision shall be subject to revision by his superior officers.

(xi) That if his decision be revised by his superior officers, the revised decision shall be similarly published.

(xii) That the Collector may select any field in any village of the taluka for a crop test with a view to checking the accuracy of any anna valuation.

It must, however, be understood that for the purposes of the suspension of land revenue annewari valuations are only required in seasons below the average or, in good seasons, when there are suspended arrears of revenue to be collected.

7. The Committee is further of the opinion that wider publicity than at present should be given to the proposed valuation to enable objections to be recorded and considered before final orders are passed. It therefore recommends that a provisional annewari valuation should be published by the Collector for every village in which such valuation is made at least one month before the date fixed for the collection of the first instalment of the assessment, kharif or rabi, as the case may be. This valuation should be published in the taluka kacheri and also in the chawdi or school of every village concerned, or, where there is neither chawdi nor school, in some other conspicuous place. Any objection against the valuation should be made within 15 days from the date of publication in the taluka kacheri and all objections submitted to the Collector, whether in person or by petition, should be taken into account by him before he passes final orders. The Committee does not think it necessary to publish the provisional valuation in the Taluka Local Board office as well, but recommends that a copy should be supplied by the Collector to any Taluka Local Board applying for one.

8. As regards the method of valuation the Committee does not think it possible to lay down any formal directions for the guidance of the village committee, as it recognises that the non-official members of such committee will rarely be in a position to apply any technical formulæ but must base their valuation almost entirely upon their practical experience. At the same time the Committee thinks that it would be advantageous to lay down certain principles for the guidance of the several officials responsible for the annewari valuation. It has therefore decided to recommend to Government the acceptance of the joint proposals made by the Commissioners, including the Settlement Commissioner and the Director of Agriculture, in their letter to Government No. C.N.R.—102 dated 20th December 1923 in which letter it was suggested that the procedure for ascertaining the valuation of any particular crop should be :—

(a) To ascertain the average classification value of the total area of land in a village under that crop, which can easily be found by comparing the average acre assessment of that land with the maximum rate ;

(b) To work out from the taluka table the number of pounds in a 12 anna crop or land of that classification.

Note.—The tables are made for 12 anna soil. Therefore if the average classification value is 6 annas and the table shows 1,500 lbs. as the normal 12 anna crop, then the normal crop for the soil in that village would be 750 lbs. per acre. In cases in which the average classification value works out to more than 12 annas the yield in pounds for lands of such classification can be worked out from the figures in the taluka tables. Thus if the average classification value is, say, 15 annas and the table shows 1,500 lbs. as the normal 12 anna crop, then the normal crop for the 15 anna soil should be taken as 1,875 lbs. per acre ; and

(c) To make local inquiry and observation while the crops are still standing and record a definite opinion as to the average acre outturn in the village of the particular crop under consideration, which opinion must be based on his own estimate of the actual outturn on various fields which he has himself seen or tested.

9. The Committee is of opinion that the present number of rain gauges per taluka is insufficient for the purpose of estimating the rainfall in each group of villages. It therefore recommends that the number be substantially increased so that each homogeneous tract in a taluka should possess its own gauge.

10. The question of crop experiments is another matter to which the Committee has given close attention. It understands that a scheme is being prepared for the creation of a special establishment of expert agricultural officers for the purpose of—

(a) examining and analysing the official records of crop experiments in order to co-relate the information contained therein with the information regarding the nature of the season in which the experiments were made and the classification value of the soil ; and

(b) making a series of fresh experiments in order to ascertain the standard crop in fairly good year on land of each classification value.

To this scheme the Committee gives its unqualified and unanimous support in the belief that the figures of output that would be obtained by the proposed examination and analysis would serve as a most valuable check on the present official statistics of standard output, and that if the results of the new crop experiments suggested were compared with the Agricultural Department's tables of the yield in lbs. per acre, they would in course of time enable Government to verify the anna valuations of their revenue officers.

11. Finally the Committee recommends that the agricultural standards in the Agricultural Department should be re-investigated with a view to revision over the whole Presidency, especially in precarious tracts.

Minute of dissent by Mr. H. L. Painter

Explanatory Note regarding my desire to exclude from the Report, paragraph 7.

I fail to see that this recommendation will have the effect of producing the wider publicity which is its avowed object ; sufficient publicity is already provided for in paragraph 6 (ix). Apart from this there will be two valuations, viz., the Mamlatdar's and the Collector's provisional, which may well be conflicting, since the latter would not, apparently, be based on the former. Further, so early a provisional valuation of the kind contemplated could only be of the roughest possible type—far removed from the accuracy which these recommendations aim at—and would in practice only be adhered to by chance.

Explanatory note regarding my desire to exclude from the Report the matter in paragraph 8 beginning with "At the same time....." and ending with "himself seen or tested."

1. (a) can be done.—Having done it the officer will know that the land under a particular crop in a particular village bears an average classification value of so many bhag annas.

2. (b) can be done.—By doing it the officer will deduce that the outturn of the crop referred to in (a) would be so many pounds per acre if that crop were a normal (or 12 anna) crop.

3. (c) is the current practice, with "outturn" expressed in pounds per acre instead of in so many annas as against a 12 anna "normal", the latter being converted into terms of the former by reference to the table used in (b).

4. Thus (a) and (b) lead to one thing, and (c) leads to another thing. The first thing is a statistical fact; the second is, as it always has been, an estimate, based on observations. To call the arithmetical exercise leading to the first together with the observations leading to the second "a procedure" is absurd because there is no concatenation whatever between them; the mere lumping of them together cannot produce it.

5. The correctness of the estimate (c) will not be more capable than the old anna estimate of immediate verification by reason of it being expressed in pounds per acre instead of in annas, since the actual outturn in pounds of the whole crop can never be known.

(The accuracy of an estimate could be checked by crop experiments conducted locally in the same season. But no such experiments are contemplated in the "procedure", and rightly so, since in any case the result of the experiments and the consequent justification (or otherwise) of the estimate would come months after the practical result of the acceptance of the estimate, viz., the Collector's orders regarding collection of Land Revenue, had been given effect to.)

6. The result of this proposed "procedure" thus leaves us precisely as we were; all we have done is to introduce a lot of abstract symbols and to emerge from our intricate equation with the discovery that  $X=X$ !

Commissioner, N. D.

Minutes of dissent by the Thakor Saheb of Amod

I may add that the proposals should be considered experimental ones. Let us see how it works and by experience the matter will be settled in its own way. Whatever the annewari is estimated, it is after all an estimation made by ordinary people and it could not be exactly what is the desire of the mover. Until there is a share system no exact valuation and estimation could be made; and I do not think that the present system is absolutely bad.

I may request that in inami and talukdari villages care should be taken that the proprietors may not find causes for complaints in fixing the annewari whenever such need arises.

NAHARSINGHJI,

Thakor of Amod.

30th December 1925.

I have gone through the report and I am sorry to express my disapproval, for matter would be worse from bad. To form a committee of Circle Inspector and a few agriculturists will not serve the purpose with any advantage, but on the contrary chances are that more mischiefs will be played to the disadvantage both to Government and the public.

I think if an advisory committee may be constituted of, from agriculturists and inamdars headed by the Mamlatdar, it will serve the purpose alright. If the committee comes to unanimous conclusion, the matter will be settled or in case any disagreement arises the matter will be finally settled by sub-divisional officer and the Collector after mutual consideration. Moreover, it will be advisable to see that the final order of the Collector is issued 15 clear days before the date of instalment, and the tenants may be given 15 clear days, before the final order of the Collector, to advance their grievances if there may be any.

COTTON CROP, DHAMATWAN : INSPECTION BY MAMLATDAR

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Mamlatdar of South Daskroi Taluka visited Dhamatwan a village of that taluka on the 21st January 1927 and stayed in the village from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. ;

(b) whether the people of the said village requested the Mamlatdar to inspect the damage done by frost to the cotton crop in the middle of January 1927 ;

(c) whether the Mamlatdar did not pay any heed to the request of the people and left the village without making inspection of the damage done to the cotton crop ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) The Mamlatdar visited the village on the day mentioned in connection with his Record of Rights work, and inspected the crops on his way.

(b) and (c) No such request was made to him at the time. Subsequently learning that there were complaints that the crops had been damaged by frost he re-visited the village, and inspected the affected area.

42. (1) A member of the Syndicate who intends to move that the rights conferred on any College by affiliation be withdrawn in whole or in part, or modified, shall give notice of his motion and shall state in writing the grounds on which the motion is made.

(2) Before taking the said motion into consideration, the Syndicate shall send a copy of the notice and written statement mentioned in sub-section (1) to the Principal concerned, together with an intimation that any representation in writing submitted within a period specified in such intimation on behalf of the College will be considered by the Syndicate :

Provided that the period so specified may, if necessary, be extended by the Syndicate.

(3) On receipt of the representation or on expiration of the period referred to in sub-section (2), the Syndicate, after considering the notice of motion, statement and representation and after such inspection by any competent person authorized by the Syndicate in this behalf, and such further inquiry as may appear to them to be necessary, and after consulting the Academic Council, shall make a report to the Senate.

(4) On receipt of the report under sub-section (3), the Senate shall, after such further inquiry (if any) as may appear to them to be necessary, record their opinion in the matter.

(5) The Registrar shall submit the proposal and all proceedings, if any, of the Academic Council, the Syndicate and Senate relating thereto to the Government, who, after such further inquiry (if any) as may appear to them to be necessary, shall make such order as the circumstances may, in their opinion, require.

(6) Where by an order made under sub-section (5) the rights conferred by affiliation are withdrawn, in whole or in part, or modified the grounds for such withdrawal or modification shall be stated in the order.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Sir, I move :

" In section 42, drop all the words occurring between the word ' necessary ' in sub-section (4) and the word ' shall ' in sub-section (5). "

Here again the power intended to be given to the senate is going to be taken away by Government. The honourable member for the University styled me as the champion of lost causes. Certainly the cause of truth will be lost when there is hypocrisy, dissimulation and untruth in this frail world. When the most cultured product of the university brazen facedly says that he is not ashamed to eat his own words the cause of truth may be lost. When those who posed themselves as congressmen, swarajists, and took up the vow of opposing Government in the sacred name of the Congress before their electorates support Government throughout and eat away their words, the cause of truth may be lost. When the responsivists whose creed it is to support Government only in reasonable matters, support Government in season and out of season, the cause of truth may be lost.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : On a point of order. He is discussing matters which were stated before the electorate. This is not an election campaign, nor an election platform.

Mr. A. D. SHETH : Has the honourable member taken up the Congress creed or responsivist creed ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Will the honourable member proceed ?

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : The cause of truth may be lost but.....(Interruption).

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : The honourable member fought at the time of the first reading that the power of disaffiliation and affiliation should vest in the senate. He has now abandoned the cause of the university and says that he has made some compromise. I should like to know what something he got for the university by making the compromise. In fact Government have retained every power and the compromise which he says he has made is a one-sided one. They will nominate their vice-chancellor.....

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : On a point of order. Is the honourable member in order in referring to a debate which was concluded yesterday ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The honourable member has to argue out the point he has placed before the House. (Honourable Members : Hear, hear.) For that purpose he may digress to some reasonable extent.

Mr. H. HAMILL : Sir, I rise to a point of order. The honourable member is proposing to delete certain words " occurring between the word " necessary " in sub-clause (4) and the word " shall " in sub-clause (5)". The word " shall " occurs twice in sub-clause (5). It is not quite clear which ' shall ' he refers to.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I understood he referred to the first " shall " : I do not know which " shall " he means.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : I want all the words occurring between " necessary " in sub-clause (4) and the word " shall " in line 45 to be dropped.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Has the honourable member Mr. Hamill understood which " shall " is referred to ? All words from the word " necessary " in sub-clause (4) to the word " shall " in sub-clause (5) are to be dropped. The word " shall " referred to in the amendment is the word " shall " occurring in line 45 of sub-clause (5).

Mr. H. HAMILL : Do I understand that some one is going to move an amendment to make the honourable member's amendment perfectly clear, because as it stands it means nothing.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : When the honourable member tells us that he refers to the second " shall " and not the first, we have to accept it.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : What I contend is that the Senate is competent to pass such orders as are necessary and there should be no necessity of referring the matter to Government. For this the honourable member for the University fought at the time of the first reading : at that time he said that the powers of affiliation and disaffiliation which rested with the Senate under the old Act should be given back to the Senate. But yesterday he supported the amendment which took away the power of affiliation from the Senate. What I mean to say is that for the moment, owing to hypocrisy and dissimulation the cause of truth may not triumph, but I am sure the cause of truth will ultimately triumph.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Question proposed :

In clause 42, drop all the words occurring between the word ' necessary ' in sub-clause (4) and the word ' shall ' in sub-clause (5), line 45.

Mr. H. HAMILL : Sir, I rise to oppose the amendment. The report of the select committee was inconsistent : it gave the power of disaffiliation to Government but handed over the power of affiliation to the University. Yesterday the Council restored the power of affiliation to Government, and it would be inconsistent if the power of disaffiliation is now transferred to the University. I therefore submit that the Council should throw out the amendment.

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR (East Khandesh District) : Sir, this is an amendment to clause 42 which my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan has brought forward. Before dealing with the merits of his amendment, he attacked other political parties—I do not know with what decorum. He says that people belonging to other political groups are prompted by motives of hypocrisy. Sir, truth is not the monopoly of my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan. As he referred incidentally to the action of the Responsivists, I take this opportunity to give a reply to him. The Responsivists came to this Council with a programme to support Government where it was desirable to do so, and to oppose Government in other respects. In whatever the Responsivists have done with regard to the University Bill, I do not think they have gone against their creed. The honourable member Mr. Swaminarayan does not belong to the Responsivist party, and without understanding them I think he should not have referred to this point. But I may tell him that whatever we have done during the course of this debate on the University Bill has been quite consistent with our creed. We come here not to oppose Government on each and every occasion, but to use our discretion. Therefore we supported certain amendments and opposed others in order that the bill may not be wrecked.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The whole House knows it.

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR : I want to tell him that the Responsivists supported the Government on various occasions in order that the bill may not be wrecked and distorted. I am opposed to the amendment proposed by my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Sir, I have nothing to reply. .

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I have nothing to add to what the honourable member Principal Hamill has said.

Question put and lost.

Clause 42 ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 43 (Honorary Fellows) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 44 (Syndicate first to make the Statutes, Ordinances and Regulations) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 45 (Elected and nominated Fellows to retire by rotation) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 46 (Elected members of the Syndicate to retire by rotation) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 47 (Interpretation in case of doubt) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 48 (Elections to be by proportional representation) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 49 (Proceedings not invalidated by vacancy) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 50 (Pension or Provident Fund) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 51 (Passing of property and rights to the university as reconstituted) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 52 (Repeal) ordered to stand part of the bill.

The Schedule ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 3 (Interpretation) ordered to stand part of the bill.

Clause 4 (Incorporation and powers of the university) ordered to stand part of the bill.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The question is that clause 5 stands part of the bill.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Sir, with reference to this clause and particularly sub-clauses (4) and (5) Government have decided to put themselves in communication with the Government of India and I would therefore request that this clause may be held over for the February-March session.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED (Hyderabad District) : I would urge that this request of the Honourable Minister be not granted. This is an important matter and the House has discussed the bill very fully in this sessions. It is a very unusual step that the Honourable Minister should ask at the time of the second reading that some clauses should be kept over for the next session of the Council. This is a bill, Sir, in which as the House is aware compromises have taken place behind the back of this House, and I would request that our feelings should be taken into consideration and the Honourable Minister's request be refused.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I do not know on what the Honourable Minister relies for the motion he makes. Is it 3 or 4 of Chapter IV ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : It will be clauses 3 and 4 of Standing Order IV.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Under clause 4 (1) no further discussion should be allowed and I will now put the question to the House.

Question put and carried.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Clause 7.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The honourable member Dr. Ambedkar's amendments to clauses 3 and 7 were held over till the decision of the House on the amendment to clauses 25. Those amendments have fallen through and consequently the amendments to clauses 3 and 7 must also fall through.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The situation is rather difficult. I would have at once said that as the honourable member Dr. Ambedkar being absent his amendment could not be considered. But before that the Honourable Minister asked that the bill be postponed for the consideration of clause 5 till the next sessions and that was put to the House and the bill has been postponed. So, I will not put clause 7 at this stage.

BILL No. II OF 1927 (A BILL TO AMEND THE BOMBAY LAND REVENUE CODE, 1879).

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Bill No. II of 1927 (A Bill to amend the Bombay Land Revenue Code, 1879)—First reading.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Government do not intend to proceed with the bill.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMED : May I ask the Honourable the Leader of the House if there is any other bill which Government do not wish to take up ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I think honourable members have already been informed by the Secretary what bills Government do not propose to take up.

BILL No. XVI OF 1927 (A BILL TO PREVENT THE EXCESSIVE SUB-DIVISION OF AGRICULTURAL LAND AND TO PROMOTE THE CONSOLIDATION OF SUCH LAND).

Motion for first reading

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I introduce the bill.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The bill is introduced.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I beg to move the first reading of the Small Holdings *Bill, Bill No. XVI of 1927....

First reading

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL : Mr. President : I rise to a point of order. My point of order is that this bill wants to affect the law of inheritance and that is a matter within the cognizance of the Assembly. Again it would affect the Transfer of Property Act. That is also the function of the Assembly. The Bombay Government has no power whatsoever to interfere with the provisions of the law of inheritance or the provisions of the transfer of property. Therefore this Council is not competent to deal with this question.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : In accordance with the procedure, as I remember, followed in the time of my predecessor, leave to introduce need not be asked for a bill which is published. But the honourable member rises and introduces the bill and takes his seat, and I declare that the bill is introduced, and then a statement may be made. As regards the point of order, which I think is raised a little too early,—I thought the honourable member would wait for the statement to be finished,—I find in the preamble, if the honourable member will read, the following:—

“ And whereas the previous sanction of the Governor General required by section 80A of the Government of India Act and the previous sanction of the Governor required by section 80C of the said Act have been obtained for the passing of this Act ,”

Well, the Governor General's sanction has been obtained.

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL : My point is this, Mr. President, that if you want to interfere with the rights of inheritance or provisions of the Transfer of Property Act, it is not the Governor General only that can do it, but it is the right of the Assembly, the Central Legislature. Simply because a sanction may be given under the rules by the Governor General, that is not enough.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Would the honourable member rely upon something for that statement, so that I may look at any section or law ?

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL : Of course, I will do it. But before I do it, I think that it is quite clear as day light.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : No ; it is not clear to me until the honourable member relies upon any section of the Government of India Act.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : I would refer my honourable friend, Sir, to section 80A, sub-clause (f), at page 57 of the Council Manual.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Has the honourable member seen the provision in that sub-clause ?

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL : I am just seeing it, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : To save time, I will read it. It says :

"The local legislature of any province may not, without the previous sanction of the Governor General, make or take into consideration any law—regulating any provincial subject which has been declared by rules under this Act to be, either in whole or in part, subject to legislation by the Indian legislature, in respect of any matter to which such declaration applies : " and the Governor General's sanction has been obtained. The Honourable the Leader of the House will, therefore, proceed with his remarks.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : As the bill is divided into two parts which bear close relation to one another, and are yet independent in a way, we have given it the generic title of Small Holdings Bill, although the object is to prevent further sub-division and fragmentation beyond a limit to be prescribed and consolidation, by combination, of small fragmented holdings.

I will bespeak the careful attention of the House not only because the subject is important but also because the drafting of the bill has been a most difficult matter and has taxed the ingenuity and resources of the best legal and revenue officers that we possess. The subject is important because I do not believe that any other single item of agricultural economics is responsible to anything like the same degree for the indebtedness and impoverishment of the ryot and the general miserable condition of cultivation.

The drafting has been most difficult because we have attempted to provide a solution which does not contravene the accepted law of inheritance as at present applied, both because a revolutionary change in the law of inheritance would scarcely be acceptable to the people, and also because it is difficult to foresee what would be the effect in the distant future of the grave social changes that would otherwise have to be effected.

Among the land systems prevalent in this country it is principally in the two great presidencies in the south that the small landholder has been assured of his right of occupancy under what has been called the rayatwari tenure. He holds the land direct from the State. He pays the revenue not to any middleman or a zamindar but to the State ; and he can only be deprived of his right of ownership if he makes default in the payment of assessment which is moderate as compared with the rent charged by the landlord to the tenant being from one-half to one-sixth of the latter. I am a believer in the small holder ; in the strength and security of a sturdy yeomanry consisting of small farmers probably lies the best guarantee of the most profitable treatment of the soil. The rayatwari system may suffer perhaps from lack of initiative, the desire and the capacity of taking risks in cultivation and of launching out into new methods which involve capital and probably the use of machinery : qualities of daring one can reasonably associate with the big landholder.

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

Where enlightened zamindars are to be found who can both afford and are anxious to introduce into their estates big scale methods of cultivation, the propagandist work of the research officer and of the agricultural department becomes considerably simplified ; but the danger is that zamindars tend to neglect their estates, and absentee landlordism is added to the disabilities common to an oppressed tenantry, oftentimes tenantry-at-will, living at the mercy of the zamindar out of whom all spirit of enterprise has been squeezed out. Even in zamindari tracts, we know from the attempts made in the Punjab and the United Provinces, it has been found necessary to deal with the problem of excessive sub-division. How much more acute does the problem become in rayatwari tracts where the cultivator instead of being the proud possessor of and the skilful operator upon a solid compact piece of land which he can constantly improve and hand down as the priceless possession of his descendants, is a broken man, greatly indebted to an exacting sowkar, wasting his time between small fragments lying distances apart and unable to live upon his holding or to maintain himself and his family upon it ? Where such a state supervenes, as it is rapidly overtaking many parts of this presidency, which will be seen from the examples quoted later, all the advantages of peasant proprietorship are lost and it becomes difficult to realise the well known saying of Arthur Young that the magic of property turns sand into gold.

The Bombay system was based on this fundamental idea and in addition to giving security of tenure, a specific guarantee is given under the Act against any increase of assessment due to improvements made by the cultivator. The sentiment of attachment to the soil is wholly commendable since it operates to prevent the alienation of the land, but it can only do so where the plot of land is at least of reasonable size to allow of profitable cultivation. Owing, however, to excessive divisions from generation to generation, economics prove too strong for the small peasant, progress in the matter of the improvement of land is blocked, cultivation and crops deteriorate, the standard of sustenance is steadily lowered and the poor man is in the long run compelled to abandon the soil and to descend to the position of a mere wandering labourer in his own village or outside. The bill is calculated to arrest the inevitable decay. Let it be clearly understood that it is no attempt to make holdings of enormous size or to create a class of powerful zamindars, or an insidious design to provide cheap labour to factories or that its effect will be to throw upon this Presidency, in the existing state of unemployment, a number of people who would not know where to turn. The interests of agriculturists and they alone have been my guide in making these proposals.

There are no two opinions as to the magnitude of the evil. The most laissez faire advocate of inaction admits that a remedy must be found. That a stage has been reached when further delay is dangerous will be seen from the following figures for the Bombay Presidency excluding Sind. I quote them because they are of considerable importance. I have here figures dealing with each division for the three years 1904-05, 1916-17 and 1921-22, which are the latest figures available. They are divided into holdings under and up to five acres, over five and up to 25 acres, over 25 and up to 100 acres, over 100 and up to 500 acres, and over 500 acres.

(* I will point out that a reasonable comparison cannot be made between 1904 and 1916 because of some changes in the method of collecting those figures, but a correct comparison is possible between 1916-17 and 1921-22 as the figures are on the same basis. I am now merely giving the figures as they appear in the printed reports of Government).

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

	S. D.	1904-05	326
		1916-17	406
		1921-22	289
Total holdings in all three divisions in ..	1921-22	20,37,500

I now give the figures* of occupied land. They are as under :—

		Acres
In 1904-05	..	3,25,91,552
1921-22	..	3,26,53,443

* These figures are for all the three divisions of the Bombay Presidency and do not include Sind.

Statistics of holdings of different sizes in the presidency used to be given till 1902-03 in Jamabandi reports. The figures for 1903-04 and 1904-05 are given in appendix V of the Land Revenue Administration Report. After 1905 the returns were made decennial, and the figures for only 1916-17 are available. The returns were again made quinquennial, and the last year for which figures are available is 1921-22. Unfortunately, the forms of returns have undergone changes, and comparison with earlier years therefore not accurate. But comparison between 1916-17 and 1921-1922 can safely be made, as the figures are on the same basis. I am excluding Sind, as it is not proposed to apply the bill at present to this tract of extensive areas.

A statistician would draw many inferences from this statement. In all divisions, as was to be expected, the holdings up to and under 5 acres have gone up in the 5 years 1916-21. The process goes on at a quicker pace where the land is more valuable and cultivation intensive. There is an increase of so many as 20,000 holdings in the Northern Division, or 10 per cent., under 3 per cent. in the Central Division, and 5 per cent. in the Southern Division. In the group over 5 and up to 25 acres, Gujarat shows a small decrease, while both the other divisions show an increase leading to the conclusion that in the Northern Division the holdings up to 5 acres have gained at the expense of the next division up to 25 acres. This conclusion is supported by the loss of 6,000 and 4,300 holdings, respectively, in the Central Division and Southern Division against only 500 in the Northern Division in the latter group. One feature that might be considered curious is the increase in the large estates exceeding 500 acres. The explanation is that, in the earlier years, some large holders who had holdings in several villages and even several talukas were treated as small separate holders, and only recently, that is from 1921 onwards, have they been added together and shown as one holder in each case.

As the total occupied assessed area of land in the presidency excluding Sind has only risen from 3,25,91,552 acres in 1904-05 to 3,26,95,610 acres in 1925-26, the increase in the number of holdings must have been accompanied by a corresponding reduction in size. It must be remembered that these statistics are for holdings only, and they take no account of fragmentation that goes on unchecked doing the greatest harm.

Mr. V. N. JOG : On a point of information, are these holdings taken according to the different owners or the different lands ? An owner may have one holding in one place and another in another place ; Government will give it as one holding.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I have explained that, as in the case of the bigger holdings, they are now shown as one holder.

Mr. V. N. JOG : That is in the revenue record ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Yes.

The total number of entries or parcels surveyed up to date is about 95,81,000. There are still portions of Pcona, Satara, and practically the whole district of Kanara yet to be done. The total will very likely be 1,20,00,000 parcels which gives an average of 6 sub-divisions to a holding.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Is that the average ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : That is how I have worked it out from these figures.

The disconcerting rate at which the sub-divisions are increasing in the Deccan will be clear if we examine the figures in one district. In Ahmednagar the survey was completed in 1921, and there were 3,47,316 parcels. Within 6 years that number has increased by the large figure of 42,336, or by 12·15 per cent. That is the increase in fragmentation.

Dr. Mann, in his study of Jategaon Budruk, finds that on an average there are four plots to a holding ; and in his study of Pimble Soudagar he worked out that there were 718 separate plots divided between 156 holders. Specific instances are innumerable, but perhaps a few illustrative ones will suffice. Survey number 67 of the village of Salel in the Malwan taluka measures 3 acres and 35½ gunthas, and is divided into 49 hissas. Hissa No. 28 measures ½ guntha and No. 27 one-fourth guntha.

The following example from the same taluka illustrates the absurd extent of fragmentation and sub-division. Survey number 29 of Tondvali has an area of 9 acres and 14 gunthas, and is divided into 75 hissas among 18 holders. Sometimes the size dwindles to that of this table.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN : Is that jirayat or bagayat land ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : It is jirayat.

An enquiry committee appointed by the Gujarat branch of the Bombay Co-operative Institute found the following conditions in the Fardi taluka.

Village Senwada ; 11 plots ranging from 1 guntha making up 2 acres and 26 gunthas. Village Umarsadi ; 12 plots ranging from 3 gunthas making up 2 acres and 30 gunthas. Village Vatar ; 27 plots ranging from 1 guntha, comprising 3 acres and 31 gunthas.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Is that bagayat land ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : No. The Committee state that they took special care to look into the records of every village they visited. The state of affairs illustrated by the examples given above was noted in all the villages without exception. They found that the people are conscious of this very serious evil, but are at a loss to find a way out of it. They further state that in most cases they found that the smaller plots are allowed to lie fallow for years together.

The THAKOR OF KLRWADA : Will the Honourable Member state what is the average small holding in Gujarat in the districts of Broach, Kaira and Ahmedabad, as compared with the Deccan ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I have only given the figures up to 5 acres. I am afraid I have not worked out anything lower than that. It is clear that the size of the holding in Gujarat is considerably smaller than that in the Deccan or that in the Southern Division. The latest figures received from Satara.....

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : Is there any land left fallow in the Satara District ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I cannot tell you. It is very difficult to find that out. I got this from the detailed enquiry of Pardi Taluka made by the Co-operative Institute and published.

The latest figures received from Satara show that in seven villages there are 4,483 survey numbers, and that out of these only 1,343 are entire survey numbers. The number of survey numbers consisting of pô-t-hissas is 3,130. This number is divided into as many as 24,128 pô-t-hissas and of these over 17,000 are below one acre.

It is unnecessary to multiply examples or to labour the point of the existence of the evil, which has long been admitted. The real need is the discovery of a solution which will not be barred by the customs of inheritance.

I will now briefly refer to the disadvantages of allowing the present practice to continue and show how it militates against profitable cultivation, leaving aside the question of the maintenance of a family or of economic holdings. (An Honourable Member : How do you differentiate that). It is difficult to define accurately these two terms but the distinction is clear. Economic holding has been defined in various books on agriculture in India as a holding which will maintain the cultivator and his family or a holding which can be cultivated with a pair of bullocks. Holding for profitable cultivation is very considerably smaller than economic holding. As these terms are indefinite a third term, which is also I am afraid indefinite, has been invented in the Punjab. Mr. Darling of the Punjab would prefer to call it a family holding rather than an economic holding or holding for profitable cultivation. I do not think that gives more accuracy. (An Honourable Member : Then this deals with profitable holding ?) It has already been provided for in the section. (An Honourable Member : Section 27 deals with economic holding only. If it is not so, will he be pleased to make it clear ?) We do not propose that a limit should be fixed which will be suitable for an economic holding.....(An Honourable Member : What is the standard unit ?) The standard unit will be according to family holding or profitable holding which are about the same thing.

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

I shall now deal with the disadvantages of allowing the present system to continue. It impoverishes both the land and the owner. Most of them have been summed up in the statement of objects and reasons. In the main it may be stated that the greatest industry in the country is groaning under the incubus of excessive division and fractionalisation, in spite of the efforts of the Agricultural Department and all the hereditary skill of the ryot which, as Dr. Voelcker has said, is scarcely surpassed in other parts of the world. The economic yearly loss to the country on account of the diminution of production due to this single cause must be very large indeed, must lead to the lowering of the standard of life (as pointed out by Professor Stanley Jevons in his study of the question in the United Provinces) and to an increase in under-employment and unemployment in the villages. In every industry the instrument of production must be constantly improved and kept up-to-date. Efficiency of management is ensured by the ruthless economic law which weeds out all failures. It is the other way about in our present day agriculture. The farm which should be a growing unit, constantly and permanently developed by the labour of the cultivator, is unfortunately torn up at every generation into tiny bits and the farmer who should be mobile and who should move to other occupations, if farming does not suit him, or he is found incompetent for it, is on the contrary rooted to the soil, plying his uneconomic trade to eke out a miserable existence. The double handicap is too much for any industry to bear.

The evil is not peculiar to this country alone. In all countries, both in the East and the West, where the laws of succession entitle the heirs to divide property equally similar disabilities have been felt; and in many countries steps have been taken to counteract them by legislation.

A detailed account will be found in Appendix II to Keatinge's book "Agricultural Progress in Western India." From the figures given in that appendix it will be seen that the evil has not perhaps reached the same extent elsewhere as is to be found here. That is, of course, natural in an old country and one whose population is constantly increasing at a rapid rate. Great stress has been laid on the statutes of those countries on re-stripping and consolidation; and in several the limit of a minimum holding has been fixed or the estates declared impartitionable. The work on this problem in Western countries was started many decades ago and is still going on which shows that we are not a day too soon in attempting to tackle the problem here now. The figures quoted in Mr. Keatinge's book relate up to the year 1914 only. It would perhaps be interesting to quote a few examples to show that the process of improvement in the direction in which we are aiming is still on the upward move in the western countries since 1914.

In Germany, the law encourages the practice among the peasants of succession to undivided properties by the creation of a preferred heir and provides for the compensation of other members of the joint family according to the margin of agricultural profits and not according to the price at which land can be sold. (Interruption). The price of land is much higher than the margin of profit usually justifies.

In most parts of Austria it is usual for the farm to pass to a single heir without any division of property and for a settlement to be made with the co-heirs by an indemnity in the form of a sum of money or mortgage.

In Denmark the reconstituted State small holdings can be sold but they cannot be sub-divided ; but legally the owner can determine by his will which child shall succeed, the value at which the farm is to be taken over and the other children compensated. To prevent over-burdening of the new farmer, the valuation may be below the price at which the farm could be sold. If the parent dies without disposing of the succession, either by will or otherwise, the State carries through a transference on the same principles. The law forbids the reduction of the area of a peasant farm below a certain taxable value. No land may be less than  $2\frac{1}{2}$  acres and a fine up to 2,000 Kroner may be imposed for its breach.

According to the Russian Agrarian Code of 1922, there is power to issue compulsory order for limiting the excessive sub-division of farms.

In Norway the principle of undivided transfer is recognised and the co-heirs are excluded from a share of the land.

The common law of Bavaria prescribes that the proprietor is bound to bequeath a certain proportion of his property to be divided in equal shares amongst all his children. If the property required by law consists of a house or land, the eldest son may retain the whole portion himself on indemnifying the other heirs for their shares in it by amicable agreement. If no arrangement can be arrived at, the portion of the property must be sold, and the proceeds divided equally.

The very great importance which is attached to this question in Japan can be seen from the fact that the State itself contributes largely to the expenscs of bringing about consolidation and in 1909 the sum spent by the State under this head was reported to have exceeded £25,000, a sum which is said to have constituted one-fourth of the total expenses connected with agricultural administration for the year in that country. We are also told that the reduction in the cost of labour caused by consolidation may be put at 20 per cent. and the increase in the output of crops at 20 per cent.

With reference to France, Mr. Darling says that the 87 monographs of the French enquiry suggest that the French peasant is not prepared to accept the low standard of living and of running into debt, which are the concomitants of small holdings. He either limits his family or buys more land, or, if he cannot buy, he goes out as a labourer and emigrates. That is why in France such holdings have increased in area rather than in number.

I have said that the necessity of tackling this problem has been recognised in this country for many years. In the appendices to the

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

Famine Commission Report of 1880 will be found a paper in which Sir Charles Elliot and Sir Edward Buck state :

"It is an evil from an agricultural point of view that the land of each holder should be broken up and separated (for, even if the proprietor does not cultivate himself, he has to give his tenant broken holdings) and it would be a great advantage to distribute cultivators' holdings as far as possible by blocks."

The evil of scattered holdings in India, and the desirability of employing official agency to consolidate such holdings, was urged by Raja Pyari Mohan Mukerjee in his speech at Calcutta on the occasion of the opening ceremony of the Swadeshi Mela in September 1912. He said : "The most formidable obstacle in the way of agricultural reform is the smallness of ryotty holdings" and added that the evil had been remedied in Japan by converting all small holdings into compact farms by exchange, addition and deduction of lands which were controlled by an Agricultural Bureau appointed by the State.

The following resolution was passed by the Board of Agriculture—the All-India Board—in December 1917 :

"That this meeting of the Board of Agriculture recognizes that in many parts of India the extreme and increasing sub-division of the land and scattered character of the holdings together form a very serious impediment to agricultural progress and to the adoption of agricultural improvements and wishes to suggest that the attention of local Governments be called to the matter. It recommends that the question be closely investigated and experiments made in each provincial area in consultation with the Registrar of Co-operative Societies with a view to the adoption of such measures as seem best adapted to meet the special local circumstances and to the introduction of such legislation as may be necessary."

Much earlier, in this Presidency, the problem was present to the mind of the framers of the joint report on which the Bombay Land Revenue Code is based. In paragraph 36 of their review, Government stated :

"If fields are to be permitted to be split up without limit, and the occupant of every fractional share recognised as holding direct from Government, the inevitable results will be the ultimate sub-division of the whole land into very minute occupancies, accompanied by the impoverishment of the whole agricultural class."

Section 98 of the Land Revenue Code provides for certain minima for several classes of land in each district; and no estates were to be partitioned beyond certain limits. (Vide Section XIV, Act 1 of 1856, Act IV of 1868 and Land Revenue Code, section 113, now repealed). This, however, only meant that Government did not recognise division of land beyond the fixed minima for the purpose of their record. There was no legal bar to the occupants from actually dividing the land beyond the minima and holding them as separate plots, and the law courts freely recognised such divisions for the purposes of all suits before them. The inevitable result was a wide divergence between the Government records and the actual facts of possession on the land, giving rise to the Poklist Khatedar. The record of rights sought to remedy this state of affairs by recording all separate plots of land in the names of their actual holders and making the latter responsible for the assessment of their lands. Every sub-division of land, however small, is now being separately measured, assessed and mapped as a separate hissa and is fully recognised in the land records.

Legislation on this important question has so far been shirked because of the apprehensions that undue interference with the social customs of the people will be involved and consequently no support would be found to any such measure from the public. But it would be interesting to see what has been the attitude of non-official members on the several occasions on which this question was discussed in the shape of resolutions in the pre-Reform Councils. In the March session of the Legislative Council of 1916, Dewan Bahadur Godbole moved a resolution on the subject suggesting the creation of "impartible holdings"; and although the succession to these holdings was to be governed by the law of primogeniture, 16 non-officials voted for the resolution and 12 against it. In 1918, the Dewan Bahadur proposed another resolution asking for the appointment of a committee, making recommendations (among other matters) about the creation of impartible economic holdings, prohibiting the partition according to Hindu, Muhammadan and other laws of succession beyond the limit of economic holdings. Of the non-officials 12 voted for it and 8 against it. Both those resolutions were lost. In 1920, the Dewan Bahadur, with admirable persistence, brought forward the resolution again, in which though there were certain variations, the proposals were the same. The resolution met with a similar fate, although of the non-officials 12 voted for and 10 against.

Mr. Keatinge, the Director of Agriculture, had himself prepared a bill. Government did not wish to adopt it as their own measure, but permitted Mr. Keatinge to introduce it as a private bill, which, however, for various reasons never came up before the Council. In one direction it did not go far enough, and in another it went too far. Being entirely of a permissive nature, it did not go far enough. By the proposal to create impartible estates governed by the law of primogeniture it went too far in interfering with the laws of succession of all communities which favour equal inheritance.

In Belgaum in 1922 I addressed a Conference of Agriculturists and co-operative societies adumbrating proposals on the lines of this bill which were well received.

In December 1922, the Provincial Co-operative Conference at their meeting in Bombay welcomed action both with regard to consolidation and prevention of sub-division.

The Indian state of Baroda alone has put a law upon their Statute Book, but being of a permissive nature, it has failed to have any effect.

I may add that the bill as now drafted was informally placed before the Royal Commission on Agriculture; and although they naturally could not deal with it, as it was to be presented to the Council, evidence was allowed to be taken and it was almost wholly favourable.

The second part of the bill, that relating to consolidation, although it gives power to a majority to compel the minority, is still permissive in so far as the requirement of a specified majority is concerned; and I fear that, if we are to attain the object that we desire, considerable propaganda will be necessary even after the bill becomes law.

The first part of the bill, if it is passed, will come automatically into operation. We have attempted therein in the first place to prevent any further growth of the evil without making revolutionary change in the laws and customs of the people.

I do not propose to discuss in detail the various provisions of the bill at the first reading. They will no doubt be fully considered in the select committee. I do not intend to take exception to amendments that may be proposed in the select committee or at the second reading on the ground of principle. I recognise that many of the provisions are complicated. From the amendments on the paper it is gratifying to find that they do not touch the principles of the bill.

I might, however, deal with some of the objections that have been mentioned to me. It may be argued that any violent interference with the laws of inheritance and succession is to be deprecated. I have said before that I accept that view ; and we have attempted in these proposals to keep as clear of it as possible. The law of inheritance gives each heir a share, but it is not essential that each and every kind of property should be actually divided by metes and bounds in the case of landed property according to those shares. I would like to invite the attention of my honourable friend opposite who raised a point of order in regard to this point. There are cases in which this cannot be done without deteriorating the value of the property or destroying it so as to make it useless for the purpose for which it is intended. In fact sensible heirs of their own accord allow one or more of them to take the property at a valuation and divide the proceeds among themselves. Thus for example a family house which does not lend itself to partition is often given to one of the heirs. Indeed this principle has already been recognised in law : for section 98 of the Land Revenue Code provides that no survey number should be of less extent than certain minima fixed from time to time for several classes of land in each district. So long ago as 1865, Act I of that year and Act IV of 1868 and section 113 of the Land Revenue Code (now repealed) provided that no estates were to be partitioned beyond a certain limit, as I have stated before. The existing partition Act of 1893 provides that in any suit for partition of immovable property not paying revenue to Government, if it appears to the court by reason of the nature of the property, or of the number of shareholders therein, or of any other special circumstances, that a division cannot be reasonably or conveniently made, the Court has power to direct a sale of the property and the distribution of the proceeds. There is no reason why this salutary provision cannot be extended to agricultural land paying revenue to Government. The promotion of the good of the State as a whole, should be the guiding principle and should take precedence over all private interests.

It will be recognised that the provisions of this bill do not violate the rights of succession so long as they do not actually injure the property. There is no prohibition against ownership in common or against joint enjoyment of the proceeds ; what is prohibited is the actual division by metes and bounds and the cultivation of plots beyond a minimum to be fixed. So long as that is done there is perfect liberty to every one to come to any agreement amongst themselves, but only when they fail to do so and insist on physical partition the law will begin to operate.

One method of private arrangement is interesting. In the village of Undavdi (Bhimthadi Taluka) where survey No. 210 which is irrigated by a well is divided into 48 hissas, one of these hissas is of a very small size of two gunthas and is owned by 8 persons who cultivate it by turns, each getting his turn after seven years. This bill is designed to assist such and similar arrangements by the people themselves and to show the way of achieving their desire as well as their good.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : How many cases are there of such a nature ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : There must be many cases. I have given one instance.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : The present bill does not object to it ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Certainly not.

It may perhaps be argued that the better way would be to adopt a policy of persuasion and of voluntary consolidation as has been done to some extent in the Punjab. Co-operative Societies have been working in the Punjab for this purpose for the last five years and with a staff of 6 Inspectors and 70 sub-inspectors have redistributed 60,000 acres. This is very fair pioneer work ; but the latest opinion of the officers of the Punjab on this question, submitted to the Royal Commission on Agriculture, will show that they too favour legislation in that province.

In reply to question 7 of the questionnaire of the Royal Commission, Mr. Darling says :

“ Consolidation on a large scale can, in my opinion, only be effected by legislation.”

In reply to the same question of the Questionnaire, Mr. Strickland says :

“ Such legislation is desirable and would facilitate the work.”

In reply to question 22 of the questionnaire, in reference to “ Consolidation Societies ” he says :

“ I am inclined to suggest the introduction of compulsion in limited areas, specially those in which the people are advanced and intelligent.”

In a lecture entitled “ Production versus reduction ” which the late Sir Ganga Ram delivered in July 1923, he stressed the point that the excessive partition of holdings is one of the important causes which retards the increase of production. He there quoted with appreciation the work done by Mr. Calvert, Registrar, Co-operative Societies in the Punjab, and he ended up his lecture with the following significant sentence :

“ The excessive fragmentation of holdings is so baneful to the peasantry that it should be put a stop to even by legislation.”

It must be remembered that circumstances in the Punjab were peculiarly favourable and similar attempts to copy the Punjab example in other provinces have not been a success. In November 1922, I requested our then Registrar of Co-operative Societies, Mr. Rothfeld, to see what could be done in the way of voluntary consolidation on the lines of the Punjab. After mentioning the various difficulties which are peculiar to this province, chief among which is that here, as compared with the Punjab, the soil, value and quality of fields vary very greatly within the limits of one village, that our boundary marks system is more complicated, he was of opinion that it was unwise, in the circumstances of this province, to endeavour to consolidate holdings on co-operative basis without some preliminary legislation. In this opinion he was supported by Mr. Strickland, then Deputy Registrar of Co-operative Societies in the Punjab, with whom he had personal consultation.

[Sir Chunilal Mehta].

In the Central Provinces voluntary efforts towards consolidation were made in two or three places. In Chhattisgrah the first attempt was made in 1905; and a further attempt was made in 1912. The work was however very slow and the Registrar of Co-operative Societies gave little hope of anything being done through co-operation.

The official witness Mr. G. P. Burton, I.C.S., Deputy Commissioner, Raipur, was asked the following question by the Chairman of the Royal Commission: "Do you regard it, from your knowledge of these matters, as a feasible proposition, in the face of present conditions, to get this law passed?" Mr. Burton replied: "I think we shall have the support of the local members in the Legislative Council."

Mr. Calvert of co-operative fame in the Punjab stated that they had a party from the Central Provinces which visited the Punjab to see the consolidation work that was being done there. Mr. Chhotelal, Extra Assistant Commissioner, C. P., joint witness with Mr. Burton, replied that in the Punjab they had uniformity of soil, while in the Central Provinces the soil varies from block to block. Mr. Higginbotham, Principal, Agricultural Institute, Allahabad, in reply to question 7 of the questionnaire says: "I believe that sufficient has been learnt in the Punjab about this that legislation could well be enacted to enable a majority in any given district who desired to consolidate their holdings."

The Government of Madras also ordered an attempt to be made to get the ryots to rearrange their holdings voluntarily after seeing what had been done in the Punjab. Dr. Gilbert Slater suggested the prohibition by Government of the indefinite sub-division of holdings.

Khan Bahadur Oosman Saleb Bahadur, Collector of Anantapur, wrote as follows:

"My Sub-Collector is in favour of Government assuming the responsibility of intervention whether the idea is viewed with favour by the public or not. I am inclined to agree with him. It is simply a case of saving the people from themselves. If it has been found legally possible for a court of law to refrain from cutting up house sites in partition cases, both educated opinion and village commonsense may be expected to see the necessity for State interference in a matter of such economic importance. It would be ineffective to wait for the poor ryots to remedy matters by mutual exchange of plots. It is by legislative enactment alone that it can be made effective."

I have specially quoted this Collector at length both because actual attempts were made in Madras and because the Collector is a Mahomedan.

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

Ultimately on the 16th of December 1921 the Government of Madras in their resolution No. 2821 stated :

" In these circumstances the Government accept the conclusions arrived at by the Settlement Officer which are supported by the Board of Revenue and direct that the experiment be discontinued. "

Our own Government directed the Settlement Commissioner, the Registrar of Co-operative Societies, and the Collector, to make similar experiments on voluntary lines in a particular village in the Deccan. . . .

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : What part of the Deccan ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Somewhere near Bara-mati. But they met with the same fate and nothing was achieved.

Professor Stanley Jevons, reviewing this whole question, says :

" It is a peculiar and most important sociological fact that the laws and customs regulating ownership and use of land have a stronger tendency to persist than any other characteristic of society, " and he adds that this is " difficult to alter by any other extraneous action than the force major of the law. "

There remains the apprehension of the expropriation of landed proprietors and the addition to the already large number of the unemployed. There is a great deal of misconception on this point. In one of the articles which appeared in the press, the writer while blessing the draft bill drew attention to the above danger. He assumed, however, that the minimum limit was to be fixed so high that it would result in a large percentage of cultivators being thrown out of employment. I am afraid the provisions of the bill were not properly examined. Standard Unit has been defined as the minimum necessary for profitable cultivation and not for an economic holding which will support the cultivator and his family. Some might be inclined, in the interests of the State, even to go in for the latter which would in the case of dry land probably work drastically. The bill is, however, much more modest and is designed to prevent agriculture from being unprofitable, which is the least that can be done. Indeed, if the present conditions are allowed to go on, the amount of land being limited and the worst lands having been brought under the plough and with the rapid growth of population and various measures of sanitation and public health, resulting in a large excess of births over deaths, the situation will be well nigh impossible. If all the heirs insist on getting a share of the land, there is distinct danger of all of them being squeezed out, in the near future, by the relentless pressure of economic law and turned into landless labourers or forced to go for work permanently, as they are already doing temporarily, to cities which are congested. Under the present bill, I hope, at least some members of the family will be saved from such a fate and will carry on a healthy and profitable occupation in the village.

Dr. Mann found the following state of affairs in his study of a Deccan village in 1918. In 1771 the average size of the holding was 40 acres. By 1818 it had fallen to 17½ acres. From 1820 to 1840 it remained constant at 14 acres and by 1915 it had been reduced to 7 acres. Heaven only knows what it is now. Of the total number of holdings in the village 81 per cent. are now under 10 acres in size and 60 per cent. under 5 acres. Further, these holdings have been fragmented into 729 separate plots, of which 463 are less than one acre and 112 less than one-fourth of an acre.

Mr. Keatinge in his "Agricultural Progress in Western India" comes to the conclusion that the result of a reconstitution of holdings would be more and not less employment on the land; for well-developed land will demand and support more labour. The experience of agriculturists must endorse this statement.

Little can be expected from those who are in reality labourers in cities and merely agriculturists in name. These persons hurry to their lands if they can on the intimation of sufficient rain, scratch the soil and scatter a few seeds without any field work which every crop demands, especially in the Deccan; the critical season of sowing is often lost when it is essential to get the seed in quickly before the moisture dies out of the soil. When the very elements of the preparation of the soil and sowing have to be so grossly neglected, it is useless to expect a reasonable outturn. The low yield per acre in this country as compared with others has often been a target for comment. Apart from variation of climate, moisture, seed and manure, and the use of machinery, the preparation of land and the labour bestowed on tillage is a most important factor, and therein lies the prime cause of defective yields.

It was estimated before the war that in England improvements to the land have cost an average value of Rs. 180 to the acre; but here in the majority of cases, tillage is neglected, no permanent improvements are made; the land remains uneven and unembanked and the lowest part of the field which gets more water and should be in an arid tract, more fertile, is so much subjected to scour that it often produces practically nothing.

The proposed bill is designed to arrest the downward course and to give a chance to the peasantry, than whom there are few more hardworked when the agricultural season is on and few more skilful in applying to the raising of crops their traditional methods handed down for generations.

I notice that the second part of the bill has evoked some opposition in the press which is somewhat surprising. It is necessary to observe that although the bill compels, it is only permissive in its nature and can be brought into operation only when a certain section of the population desire a scheme to be prepared.

The following questions and answers during the sittings of the Royal Commission on Agriculture show the necessity of the measure. Mr. Kamat, the Bombay Member on the Commission, asked the Central Provinces official witnesses:

"Just as you are of definite opinion that consolidation by voluntary consent is rather a precarious thing and uncertain, also a slow process, are you also of the opinion that even by co-operative methods consolidation is equally slow and uncertain. In short, therefore, you rule out the co-operative method and fall back upon legislation."

The witness replied shortly but clearly "Yes."

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

Dewan Bahadur Raghavaya, Co-opted Member for Madras, asked Raja Sir Vasudeva, Raja of Kollengode :

"I gather you are in favour of legislation to prevent fragmentation of holdings..... Do you think that legislation to prevent fragmentation and to effect consolidation on an economic basis will be a popular measure and will not be resented?"

His reply was "I do not think it will be resented".

Many years ago when measures of consolidation and re-stripment were introduced in western countries, they met at the commencement with the most vehement opposition that was ever noted against a legislative measure in any country; but persistent effort and the practical beneficial working of the law has made easy converts; and now almost every civilised country has a law in this behalf.

Denmark whose efficiency in agriculture has been the envy of even the most advanced countries of the west was the first to take thorough legislative measures. The most important point in the law of 1871 is that when even one owner demanded re-striping, the whole village was compelled to acquiesce. It was "the work of statesmen and not of farmers" to quote a Danish Government official. The law is certainly not democratic; and might even be considered despotic by some. But it has conferred immense benefit on the whole country.

In Switzerland, the Law of May 1911 (section 70) provides that agricultural land of an area less than 36 acres shall not be further subdivided and shall be conveyed to one of the joint heirs. Contracts contrary to this provision shall be null and void and shall not be entered in the Land Register.

In Japan more than 25·66 per cent. of the cultivated land of the Empire has been consolidated and re-adjusted. The immediate effect has been an increase in the cultivable-area by more than 3 per cent. owing to the utilisation of boundary lands between adjacent farms. The application of new implements of agriculture and labour saving machinery has been made possible. Drainage and irrigation are better organised and the productive capacity of the farms has substantially increased.

Mr. R. S. Patil, F.R.E.S., was deputed by the Government of Baroda to study the reconstitution and consolidation of small and scattered holdings in various countries of Europe. He has produced a comprehensive report at the end of which in his conclusion he says :

"It may be urged that the indivisibility and impartibility of agricultural land beyond the limit fixed by statute would deprive the ryot of the fundamental right of free disposal over his property. A state has to interfere in many respects with people's rights for the greatest good of the greatest number and specially with regard to the use of agricultural land in a country mostly depending on agriculture. From what has been described in the foregoing pages, it is quite clear that private initiative has done very little in the work of re-striping."

In regard to consolidation also the suspicion seems to be that a large number of people will be deprived of their land and thrown out of employment. This need not at all be the case. In most cases, the scheme can be so devised that each owner will get land approximately equal to what he owns now; only it will be in a compact block or blocks instead of being scattered wide apart as at present. The different pieces of land will have to be re-adjusted ; but the difference in re-assembling need not be excessive. The bill does not provide that these reconstituted blocks need necessarily be of the nature of economic holdings. Consequently, it is difficult to see where there is room for displacement of population. Every country in the world has benefited by such a measure and there is not the slightest reason why India should be an exception. The morselment or fractionalisation of holdings has been the result of the interpretation of the law which has encouraged the individual use of property. In ancient times, with regard to Hindus at any rate, the property continued to descend undivided from generation to generation from one joint family to another joint family. Partitioning has become common only during the last few generations, with the insistence on individual right, and has evidently come to stay ; and we must devise new methods of distribution to suit the new conditions. In any case, I would point out that in regard to both the parts of the bill the process of law will work extremely slowly and its effect in displacing the population will be negligible. As regards unemployment, the testimony of experts clearly shows that there will be room for more employment rather than less, while the increase in productivity over the whole presidency will be enormous and undoubted. The increase in cultivable area by the elimination of boundaries alone must make the mouths of the land-hungry ryots water.

I have shown before that resolutions on this subject were defeated in the pre-Reform council, that the Director of Agriculture, who had drafted legislation, was asked by Government to deal with it as a private member of the Legislative Council. In the present constitution there is a vastly greater preponderance of elected members and from rural constituencies ; and it is but proper and only what is expected of them that the representatives of the people should devote their energies to the promotion of social legislation and to the righting of social wrongs. Far more benefit to the people can now be conferred by means of social measures than was possible in the past ; and I am emboldened to place before the Council this modest measure which, although it may not have immediate wonderful effects, will tend to save, in so far as such measures can, the steady deterioration of the greatest industry of the country.

If this measure is fortunate enough to receive the approbation of this House, the Bombay Legislative Council will be the first in British India to put on the statute book a piece of legislation which, they may rest content, is essential for the benefit of agriculture. It will be seen from the provisions of the bill that Government have offered various concessions, so that the bill may work well and also that it may be welcomed by the people. Government are anxious to see that it is widely availed of in practice. I must, however, warn the Council that for its full effect it will not be enough to have simply passed this Act, but that, in order to get the desired effect, it will be necessary to be constantly on the watch, and to see that, if necessary, officers of Government are specially appointed to the task of carrying out its provisions, specially those relating to consolidation. The assistance of non-official members who represent the rural constituencies will be of the greatest value in this work, and I place this bill before the House in the full confidence that the assistance will be forthcoming both in the passing of the bill and in applying it. (Applause.)

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

Question proposed.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI (Bombay University) : Sir, I rise to support the first reading of this bill, with the fullest consciousness that this bill is one which will require to be drastically changed before it can be acceptable to a large number of non-official members. Dr. Mann, a few years ago, in one of his books stated that this problem was such that it was beyond the skill of any man to solve it. The Honourable the Leader of the House has determined to show that skill, and, looking to the extraordinary importance of the problem, I for one am prepared to render every possible assistance in order, not that this particular measure as is drafted is put on the statute-book, but that this particular important problem may be solved, at any rate to the satisfaction of the non-official members. But in supporting the first reading, I may mention that the problem is not, as has been made out by the Honourable the Leader of the House, the result of the existing law or the ignorance of the agriculturist. There are numerous causes which operate upon the present situation, and make sub-division essential for the existence of a large class of agriculturists, and any measure which does not take into account these important causes which are still in operation would be, to my mind, a most dangerous measure. And therefore I submit that the best course would be so to amend this important social legislation, by taking into account the causes which are in operation at present and which go to create sub-divisions. The first cause has been dealt with by the Honourable the Leader of the House, but, I am afraid, not to my satisfaction. There is the Hindu law and the Muhammadan law, both of which refuse to recognise the law of primogeniture, which insist on a partition of all land between all the heirs, and any legislation that is made must take into account the operation of this law. With regard to Hindu law, we have to consider not only the effect of this bill on actual Hindu law as it is at present administered, but also the effect it will have in upsetting the present arrangement of society, which is based on Hindu law. I will give one instance. To-day, every son of a Hindu gets a right by birth in ancestral immovable property. Further, in some matters, immovable property is especially favoured by Hindu law, so far as the heirs are concerned, while cash or moveable property is not. I will give only one instance. A widow is not entitled to alienate immovable property, but if it is cash, at least under the Mayukh law, she would be entitled to dispose of it. And it may become a difficult question to consider, when the fragment has been acquired by the neighbouring owner and compensation is paid to the widow, what would happen to the compensation. It is not enough to say that the Hindu law is not touched by this legislation, but it is necessary to see that indirectly it does not affect the vital considerations of Hindu law. In order to put through this legislation, the fullest consideration must be brought to bear upon these important matters.

The second point is this. The Honourable the Leader of the House has, I am sure, convinced every one of the fact that sub-division is increasing. But one cannot rest content with merely that fact. It is a fact, and we recognise it. But between the recognition of the evil and finding out a satisfactory solution for it there are many stages. I for one do not believe that force is a remedy. You cannot, by enforcing a certain notion through legislation, remedy the evil. And therefore it will be necessary so to adjust the different provisions of the bill that the other important aspects of this social legislation are not lost sight of. Sir, at present the position is this. On account of the import of foreign made articles in this country there has been a loss of equilibrium of occupation in the economic organisation of the country. Arts and industries which used to flourish in the village and in the cottage have been practically destroyed, with the result that more men have sought in agriculture the only source of their sustenance. Even so far back as 1880, in the Famine Report, I find it stated that there are more men on the land than are necessary, and since 1880 the situation, as has been amply shown by the Honourable the Leader of the House, has become more acute. Therefore as soon as you introduce the system of preventing fragmentation or introducing consolidation there will be some population which will have to go out of agriculture. I will give a concrete example: suppose there are four acres of land; there are four sons; and two acres become the standard unit. Two sons at any rate would have to go out and take to something else. In this country, unfortunately, there is no industrial development keeping pace with this kind of development. The result will be that some persons will be thrown out of agricultural pursuits. I am prepared to grant it that this measure will be to the benefit of the agriculturists as a whole, but we must not forget that this will be to some extent of this measure the result. Therefore the measure must contain such provisions as will enable the agriculturists to be displaced slowly rather than at once so as to prevent a social revolution.

Again two things will have to be taken into account. The first principle which must permeate the whole bill is that the existing fragments should not be disturbed and I am glad to find that it has found a place in the bill. The second is that when new fragments come into existence they should not be treated as they have been treated in the bill. Clauses 16, 17, 18 and 19 create to my mind a very great calamity for those to whose share the new fragments fall, because they cannot sell it, they cannot mortgage it, they cannot lease it or transfer it, they cannot even cultivate it. Taking the concrete instance I have given the result will be that if any of the four sons happens to get one acre, when the standard unit is two acres, that land will become quite useless to him.

Mr. T. G. H. ANDERSON: No, it is not so.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI : I beg your pardon, I shall read the clauses.

17. From the date of such an entry in the Record of Rights no new fragmented holding shall be sold, exchanged, mortgaged, leased or otherwise transferred except to the occupant, or in the case of a lease, to the lessee or owner of a contiguous holding.

18. Any lease or other transfer of a new fragmented holding shall be void to the extent to which it contravenes the provisions of this Act.

19. From the date of the entry made under section 16 no new fragmented holding shall be cultivated unless it is combined with a contiguous plot or plots so that the total area so cultivated shall be equal to or exceed the standard unit.

Suppose a contiguous owner says "I am not going to pay for that," under the provisions of clause 19, the contiguous owner will be able to squeeze out the owner from the land. Therefore the new fragment must be placed on the same footing as the old fragment so that the owner may be able to sell it to an outsider if the contiguous holders are not prepared to take it up. Otherwise the result will be for some years to come there will be hundreds of cases where many ignorant agriculturists to whose share such new fragments fall will be thrown out in the streets because their holdings will become absolutely useless to them.

I am very glad that the Honourable the Leader of the House has cleared the misunderstanding in the minds of the members on this side of the House with regard to clauses 3 (g) and 27, by stating that the same standard unit will apply both to the questions of consolidation and sub-division. I feel that, as the notion of profitable holding which is sought to be incorporated in this bill is so different from the notion of economic holding, an ampler definition of standard unit should be embodied in the bill. The unit which is defined in clause 3 is not an economic holding. Were it to be an economic holding it would be disastrous. Keatinge has given his opinion that 40 acres is the economic holding; Stanley Jevons 30; and Dr. Mann 20. If you start with that unit the result will be a great disaster. If it is a profitable holding then I admit that nothing can be said against it.

The next question is with regard to clause 21. It deals with partition. It requires that every person who wants to partition his property must go to the Collector. Where the Collector has got the authority to partition under the Civil Procedure Code, clause 21 may be made applicable; but if this provision is made applicable to all cases then it will become most dangerous. (Interruption.) No. Under decrees of Civil Courts only persons go to the Collector for partition. In the case of private partition they go to the Collector only to register their names. As I said if the provision in clause 21 is limited only to partitions under a civil decree it would be a welcome measure and the Collector will be able to partition the land in such a way as not to leave any new fragments behind. To my mind to do anything else seems to be dangerous.

With regard to Part II, Consolidation of Holdings, I wish to draw the attention of the House to one important fact. It is very easy to talk about profitable cultivation or economic production or anything of that kind, but we have to take into account the condition of the country. There is something in the nature of the law of proportions which reacts upon the production of large holdings. You require for maximum production of large holdings manure, live stock, agricultural implements and labour. In the process of consolidation care must be taken to see that lands do not go out of the hands of the existing agriculturists who may not have this necessary equipment. If in consolidation a larger unit is insisted on the agriculturist would require larger equipment—more capital—which he may not be able to invest—and he will be thrown out. Therefore even with regard to consolidation I submit that the unit must be kept on the same level as in the case of the new fragments. It appears to me that this danger will disappear if the standard unit is defined in a manner which will make it to be a unit of profitable cultivation looking to the condition of each district.....

[Mr. K. M. Munshi]

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : How will the honourable member define it ?

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI : That will have to be defined. It must be a profitable cultivation in view of the existing conditions of each district. Otherwise if the standard unit is put down at 10 acres it will be very difficult to reduce it afterwards. For the purpose of consolidation if you put the figure higher it will be driving the agriculturists into the streets.....

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I want legal assistance in defining it from so distinguished a lawyer.

Mr. K. M. MUNSHI : I will do my best and I cannot suggest it now.

It will have to be borne in mind that when defining the unit the figure is not kept so high as to drive the lands into the hands of the non-agriculturists. Then, Sir, with regard to consolidation I have got one objection which applies to the machinery which is being set up in the second part of the bill. Sir, I have found in some of the bills which have been before the Council for the last two sessions that more and more powers are being vested in the Collector of the district. So long as he is the guiding star which invisibly influences the local boards and municipalities and land divisions like this, his assistance and influence would be absolutely welcome. If at any time things go astray, we may look to him for bringing things to proper order. But if in every legislation, as I have found here, more and more powers of a judicial character are transferred to the hands of the Collector, then even men who do not call themselves politicians here will see the danger of such transference of power. Therefore, the tribunal set up, to my mind, should be a tribunal more or less non-official influenced by the officials only to the extent of their guiding the tribunal.

It really comes to this that every man for the purpose of consolidating his land has to approach the Collector and a number of officials under him, and the result is that the whole process of consolidation will reduce every district into a kind of melting pot where the Collector and his department would be absolutely supreme. (An Honourable Member : It is the district judge who is the president of the tribunal, not the collector). If I may read clause 42, it says :

“ The Tribunal of Arbitration shall consist of a President and two assessors. The President shall be the District Judge, one assessor shall be a person having no interest in the land of the village and appointed by the District Judge. The other assessor shall be the consolidation officer."

[Mr. K. M. Munshi]

Therefore, I say, indirectly the executive would be able to influence this consolidation. It should be so provided that the executive will not be able to re-distribute the district irrespective of the wishes of the people.

Then, the other two clauses to which I take strong exception are clauses 71 and 72. So far the law has not defined the position of the ryotwari tenant : so far it has left in doubt whether the ryotwari tenant is merely a tenant or the owner of the land. Now, we do not want that this legislation should in any way affect the interests of the ryotwari tenants in the ownership of the land. Clause 71 says :

"On the publication of the sanction of the Governor in Council to the scheme the whole of the redistributed area shall be deemed to vest in Government as if it had been acquired under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, and until it is re-allotted."

This provision is really revolutionary and must go. These are, to my mind, some of the features of this bill which require to be altered. I am sure that if these are altered to the satisfaction of the non-official members they will have no objection to place this bill on the statute book. A social legislation of this kind will be considerably successful if it is generally permissive in character though to a slight extent compulsory.

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL (East Khandesh District) : Mr. President, I have tabled a motion. My motion is that the consideration of this bill be postponed to the next session of this Council. It is true that Government are actuated by the best of motives and they want to improve the condition of the agriculturists : I have not the least doubt about that. But the question is whether the bill, as it is submitted to us, will really be a blessing or will be a curse. That is the point to be considered.

The DEPUTY PRESIDENT : The honourable member is only allowed to make a brief explanatory statement.

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL : Mr. President, I do not want to deal with the various clauses of the bill which require great modification, but I will simply confine myself to a brief statement as required by you. This bill is really of a revolutionary character : it might confer a lot of good or it might prove to be a curse as the Deccan Agriculturists' Relief Act. In the case of the Deccan Agriculturists' Relief Act the intention of Government was to benefit the agriculturists ; but what is the verdict of experience ? I am sorry to observe that that Act instead of doing good to the agriculturist has done them a lot of harm and benefited the sowcar. Now, Government is trying to put this bill on the statute book. This is the first bill of its nature in this country which Government is trying to place on the statute book. No doubt, instances of Denmark and Baroda have been cited by the Honourable the Leader of the House but the analogy of Denmark does not apply to our country.....

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, is it a speech or a brief explanatory statement ?

The DEPUTY PRESIDENT : I have already drawn the attention of the honourable member to the fact that he is entitled only to make a brief statement. This is what the Standing Order says :

“ The President, after permitting, if he thinks fit, a brief explanatory statement from the mover of the motion, and, if the motion is opposed, from the Member opposing the motion, may without further debate put the question thereon.”

Therefore the honourable member will take note that he is allowed only to make a brief explanatory statement.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Sir, what is the measure of brevity ?

The DEPUTY PRESIDENT : That will depend upon the circumstances of each case.

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL : “ Brief statement ” is not defined, but we have to take the ordinary commonsense view. Mr. President, it is necessary that we want to do good to the agriculturists. But my question to the Honourable the Leader of the House is when he wants to take so much trouble for the good of the agriculturists, will he not have the patience to obtain the opinion of the public on this bill, so that we can consider the views of various people and then decide on the merits of this bill whether it should be put on the statute book or not. It might be argued on behalf of the other side that the opinions of district local boards have been obtained. But my view is that the agriculturists should be given a longer time to submit their opinions. Therefore, without making a longer statement, I would ask the Honourable the Leader of the House to accept this motion and wait for some four months more and then try to put this bill on the statute book if it is found to be essential to do so.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, I beg to oppose the motion. I do not know whether the honourable member is aware that the consideration of this bill was postponed in the last session just to meet this particular request. It had already been translated, but it was postponed. I have received, I believe, about three opinions since the last session. But as the honourable member himself pointed out the opinions of various non-official bodies have been obtained long ago. I therefore see, Sir, no reason for postponing this bill. The honourable member tells us that it may be taken up at the next session. He is very well aware that at the budget session a bill of this nature cannot be taken up. I am not prepared to agree to frequent postponements.

Question put and lost.

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL : I claim a division.

The DEPUTY PRESIDENT : I will follow the procedure followed yesterday. I will ask honourable members to stand up in their places and count the votes.

5 for the Ayes and 22 for the Noes. The motion is lost.

Rao Saheb D. R. PATIL (East Khandesh District) : Mr. President, my honourable friend Mr. Munshi has dealt with some of the aspects of the bill from legal points of view. No doubt the Honourable the Leader of the House will get good name and fame if this bill is properly improved before it is put on the statute book. It will be unsafe to the peasantry unless the bill is properly improved. Mr. President, my only difficulty is that if we look to the illiteracy of the peasantry it will be very hard for them to go outside for employment after they are deprived of their lands under this bill. The Honourable the Leader of the House stated that when the consolidation scheme would come into operation there would be more demand for labour. I am sorry to differ from him because that will not be so. When the consolidation scheme will be effected the poor agriculturists will be driven to cities for their bread and it will be very hard for them to get employment there, as there are no two opinions on the point that the question of unemployment has now-a-days assumed serious shape and so far as my district is concerned the position of agriculturists will be miserable, if this bill were to pass into law as it is. Because they are illiterate and they will be unwilling to leave their homes on account of the deprivation of their small holdings. Land to them is as dear as life and soul. According to the Honourable the Leader of the House improvement of agricultural lands can be effected by following a scheme of consolidation. May I know, even if we follow the scheme of consolidation, whether the status of the agriculturists will be improved necessarily? Now I can quote cases where agriculturists own lands on a large scale, yet they are not prosperous. The reasons for that are irregular rains, agriculturists' indebtedness to sowcars and their ignorance. So it is not only because they possess scattered portions of land that it operates as an obstacle to their real progress. There are other factors which operate as obstacles. Under these circumstances, why should not Government have recourse to the removal of those obstacles which really stand in the way of the prosperity of agriculturists. As I stated, some of the obstacles are irregular rains, illiteracy, indebtedness of agriculturists. So far as their indebtedness is concerned Government ought to take some measures in order to remove the grievances of the agriculturists in that respect. Again when the rains are irregular there is difficulty about getting good crops. In that case the proper remedy would be to undertake a scheme of irrigation. What I want to say is that there are other factors which really operate against the agriculturists being prosperous.

Again in the first part of the bill there are two kinds of holdings, fragmented holdings and the new fragmented holdings. So far as the fragmented holdings are concerned the Honourable the Leader of the House has made a good provision. The occupier or an owner of a piece of land below the standard unit may sell it to any person he likes subject to this proviso that the neighbour should be given the chance of buying the land on the payment of the price offered by a stranger. So far as the new fragmented holdings are concerned there is no such salutary provision. In the case of a new fragmented holding an owner of a piece of land which is below the standard unit must sell it to his neighbour. He is given no alternative as is provided in the case of a fragmented holding. In such a case an agriculturist cannot get a fair price. As there is a safe provision in the case of fragmented holdings the owner can get a fair price. In the case of new fragmented holdings there is no such safeguard which ought to exist in the interests of agriculturists.

I want to bring to the notice of the Honourable the Leader of the House clause 27. That clause says :

"With the object of forming economic holdings for the purpose of more profitable cultivation the Governor in Council may by notification in the Bombay Government Gazette declare that a scheme for any village or for any area in a village shall be made to consolidate and redistribute the holdings of land."

In the statement of objects and reasons it has been mentioned that only scattered portions of land will come under clause 27. If that is the object then this clause ought to be improved in this sense, namely that the consolidation scheme will be limited to scattered portions of land and not to any other land.

There are also other clauses which require modification as, for instance, the clause dealing with the appointment of a committee. Again there are certain restrictions on alienated and fragmented holdings and I have had my say on that subject to some extent. In my opinion, Sir, if this bill is to be put on the statute book it must be of a permissive nature. It must not be compulsory at all. The Honourable the Leader of the House quoted the instance of Baroda. There the law is of a permissive nature. So why should not this bill be put on the same level as that of Baroda ? Again, the Honourable the Leader of the House has quoted the instances of Denmark and other countries. My submission to him is : Why does he quote these foreign countries only so far as to serve his purpose ? There are many good things in foreign countries. Why does he not try to introduce those things here ? Simply, he quotes some instances of foreign countries here and there so far as the present bill is concerned and he wants to satisfy us anyhow. My submission is that the case of Denmark stands on a different footing altogether. There, the agriculturists are literate persons; they are not illiterate people like those in the Bombay presidency. They know the proper use of the best and proper implements of ploughing, etc., and they will use them to the best advantage. It is not so here. So, how can we place the case of Denmark and other countries on a level with that of India ? Be that as it may, I think, Sir, that the bill, so far as it stands at present, will not be acceptable to this honourable House. With these remarks, I oppose the first reading of the bill.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN (Poona and Sholapur Cities) : Sir, I rise to support the first reading of this bill. The excessive sub-divisions and fragmentations of agricultural holdings impede the cultivation on economic principles. The cultivation of such small sub-divisions requires more labour and time but yields only less produce. The result is that the cultivator hardly gets what he has spent on his land. It gives no opportunities to the cultivator to undertake any measure of improvement of his land owing to the smallness of the plot. He cannot construct tals. He cannot outlet the excessive flow of water from his land without inconvenience and detriment to his neighbour. Any attempt in this connection would prove a source of unnecessary troubles and quarrels among his fellow cultivators. A small sub-division is not exempted from the essential paraphernalia of the full survey number as it requires the maintenance of standard boundary marks, etc., which means still lessening the area of the already minimum sub-division. Besides he cannot build any extensive bandh as in the case of a large survey number used for grazing of the bullocks in leisure hours. The poor cultivator of a small sized holding, under those circumstances, has to take fodder from his house for this purpose, whereas the bullocks of a fortunate owner of a large survey number enjoy the green grass on the extensive bandhs. Sir, I have come across the evils of excessive fragmentation or sub-division of land in my district of Sholapur, and as instances I may quote four villages in the Sangola Taluka, namely, Kole, Pachegaon, Chopadi and Lonvire, which show that this evil has gone to such an extent that these sub-divisions are less than one acre in area. If you permit me, Sir, I will show you and the House that in the village of Kole there are 136 sub-divisions of holdings of 1 to 5 gunthas, 231 of 6 to 10 gunthas, 193 of 11 to 15 gunthas, 274 or 214 of 16 to 20 gunthas, and so on. Twenty-five sub-divisions have been kept fallow on account of inconvenient size of hissas out of a total of 2,987 sub-divisions. It will be seen from the statement that nearly half the total number of hissas are below 1 acre.....

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: Will the honourable member repeat what he said about these hissas remaining uncultivated?

Khan Sahab ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN: Twenty-five sub-divisions kept fallow on account of inconvenient size of hissas out of a total of 2,987 in the village of Kole in Sangola Taluka. Out of the 103 khatedars whose holdings are below 1 acre, 50 are obliged to let their lands to others either on nominal rent or on condition that the man who cultivates the land pays out the assessment thereon and seeks other employment in the village or elsewhere, because the small pieces held by them are not at all paying and they can hardly maintain themselves on such very small holdings even for a fortnight.

Similarly, Sir, in the village of Pachegaon Khurd in the same taluka, 68 sub-divisions remained fallow on account of inconvenient size of holdings out of a total of 1,074 sub-divisions, and also in village Chopadi 23 sub-divisions remained fallow out of a total of 1,643, and 21 sub-divisions remained fallow on account of inconvenient sizes of hissas out of a total of 332 sub-divisions in village Lonvire. So that, most of the khatedars of small holdings know full well that it is no use holding such uncultivable pieces of land. Still they have got such a strong sentiment that they are not willing to part with them. The reason for such sentiment is this, that if they part with them, they will lose the title of being called agriculturists and landlords. The sentiment is so very prominent in every agricultural class of people that if they lose such pieces of land, they will come under the category of labourers.

Sir, in this bill I do not find any definite proposal of a unit. Well, what should be a unit? According to my district I may say of jirayat land the unit should be 15 acres and bagayat 5 acres. (An Honourable

[Khan Saheb Abdul Latif Haji Hajrat Khan]

Member : Oh, rather big). Well, this is my experience ; I am an agriculturist and I am dealing with my experience. Then, a unit should be such a plot of land which would maintain a family consisting of a husband and wife, and two children, and bullocks. This unit would certainly vary according to the quality and the location of the plot. I support the first reading and in the select committee we will see what happens. With these words I support the first reading of the bill.

Mr. M. S. KHUHHRO (Larkana District) : Sir, I rise to support the first reading of this bill. I sincerely feel that this bill is in the interests of the agriculturists, because it will do away with uneconomic holdings and will tend to retain holdings of such a kind and in such a manner as will prove beneficial to the agriculturists. Sir, India is primarily an agricultural country and agriculture is the chief industry of India. Under these circumstances, it is very necessary to investigate the problem of economic holdings in this country and consolidate in such a manner that they allow the agriculturist to lead a happy or at least a contented life, by quietly doing the cultivation, being undisturbed in his peaceful work, by the evils that are the outcome of the excessive sub-division of holdings. The Honourable the Finance Member in his eloquent and convincing speech, has given certain facts which are most striking, and he quoted certain examples wherein a single survey number measuring 3 acres 35 gunthas there were 47 partners, and in a survey number measuring 9 acres and 15 gunthas there were something like 75 partners. It is not practically possible that under such circumstances so many partners will at all be able to cultivate the land economically. They will more be absorbed in their own quarrels rather than do the intensive cultivation. During the last session this bill was circulated to honourable members, and as a matter of fact, I was thinking of tabling an amendment that this bill should also be extended to Sind, but, Sir, after subsequent consideration I thought it better to wait for a time because the conditions of Sind are materially different and it was not so very a pressing problem in Sind which could make the immediate application of this absolutely essential, as it was in the Presidency. I think that the time is not far off when the need for a similar bill will be felt keenly in Sind as in the Presidency at present. The revenue system of Sind is materially different from that of the Presidency. In the Presidency even before the advent and conquest of the British there was the ryotwari system as explained by the Honourable the Finance Member, and under the ryotwari system cultivators were directly dealing with Government without the intervention of a middle man (Zamindar) and each cultivator had a small holding of land say 30 or 40 acres at the most. By this ryotwari system each village had a certain area of land to cultivate in which they were all partners and they paid land revenue to State or the Ruler in a lump sum. While in Sind since pre-British days during the rule of Mirs and even before there was the zamindari system, which is similar to that of Bengal and according to that zamindari system each zamindar had a large holding. There were three classes of zamindars—one class was exempted from land revenue and this was called the Jahagirdar class ; the second class was considered to be chief zamindars collecting assessment even for Government for certain number of villages assigned to them and they received considerable share of revenues from state as a remuneration. And they possessed lands of their own as well and the third class of zamindars was dealing with cultivators who got a share in the corn and who paid assessment to Government as every ordinary zamindar does. Even after 1843, when the British conquered Sind, the same system was continued and the grants that were subsequently made were also made on the same system. That means that large areas were given to individual zamindars and this system was considered to be most favourable, though the duty of collection of revenues for State ceased to be continued but they were allowed to receive the same remuneration by them. But in the Bombay Presidency the same ryotwari system continues. That was the reason why the sub-division of holdings has been far more in excess in the presidency than in Sind. The reason why the excessive sub-division of holdings has happened is fundamentally due to the law of inheritance. The Indian law of inheritance both of Hindus and Mussalmans and more particularly of Mussalmans allow all the male members to be entitled to a share in the landed property, while in the case of the latter female members even receive their due shares. However, this fact cannot be denied that the law of inheritance entirely tends to the excessive sub-division of holdings. Of course, as explained by the Honourable the Finance Member, it is not possible to alter the laws of inheritance or to bring about any measure affecting them as any such measure will be considered as revolutionary in this country. Under these circumstances, it is found necessary to bring in a bill of this kind so that it may do good to the individual small land holders.

In those parts of the country where there is cultivation on inundation, it is still more difficult to cultivate fragmented holdings which are less than the economic standard units. For instance, the whole province of Sind is cultivated by means of irrigation on the river water. There a survey number is in many cases not larger than four or five acres. If such a survey number is sub-divided into many partners, there will be endless quarrels over the distribution of water. It is a fact that even at present there are so many sub-divisions of holdings in Sind and there are quarrels and during the inundation season, you will find that the courts are full of these cases and at times murders are committed. These are the few evils of excessive sub-division of holdings. But I wonder what will be the case in Sind ten years hence.

I now wish to deal with the various objections raised by the speakers who preceded me. I believe the honourable member Mr. Munshi raised objections to clause 19 of this bill. Clause 19 is to the effect that these fragmented holdings below standard units will not be allowed to be cultivated unless so multiplied that they come up to the standard unit fixed in that part. I think the retention of this clause will be necessary because if the clause is there these fragmented holdings will be given to the neighbours who can conveniently and economically cultivate them.

[Mr. M. S. Khuhro]

Then again, the argument was advanced by some honourable members that a unit should not be unnecessarily big. I quite agree that there is a good deal of force in this argument. In my opinion the economic standard unit should be fixed as low as possible with a view that it should be just adequate for the maintenance of a person and his family and a pair of bullocks entirely from the income of the land. Some fears are entertained by some of the honourable members that some people will be dispossessed of their lands. I do admit that some people will be dispossessed of their holdings, but it is not possible always to satisfy all sections of the people. We have to look to the greater good of the greater number. Of course many people will gain advantage out of this bill and if some are dispossessed, they can easily take to labour, and such other professions on the strength of the amount received in compensation for the bits of land they lose. I personally feel that there will be no practical difficulty if they get money in exchange for land and take to some other business. I do think that this is a feeble argument.

Some members have suggested that at this stage it will be better if this bill is made a permissive measure, but I think if we make it permissive, it will not be so useful and the progress will be very slow in the improvement suggested. We should profit from the experience of the Punjab where a permissive measure has not proved quite equal to the need of the people and the country, even though about sixty thousand acres of land have been re-arranged and properly consolidated there, by co-operative department; consequently the Government of the Punjab suggest that they are in favour of legislation of this kind.

As regards clause 71 and clause 72, I think even the retention of these clauses with certain modifications will be necessary and beneficial. There are some minor suggestions which can be made in the select committee or at the second reading of the bill, but as a whole I think this is a very good bill and it will be a very good thing if in a short time this bill is extended to the province of Sind as well.

The THAKOR of KERWADA (Northern Division): Sir, I come from a part of the country which is known as the cotton growing district, and I have the honour to represent the agriculturists of that part of the country, and therefore on their behalf I heartily congratulate the Honourable the Leader of the House for introducing this measure which has been coming to the front for a long time. I happened to be on this Council in 1916 and my honourable friend the Honourable the Minister for Local Self-Government, Sir Ghulam Hussain, must be fully aware of the fact of our being very keen on getting a measure of this kind passed through this Council. I must say at the same time that a bill of this nature should not be rushed through because it affects in many ways the life of the agriculturists, and it brings about revolutionary changes in regard to inheritance which is governed by Hindu and Mahomedan laws. Besides there are certain clauses which require to be considered very carefully in detail which cannot be done unless the bill is referred to the select committee. Sir, the bill is for the benefit of the agriculturist, and for the agricultural advancement of this Presidency, and that is why I am supporting this measure. We must agree to do that which leads to the greatest good of the largest number. The real question is whether, by allowing the present practice of minute sub-division to continue, it will tend to improve or advance the great industry of the country as a whole or retard it. Of course, some people may suffer losses particularly the owners of uneconomic holdings, but when the country as a whole depends on agriculture, we have to consider whether we should not take drastic steps with a view that the industry as a whole should be given an impetus and brought on a level with that of other civilised countries of the world. That is the main issue. As regards the difficulties which have been pointed out by various honourable members, they can be remedied or mitigated whilst the bill is being discussed in the select committee, where we will have ample opportunities to discuss these matters. I think we must be prepared to take a serious view of the situation. I think, looking to our connection with the British Government for the last century and more, the greatest industry of the country, namely, agriculture has not made any advance, and that, from the agricultural point of view, India is one of the most backward countries. The Honourable the Leader of the House has taken very great pains in placing the bill before the House with great lucidity and mastery of detail, and we should support the bill, and it should be referred to a select committee. But again I would request that the bill should not be rushed through. It does not matter if there is a little delay in passing the bill, but ample opportunity should be given for discussion. With these remarks, I support the first reading of the bill.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District): Mr. President, I also join the honourable member who preceded me in congratulating the Honourable the Finance Member for taking a keen interest in matters agricultural, and the trouble he has been taking in this connection ever since he took over charge of the portfolio of Agriculture six years ago. He has laboured much to collect various data on this subject not only with regard to this presidency, but also with regard to other places, and he has brought forward this measure. Sir, if this measure does not deserve wholesale condemnation it certainly does not deserve wholesale acceptance also. The object, Sir, is to create economic holdings or holdings of profitable cultivation. Sir, it has not been laid down what is an economic holding nor has it been laid down what will be the size of the standard unit; it depends on local conditions, and therefore the local committee will be the best judge for it and therefore the fixing of the unit has been left to the local committee. But at any rate some honourable members of this side of the House have given expression to their opinion about the size of the unit. Some of the honourable members want it to be 15 acres. You know very well that for Gujarat about 15 to 20 acres are required for an economic holding, and if it is the intention of Government in bringing forward this bill that economic holdings should be created, we have to see what would be the result of this measure. The honourable mover of this bill has placed before this House the figures of the small holdings in the various divisions of the presidency, and it has been admitted that India, including this presidency, depends upon agriculture. According to the latest calculations 64 per cent. of the population of this presidency depends on agriculture. What is the average acreage of land per head held in the various districts in this presidency? It is—Ahmedabad 2, Surat 1·15, Kaira 1·17, Panch Mahals 1·7, Broach 2·15, West Khandesh ·68, East Khandesh 1·19, Nasik 2·9, Ahmednagar 4·1, Poona 1·8, Sholapur 3·2, Satara 2·2, Belgaum 2·3, Bijapur 4·05, Dharwar 1·6, Thana 1·3, Ratnagiri ·8, and Kanara ·7. Now, this is the cultivable assessed land in possession of the agriculturists per head.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Is that including males, females and children?

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Yes, it includes everybody. Now, it has been admitted by the honourable mover of this bill that on account of the fragmentations of holdings and excessive sub-divisions the land is deteriorating, agriculture is being impoverished, and the yield also is getting less and less. But I wonder whether the Honourable the Revenue Member accepts this dictum, because from the various reports regarding enhancement of land revenue in the presidency, it is quite clear that Government think that the ryot is getting prosperous, and that the agriculture is improving day by day. Therefore, Sir, from this point of view, I am delighted at the admission of the Honourable the Finance Member who is the Senior Member of the Cabinet, that the land is being impoverished and the agriculturists are getting poorer.

Now I come to Surat district. Let us assume that it is the intention of the honourable mover of the bill to fix a minimum unit for jirayat and bagayat lands and let us assume for the sake of argument that although he will not accept the unit that was suggested by one of my honourable friends, namely, 15 acres for jirayat, I doubt whether he will accept less than 3 acres for jirayat land and  $1\frac{1}{2}$  acres for bagayat land. That is the minimum which it must be the intention of the honourable the mover to accept. But probably it is the intention of Government to fix the minimum at 5 to 10 acres for jirayat land and 2 to 3 acres for bagayat land. But I take the minimum. If Government take 2 to 3 acres for jirayat and 1 to  $1\frac{1}{2}$  acres for bagayat land, what would be the result? For Surat district the average acreage of land held per head is 1·15 acres. Now take Chorasi taluka in the Surat district. In the case of Chorasi taluka, the Government Resolution issued at the instance of the Cabinet of which the Honourable the Finance Member is a senior member stated that it is one of the most prosperous talukas in the presidency, and the enhancement of assessment has been fixed at 19 per cent. Now, the total acreage of that taluka is 48,258, which is divided among 8,297 holders. Out of these 8,297 holders, as many as 5,500 own 1 to 5 acres; that is 66·8 per cent. is owned by holders whose holdings range from 1 to 5 acres. Below 1 acre, it is 3 per cent. of the total holding; from 6 to 25 acres it is 28 per cent., and from 26 to 100 acres it is 4 per cent., but I am only concerned with holders who own

[Rao Bahadur B. R. Naik]

5 acres and below from 1 to 5 acres, as I said, the percentage is 66·8, plus 3 per cent. below 1 acre, that is 70 per cent. Now, according to the dictum of the honourable mover it is clear that this taluka is also getting impoverished day by day, and the agriculturists cannot cultivate these small fragments profitably which is also a fact, and yet the Honourable the Revenue Member told me, when I waited upon him as one of the members of a deputation, that it was one of the most prosperous talukas in the presidency and on this assumption the land-revenue had been enhanced. If, on account of fragmentations, proper cultivation cannot be done, how can this taluka be called the most prosperous in the presidency, and how is it that Government have held that the condition of this taluka is improving?

Sir, this is one of the most important subjects which came before this House and it requires full consideration. I have already informed the House that in the Chorasi taluka 35 to 40 per cent. of the holdings are below 3 acres and even if the Honourable the Leader of the House accepts 3 acres as the standard minimum unit, these 35 to 40 per cent. of the holders will be dispossessed of their holdings and thrown out of employment. Even if he accepts the standard unit at  $2\frac{1}{2}$  acres in the case of jirayat land about 35 per cent. of the population will be thrown out of employment.

Mr. F. G. H. ANDERSON : Does the honourable member mean that the whole of the Chorasi taluka is jirayat?

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : The honourable member has asked a very pertinent question. I have got the figures here : rice is 1·40 per cent. of the total acreage of the taluka, wheat is ·66 per cent., fruits and vegetables is 5·16 per cent. These figures are taken from the official statistics to which the signature of the honourable member Mr. Anderson is affixed. About 35 per cent. of the holders of the jirayat land will be thrown out even if  $2\frac{1}{2}$  acres is made the standard unit. In the case of bagayat about 40 to 50 per cent. of the holders of bagayat and rice land will be thrown out if the standard unit is fixed at 1.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : May I ask the honourable member whether there is any prohibition against joint ownership provided in the bill? Does it necessarily follow that all these holders of land below five acres will insist on physically dividing the land exclusively?

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Let them do it voluntarily. This small holding is not a matter of to-day but since the introduction of pot-hissa system, for the last 20 years, people are compelled to get these small holdings registered in the record of rights which has brought this fact to the notice of Government. Prior to this if 10 bighas were divided among five brothers, they used to measure the land with sticks and rope and not even with chain and used to say "you cultivate this," "you cultivate that." The whole survey number used to be in the name of one man in Government registers. Now, he is compelled to register his holding; otherwise his right will not be recognised by Government.

Mr. F. G. H. ANDERSON : There is no compulsion to subdivide : we never register or record a sub-division unless, first of all, the holders have made it.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : What the honourable member says is that the introduction of pot-hissa has had this effect. (The Honourable Sir Chunilal Mehta indicated dissent.)

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : This is contained in the orders issued by the Government.

With regard to Bardoli taluka, the number of holdings of 5 acres and below is 63 per cent. and the number of holdings above 5 acres and below 25 acres is 33½ per cent. With the holdings above that size I am not concerned. Therefore the percentage of holders who will be thrown out can be easily understood by this honourable House if this measure is passed into law to achieve the object, viz., to create the holdings of the size of profitable cultivation. Coming to the Matar taluka of the Kaira district, the total holdings are 18,579 and the holdings under 5 acres are 13,466. It means that about 75 per cent. are holders of land under 5 acres and if not all half of them will be thrown out.

Coming to Mehmabad taluka of the Kaira district the total number of holdings are 18,291. Under five acres there are 13,351 holders. Here also the total number of holders below five acres works out at 75 per cent.

Coming to Daskroi taluka of the Ahmedabad district there are 6,226 holders and out of this 4,093 are below five acres. If this provision is applied the whole of this 4,093 holders will be thrown out.

As I have got to say still more on this point I will require some more time.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The House is now adjourned till 2 o'clock on Monday, the 10th October 1927.

Monday, the 10th October 1927

The Council re-assembled at the Council Hall, Poona, on Monday, the 10th October 1927, at 2 p.m., the Honourable the President, Mr. A. M. K. DEHLAVI, Bar-at-Law, presiding.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. Questions.

WELFARE WORK

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN (Poona and Sholapur Cities) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) when they intend to set apart the two lakhs of rupees for the welfare work, which was passed by the Council in the budget session of 1926 ;

(b) if financial stringency is the cause of their not yet setting apart this amount, whether they propose to allocate at least a portion of the sum seeing the urgent necessity and importance of the subject ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) and (b) Attention of the honourable member is invited to the Press Note No. P.—263, dated the 23rd December 1926. Owing to financial stringency Government are unable to include any lump provision in the estimates of 1928-29 on account of grants-in-aid to Welfare Organizations, although applications from individual institutions have been or are being considered on their merits and with due regard to the funds available for the purpose.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN : How many individual cases have been dealt with and to what extent in 1926-27 and 1927-28 ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I require notice of that question.

Mr. R. S. ASVALE : How many applications were received from individuals during the last nine months ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I require notice of that question.

EDUCATION MINISTER : VISITS TO MUHAMMADAN EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Minister of Education has visited any of the Muhammadan educational institutions in the presidency ;

(b) if so, the names of those institutions and the dates of the visits ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Yes.

(b) The Panchgani Darul-Uloom Muslim High School (which is presided over by Sir Abas Ali Beg) in May and Seth Dost Mahmud's Orphanage and School for Girls in September 1927.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : May I know if the Honourable Minister visited this Darul-Uloom High School on his way from Mahableshwar to Poona, or he went to Panchgani for this purpose from Mahableshwar ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The Minister went to Panchgani especially to visit two educational institutions.

MEDICAL PRACTITIONERS

Mr. A. M. ATAVANE (Kolaba District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of Allopathic Medical practitioners in the Bombay Presidency who have obtained their diplomas from the non-official Allopathic Medical Institutions which existed before the passing of the Indian Medical Degrees Act of 1916 ;

(b) the names of such non-official medical institutions and the number and names of those which are now existing ;

(c) the number of medical practitioners who have obtained their diplomas from these institutions and whose names have been registered under sub-section (3) of section 7 of the Bombay Medical Act of 1912 as amended later on ;

(d) the number of persons who have been given special sanction by the Governor in Council under section 11 of the Bombay Medical Act, 1912, to hold any appointment as a Physician, Surgeon, or other Medical Officer in any dispensary, hospital, infirmary or lying-in hospital, not supported entirely by voluntary contributions, or in any public establishment, body or institution, or as a Medical Officer of Health, though not registered under the Medical Acts ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : (a) and (b) The information is not available.

(c) 42.

(d) 6.

EDUCATIONAL FACILITIES : NORTH KANARA CHRISTIANS

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the backward Christians of North Kanara submitted a memorial to Government asking for special facilities for their educational advancement about a year ago ;

(b) what action they have taken or intend to take in the matter and when ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Yes.

(b) No action was taken on the memorial as Indian Christians except Anglo-Indians, Goans, and East Indians, are already classed among "Intermediate" communities and are thus eligible for educational concessions available to those communities.

BUILDING SITES : APPLICATIONS BY SWEEPERS OF GODHRA

Mr. DAWOODKHAN SHALEBHOY (Northern Division) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that some sweepers (Bhangis) of Godhra applied to the Collector for land to build their dwelling houses ;

(b) if the answer to (a) is in the affirmative, how was their application disposed of ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU (a) Yes in 1924.

(b) They were given land from survey Nos. 235 and 285 reserved for grazing and cremation grounds. The Hindu community, however, objected to the grant on religious grounds, and the Bhangis also declined to take up the land and selected survey No. 1249 which had originally been granted to the Municipality for the accommodation of the Bhangis. The Municipality was, therefore, asked to provide the Bhangis with land from this survey No. Since then, however, the Bhangis have objected to this site owing to their private disputes with their castemen living on it. Steps are therefore being taken to accommodate them elsewhere.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT : PANCH MAHALS MAHOMEDANS—CLERKS, TALATIS

Mr. DAWOODKHAN SHALEBHOY (Northern Division): Will Government be pleased to state the number of Mahomedans taken up in the Revenue Department of the Panch Mahals District as clerks and talatis during the years 1924 to 1927.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Three : one clerk and two talatis.

D. A. R. ACT : APPLICATION OF CHAPTER V

Mr. M. D. KARKI (Kanara District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether there is any proposal to extend chapter V of the D. A. R. Act to the other agricultural parts of the presidency ;

(b) if so, when they intend to extend the provisions of the said chapter to those parts ;

(c) if the reply to (a) is in the negative, whether they intend to apply the provisions of chapter V of the said Act to the other parts of the presidency ;

(d) if so, when ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) and (c) No.

(b) and (d) Do not arise.

BOARDING SCHOOLS FOR NAYAKDAS, HALOL

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that the number of the Nayakdas is 94,000 in Gujarat and 20,500 in the Panch Mahals ;

(b) whether it is a fact that no steps have been taken by them for the uplift of this community and for the spread of education among them ;

(c) whether it is a fact that the Panch Mahals district school board has submitted a scheme for starting a boarding school for Nayaks or Nayakdas in the Halol taluka ;

(d) what their attitude towards this scheme is ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) According to the last census returns the number of Nayakdas is as under :—

In Gujarat

42,434 males

42,535 females

---

84,969 Total.

---

In the Panch Mahals

10,381 males
10,160 females
<hr/>
20,541 Total.
<hr/>

(b) No. As Nayakdas are jungle tribes most of them live in huts built in isolated places, very often in their own fields. Schools exist in the neighbouring villages but, as the community is a backward one, very few children attend these schools in spite of persuasion and encouragement. In the Hailol Taluka where the population of Nayakdas is the highest, the schools near their places of abode are situated as under :—

Rameshra, Shivrampur, Pavagadh, Itwadi, Amabli, Vasvel, Morkhala, Kuvarpura, Gansarvav and Koprej.

(c) Yes.

(d) The question is under consideration.

MONEY-LENDERS' SERVANTS : PANCH MAHALS

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM (Panch Mahals District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that money-lenders in Panch Mahals employ persons of questionable character to recover their dues from their debtors by terror and torture ;

(b) if not, whether they propose to make inquiries in the matter ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) and (b) Enquiries go to show that this abuse is now a thing of the past. If it is permissible to make any inferences from other questions asked by the Honourable Member, it would appear that the persons of questionable character have now set up in the money-lending business on their own account and exercise their wiles for their own advantage instead of that of their former employers.

Mr. G. I. PATEL : Do Government intend to take any measures to stop them doing money-lending business on their own account and prevent them from exercising their wiles for their own advantage ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : I am not aware of Government having any such intention.

GOVERNMENT SERVICE : RECRUITMENT FROM BACKWARD COMMUNITIES

Sir VASANTRAO DABHOLKAR on behalf of Mr. HOOSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of vacancies that took place in the City of Bombay in the various departments of Government since the issuing of the Resolution of Government in 1925 prescribing a minimum percentage of recruitment from the members of the backward communities to the public services ;

(b) how many of the above vacancies were filled by the appointment of the members of the backward communities ;

(c) how many of the above were Mahomedans ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : The information has been called for.

SCHOOL BOARD, BULSAR : NOMINATION

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that one member is nominated from the Mochi community to represent the depressed untouchable class on the School Board, Bulsar, district Surat ;

(b) if so, why a member of the touchable (Mochi) class is nominated setting aside the rights of the untouchable ,

(c) the reasons which actuated Government to make such nomination ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) No nomination to represent the untouchable classes on the School Board, Bulsar, was made.

(b) and (c) Do not arise.

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Is the Honourable Minister for Education aware of the fact that the seat was specially kept for one of the untouchable classes, and that the untouchable member has been displaced by a member of the Mochi class ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The answer given is that no nomination to represent the untouchable classes on the school board was made.

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : May I know why the honourable member from the untouchable class was displaced by a mochi member of the touchable class, and was nominated in the place reserved for depressed classes ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I require notice of that question.

WORKING MEN'S HOSTEL, BOMBAY

Major W. ELLIS JONES on behalf of Mr. J. P. THORNBUR : Will Government be pleased to state whether they are aware—

(a) that since the Salvation Army at Bombay have taken over the management of the working men's hostel run in connection with the Government Workhouse they will not take in Anglo-Indians, if they are dark men ;

(b) that Anglo-Indians even if sent by a Magistrate, are accepted only if they are fair enough to pass for Europeans ;

(c) that the attitude adopted by the Salvation Army towards the Anglo-Indians in general leaves no place of last resource for them to go to and therefore their only alternative is to live in the streets during the monsoon, which practically means death to the stranded Anglo Indians ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a), (b) and (c) The Salvation Army has no control over the admissions to the Working Men's Hostel. It cannot admit any person to the hostel who is not sent there by a Magistrate and it cannot refuse to admit any person who is sent there by a Magistrate.

WORKING MEN'S HOSTEL, BOMBAY

Major W. ELLIS JONES on behalf of Mr. J. P. THORNBUR : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the Government Workhouse now run by the Salvation Army is maintained from the public funds ;

(b) whether in view of Government having declared their policy of eliminating all racial distinctions in Government institutions, they propose to take steps to throw open the Government Working Men's Hostel, Bombay, to all Anglo-Indians without reference to colour ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes.

(b) The Honourable Member is referred to the answer given to his first question.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : May I now, Sir, inform the House of the order in which we propose to take Government business ? Sir, it does not appear that the arrangement made by His Excellency to allow more time for private business if Government business were finished earlier is likely to be taken advantage of by the House.

On the contrary, it appears as if Government business is not likely to be finished within the time we anticipated. You will recollect that I stated that we hoped that the Council would finish by the 18th of this month and that five days have been allotted for private business. We propose that after the conclusion of the debate on the bill that is under consideration at present which I hope will be finished at the latest by this evening we will take supplementary grants to-morrow. It is likely that these supplementary demands will take the whole of to-morrow and probably some portion of the next day. After that we propose to take the District Police Bill and then the Port Trust Bill. After that the Mahul Creek Bill and the Children's Act Amendment Bill, and after that the Primary Education Bill and then the business in the order in which it is printed on the agenda. If, Sir, it is found that Government business cannot be completed during the next three days including to-day which are the only days now available, then I trust it will suit the convenience of the Council if we sit half an hour earlier every day in order to make up some of the time that has already been taken away from Government business owing to our sitting earlier on Wednesday and the two Saturdays. I trust that this will suit the convenience of the House and that the House will be in a position to finish the Government business and that the additional time may not be required.

(Further consideration of Bill No. XVI of 1927, Small Holdings Bill, Resumed)

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Bill No. XVI of 1927. Rao Bahadur B. R. Naik.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK (Surat District) : Sir, on Saturday I gave the figures of average holdings per head of the population for all the districts in the Presidency proper separately. I also gave figures of the holdings below 5 acres of several talukas in the district of Surat, viz., Chorasi, Bardoli and Jalalpor which represent 63 to 70 per cent. of the total holdings. I also gave the figures of holding in the talukas of Mehmedabad and Matar in the district of Kaira where holders below 5 acres represent 75 per cent. of the total holdings. I also gave the figures for the Daskroi taluka of the Ahmedabad District which represents 66 per cent. of the total holdings so far as holders below 5 acres are concerned. I now come to the district of Satara. According to one calculation holders below 5 acres of land represent 61 per cent. of the total holdings and according to another calculation it is 48 per cent. In the district of Poona 46·6 per cent. of the total holdings is below 5 acres, Nasik, East Khandesh and Ahmednagar have got 33 to 35 per cent. holders below 5 acres. I have got the figures for the various other talukas of the Presidency, but I do not want to waste the time of the House by quoting them. These figures show the extent of the small holdings in the presidency. My object in giving these figures is to impress upon the mind of the honourable the mover of this bill who is considerate and careful in a measure of this importance, that if you are going to carry out this ideal or the object which is sought to be achieved by the introduction of this bill, namely to create plots of land for profitable cultivation, I say you cannot do it without throwing out 30 to 40 per cent. of the present holders. Sir, I admit that small holdings are an evil, but in trying to remedy this evil we should not create a greater evil and a danger, namely the throwing out of a number of the population of the presidency and causing greater unemployment and which will be burden to the country. This bill would have been very much welcome to this House had Government launched a complementary scheme simultaneously to provide means of livelihood for those who are likely to be thrown out of employment. Government may have waste lands where the bill may be applied if not to colonise such persons where there is such land available. But Government have not done anything of the kind. In several parts of the presidency, if this bill comes into operation a great many people will be thrown out of their avocations and the integrity of the village unit will disappear. It may be argued that 60 or 75 per cent. of the agricultural population all over the presidency are half starved at present and why should not Government make some of them starve fully so that the remainder may be well fed? It may be very logical and it may be very good for an essayist on economics. But so far as human nature and the condition of existing things are concerned it is not a practical argument, and especially no Government can take advantage or act upon such a logic.

Now it has been said by the honourable mover of this bill that a measure of this nature is in existence in the Baroda territory. There the law is of a permissive nature and so nothing has been achieved. Everyone who knows Baroda territory knows that there is very little difference between the agriculturists there and the agriculturists in other parts of Gujarat. Both the territories are intermixed and the characteristic of the agriculturists of the Baroda territory is in every respect the same as that of the agriculturists of other parts of Gujarat. The fertility of the soil is the same but the percentage of holding is much larger than in other parts of Gujarat. According to our calculation the average holding per holder is 27 bighas, i.e., 19 acres ; according to another calculation the average holding is 20 bighas, i.e., 13 acres ; while in Gujarat it is 8 acres. There is great difference in holding even though the nature of the soil is the same. The industry and intelligence of the people is the same yet you will find that there is great difference between the holdings in Baroda and the holdings in British territory, and yet this permissive legislation in Baroda has not achieved its object.

Mr. F. G. H. ANDERSON : May I know if the honourable member has ascertained whether these figures in Baroda are compiled upon anything like the same basis as our statistics ?

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : I do not know how the compilation has been made. I am not aware of that, but I am quoting the same authority which has been quoted by the honourable the mover of the bill.

I do not want to waste the time of the House. But the cause of the excessive fragmentations and sub-divisions of land is the law of inheritance of the Hindus and the Muhammadans and added to this is the instinct of individualism which has been imported from the west. The honourable mover of this bill himself knows very well that a generation ago several members of our family used to live jointly in India, cultivate the soil jointly and enjoy the proceeds jointly and this kind of individualism has been imbibed from the west where everybody is for himself and perhaps his wife.

Now one thing must not be forgotten that in India agriculture is not an industry but a field for labour just as textile mills and other factories are fields for labour and majority do not produce for market but for self-sustenance. These small holders, Sir, cultivate their own lands. They take on lease from others some land, and try to make both ends meet in this way. Therefore, I say that there is no separate organisation for capital and labour. The men who supply capital also supply labour. Agriculture here in this country is not in the form of industry. It will be many years, Sir, before the agriculturists of this country will be ready to take up new implements, labour saving machinery, for improving agriculture, because as you know, Sir,—I know that, Sir, myself—that at present the agriculturists have not got sufficient to do. After tilling their land they have to sit idle, because you know very well that they have not got sufficient work to do as they had in old days. Now, it has been said by some of my honourable friends that this fragmentation of lands is one of the principal causes of the poverty and misery of the agriculturists in this country. It is not, of course, the principal cause. You know the real cause is the dying out of the indigenous industries and the handicrafts of the villages ; those industries by which the agriculturists supplemented their income in the old days have now died out, and the agriculturists have now nothing to do but they have to solely depend upon agriculture and those who depended on such handicrafts had to fall on agriculture for their maintenance. This is one of the causes of the present miserable condition, and there are other important causes also. It has been totally omitted to be mentioned by the Leader of the House, and I would at once explain to the Honourable the Settlement Commissioner that there are two factors which are responsible for the present conditions, namely, the chronic indebtedness, and the high rate of assessment which they have to pay. If 50 per cent. of the labour of the agriculturists has to be paid by way of assessment, how can you expect any improvement in the condition of agriculture at all and how can you expect any profitable cultivation? I assert that you will never be able to make anything out of agriculture in these circumstances. Then, there is the high indebtedness. Everybody knows that the country is highly indebted, and the agriculturists have got no money to improve the land, to improve the cultivation as it ought to be done.

Now, Sir, even by consolidation, I am not one of those who believe that the condition of the agriculturists would improve. Suppose I own a piece of 10 acres and another 10 acres is added by the process of consolidation, I would have to pay for those 10 acres which are added. Or, say, I own 2 acres and I will have another 2 acres added. So 4 acres will be a plot for me. But I have to pay for that extra 2 acres. No doubt Government will give tagavi, but tagavi is not a free grant. I have to return the tagavi to Government after some years by instalments with interest. Now, I think that Government know very well,—but they will not admit it,—that the agriculturist is never able to pay his debt. I am talking as a practical man, Sir, not as a theorist. If the agriculturist had been able to repay his debt, why has such a heavy debt been accumulating? By tilling those 4 acres he will not be able to achieve much; he may perhaps be able to make both ends meet, if at all. But eventually the two acres which he owned previously plus the two acres which he added both will go in the hands of the sowkar and the man whose holding will be expropriated will spend away the compensation value and he will turn himself into a landless labourer.

Now, Sir, one word more and I have done. Instances have been given by the Honourable the Leader of the House of Denmark, Germany, England and Sweden. I forgot all the names. I think there can be no comparison between the conditions of India and those of western countries. One thing is quite obvious that the percentage of population there is not the same as in India. Moreover, in western countries they have got a smaller number of population who depend upon agriculture. In England one-tenth only depend upon agriculture, and the rest depend upon other industries. Moreover, if the country is not able to meet the surplus population, the population will be packed off to their dependencies like those of Africa, Australia, and so forth. In Germany also the conditions are different. You have to take into consideration the habits of the people, the customs of the people, the area of the plots, the population, etc. You cannot compare, it is not possible to compare, the conditions of the European countries which are independent countries with the conditions of India. I am very anxious to speak in admiration of conditions in Denmark. The condition of agriculture has been greatly improved there. But it is not due so much to the stopping of small holdings, but it is more the fruit of co-operation in the country. Every activity is being carried out in Denmark through that agency. To that is due the country's prosperity. But what was done there? There, the large pieces of farms were split up and converted into family holdings with State-aid. Here, you are not going to split up large pieces and create new holdings. Here, you are simply restricting the minute sub-divisions without touching the large holdings.

Now, in case the first reading of this bill is passed and if it goes to the select committee, I am very glad to hear the assurance of the honourable mover of the bill that he is prepared to consider and accept any suggestions that may be made with regard to the various clauses either ending or mending them. That is some consolation, but, if the bill goes to the select committee, I would say that most of the clauses will require to be most carefully considered. I was told the other day that by a scheme of consolidation nobody will lose his holding. Now, I would invite attention to clause 31, and you will see that under it the Collector has to fix the minimum unit of holding under the consolidation scheme, and unless that is removed or taken out, the Collector has got the power to fix the unit or minimum limit for the consolidation. But, as I have said, we have got the assurance of the mover of this bill that he will go into this matter and he will be prepared to consider any suggestion of honourable members in the select committee. Then, Sir, I would call attention to clause 4, under which members of local boards are to be selected, but I suggest that they should be elected by the boards on the committee. As regards holders of land below standard unit they have to go through so many formalities before it is possible for them to dispose of the land. They have to give one month's notice to the mamlatdar and he gives a further month's notice to the neighbouring holders. Now, if a man wants to dispose of a small holding and immediately he wants money, let there be a process, say, 15 days' notice. The man who has got a holding below a standard unit can give a registered notice to the neighbouring holders and in 15 days if no reply comes, he can deal with the land in any other way.

I would further invite attention to clause 15 of the bill, under which if I am a holder of a contiguous plot which is less than the standard unit, I can force the holder to yield to my demand for that plot because I happen to be the holder of a contiguous plot. This side of the question needs to be looked into more carefully and should have the same facility as is given in clause 11 of the bill.

Clauses 16, 17, 18 and 19 have already been mentioned by my honourable friend Mr. Munshi on Saturday and seem to be most objectionable and require deletion or should be revised on the lines of the clauses dealing with the existing fragments. As long as the law of inheritance is there, as long as you do not devise a perfect scheme, you cannot drive out these people and you cannot say to them "you cannot cultivate the land and therefore you must hand the plot over to your neighbours or keep fallow."

[Rao Bahadur B. R. Naik]

As regards Part II—Consolidation of Holdings—I think it is more theoretical than practical. I know it is going to be a dead letter. We have been told that this will be a permissive measure and that unless and until 66 per cent. of the holders agree, the scheme will not be put into operation. Almost all the clauses are objectionable and I hope the select committee will go into them most carefully. I request the Honourable the Leader of the House who has moved this bill to pay his special attention to clauses 31 and 53.

As regards Chapter II, clause 33, I do not see why the revenue patel should assist the consolidation officer as one of the members of the local committee as he will be under the control of the consolidation officer. Therefore an independent person should be selected to assist the consolidation officer.

Mr. F. G. H. ANDERSON: On a point of order, Sir. Almost all sides of the House are eagerly waiting to get through the business as quickly as possible, and I submit that the points which the honourable member is now bringing forward are not matters for the first reading but are points for the select committee to go into, as being points of detail.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: There is no point of order there, but I think the honourable member is perfectly right in drawing the attention of the honourable members to the advisability of limiting their remarks as much as they can.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK: Another thing, the consolidation officer will be sitting with the district judge while hearing the appeals fixing compensation against his decisions. The arbitration officer will also sit with the district judge and another will be appointed by the district judge to sit with him to decide the amount of compensation and other matters in appeal. I think the man who decides first the compensation, etc., should not again sit on the appellate side. There must be some other independent and impartial gentleman with the district judge.

Clauses 50, 51 and other clauses seem also to be objectionable. I hope the honourable mover of this bill will see that all these clauses receive full consideration in the select committee.

I was very much impressed by the admission of the Honourable the Leader of the House on Saturday that the agriculturists are getting poorer and poorer and that they are getting more and more miserable, and further that unprofitable cultivation is not giving any return to them. In spite of this admission I note with considerable regret that when the matter of revision of assessments comes before Government the settlement officers are always found reporting that a particular taluka is the most prosperous taluka and so on. Only three months ago I noticed that in the case of the Chorasi taluka the average acreage of land is 90 per head and an average holding of 5.81 acre per holder. This taluka has 70 per cent. of holdings which are below five acres and even this taluka has been described as the most prosperous taluka and such a report, it is strange to say, received the assent of the Cabinet. I wish to tell the House that there is a certain fear in the minds of many honourable members—although it may be imaginary—that when the consolidation scheme comes into force, thousands will be thrown out of work and as they will have no other occupation to go to, they will go to the land-owners, pay usurious or fictitious rents and take the land on lease which will be entered in the record of rights and which will perhaps be taken advantage of by Government for further enhancing the land revenue. This aspect of the question should also receive the most sympathetic attention of the select committee. It is true, Sir, that if the Honourable the Leader of the House were to be a permanent member of the Cabinet there would be perhaps no grounds for any fear of this kind, but I know that he is not going to be there permanently.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Oh, no. I do not expect to be a member of the Cabinet permanently.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Honourable members will have noticed that I am not in favour of this bill ; as for the second part of this bill, I have no charm at all, but after receiving an assurance from the Honourable the Leader of the House, that he is willing to meet the wishes of the honourable members opposite by mending or ending objectionable clauses of the bill I keep my mind open on the subject till the report of the select committee.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I think that after what the Honourable the Leader of the House has said that there is such a congestion of business, I would specially request honourable members to make brief speeches, although I admit that the question before the House is of such a wide nature that if honourable members are inclined, with matter in their hands, they can speak for hours, but our time would not permit that.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District) : Mr. President, I would not have ventured to further tire the House with any speech of mine but for the importance of the subject matter of the bill. I shall divide the subject matter into four classes. First is the economic problem ; secondly, the bill as it affects, if at all it affects, the general law of property and the Hindu law of inheritance ; thirdly, the first part of the bill which deals with fragmentation, and fourthly, the one which deals with consolidation, and lastly, the consequences which have been apprehended by many honourable members if consolidation is resorted to.

At the outset it must be observed that the bill before the House will be handed down to posterity as an important land-mark in the progress of agriculture. India is principally an agricultural country and the agricultural industry supports nearly 70 per cent. of its population. Agriculture is either a primary or a secondary occupation of nearly 224 millions of India's population. The agricultural problem has a three-fold aspect, the scientific, the economic and the administrative. It will be observed that the administrative problem has been attended to from the earliest times and various laws relate to the survey and collection of revenue, and several other matters regarding land records have received the attention of Government from earliest times, but so far as the other two aspects are concerned, I think very little progress has been made, and therefore it is really a matter of satisfaction that the introduction of this legislation is in accordance with the enquiry which has been set on foot by the appointment of the Royal Commission. The scientific aspect, which is calculated to devise means by which agricultural methods may be improved by the use of modern implements and good seed was, I must say, due not so much to a desire to improve the condition of agriculture but it seems to me that it was due to the distress that was wrought by successive famines. If we look to the history of the Agricultural Department, we shall see that it was the Famine Commission of 1880 which opened the eyes of Government that something is necessary to be done for the improvement of the lot of the agriculturist. Then came the institution of the Agricultural Institute, as well as a few schools and colleges of agriculture. But, after all, so far as the economic part of the thing was concerned, it seems to me no attempt was ever made to improve it, and it is for this reason that this legislation, which aims at improving the economic condition of the agriculturist, should be welcome, as there is no doubt that the evils dealt with in this bill have contributed to bring about the ruin and poverty of the agriculturist.

Now, so far as regards the provisions as they relate to the first part of the bill, that is to say the part dealing with fragmentation, I would suggest that instead of putting the Act into force at once in the whole of the Presidency, Government should consider whether it will not be possible to devise some means by which the Act may be made applicable to certain districts which are well prepared for the application of the bill by reason of the conditions there. The conditions in all the districts of the Bombay Presidency may not be such as to justify the application of the whole Act to them at once. In fact, it would have been better if Government had provided for proceeding gradually by way of experiment in certain districts of the presidency, so as to prepare the ground. Just as in the case of consolidation the matter is left to be decided by a notification, I think it might be so arranged that with regard to fragmentation at first certain districts should be brought under the operation of the Act, and then the Act should be extended to other parts.

Then, Sir, coming to the section dealing with the appointment of committees, in this matter of appointment of committees a great deal has been said and objections have been raised. I think the mamlatdar, for instance, should be made the secretary of this committee. The Collector is made the chairman, and if the committee is to work, the mamlatdar being a public servant, the non-official members of the committee should be enabled to utilise his services. The initiation and the work of preparing the materials for the committee's recommendations must be undertaken by Government Agency. And this brings me to the question of the Revenue Department being a reserved subject. Really speaking, Agriculture, Forests, Revenue, Irrigation and Co-operative

[Rao Bahadur R. R. Kale]

Societies are allied subjects, and really speaking, all these subjects should be in charge of one member who can consider the whole matter himself, without having to refer to another department, and I hope that, with the advent of the Royal Commission, when we are hoping.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I think that is a digression.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : I am only pointing out the difficulty in working out this provision. I think that, if these committees that are to be formed for doing the work of investigation and determining and fixing the standard of units are to be a success, then the servants of the Revenue Department must be responsible to a Minister in charge of the Department. Unless that is so, I am afraid that the measure is not likely to be efficiently worked or worked on popular lines. These are my reasons for submitting, by way of a little digression, that in order to ensure a satisfactory working of the Act it will be necessary to have the present organisation rearranged. We might have a Development Department for the Presidency. No doubt "Bombay Development" has come into bad odour, but with regard to the mofussil, on questions relating to consolidation and fragmentation, there ought to be a department for the whole presidency, organised with a view to carry out the provisions of the bill, because it is feared, and rightly feared, that, in spite of the Act, there will be little progress made in fulfilling the objects of the Act.

Then, Sir, there is one other important matter with regard to fragmentation. I refer to the provision about the Commissioner being the final authority. It seems to me that a recommendation should be made to the Commissioner, and, in case of a difference of opinion, the matter must be referred to Government. In the bill, there is no other remedy provided for in case of a difference of opinion, the Commissioner being made the final authority. That is not satisfactory.

Now, with regard to the leasing of a fragmented holding, the provision in the bill requires careful attention. There is such provision for sales, viz., the right of preemption, and the person who wishes to lease his holding should be given the right to say that the rental should be fixed by having regard to the special circumstances that prevail in the locality and only if the neighbouring lessee is willing to take the land on lease at the same rental which another person is prepared to pay, should he be given the right to insist upon the land being leased to him. So, the clause about leases will have to be altered.

I also find that there is no provision with regard to private partitions. The partitions contemplated by the bill are partitions to be made by the Collector, which occasion arises only if there is a partition suit and a decree is made by the civil court. My submission is that in the case of private partitions, it should be laid down that private partitions should be effected in the same manner as partitions effected by the Collector, and if private partitions are so made that they contravene the provisions of this Act, then they should be declared as void and contrary to public policy. They should not be recognised, and punishment may be necessary in order to enforce this partition. However, that is a matter which I leave to the select committee.

Then I come to consolidation, and here I have to make certain suggestions for the consideration of the House. The part of the bill dealing with consolidation has been objected to on various grounds. My submission is that at first there should be a consolidation, not of the holdings, but of cultivation; then there should be a consolidation of fragments, and lastly should come the consolidation of holdings. What I mean is that, instead of putting an end to the rights of proprietorship of several persons who hold land in the village they may be neighbouring lands or lands spread over the whole village—they should be asked to be associates or tenants in common, so that the lands could be jointly cultivated. Supposing there are 4 people holding land, and they are put together for joint cultivation, each man having a certain share of the land, the right of ownership should be allowed to be there, and the cultivation may be done by arrangement among themselves, and the profit at the end may be distributed among the sharers according to their share. We know, Sir, that not only in this country but in all countries the peasant is attached to his holding, and the fears with regard to the bill entertained in this House and outside are more or less based on this apprehension that if they are asked to give up their ownership of land, there is an end of the whole thing. They will certainly be unwilling to do it. No doubt it is uneconomic and unprofitable, but at the same time they have a right for their little interest in land. I submit, therefore, that we must begin with the consolidation of cultivation rather than with the consolidation of lands, that is to say, there should be tenants in common and after some-time consolidation of families. If a man has got lands scattered over a whole village he must be given land in one place in exchange for those pieces of lands. Lastly when people are prepared we must proceed with the consolidation of holdings—the lands belonging to several persons, if they fall below the unit, they must be sold and purchased by another and thereby the holdings should be consolidated. If we proceed in this way I think the measure will be more popular and will not evoke any opposition as it at presents seems to do.

Then there are certain provisions in this bill which might affect the hereditary rights of the agriculturists—the mirasi rights. They are to be found in clauses 71 and 72. If the lands are acquired under the Land Acquisition Act by Government for the purpose of this Act it will naturally be thought by agriculturists as an encroachment upon their hereditary rights. The agriculturists would think that those lands will be given to another man on a different tenure. This misunderstanding that is likely to be created ought to be removed by the addition of an explanation that nothing contained in this section shall affect the hereditary or the immutable rights of the holders. A provision like this should be added by way of explanation.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I would like to explain that there is no desire on the part of Government whatsoever to change the nature of the rights which the landholders now possess,

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

I shall be very glad to make any changes in the bill in order to make that point clear if necessary.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : I am much obliged to the Honourable the Leader of the House : all I say is that some provision must be embodied in the bill to make that point clear.

I now come to the objection raised on the score of unemployment. I submit as a matter of fact the effect of this bill will be to make the conditions of the agriculturists better. At present an agriculturist who has got a family of five persons to maintain and who has got only half an acre will not be able to derive the fullest profit from the land as he cannot afford to spend much on the improvement of the land. He practically becomes a pauper and must part with his holding. To add to this state of things under the law of partition, which has now come to stay, division goes on without being arrested. If, however, that is an economic holding which is to be made profitable and if the agriculturist will devote his time and labour to his holding in a proper manner and if the holding is sufficient to maintain his family, he will not leave the land. Suppose a man has got a holding which is not profitable. He will find employment in the village. If he is not able to find employment he will go, for instance, to Bombay, earn much more and come back to the village. His interest in his holding will not be lost. In that way we need not fear any unemployment to the villagers.

Now, I want to deal with the question of law. I quite agree that the Hindu law of inheritance is not in any way affected by the provisions of this bill. But there are one or two points which I should like to bring to the notice of this honourable House. The son has a right to the property by birth. A widow has only life interest in the property ; and there will be reversioners whose right will come into being after her death. In the matter of compensation proceedings we shall have to consider not only the person who is the present holder but his sharers, meaning his sons who have a right by birth. If there is a widow who enjoys the land for life she will receive her compensation ; but we shall have to enquire whether there are any reversioners and if there are any that too ought to be taken into consideration before the proceeds of the sale are distributed among the widow and her reversioners. These are no doubt small matters for which provision can be made. There are these difficulties which really do not go to the root of the bill. The Hindu law of succession as it originally existed was that it was a joint family property. This was really to the benefit of the family so long as it was a joint one. The man or woman of the joint family devoted his or her time and labour to the holding and it was properly taken care of. Now, a different state of things has come into existence. We will now by this measure be going back to the old tradition of the joint family. In doing so we must remember that it might make it only a tenancy in common and not a joint tenancy. There will be joint cultivation but the rights should be separately enjoyed. In this way I submit this object may be achieved. With regard to consolidation it is nothing but a revival of the old village community. Just as the joint family was the unit so also the village community was sometimes the unit. The land was distributed among the families so that the needs and welfare of the village were taken care of and the lands were cultivated and the yield was distributed among the families of the village. This was no doubt in ancient times. If the benefits of the bill which will have the effect of consolidation of holdings and prevention of fragmentation are explained to the people I think there will be no objection to this measure on their part.

One word about the analogy of foreign countries. If we look to Norway where the agricultural holdings are small the law I think is to make the holdings profitable as it is intended to be made by this measure. If half an acre is found to be a profitable holding with which a person will be able to maintain his family he should be allowed to hold it. That is the case, as I find, with regard to the agriculturists in Norway, and it seems to me that if there is any surplus population the question raised by my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Naik with regard to colonisation will have to be considered. That will really be outside the scope of this bill, but Government will have to consider that question also in case it arises. Now that there will be the Sukkur Barrage and large tracts of land will come under cultivation, there may be a number of people willing to go there.

I hope that the suggestions I have made and the difficulties I have pointed out will be considered by the select committee. I support the measure.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District) : Sir, I have to offer my sincere congratulations to the Leader of the House, the Honourable Sir Chunilal Mehta. I know that he has been devoting the last five years to the study of this question, and the bill which he has brought forward is a consistent whole. I am very sorry to say, Sir, that I am not quite certain whether it will cure the disease which its honourable framer intends to attack. I have grave misgivings, because the conditions in India are so different from the conditions of Norway and other European countries, that I think the remedy that was found efficacious there may not be found to be equally effective here, but on the contrary may do a deal of harm. I know that there is an amount of organised opposition to this measure, but the honourable mover has taken courage and come forward to place it before this Council. We all recognise his sympathy for the cultivator and his sincere anxiety for their uplift. There is no doubt about his good intentions, and I offer my sincere thanks to him for all that he has done and all that he intends to do. We know that ever since he took upon himself to work the Reforms in 1921 and accepted the portfolio of Agriculture and Excise, his one aim has been to do some good to the public, to ameliorate the condition of the masses, and as far as possible to eradicate the vices and the cankers that were eating into their vitals. We know his excise policy. It has been continued up to this time, and I shall not be far wrong if I say that it is bearing its fruit, and I hope that that policy will be continued and this Presidency, at all events, will one day go dry.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : This is all very complimentary to the Leader of the House, but will the honourable member come to the subject ?

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : He has done, Sir, much for the spread of co-operation, and I think in this bill he has been very keen to make use of the co-operative movement. He has done much to develop the forests and the fisheries which are likely to supply very good and cheap manure for our agriculture.

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI : Sir, I rise to a point of order.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : I am not going to yield.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : If there is a point of order, the honourable member will have to yield.

Khan Saheb A. M. MANSURI : Sir, is the honourable member in order in not referring to the bill and beating about the bush ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The honourable member will not be in order if he discourses on subjects which are not under discussion. There is a specific matter before the House, and that is the motion for the first reading of this particular bill.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Sir, I bow to your ruling, but I have to point out that there is a good deal of misunderstanding and mistrust about this bill, and I want to show the consistent way in which the honourable member has all along been pursuing his policy in the interest of the ryots. I am going to call upon his opponents not to judge him with mistrust, but to consider his conduct as a whole, what he has done and what he is doing at present for the amelioration of the condition of the agriculturists. But, Sir, I will not take much of the time of the House. As Revenue Member he has left his mark by his famine policy. He has been continuing on the same lines, and now he has brought forward this fragmentation bill.

Everybody in this House, Sir, is agreed that the ryot is poverty-stricken. I am very sorry to say that his poverty is on the increase and not on the decrease. I may point out that the poverty of the ryot results in the general poverty of the whole country, as trade and industry cannot thrive owing to the low purchasing power of the agriculturists. So, in order to improve the condition of the country as a whole, it is necessary that the ryot or the cultivator should be made prosperous also. The causes of this poverty are many, but the chief one is want of education. I am not going to take any time of the House dilating on this subject, but I only say that I place this one cause in the forefront of my argument.

Mr. G. I. PATEL : Sir, I rise to a point of order. Is the honourable member in order in digressing from the subject so often before the House ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The honourable member is not digressing now. I wish these small points of order were not raised.

Mr. G. I. PATEL : What have we to do with all these ?

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : I am sorry to say that the honourable member for the Ahmedabad Millowners' Association is showing, what shall I say.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Will the honourable member proceed and say nothing in that direction ?

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Sir, if the honourable member will persist in raising such points of order, I shall have to give a piece of my mind.

Another cause of the rayat's poverty, Sir, is his extravagant expenditure on observances of social and religious ceremonies. I am not going to describe these also, but I merely mention them, and honourable members will do well to show me some patience. The third cause is, I think, the lack of subsidiary industries. The honourable member for Surat district has pointed out, Sir, that there are no subsidiary industries nowadays by which the agriculturist can supplement his scanty resources, and that that is materially affecting his prosperity. Then, there is very heavy pressure on the land, as all industries have declined and the artisan classes have been forced to take to agriculture, and consequently there is impoverishment all round.

This has resulted in fragmentation. Each one has got a small piece of land to cultivate. In England only 9 per cent. of the population is engaged in agricultural pursuits and therefore they have got big farms which are economic and the farmers and their families live in comfort and happiness. But in India nearly 70 to 80 per cent. of the population is engaged in agriculture and it is therefore no wonder that agriculture is not remunerative. An average farmer has not got sufficient land to cultivate, and therefore it does not engage his whole time. Cultivation cannot therefore be undertaken in the proper way and consequently the produce is decreasing. This has resulted in the fall of wages and an increase in poverty.

Another cause, Sir, which the honourable mover of this bill has given as the principal cause is the fragmentation of holdings and according to him if this cause is removed the condition of the ryot would improve. I am sorry I do not agree with him, but I admit that this is one of the causes of the poverty of the rayat. In the case of fragmentation Bombay is not so bad as other provinces as will be evident from the following figures. A cultivator or a farmer has on an average in Bombay 12·15 acres, while in the Punjab he has 9·18. In Central Provinces and Berar it is 8·48, Bengal 3·09 and United Provinces 2·51. Of course in Bengal there is a good deal of rice lands and the rice lands being very productive can support a very large population and consequently the average acreage there is lower. So also in the United Provinces which I think has rich well irrigated lands and the farmers there can do with small bits. There are 308 persons in the Bombay Presidency per square mile and in certain of the divisions there is heavy pressure upon land. In Konkan there are 509 persons to a square mile, while in Gujarat the average comes to 357. Karnatak has 263 persons to a square mile, Deccan 186 and Sind 124.

If we take the various districts in the presidency the district of Kanara which the honourable mover pointed out was very much afflicted by fragmentation, maintains a population of 1,200 persons per square mile. In Kaira the number is 581. Bijapur which is always famine stricken has 186 persons to a square mile. Even in one district the population varies from taluka to taluka. In the taluka of Mawal in the Poona district the population per square mile is 319 while in Dhond it is 189. I have quoted these figures to show that even within the same district conditions differ so much that a great deal of care will have to be taken in determining the unit of profitable cultivation, or the standard unit as it is called. Because conditions vary from place to place one unit which will do for a certain place will not do for another.

Sir, there are two parts to this bill. The first part is intended to stop further fragmentation and the second is consolidation or re-stripping. I am in favour of the second, that is re-stripping of land or consolidation. It has been found that whenever brothers divide the fields among themselves, they divide each and every field or plot into as many pieces as there are sharers. In this way every brother comes to possess three or four pieces of land in different parts of the village. Sometimes this is inevitable but oftentimes it can be avoided, and a compact piece might be allotted to each brother. So I think that if a law is passed to consolidate or encourage consolidation of holding it will be a very good thing and this problem I suggest should be tackled first. The fragmentation of holdings has got a bad effect upon the economy of the village. One evil is that the cultivator does not get sufficient work all the year round and the remuneration that he gets from his labour in the fields is very insignificant. As he has not got sufficient work he has to work for others in the village or in a neighbouring town to supplement his income from land. This results in inferior cultivation because he cannot devote proper attention to the tilling of the soil and cannot take advantage of the right seasons.

There is a very great rise in the indebtedness also. From the enquiries that have been made by Dr. Mann and others it is found that the ryot is losing the ownership of land very rapidly and the time is not far distant when the majority of the land will be taken away from his hands and will go into the hands of those whose interest in it is to get as much rent as they can and who can well be described as absentee landlords. The extent to which the rack-renting system goes on will be evident from the fact that the rent exacted from the ryots ranges oftentimes between two and six times of the assessment and sometimes even higher.

This question of preserving economic holdings has been engaging the attention of our legislators from a very ancient time. People in the olden times had recognised that it was necessary to preserve the size and therefore keep down number of farms in a locality. They have in one instance at least succeeded in preventing any increase or decrease in both the size of the farms and the number of occupants. This has resulted in keeping the population stationary.

The development of society has been in consequence arrested and therefore it is not a desirable system and one would not recommend it for other places. There is, Sir, a valley in the Punjab where the system is practised up to the present day. In that valley the number of inhabitants is almost stationary. The number of holdings remains the same and the size of the farm has not increased or decreased for centuries. It may be called a happy land. But those conditions cannot be repeated in any other place, and the system is quite unsuited to modern civilization. The other instance of an ancient system, Sir, is the biradari tenure of the Punjab and the U. P. Under that tenure the land of the village was distributed periodically among the cultivating families, and in that way the farms were kept within reasonable bounds and each family got sufficient to cultivate ; with the result that the village community thrived and prospered. If the number of members in a family decreased, then of course, so much land was not required for them and it was given to those families in which the number of members had increased. The third system, Sir, is the South Indian system, under the matriarchal law. There, the extent of the tarwad is kept the same as no divisions are allowed. But the consideration of these instances will be of no use in this Presidency as these systems are quite unsuited to the genius of our people and out of keeping with their traditions.

I may at this stage, Sir, raise a question which has only an academic importance : whether the ryot is the owner of the land or is a mere tenant ; in other words whether the assessment he has to pay is rent or tax. I think this question has not been finally determined. But I want to point out, Sir, that as the bill is not going to apply to inam lands at all, it raises the presumption that according to the framer of the bill,—(Mr. B. G. Pahalajani : It will apply to inam lands)—I am under the impression that it does not apply to inam lands ; I am open to correction. If it does not apply to inam lands and only applies to rayatwari lands it raises the presumption that lands belong to the Sovereign and not to the ryot. (Interruption). You may think over it. . . . .

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order. Will the honourable member proceed ?

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : The honourable mover of the bill, Sir, assured the House that he wants to preserve the sturdy independent proprietor and cultivator as he is the backbone of the country. Everything I submit ought to be done for preserving the small proprietor in comfort and out of debt. That sturdy peasant, the peasant proprietor as he is called, helped to found the Maratha Empire, and his decline has been the decline of the country. "The magic of property can turn sand into gold," but that magic of property is slipping out of the hands of the peasant. His indebtedness is on the increase and all the efforts of the Government have been rather detrimental to his interests and they are helping the sowkar and not the ryot. Government sometimes have made laudable attempts for the amelioration of the ryots. They introduced restricted tenure under which the tenant was not at liberty to alienate his land. The representatives of the moneyed classes, Sir, at that time were in the Legislative Council and they strenuously opposed the measure with the consequence that since that time, nearly half of the land has slipped out of the hands of the cultivator. I think that attempt of restricting alienation should be tried again. According to the present ideas the ryot or the owner of the land has got full ownership and an unrestricted right of transfer is vested in him. This has indirectly led to his poverty and at the same time to heavy indebtedness. I would point out, Sir, that in zamindari villages in Bengal and the Malguzari villages in the C. P. and Berar the ryot or cultivator has got no right of proprietorship over the land he cultivates. His condition is not very prosperous, but at the same time it may be pointed out that his indebtedness to the sowkar is insignificant. As he has got no credit, because he owns no land, so the sowkar will not grant him any credit at all. The consequence is that the ryot has to do without incurring debts and, therefore, he is almost free from debt. The proprietary right over land has provided credit for the ryot and on account of his improvident habits he often goes to the sowkar, and that has led him into ruin. If he is to be saved against himself, this right of unrestricted alienation should be kept under check. Certain arguments were advanced in favour of the right of transfer. It is said that it is desirable that land should pass into hands of men with capital who will improve it permanently, will invest more capital in manure and other improvements of the soil, and therefore the produce will increase. They point out that if this is done, the ryot will get higher wages and consequently he will enjoy a higher standard of life. These are theories advanced to support the unrestricted right of transfer. But, what is the real experience, Sir? The sowkar rarely spends money in improvements. He simply cares for a return on his investment. The moneyed classes invest their money in the purchase or in the mortgage of land and do not care to see how it is cultivated. Many a time they do not even live in the villages and all the evils of absentee landlordism have to be suffered. Rackrenting is practised on an extensive scale. Consequently poverty is on the increase. The ryot is chronically indebted.

I shall here, Sir, read a paragraph from the report of the enquiry of the village of Jategaon carried on by Dr. Mann and Mr. Kanitkar :

"The total amount of indebtedness of the 147 men in the village in 1919 was Rs. 29,000 odd. Of this Rs. 16,700 was on landed security ; Rs. 11,495 was on personal security ; and Rs. 2,150 on the security of their houses."

In the case of those who had no land to pawn, even their houses or huts were mortgaged.

"The rates of interest vary from 12 to 75 per cent. and the majority of loans bear interest of 20 per cent. per annum. The debts on landed security amount to 53·7 per cent."

Then the story of a sowcar is given. He had no land, he was in debt. After his father's death he accompanied as a young man a number of villagers to Bombay where they went for work 30 or 40 years ago. While in Bombay he worked as a confectioner preparing sweetmeats and selling them to the labourers.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : Is this all in order, Sir ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I understand that the honourable member is, I feel, speaking on the subject before the House but approaching the question from what I think very long routes. But I should, however, again bring to his mind that the House expects every honourable member who wishes to speak under those circumstances to address himself on the question before the House. I should like to draw a line between the very huge question of the causes of poverty of the agriculturists and this Bill before the House. Honourable members should either speak against it or support it briefly and if they speak against it, they should point out where they go against it and if they enter into the history of each subject having the slightest bearing on the Bill, every honourable member here, in his learned way, may go into all and various aspects of questions which affect the agriculturists of the Bombay Presidency : and in that case there will be no end to the discussion.

[The President]

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : I am pointing out that when once the ryot gets into debt, he cannot get out, and as the Bill is enacting a provision of taking him into debt under takavi, etc., I shall have to point out that it will be very difficult for him to get out of that debt and ultimately he will have to lose the land. I am coming to that point ; but I find, Sir, that some of the members of this House, especially on my left and behind me, are rather impatient.

I shall point out that in the village of Roth out of 192 acres of cultivable land that once belonged to its inhabitants, as much as 111 acres are held at present by the absentee landlords. According to the village register, about 78 acres only are held by cultivating farmers. When one is told that out of these 78 acres as much as 64 acres or so have been already mortgaged, one need not be much of a prophet to predict that within a few years the whole village land will pass away from the hands of the villagers and all of them will be reduced to the position of mere tenants at will.

The process is going on everywhere in the Konkan as well as on the Ghats. I may suggest here that certain remedies are urgently needed to improve the condition of the ryot if this legislation is to be passed at the same time. The transfer of land should be restricted to the actual cultivators. Land should not be attached or sold in the execution of money decrees. In the Punjab and the United Provinces such legislation has been passed and is in force. In this Bill there is a clause that the neighbouring owner should get the right of pre-emption or should have the right of taking a strip of land, etc. I want to point out that the neighbouring cultivator, not a mere landlord, should enjoy the preferential right under the present legislation, because this legislation ought not to aim at advancing the interests of the absentee landlord.

As I said, Sir, I am in favour of consolidating holdings and re-striping. But here I shall point out that as in Japan all the expenses should be borne by Government and should not fall on the ryots.

There is a misapprehension among some of the honourable members that this Bill is in the interests of the monied classes, that Government intend to create very big holdings so that labour-saving machinery could be employed in cultivation and some people say that this Bill aims at encouraging the manufacturers of foreign countries. I do not share this view, but at the same time I wish to point out that in this Bill care should be taken that land does not accumulate in the hands of monied classes. I would point out the necessity of prescribing the maximum limit beyond which a man should not be allowed to hold land. The Bill has made provision for prescribing a standard unit that is a minimum unit, but I wish to point out it is equally necessary that extensive pieces of land should not be allowed to accumulate in the hands of individuals or in the hands of corporations and, therefore, a limit should be placed on the maximum holding also. I do not mean to say that those who are holding land at present above that maximum limit should be expropriated and their lands distributed among the ryots. But I would suggest that by law they should not be allowed to acquire more land. They may enjoy the lands they actually have. There is no question of distributing it among the ryots or among others. But I would point out that it is equally necessary that at the time of prescribing a minimum unit there should be a maximum limit to the holding and I suggest that for that purpose ten or fifteen times the standard minimum unit should be laid down as the maximum holding.

In a country like India where labour is cheap and abundant, the introduction of labour-saving machinery may do harm. Unemployment, fall in wages and fall in purchasing power will be the result and as a consequence other industries in the country will also suffer. It cannot be denied that fragmentation has gone on too far. But the ryots are so much attached to the pieces of land they own that they do not wish to give up their cultivation and if the standard unit is made of a reasonable size, the figures collected by the honourable mover of the Bill as well as by the honourable member from Surat go to show that a very large number of people will be debarred from cultivation and will be turned into labourers pure and simple. This will be a very great calamity. In other countries the surplus population is sent to the colonies. And colonisation should also be tried here. As Sind is very sparsely populated, it will be the duty of Government to take up the question to see whether the surplus population of Gujarat, the Deccan and the Konkan can be sent to till the waste lands in Sind.

As a consequence of this Bill the rents will go down, because the pieces will have to be rented to the neighbouring cultivators, and as their number will be very small, the law of demand and supply will operate and rents will fall. If rents fall, the prices of land will also fall, and that will cause a great loss to the owners of land.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : What about assessment ?

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Government is not so very eager to reduce assessments. If they do, they will be doing but bare justice, but I am sure Government will not do that, and, in that case, the owner of a strip will not be able to get the real price, as the demand will be restricted.

I have to draw the attention of the House to a provision which has been made that, when a holding is partitioned among the brothers or among the sharers in future, care will be taken that each share will not fall below a standard unit. When the land is so small as cannot be divided into standard units the whole will have to be given to some or even to one of them, and the others will be given compensation in money for their shares. For this purpose, the fortunate brother who will be given the holding will be provided with the necessary funds by the grant of takavi. Some may be tempted to look upon him as a lucky fellow, as he will be left in possession and enjoyment of the ancestral property. But we have to take into consideration that he will have to bear the heavy burden of paying interest every year. We already know that the surplus profits from agriculture are not considerable, in the Deccan at all events. I am afraid, Sir, that that fortunate brother will not be able to liquidate his debt in the near future, and if there are one or two bad years, then he is utterly done for. He will have to surrender his ancestral land for the clearance of his debts. So, the two, or three, or four brothers of his who were deprived of their right in the land and were given money compensation will be landless men from the time of the partition. They will have frittered away their patrimony by this time, and this man who was left in possession of the whole land will not even have the consolation of getting the price of his share. He will lose not only his share but the shares of all his brothers that came to him, in consequence of the operation of this Act. So I think this Bill is likely to result in depriving the actual agriculturists of the ownership of land, and thus may cause more harm than good. When old fragments are purchased by neighbouring cultivators and new fragments are avoided by giving the price to the other sharers, the purchasers will have to be provided with funds as tagavi. And, as I have just explained, it will be very difficult for the agriculturist to repay the tagavi loan. The revenue authorities know that, whenever tagavi is given in the famine stricken districts, it is very difficult to recover the whole of it, and many a time the poor ryot has to sell away his patrimony in order to clear the debt of the tagavi which he received from Government. The process has been going on for a long time, and the process will continue, and in that way the poor agriculturist will be deprived of his ancestral land, and he will be expropriated, more rapidly in the course of the operation of this Act.

Now, I shall make a few observations about the clauses of the Bill. I think the term "cultivator" should be properly defined. The standard unit should be fixed very low, in order to cause as little disturbance as possible. The different plots in various survey numbers should be taken into consideration. As the Bill now stands the area of each plot is taken into consideration in determining whether it is a fragmented holding or not. What I say is that when an owner owns 3, or 4, or 5 or more plots in the same village, the area of all those plots should be taken into consideration when declaring whether his holding is fragmented or not; each separate piece or parcel of land should not at all be taken into consideration. The man may have an economic holding, the honourable member put it yesterday, but it may be scattered in various places. It is for the Government to consolidate all those pieces, and when that consolidation takes place it will be an economic holding. So, before that consolidation there is no justice in depriving the man of all his pieces of land, because, under the present Act, he will not be allowed to deal with all these pieces separately.

Then, Sir, in the Konkan for instance, the cultivation of rice lands requires also the possession of some acres of warkas land, and, therefore, both these must go together. In such a case, even in consolidation a man cannot be given only one kind of land, because the proper cultivation of rice land necessitates the possession of warkas land also, and both of them cannot always be found together. Above the ghats, especially on the river side, it is absolutely necessary for an agriculturist to possess at least a small strip in the mali or alluvial land. It supplies him with fodder for his cattle, and there are certain other amenities. If that man is deprived of that little strip of land as according to the definition of a fragmented holding it is an area below the standard unit, then his possession of a big piece of land somewhere else will not be to him of as much use or profit as it would be with that small strip of mali land. In the same way, in the villages there are some lands which are useful only for grazing cattle, and there are some lands which are useful only for cultivating bajri or jowari. All these things ought to be taken into consideration and the land divided accordingly. In the Punjab the conditions are quite different, and are not the same as those to be found in the Deccan.

In the Deccan the quality of land varies from place to place and sometimes the possession of three different grades of land may be necessary. The ideal of a compact unit, therefore, should not be insisted upon in every case, but changes should be made according to the necessities of the situation.

With regard to clause 12 the word 'neighbour' should be qualified by the word 'cultivating,' because a law should not be passed to favour an absentee landlord or capitalist. If the actual cultivator is benefitted there is some justification. If the law will operate to the detriment of the actual cultivator and will favour the moneyed classes or absentee landlords I would raise a strong protest against it.

In conclusion I urge upon Government to push on primary education and introduce agricultural and industrial bias in the curriculum to encourage thrift among the people, to eliminate absentee landlordism, and to enact tenancy laws defining rights of tenants. The absentee landlord should be compelled either to farm his lands himself or at least to reside in the village. More lands should be reclaimed by drainage, by adjustment of boundaries, and by exchange of broken parts, which this Bill calls consolidation, and by creating demand for more agricultural labour through irrigation. There should be restriction of transfer of land to non-agriculturists. Here I may point out that this demand is not a communal one. The man who cultivates his land is a cultivator, irrespective of the community to which he belongs. There is no question of caste or creed in this. The acreage of each holding should be restricted by a maximum limit. This will have the effect of not making them depend on others in cultivation of their land.

[Mr. B. V. Jadhav]

I think that the second part of the bill, if it is properly administered and if the agriculturists are taught to appreciate the benefits of consolidation will do a lot of good. But I am very diffident about the success of the first part. I am led to believe that the first part, if insisted upon, will lead to great hardship and result in very serious expropriation. I have, therefore, to oppose the bill.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: As there are many honourable members who wish to speak it is but necessary that they must limit their remarks. Honourable members know the limit of debate at the first reading.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District): Sir, I rise to oppose the first reading of the bill. It is un-Christian. It is against the tenet of Christian religion. It is based on the un-Christian principle "to him who hath more shall be given, and from him who hath very little very little that he has got will be taken away from him." I wish first of all to illustrate the principle of the bill I have just enunciated. I shall refer the Honourable Member who has introduced the bill to clause 57:

"Alienated land shall always be separately demarcated and shall not be included in any consolidation scheme."

I wish also to refer to the following passage in the statement of objects and reasons:—

"The provisions of the bill will not apply to inam lands because of the inherent rights attaching to such lands."

The inamdars, the jagirdars and talukdars and other people who possess vast pieces of land shall not be touched. If the honourable the leader of the House has the welfare of the masses at heart he should have come forward with a bill to distribute all the lands of the village equally among the people. Then certainly he would have done good to the people. If he brings forward a consolidation scheme by which a village consisting of 900 acres, of which 400 acres are owned by 40 persons and 500 acres are owned by one man, should be distributed among the 41 persons of the village equally then I can understand it and appreciate that he has got the good of the people at heart. But here the inamdars are not to be touched and he has not got the courage to bring a legislation to give more land to the man who has got very little. No, that he would not. Even as the law at present stands the man in a ryotwari tenure who cultivates his land as the owner has the possession of the land and nobody can disturb his possession so long as he pays the land revenue to Government. Section 73 of the Land Revenue Code has given him that right. That precious right is going to be disturbed by means of this legislation. This is a very valuable right and it is why people of native states and other places come to take up khalsa lands because they possess that right of possession. Section 73 says:

"An occupancy shall, subject to the provisions contained in section 56, and to any conditions lawfully annexed to the tenure, and save as otherwise prescribed by law be deemed an inheritable and transferable property."

Nobody can touch this right as the law at present stands. In future he will be deprived of this valuable right, and his lands will be taken by his rich neighbours. He will not be taken care of by the Honourable the

[Mr. J. C. Swaminarayan]

Finance Member. Born with a silver spoon in his mouth, fed and brought up in palatial buildings of Bombay he is not able to understand the miseries of the ryots living in villages. But an I. C. S. officer who has risen from the lowest rung of the ladder and has moved among the rural people must be in a position to understand the real condition of the people living in the villages. If the I. C. S. officers sitting here to-day will lay their hands on their hearts and speak out their real opinion, I think they will oppose this bill down-right. If clause 4 of this bill is passed, the Collector, the Deputy Director of Agriculture and three members of the District Local Board sitting in a bungalow will decide the fate of hundreds of villages of the district. That is exactly the position in that clause. They are so very eager to put it into operation that "as soon as practicable" has been inserted. The committee will be formed; it will prescribe standard limits and report to the Commissioner, and the Commissioner will decide the fate of the villages. Therefore, the Collectors realise that such a thing is not possible to be done and they themselves do not know how much additional cost will be involved. So many entries have to be made and so many matters gone into before the committee sits within closed doors and decides the fate of the villages.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Will not the Collector be an I. C. S. officer ?

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Therefore, he does not like this bill to be passed into law. He knows the difficulties of the people and he realises how people live in the villages. Sir, I now want to point out how this bill affects the land revenue system that is in vogue in this Presidency. Sir, I have to point out the intimate connection between this bill and the way in which land revenue enhancement is carried on in this presidency. This is a very important point and I appeal to rural members to pay very great attention to what I am going to say and then do what they like and decide the fate of the poor agriculturists in the villages. Sir, when the Government of India Act was passed the Joint Parliamentary Committee recommended that in every province the principles of land revenue revisions should be settled by the legislature. Now that important bill is being delayed, and those principles are not being allowed to be settled by this House. This House passed a resolution in 1924, and Government appointed a committee. That committee has reported. That report is in my hands. No bill settling those important principles has been brought forward, but this bill is brought forward. Sir, I shall point out to you one important recommendation that has been made and endorsed by all the members of the committee, including the highest officers of this Presidency who have specially incorporated it in their minute of dissent.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Do you mean Commissioners ?

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Yes. These are the important words : "The revision of assessment of land revenue shall be based upon rental, but regard shall also be had to the general economic conditions and history of the tract." That minute is signed by Mr. L. J. Mountford, Mr. G. W. Hatch, Mr. J. H. Garrett (the Commissioners of the three divisions), Mr. F. G. H. Anderson, the Settlement Commissioner, Mr. A. R. Dalal, and Mr. K. S. Framji. These officers have recommended in a minute of dissent that the revision of assessment shall be based on rental but regard shall also be had to the general economic conditions and history of the tract. That is the reason why in every settlement report paragraphs are written giving in detail the economic conditions and the history of the tract. In his report on the Viramgam taluka settlement officer Mr. H. V. Braham has gone through all these details; he has given the history of the tract; he has considered the situation from the various points of view, and he has described the taluka—I am using his own words—"A generally flat treeless expanse of rather inferior black soil, imperfectly drained and heavily impregnated with salt, is a more or less accurate epitome." Such is the condition of the taluka—it is heavily impregnated with salt and not a tree grows there. Mr. Braham has gone there, and he has seen it. You see there is no fertile soil, and therefore there cannot be any rich crop. The only crops he has stated in the report are, juari, bajri, wheat and cotton. No other crop can grow there. (The Honourable Dewan Bahadur Harilal D. Desai: What else do you want?) He has also pointed out:

[Mr. J. C. Swaminarayan]

"The great drought of 1899 especially had far-reaching effects on the agricultural prosperity of the taluka from which, aggravated as they were by subsequent failures of the monsoon in 1901, 1911, 1915 and 1918, it has not yet recovered."

That is the condition of the taluka and that is the history of the taluka. That is the condition as described by an I. C. S. officer. That officer has gone into all these details, he has given a summary of the economic conditions in his report and recommended that the enhancement should be within very moderate limits. Sir, you will permit me to read the summary of the officer.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member began by saying that he is going to connect the land revenue system with this bill. I should like him to point out how and where he connects the two. Then alone his reference would be relevant; otherwise he would be discussing the assessment question just now, which is outside the scope of the discussion.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Sir, there is vital connection between this and the assessment question. I shall just connect both those things. I want to point out the summary that has been taken into account by His Excellency the Governor in Council. (Mr. F. G. H. Anderson: Just show the connection first). I quote from the summary:

"Irregular and imperfectly distributed rainfall and an unsatisfactory vital record, both centering in the calamity of 1899-1900 which caused a general set-back to the prosperity of the taluka from which it has not yet fully recovered; an unprecedented rise in the cost of living and of cultivation and the inability of a large number of villages during the greater part of the settlement period to bear the increase in the assessment rates imposed at the last revision. A consideration of this history leads me to the conclusion that, although on the whole the present condition of the taluka is such as to justify some further enhancement of these rates now, this enhancement should be confined within moderate limits,"

[Mr. J. C. Swaminarayan]

Sir, the officer reports that it must be within moderate limits and though the officer suggested an increase of 7·78 in the total revenue of the taluka Government come forward and say that—

“He, however, did not approve his rates and suggested higher rates for dry crop land based principally on the statistics of the sales and rental values in the Government villages which the Settlement Officer had compiled, but had not taken adequately into consideration in framing his proposals.”

I challenge this statement. The Settlement Officer has taken into consideration the history of the taluka and the economic condition of the taluka and suggested an increase which the taluka will be able to pay. Government take into consideration only the statistics of sales and the rental values and increase the assessment by 29 per cent. You know, Sir, how the rental statistics increase. It is because people have got great attachment to their lands and when they are in a bad condition they do not sell the land, but they actually pass a sale deed though it is really a mortgage deed in order to take possession of the land at a future date. This is done by the sowcars in order to evade the Deccan Agriculturists' Relief Act. This is what one of their own officers has said :

“In this taluka there is mostly the practice to have sale documents executed though in fact they are really mortgages. The person who executes the deed is mostly in possession and passes a rent note for the amount just to cover the interest. This is I think to escape from the Deccan Agriculturists' Relief Act and the Income Tax Act.”

And how many sowcars have Government prosecuted though they know that the sowcar evades these Acts ? The agriculturists are illiterate, they do not know the law. The Talukdari Act was brought into operation 39 years ago and now so many talukdars are selling their lands and so many cultivators are purchasing those lands. What happens is that after the sales are done in contravention of the Talukdari Act, after five or six years the Collector comes forward and asks the cultivators to give back the lands to the talukdar. I have asked various questions and the replies of Government are that they are helpless. These are the intricacies of the law and how can these illiterate men know these intricacies ? He would not know that he has to sell his land to his neighbour and he does not know that he should not cultivate the land if it is fragmented. So he would cultivate that land and if the neighbour files a suit he will have to pay a fine of Rs. 50. That is the way how the land will pass into the hands of the moneyed class and capitalists and the result of that will be that the cultivators who cultivate the soil will have to pay heavy prices for getting back the land. The reason of higher statistics of rental values is due to the attachment which the cultivator has for his lands. But now when this law is enacted the cultivator will be compelled to part with the land. Do you know, Sir, the attachment which the cultivator has for his lands ? In the Mulshi Petha people were deprived of their lands and they struggled and fought and they observed civil disobedience. So many are rotting in jail. Here by this enactment we are depriving people of their land. The result will be that rental statistics and sale statistics will be increased and will be utilized at some future date for the purpose of enhancing the land revenue. Mr. Bakhtiar who wrote the supplementary report says :

"On account of the attachment which the cultivator has for his lands, when he invests his savings in land he does so little thinking that the amount invested would bring reasonable return by way of profit in fact he does not care whether he would get interest or not. The case of an agriculturist here differs from that of a businessman who would think twice before he invests his money in any concern and he would do so only when he thinks that he would realise at least a good return for the capital that he invests."

It is in this way how the sowcars are making profits out of the agriculturists. When they find that they are realising good amount they make a business out of it. This bill would enable the businessman to do business out of the provisions of this bill.

Sir, I have pointed out the attachment which the ryot has to his land. This is what the Maharashtra Co-operative Institute has said on the subject :—

"The effect of the bill would be to convert the agricultural villages into villages of labourers, the owners being mostly capitalists residing in the towns and cities."

"The Bill does not seem to recognise the great personal attachment that the owners of the small holdings have for their ancestral piece of land and does not contemplate any measures to assist the owner of small holdings in making his holding economic."

The Honourable Leader of the House gave the instance of 2 acres of land held by 8 people who cultivated it by rotation. Now the honourable Leader did not go and give them advice that they should cultivate the land in rotation. They have got wisdom and let them use that wisdom, but do not come forward and enact a bill to deprive them of their lands. This is a matter, Sir, which has to be done by persuasion. The Honourable Minister for Education yesterday in reply to a question from the honourable member Mr. Bechar said that in the case of admission of depressed classes in schools persuasion should be used. In this case the philosophy comes in and the Honourable Minister says "use persuasion" and when the question of the small holdings bill comes in they say "no, the owner shall be compelled and the provisions of this law will be compulsorily applicable to them." Government have got two sets of balances. In the case of depressed classes they say "use persuasion" and in this instance they say "there shall be compulsion to deprive them of what they have got." This bill strikes at the root of the ryotwari system and Government do not like Gujarat and Deccan as they have got ryotwari tenure. They want to convert it into zamindari tenure and I will appeal to honourable members who represent the people of rural areas to be very careful when they vote on this bill. Because they should understand the interests of the poor persons. They must not legislate against poor persons. If they would legislate against both the rich and the poor, I would be the first man to support the bill. But they have not the courage to do that. The interest of the privileged classes is very strong for them. There may be a hue and cry about the rights of the privileged classes. There are so many of them, and if they stand up against them and say "Bring up a proposal for consolidation of the whole of the land of all the people and all will get equally distributed," have they got the courage to do it? No. But they would come forward with a bill in which the poor people will be deprived of their land ! It is not the purpose of Government to decide whether the cultivation should be profitable or not. Whether it is profitable or not, it is for them to decide because they will take to some subsidiary work. A Dhed or a Bhangi in a village might be very glad to have a land of 2 bighas. He will cultivate it and carry on his sustenance by supplementing it by hand-loom weaving. There are different scales to be applied for considering different conditions. Those conditions vary in the same village. They vary from village to village. And supposing you say advanced classes men, say a Bania, wants to take up 50 acres for the purpose of making improvements, he will not be able to do it so very effectively because he has to depend on others' labour, because he has to employ labour, while a man who has 5 acres of land will be able to maintain his family, because he works on his land, his wife works on the land, his child works on the land, and he himself gets the fruit of all his labour. This is the independence that he has enjoyed, and he is going to be deprived of that independence ! Sir, at present there is none to come in his way. As long as he pays his land revenue, nobody can deprive him of his piece of land. But here, what will happen ? As soon as under section 10 a notice is sent to him that his holding has been entered as a fragmented holding, then it does away with his independence. Sooner or later he shall have to part with his land. The honourable member Mr. Jadhav pointed out that on account of various causes, for the purpose of paying land revenue, for the purpose of paying his sowkar, or for the purpose of doing many other things, buying his seed, etc., he has to incur debts. Now, he will not be able to mortgage his land ; he will not be able to sell his land. If he has to sell it, he will have to sell it to his neighbour ; he will have to mortgage it to his neighbour. And you know how the neighbour always sets his eye on the neighbouring land. And as soon as he is compelled to mortgage or sell to his neighbour, do you think he will be able to get back his land from that neighbour ? No. He will have to go to the mills in Bombay, or perhaps, if Government or other agency are sending labour from Bombay presidency to Assam, he will have to go there. There have been questions in this House about sending labour to Assam, and Government have themselves said that if the labourers wish to go to Assam, let them go there. But have they got an agent in Assam to see how this labour is being helped afterwards, how it is looked after, and so on ? No. Just after a hundred years, the Right Honourable Srinivas Sastri has been sent to South Africa as agent for taking care of the people who are sent there from India, and perhaps one result of that has been to repatriate those persons carefully back so that they may come back. Now, when this is the condition, everybody would like to have 50 acres of land. But what can he do ? He has not got it. Until you are sufficiently strong enough to find place for these people in industries here or send them to Australia or South Africa, where land is plenty, you should not deprive the poor agriculturist of what little he has got. I should appeal to the honourable members who are coming from Sind that they should not callously support this measure, this confiscatory measure. It is confiscatory for the small landholder, not for the people who have got big plots of land. They will get the benefit of it. The man with a big plot will increase the price of his land. But the small landholder will be deprived of what little that he possesses. Therefore, I appeal to honourable members who come from Sind to think very calmly before they throw in their vote in favour of or against the poor ryots of Gujarat, Deccan and Kanara. Sir, this is a very important measure, and some of the provisions are so very drastic that the cultivators will be inviting trouble for them for nothing. Sir, do you know what powers have been given to the Consolidation Officer? He is to be the monarch of all that he surveys. He will be, I think, more powerful than the Arbitration Officer of the Town Planning Act. Sir, he will be practically the ruler of everything that he surveys as soon as he is appointed Consolidation Officer in a village. And if you look at clause 34, look at the whole farce that is going to be enacted, you will see that it says :

“The consolidation officer shall, in the proceedings under this Act, so far as may be, consult these three persons, but shall not be bound by their opinions.”

He will consult three persons selected from the village, but he will not be bound by their opinion. Even if the people say that “this is not good in our interests,” still he says, “No, it is for your good and we shall do it.” At the same time, look at the power that is given to the consolidation officer. He will be able to summon everybody who has an interest in the land. And if he is some ignorant cultivator who has so much work that he has to work from 4 o'clock in the morning to 10 o'clock in the night, he will be so busy with his work that he will not be able to come. And suppose he does not come up, then, what are the sections of the Indian Penal Code that are brought against him?

“If a holder or a person having an interest in the land to be consolidated and red-tributed fails to appear or attend at the time and place required by such officer, he shall be deemed to have committed an offence under section 174 of the Indian Penal Code, and if any such person refuses to make or sign a statement required by such officer, he shall be deemed to have committed an offence under section 179 or section 180, as the case may be, of the Indian Penal Code.”

The poor man without having committed fault will be hauled up under those sections, and all such clauses are much more drastic than the clauses with which the Spanish Inquisition was empowered.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member has only one minute more at this stage of the sitting.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: Powers like those of the Spanish Inquisition have been given to the consolidation officer. And what will be the fate of the poor man who just now is content with his two bighas or two acres of land and continues to live under those circumstances? He will be hauled up before magistrates for having contravened these clauses, and what will be the result? The poor man will lose anything and everything, and he will live in fear and anxiety. The poor villager will not appear before the consolidation officer and some well-to-do people who know all the ins and outs of this legislation will be able to take extreme benefit of it. I should criticise also the constitution of the tribunal that is going to be set up, the consolidation officer is, according to this bill, to be the complainant and also the judge, as in the case of the arbitrator under the Town Planning Scheme. I shall require some more time, Sir. . . .

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Already the honourable member has spoken for more than half an hour and when he so vehemently opposes the very principle or the very bringing in of the bill, I do not know why he is anxious to go through the details, the clauses, of the bill and take more time. My one difficulty is that there is no time limit for discussion and, I have therefore, only to appeal to honourable members to save the time of the House. The House will now adjourn for tea till 5 o'clock.

(After Recess)

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Order, order.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Sir, the greatest boon that is enjoyed by the people of Gajarat and the Deccan is the ryotwari tenure under which whether the ryot possesses a big or small holding, none can disturb him in his possession. This is the precious privilege enjoyed by the people of ryotwari villages. On the other hand, there is another kind of tenure, namely, the zamindari tenure, the talukdari tenure or the inamdari tenure, in which the land is not owned by the man who cultivates it. There is a middleman who takes as much as he likes from the people, and he on his part pays a tribute, or jama, or a very small assessment to the State. That sort of tenure is very bad, and in the Punjab, in the United Provinces, and other places where they have the zamindari tenure, the condition of the actual cultivator is very bad, and Government have been compelled to come to the rescue of those cultivators by tenancy legislation. It is in Bombay, and, I should say, in the Khalsa villages of Bombay that the people who cultivate are owning the land. Now, I want that this precious right which the cultivators enjoy should not be taken away from them, and that is the main reason why I should not like to have such a bill which would go at the very root of the ryotwari system to be brought before this House. Certainly, if the people have got small holding, they can be persuaded to consolidate their holdings by propaganda. That was being done. I was moving in the Baroda State some years ago, and at that time Mr. Govindbhai Hathibhai Desai was explaining to the people how they would be able to exchange their lands, or how they would be able to divide their holdings in such a way that there would not be small holdings. For example, if one man has got 4 sons, and he has got pieces of land in 4 places, the people were persuaded not to divide each of the pieces into 4 parts, but to divide them into 4 pieces among the 4 brothers, so that each of them could get a whole piece. Such a thing was being done by persuasion. I was moving with Mr. Govindbhai Hathibhai Desai, and he was explaining to the people the advantages of adopting such a method ; the people were understanding that it was to their benefit, and they were carrying out the suggestions.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Will the honourable member be good enough to inform me whether Mr. Govindbhai Hathibhai

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

Desai is in favour of this bill, and is a strong supporter of legislation or not? I have moved with Mr. Govindbhai Hathibhai Desai in the same way as my honourable friend has done, and I know he is the strongest supporter I have seen of legislation for both these matters.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Mr. Govindbhai Hathibhai Desai was responsible for the passing of the legislation in Baroda State. In the statement of objects and reasons of this bill it is stated that a consolidation Act has also been placed on the Statute Book by the Government of His Highness the Gaekwar of Baroda. But it should be understood that they have not been using that legislation for compelling people. It is only permissive legislation, and the Honourable the Leader of the House said that in Baroda the legislation was merely permissive. But here we find that this legislation is like the drastic treatment of the Spanish inquisition : it is most drastic in its operation.

When the Honourable the Leader of the House day before yesterday uttered the words absentee landlordism and oppressed tenantry, I was very much delighted. I thought that he would turn his attention to the grievances of the tenants, would legislate on behalf of the tenants, and give them fixity of tenure. But when we ask questions about tenancy legislation, Government say that it is under their consideration. In that matter, they are not moving as rapidly as in this matter, because here the poor persons are to be dealt with, and it would be possible to legislate against the poor. It would be possible to legislate against the poor, because they cannot make their voices felt ; while the other people, the rich people, if you touch a single hair of theirs, they would tear legislation into pieces.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : Is repetition allowed, Sir ? I have so often heard the same thing repeated.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : We want that Government should give those rights which the people of Khalsa villages are enjoying to the people of zamindari, talukdari and inamdari tenants. That is what we are fighting for. We are asking Government to give them fixity of tenure. That is the reason why people are coming from Native States and other places and trying to get a piece of land in Khalsa villages.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Is all this relevant, Sir ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Will the honourable member conclude his speech ? I thought he wanted only a few minutes.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : Sir, therefore, the proper thing that Government have to do is to legislate in favour of people who are weak and poor, who are oppressed. But here, on the other hand, Government are bringing forward legislation which would make the rich richer, the strong stronger, and deprive the poor people of what little they possess. From the beginning to the end the whole legislation would deprive the small holders of the benefits that they enjoy, and the small holder will be driven away from his village. As has been pointed out by the Maharashtra Co-operative Institute, he will stay there and will be a wage earner ; he will become a labourer. The whole social economy of the village will be destroyed, and you will destroy village life which at least is a living thing before us up to the present time. Village life will be destroyed, and the result will be that the men who are the owners of land will be converted into mere labourers, and if not labourers they will be converted into tenants at will. As a tenant-at-will, he will only be able to cultivate the land for another man, that is, the landlord. What will be the result? He will be a tenant-at-will, he will be evicted at any time. All these dire consequences will follow as a result of the passing of this bill. Therefore, I have to make an appeal to the people who represent the rural interests, who represent the cause of the rural areas, who represent the cause of the poor ryots, to think very calmly on this important question; I appeal to them that they will uphold the cause of these poor holders, and will not allow this mischievous legislation to be placed on the statute book.

The most important thing that I want to urge before honourable members is that even if we legislate in this manner, the small holder will not be able to utter his voice. He is engaged in working in the field all his time; he will not know what we have done, and he will have to endure the consequences. As my honourable friend Rao Bahadur Naik said, 40 per cent. of the people will be dispossessed of their land in Bardoli and Chorasi talukas.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The honourable member is repeating himself.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN: In the name of the people who will be dispossessed of their lands, I appeal to honourable members to reject the first reading of the bill.

Mr. F. G. H. ANDERSON: Mr. President, after the very pressing appeal which has been addressed to me by the honourable member who spoke last, I somehow feel it my duty to rise at this stage, in order that the House may understand that the Honourable the Leader of the House is not the only member on this side of the House who supports this bill. He has introduced this bill with an eloquence and completeness which I cannot equal. However, it is now 48 hours since the House heard those reasons, and it is possible that in the multitude of oratorical efforts which have followed, some honourable members may have forgotten the exposition he gave of the principles of this bill. Without attempting to paint that lily which he has produced, I will, though less ably and eloquently, try to put the matter in as simple words as I can, and address myself to the understanding of those honourable members, of whom there are a good many, who are not agriculturists and who have perhaps not gone much beyond the limits of town life. Those who are agriculturists and who are in contact with agriculturists know as well as I do that this bill is absolutely essential in the present condition of affairs. But there are others who cannot understand the real state of affairs. For the last 34 years, Mr. President, I think I may claim that I have moved about in the fields of this presidency, especially in connexion with the matters arising out of fragmentation, to a far greater extent than any other honourable member of this House. I was doing this work while the honourable member who has just preceded me was still a little boy. I had to look into questions of rights of ryots, questions of boundaries, questions of right of way and all the sorts of things arising out of fragmentation of holdings. All this knowledge I have gained is not based on book reading; it was not acquired in an arm-chair. But it is knowledge I have gained on the spot in the field in the company of the holders of land and in conversation with the ryots. I will just give an outline of the points which I wish to develop. I would explain first that the bill has two parts—similar but quite as distinct as the two legs on which I stand. The prevention of fragmentation and consolidation are the two legs of this bill. Both stand on the same economic ground and both support the same body, the principles of the bill which the Honourable the Leader of the House has introduced. I do not want to use long words. The first part of the bill seeks to prevent the formation of too small plots and the second part relates to consolidation when a holding is scattered into too many plots. Though the two things are quite distinct, as I have already pointed out, they unite.

First I will touch upon the facts and explain why they are extremely grave and menacing for the agricultural welfare of this presidency. Let us look to the facts as they are. There are 32,695,000 acres of cultivable land. That is occupied by 2,000,000 holders. That is to say, each holder has on an average about 16 acres. You have to include in this the very vast stretches of land in the Deccan and the hills of Ratnagiri and the like which are very poor. (I will deal with Ratnagiri in a moment.) Therefore the really useful area of each holding is far less than 16 acres. The population of this presidency is about twenty millions excluding Sind. Each one of this population will have to live on  $1\frac{2}{3}$  acres and out of this  $1\frac{2}{3}$  so much is poor stuff that he has to live really on little more than one acre.

There are three million survey numbers which are not divided into sections; and we have already measured 7,500,000 of sections of survey numbers, where a survey number is divided into sections. In the Satara and Kanara districts there are still many unmeasured and unmapped. Thus there are in all about 12 million parcels of land divided among 2 million holders, that is, on an average each holder has got 6. Each one of these pot hissas is a little over  $2\frac{1}{2}$  acres and the great majority are even below that. A great majority of the holdings contain even more than 6 or 7 separate parcels. That is in itself a bad position, and that is not all: it is yearly getting worse. If we take for instance Ahmednagar no one will venture to tell me that the population of Ahmednagar has increased by leaps and bounds. Yet we had by 1920-21 measured 347,000 hissas and within the last seven years the number of hissas has risen by 42,000 or about 2 per cent. per annum while the population has certainly not increased in the same ratio as the fragmentation of holdings. The fragmentation has increased at the rate of 2 per cent. per annum. But it may be asked why the fragmentation has increased much more rapidly than before British rule. I will tell you why; the answer is simple. Then the joint family was intact, which has now especially since 1886, been dissolving under the operation of the Income Tax Act and secondly because in those days there was no pressure of population and a vast area of lands remained uncultivated. What are the reasons for the increase of fragmentation, generation after generation, even without any material increase in population? The reason is chiefly the terrible jealousy— I must say so because I have seen it with my eyes—among the brothers in almost every agricultural family. Each one will abate no chance to take advantage of the others. They will go so far as to fight over the partition of honey on the branch of a tree: they have even been known to fight over the partition of the shade of a tree, not its fruits nor its branches. There is a very curious superstition in the Deccan which honourable members may know that if land is divided among four brothers into four strips the eldest must have the portion on the right hand, when we stand facing the east, the next brother the next piece and so on. They do the partition of the land in this peculiar way: and cannot get these sub-divisions reduced even at the succeeding inheritance. If a man dies leaving two sons, the most natural thing is to divide the land into half and half. That would not satisfy them. This is how they do it:

[Mr. F. G. H. Anderson]

(Here the honourable member illustrated with a piece of paper by dividing it into four parts horizontally and vertically and pointed out that the brothers would prefer to have the diagonal portions and not adjacent portions.)

Very well. Now, when that has been done, we will suppose one of the heirs dies leaving two sons. One would naturally think that one son takes one piece and the other one takes the other that is left. No; they do not. "There is a possibility that the other piece is better than this; therefore I want half of both"—that is what they say; they cannot give any reason, but that "one share might be better." Again, when dividing the plots into two, one would suppose they would be content with dividing each into two equal pieces; no, they either divide it in much the same way as before (dividing it into four pieces and taking the two diagonally opposite ones for each), or else fearing lest the north or the south portion may be superior or inferior, they divide it into four pieces like this—and then, following the prevalent superstition, which requires, when land is divided into strips east and west, the eldest must take the right hand strip as seen when standing facing east, the second son takes the next, and so on. Thus although there may be no increase in the number of persons holding the land still the number of fragments into which it is divided generation after generation goes on increasing. (The honourable member illustrated his remarks with a piece of paper and scissors.)

Well, now, even if there is no increase in the population, so long as this superstition continues and so long as these terrible jealousies continue, there is no hope that fragmentation will cease; nothing can stop it but this bill. It is said that this fragmentation is necessarily based upon the Hindu law. I do not want to introduce any communal distinction here; so I will add that it is based on Muhammadan law also. Now I have placed both communities on an equal footing! Even if it is so, I will make this observation; that these inspired prophets, these ancient sages, did not legislate for everything; they did not, for instance legislate—I have looked up their books anywhere for motor traffic. That is no reason why we should not legislate for it. Surely, Mr. President, the chief object of this Council itself is to legislate, and to legislate means adding to and improving upon ancient law. It is absolutely no argument to say that Hindu law did not interdict this infinite fragmentation of land and therefore we should not bother ourselves about it. If they had foreseen such fragmentation, I am perfectly certain that they would have legislated. I will touch upon that point a minute later. Now I want the House to take a lofty view. (The honourable member spread out an aerial map of the country around Poona showing many fragmented holdings and lifted it up.) Now this is a lofty view taken from a height of about two miles: a point of view hitherto attained only by the Good God who supervises mundane affairs. I am perfectly well aware that it cannot be seen in all parts of the House. Anybody who wants to see what the fragmentation is like can see it in the extracts which I place on the table and they reveal into what extraordinarily small pieces this land has been cut. Mr. President, this photograph was not specially taken for the purpose of supporting this Bill. I shall give you a much better example in a minute. But I would ask you, looking down upon that (photograph) to remember that this is your land and that is the way in which it is chopped up, chopped up and chopped up; it is murdering it; it is murdering the production of that land. The fertility of the soil, the climate and all these things may remain the same, but if the country goes on increasing this fragmentation from year to year, then the production must go on falling. Now, we know, Sir, that if a cow is bequeathed you cannot cut it up and divide it amongst the brethren. There is one thing you can do, and that is to divide its milk. This is, Sir, what the Honourable the Leader of the House desires that we should do in the case of these fragments. The ancient lawgivers would have undoubtedly done the same, because they laid down in respect of that sacred animal that when there was a cow equally to be divided, its value should be divided and that it should not be cut up and divided. They would never have ordained that crime. Now, even this Bill in no way rejects the spirit of the old law; rather it carries it out; it says that you shall not divide the land so as to make it almost useless, but divide the rent. All of you have heard the fame of the judgment of Solomon. You will remember the story. There were two mothers and one living child, each mother claiming it. It passed the wit of man to decide to which of them the child belonged; the mothers went before Solomon, and Solomon who had a wonderful insight into the minds of men and the hearts and feelings of mothers, said to his executioner: “Split the child in two”, and the false mother said “Yes; excellent; very just and wise.” This is the attitude of the Kunbi brethren who say “Split up the land; never mind how small the holdings are.” They have not the interest of the land at heart. But the true mother, who loved the child, said—and that is exactly what the Leader of the House is asking you to do—she said : “ No; no; do not divide the child ; give it living and whole even unto the other woman, but let it live.” That is what you are asked to do for your land.

[Mr. F. G. H. Anderson]

Now, we are told that this Bill should not be made to apply to certain areas. Mr. President, this Bill from its very nature cannot apply any where except where it is necessary; it cannot apply where fragmentation has not proceeded to the extent that the Bill contemplates. Show me any village in which there is no fragmented holding, no plot so small as to be unprofitable for cultivation ; that village will not be affected ; it does not require a Gazette notification. Show me a place where all the holdings are nicely compacted ; this Bill will not apply to that place.

Well, now, these facts and figures are rather cold and grey. I am now going to introduce a touch of colour. (The honourable member spread out a coloured map and held it before the House.) Now, this is the map of the village of Manjri near Poona. Every separate color represents a fragmented holding. I am sorry I have got only one copy, but I shall pass it round. A lot of these plots are so small and so narrow, not wider than the table of the House, that although they are under the command of the best canal in the presidency, they cannot be irrigated, because you cannot have a water channel cut through them to irrigate them; and some of them are left uncultivated. If irrigated, nothing can be done to drain them because they are too small and isolated and drainage is impossible, except by a comprehensive co-operative scheme. (Mr. H. B. Shivdasani : What is the scale of the map?) The scale is 10 chains to an inch. Now, I want to devote myself exclusively to the first point that these plots are too small to be profitable.

It comes to this that it is universally recognised that there is a limit of size for almost everything. It has been recognised even in respect of the seats on the front opposition bench in this House. You, Mr. President, very wisely limited the number of these seats to 9 and this House has equally rightly acquiesced in your decision that it was impossible to subdivide them further. Had it not been so, I should have been genuinely alarmed (quite altruistically) at the rumour which reached me yesterday about the formation of one more new party with one more leader to sit on that bench and I should have been most anxious and curious to know who the party was. I do not know whether your calculations were based upon linear or superficial or cubic measurements ! But, however they were made, I congratulate you and this House on having made my task so much easier by giving us a very practical and obvious illustration of the impossibility of excessive sub-division. I have seen rice fields no larger than this table. The sub-divisions in rice fields are very small ; but in cotton fields are no doubt larger. What is the minimum size we should prescribe is not now before us. We are not now concerned with details : that is a question to be determined by the judgment of the local people. Let us first consider the case of people who have pieces of land which are “ too small ” ; that is to say, so small that the owner cannot cultivate them profitably and indeed it is not profitable for anybody to cultivate them. Now the first point is that of boundaries. It is not difficult for a mathematician like my honourable friend from Ahmedabad to understand that as the area of the plot decreases, the area required to be devoted to boundaries increases in its ratio to the area available for cultivation.

Then there is another difficulty which may not be understood by non-agriculturists, namely, the question of weeds which eat the food intended for the plant. There is in any given area of soil a strictly limited amount of plant food. Weeds cannot eat this food without doing grave injury to the crop. If a field is full of weeds then that field will have miserable, starved crops choked with weeds that have grown as strong as the crop, using up its food. One is always seeing hundreds of such plots. Now some honourable members may ask "what has that got to do with fragmentation?" It has a great deal to do with it. Suppose a man has got a piece of land and suppose the next piece is waste, uncultivated land, where the weeds will be in abundance, this man will be helpless to keep the weeds out. He cannot do it. Come to an agricultural farm, say, in the Agricultural College or quite near us, at Manjri. I hope honourable members have seen some of the agricultural farms. There they will find in the first place a compact piece of land and in the next place will find hardly a weed in it. Because the Agricultural Department take particular care to remove the weeds which destroy the plants. But you cannot keep a too small plot of land as tidy as this farm. You may try, but you cannot do it in fragmented land because the plot is very small and you cannot properly protect it.

There is another thing, namely fencing to prevent stray cattle coming in. This cannot be done in small plots because the cost per acre of fencing increases in proportion as the area which it encloses decreases. You may say that many big fields are not fenced. They are not fenced because large fields can be watched. It is most necessary to enclose the fields to prevent stray cattle damaging the crops and thus diminishing the value of the yield. I will tell you one conspicuous instance. Take those villages where it is possible to grow second crops after the rice. It is quite common in Gujarat and Deccan but especially in the Konkan. After the rains they grow second crops but unless this land is fenced it is almost no use attempting because cattle (which use other pasture in the rains as grazing ground) in the rabi season are let loose to graze on the stubble and they would eat up all the second crops if left unfenced.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Are Kaira fields fenced ?

Mr. F. G. H. ANDERSON : Yes, there are very solid fences in Kaira. I never saw so many fences except in England.

Now I have found in villages in Ratnagiri as much as 1,000 acres of excellent land all fit for second crops such as linseed, "san" hemp, etc., yet not so used. On enquiry why, I was told "because of straying cattle," I said "why don't you fence it?" They said it was not possible because the land is divided between so many people, some even absentee landlords, that no common action was possible, and therefore the whole land is lying waste. Any one who has experience of the Konkan will bear me out and admit this that it is true.

Another thing that you cannot do if you have a too small plot of land is that you cannot use good tools, even, that is those common tools which the agriculturist is so fond of using, namely a pair of bullocks and a plough. The plot is so small that he cannot turn them round and so can't use them. I can show hundreds of such plots.

Then another thing that you cannot do with a too small plot is this that if you want extra capital you cannot raise the money. The plot is so small that nobody would be willing to give you money on the security of that land. The smaller the plot the less in proportion you can sell it for. Suppose you have two acres of land worth Rs. 200 per acre and you go on cutting it in half and then offer it for sale as two plots you won't get as much as Rs. 200 per acre but perhaps only 150. If you go on cutting the field into further bits the price will be not even Rs. 150 per acre and as you make them less and less the value goes on decreasing till at last there is no market for them. The value is gone. We were challenged on this point. It was said that by consolidation the cultivator would not be able to meet the demands for more capital, even to buy out his brother cultivator. I say that consolidation increases the value to the extent of 50 per cent. As more plots are brought together the value goes up and the capital of the agriculturist goes up. That is the true solution.

Now you would think if this is true and the weeds and stray cattle and the difficulties of fencing are all so injurious, why should the poor people be able to cultivate these plots at all? The answer is that very frequently they do not. They allow the land to remain waste. We have heard the honourable member from Sholapur, Mr. Abdul Latiff, who has collected some useful figures on this point. I can give many more, but it would be only a waste of time. I will content myself with a few: in the village of Shivangi in Bijapur taluka, certain land is held by the kulkarnis, Survey No. 499. It is divided into a number of too small plots and they have been lying waste and nobody will cultivate them. Then much nearer home in Pandara (Bhimthadi taluka) there is survey No. 105 under the command of the best canal in the Deccan in which you will expect to find the best of crops. But it is not so. You will find that the land is so fragmented that water cannot be supplied to them and people moreover cannot take water through one another's fields; the Irrigation Department is having the greatest difficulties in this village. The land is so fragmented that irrigation is almost impracticable. The waste of water is great; and there is also a great waste of labour and unless we come to their assistance it is probable that irrigation in some areas will have to stop altogether.

I will now turn to the question of the too many plots. These are very well illustrated by this coloured map. No doubt it will be said that it is impossible for members on the other side of the House to distinguish all these colours. That is exactly my point. There are so many colours so mixed up that it is very difficult to distinguish them. But each separate colour is here used to indicate the holding of one man. Now, I think you can nearly all see this bright green colour. I will point out to you all the plots held by this man. (Indicates on the map.) Now, that is a holding which we characterise as consisting of too many plots. It is scattered and fragmented. Now, what are the evils of such a holding? Obviously, in the first place all the evils which I have already described for the too small plots equally apply to these too many plots. The troubles about boundaries, about weeds, about fencing, about stray cattle, apply just the same. But there are some new points peculiar to the holding of too many plots. The most obvious is that when the ryot sets out to do his work he takes his bullocks and plough by such roads as he can find to the first plot. Then he has to proceed to the next, because the first plot affords no more than about one hour's work. Now, will he go by the way he came, along the roads straight back to his house, and then out again by different roads to the second plot? I fancy not. He will go straight across by the shortest route across other people's lands to his second plot. In this way, there are constant quarrels and fights about rights of way and about damage done by cattle crossing the neighbours' land. I wonder whether it is realised what an immense amount of loss is caused in villages by these constant quarrels and litigation. When I served in Dharwar district, almost every village was torn by what is known as "duphli" or faction and the villagers spent their fortunes and their time in promoting the contest between factions. Many of these had their origin in the quarrels and the ill-feeling generated over rights of way and stray cattle.

Then, again, suppose this man has all these plots, 15 or 20 of them, and has only 3 little girls. Now, which of these plots will he send his little girls to watch when it is necessary to drive the birds off the ripening crop? Again, how can he make any improvements in his land? Suppose he wants to dig a well, a well can be constructed only when there are three or four acres of land to be irrigated from it. But as this holder has no single fragment so large as that, then, although he has plenty of water in the sub-soil and may want to irrigate, he cannot, and his neighbours also cannot use that natural facility because their plots are all too small. In that way the resources of the country lie unutilised. Nor is it possible for any of these holders to take steps to embank their fields against the flow of water or to carry out any improvement which depends upon its relation to the area improved. The people all feel these difficulties themselves. Whenever they can, they do take steps to remedy them. But at almost every turn they find their way blocked by the superstitions and jealousies upon which I have already laid stress. At the desire of Government I myself undertook a thorough examination of one village in Purandhar, the village of Kamthadi. In that village I went through every parcel of land, survey number or division of survey number, to the number in all of 1,070. In many cases I found amalgamations or transfers were possible. In a few cases the people actually took my advice and made them. But in the great majority they had only one parrot-cry : “हीच वांटणी वडिलांनी केली ” (This was the way in which our forefathers divided the land), to which I could only reply : “ वारल्यावर काय ? ”. Because, as a matter of fact the divisions are not made by the deceased ancestor, but they are made by the living heirs after his decease, and in many cases I found that the division had actually been made only a year or two before my visit. What we have to do is to save these poor people from themselves, by helping them along the road they want to go but have not the courage, and to help them by getting over the opposition of recalcitrant minorities. Now, this Bill is not intended to perpetrate any outrage upon majorities. It merely seeks to coerce a well-marked minority of people who oppose the will of the majority, who stand in the path that leads to the people's food. We seek to do this only at the request of a clear majority. Now, this, Mr. President, is the essence of all democracy. It necessarily involves the coercion of individuals and minorities.....

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Then minorities should go to the wall ?

Mr. F. G. H. ANDERSON : Yes ; that is the necessary inference.

It is now time to take one further glance at the economic question. I have emphasized that while the holder of each holding on an average may possess six plots, which may on an average extend to 15 or 16 acres, nevertheless, when the cultivated area is divided by the population, it comes to a very small amount. On an average it works out at about  $1\frac{1}{2}$  acres, not quite  $1\frac{1}{2}$  acres. If that is so as an average of the Presidency, yet in Nadiad, there is hardly one acre while in Ratnagiri the cultivated area works out at about  $\frac{1}{2}$  acre per head of population. If that half acre were the best rice land in which the cultivation had reached the highest perfection, even so, it would scarcely support the life of one. But what then are the facts ? The fact is that in the Ratnagiri district there are 2,38,000 acres of rice land and all the rest is warkas or ragi land. Warkas land is cultivated once in seven years and ragi land we do not think much of. There is therefore less than  $\frac{1}{4}$  acre of rice land per head. Suppose, Mr. President, that we built a wall round Ratnagiri, and left all the cultivators there and said to them “ You cultivate all that land, we will not take an anna of government assessment, we will not take one pie of rent (for the khot) for that land, ” what would be the result ? The result would be that within six months the whole population would be starved to death, because land in Ratnagiri cannot by any human possibility yield enough to feed the people. It is not a question of assessment.....

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : Is it not a fact that people from Ratnagiri migrate to Bombay in search of employment in the factories of Bombay ?

Mr. F. G. H. ANDERSON : The honourable member is anticipating my argument. I am coming to it. I say they must go to Bombay. Does the honourable member want to stop them going to Bombay ? If he does, he will only starve them to death.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : Does the honourable member, Mr. Anderson, want the remaining people also to run to Bombay ?

Mr. F. G. H. ANDERSON : There is a total population of 11,54,244 in the Ratnagiri district. The lives of those who remain are saved by the people who go out of Ratnagiri for earning a livelihood. I have here a sample of Burma rice such as is sold in Poona yesterday. We have had Australian wheat sold in Poona, and we have also American cotton sold in the Bombay market. The Bombay Presidency cannot produce all it wants for its people.....

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Does the honourable member mean to suggest that the Bombay Presidency has not got enough cotton for its mills ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : No interruptions, please.

Mr. F. G. H. ANDERSON : There is much wanting in quantity and quality. The only thing to do is to make the land yield more by the employment of better tools, more capital, better methods. This bill is intended to remove some of the difficulties that face the cultivators when they try to do it.

A fear was expressed especially by my honourable friend from Surat, Rao Bahadur Bhimbhai Naik, that by this scheme of consolidation we are likely to drive the people off their lands. We are not going to do that to the extent which he depicted. He said that in the Matar taluka 75 per cent. of the holdings are below five acres. Quite right, it is true. His argument is this, that supposing we fix the lowest limit of a holding at five acres, then 75 per cent. of the population of Matar will have to go out of Matar so that you may raise the average of the holdings above five acres. But it does not require that the 75 per cent. should be pushed off the land. If you will take a pencil and paper and do a little arithmetic you will find that it will be quite sufficient if even 3 per cent. of the small holdings are given up, and their area included in the area of the other holdings in order to raise the average of the remainder above the minimum limit. It is a pretty little arithmetical catch. I recommend it to the Honourable Member for Ahmedabad for inclusion in the next mathematical examination paper. It does not at all follow that if 75 per cent. of the holdings happen to fall below the five acre limit then we should evacuate all those holdings in order to raise the rest of the holdings above the five acre limit. What we want to do is to convert a large number of indifferent, half-skilled and very much under-employed agriculturists who get a very small outturn from badly cultivated land during part of the year and during the rest of the year are equally half skilled, indifferent, under-employed industrial workers through the evils of these small-sized plots and the scattered fragmented holdings, into a definite class (on the one hand) of skilled and fully employed agriculturists, and (on the other hand) into a class of fully occupied, fully productive industrial workers. We desire to see the agriculturists employed on consolidated holdings, using far more capital, better tools and modern machinery and we should like to see the rest employed in such industries as dairying, the leather, oil-seeds and woollen industry, cellulose and paper-pulp and other industries to which the agricultural population can turn in their own villages. Let me cite the example of the late Mr. Jamshedji N. Tata. I suppose he has found employment for displaced agriculturists to a far greater extent than anybody else, but he did not lose the capital he employed.

An Honourable MEMBER : What about Mahatma Gandhi ?

Mr. F. G. H. ANDERSON : If your capital is so employed, it will not be lost. It will all come back to the investors. I cannot do better than remind the House what my friend Sir Peter Clutterbuck, one of the greatest authorities on Forests in India said at the recent Meeting of the British Association. He pointed out that there was certain to be before long a world famine of this stuff (holding up a piece of paper) ; while the Indian forests are extensive enough to supply the world with all the bamboo pulp it needs for the manufacture of paper. Yet it is very difficult to induce people to embark on this industry.

The object of this bill is not to drive people off the land but it seeks, by means of a sensible scheme of consolidation of small, unprofitable holdings, to make the land yield more for the common good. I know we are going to be accused—we have already been accused—of seeking to expel ryots and of establishing large farms worked by slave labour and so on, such as the Romans called “lati fundia.” There is no such idea. There are plots below the minimum at which it is profitable to work them at all. We are asking the House to take steps to wipe those out. Do not accuse us of any design to turn these properties into great ranches like those in Canada and Mexico. This bill has been drafted with the single idea of benefiting the Indian ryot. There has been much misrepresentation. We have tried to remove that misrepresentation, and the opposite Benches must remember that if misrepresentation is repeated after refutation, it becomes wilful misrepresentation and then it recoils on the heads of the people making it. There is no need of any further proof of the fundamental proposition that one acre cannot go on indefinitely producing more by merely putting more work into it. The condition of our agricultural population is very much like that of an open boat at sea which has on board the maximum number of people. It is sunk right down to the water-line. If any more people get in, it must sink. What then shall we do if a number of people come swimming up and say that unless you take them on board they will drown ? The answer, hard as it is, undoubtedly is that if you do take them on board then they will drown just the same and all the people already in the boat must drown too. The true remedy is not to take them on board and so ensure a catastrophe. The remedy is to find another boat. Just similar is the case with land. You cannot go on piling cultivators on to the same land over and over again in order to make it yield more and more indefinitely. How is it possible to bring more land under cultivation ? It does not exist. It is essential for the people to turn their energies into other channels diverting the surplus agricultural population into rural industries as closely associated as possible with agriculture. There is a vast field for enterprise of this kind.

[Mr. F. G. H. Anderson]

I should like to draw a parallel between the agriculturists in this respect and the hand-spinning industry, but I let that pass by. I say it is the duty of this House, of the representatives of the people, to find other industries. I say that it is not sufficient argument to say that this bill does not go far enough. That is one of the charges laid against it. It is not the distance that we travel, it is the direction which is of importance. If your ship is going on the rocks, it is not the distance but the direction that matters. If you turn it round and give it even a small motion in the direction away from the rocks you are saved; but if you cannot, you get still nearer the rocks and are doomed. Now it is the direction not the distance, that counts. Once we have got on the right direction, we can increase the pace later. We know this measure has been good enough for Baroda. But in order to emphasise my contentions, I shall quote a much more recent authority, I am going to quote a gentleman who is not famous for his blind support of Government: and who has not been accused of being subsidized to write this book I have newly received. These are the words of Professor K. T. Shah, of the Bombay University, in his "Sixty years of Indian Finance."

"The modern civilised State cannot consider its duty accomplished merely by bringing about a greater degree of distributive justice in its tax-layers. It must make it its first concern that the wealth of the people increases. The agricultural wealth of India cannot increase so long as the cultivator is tilling small unprofitable holdings, with the perpetual risk of their being still further reduced. Legislation must [mark that word] simultaneously be undertaken to reduce the 'morcellement' (fragmentation) of the agricultural land in India by some system of pre-emption [exactly what the bill does] or some other guarantee against sub-division of an uneconomic kind, concomitantly with a definite scheme of consolidation of agricultural holdings."

Now, that is hot from the press; but I will next read a passage to exactly the same effect which was written about a century ago. This was what was written in the first Joint Report of 1840.

"If fields are allowed to be sub-divided without limit, and treated as recognised holdings, the inevitable result will be the ultimate sub-division of the whole land into very minute occupancies accompanied by the impoverishment of the whole agricultural class."

Mr. President, that is exactly what is intended to be provided by the bill.

I will now turn to another matter. This House, you, Sir, and I and the rest of the honourable members have been committed for trial. We are taking our places in the dock. We have had 8 years of limited power and limited responsibility for the governance of this presidency, and we are now shortly to be tried by a Royal Commission as to our fitness for more or for less of this responsibility. Do not let us deceive ourselves; I say again "or for less." The period of ten years was never designed, could never have been designed, on the principle of "heads I win, tails you lose." We must not delude ourselves that, however unsuccessful the experiment, at least none of the responsibility can ever be taken away, but more might be given. Now, Sir, the question is being put to us; all eyes are on us. The judges have not yet taken their seats; but there is an air of expectancy all round. Brief-bags are being opened; gowns are being adjusted, we are watching the door by which the judges will enter. Let us think of what plea we shall put in. What is the charge? "That, being chosen to represent the interests of a largely agricultural population, and in that capacity having to deal with a bill which unquestionably intended to make some headway against an admitted agricultural evil, a notorious evil, that we had neither the intellect to suggest a better plan nor the strength of character to accept this " That is the charge. There is no escape from the charge in the excuse that we had only limited power and limited opportunity, an awkwardly shaped slice of the total responsibility. That will not avail. This is a Government bill and with the help of a few members of character and intelligence on the other side of the House it must go through. I entirely refuse, Mr. President, to believe that there is not in this House sufficient intelligence to comprehend this bill. Most of us are well able to grasp and understand these evils. The exact machinery perhaps may not be quite approved, but that is a question for the select committee and for the second reading. I have done my little best to help the House to understand what it is we are arriving at, and I am sure that it will not hesitate to place on record a valuable document for our trial, by voting in favour of the first reading of this bill.

I should like, before I close, to pay a personal tribute to the Honourable the Leader of the House, whose zeal.....

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : Before the honourable member finishes, on a point of information, I want to know whether any expert from Government was consulted in framing this bill.

Mr. F. G. H. ANDERSON : Certainly : perhaps a dozen experts have been consulted. I should like to pay a personal tribute to the Honourable the Leader of the House for the zeal and enthusiasm with which he has pursued this measure for years, to my knowledge. A measure something like this was first drawn up in 1917, in the discussions in regard to which I took a considerable part. I have always supported the principle of this measure ever since then. We know that it was three times brought before this House and lost, through failure of support from the Government benches. The Honourable Sir Chunilal Mehta has never slackened in his enthusiasm and persistence, and I ask the House not only in recognition of the necessity of the measure and the unquestionable improvement it will effect, but as a personal tribute to him and as a vote of confidence in his leadership to give this bill a first reading without hesitation.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I find that there are about 15 honourable members desiring to speak, and it has been my experience for the last two days that every honourable member who has spoken has practically taken an hour. At that rate, if I give a chance to all the honourable members who stood up, we shall want 15 hours to finish this discussion which, I am afraid, cannot be done.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District) : Mr. President, I do not claim to know every part of this presidency, but I may tell this House that I have some personal experience of agricultural holdings, as I have worked in them for some years. The argument that has been brought forward regarding the yielding capacity of small holdings, that these small holdings yield very little because of their smallness is, I think, untenable. Unless what is meant by a small holding is made clear, it cannot be said that a small holding by itself is incapable of giving a good outturn. From my experience I can say that the smaller the area, the greater the outturn. Under the present state of affairs it is a fact. If it is ascertained what a small holding means, then I can say that a small holding gives a greater outturn. I will give an example. Suppose there are two persons, one of whom has five acres of jirayat land and the other 20 to 25 acres of jirayat land. I can assure you that for want of live stock, good fodder, manure, agricultural labour, and other things, the person who owns 20 to 25 acres in one place cannot realise that quantity per acre which the person who holds five to six acres will realise.

The outturn of a man who has got a small holding is far more than a man who has got a bigger holding, because the man with a small holding works on the field himself and keeps watch so that his expense on the holding is much less. If by small holding is meant less than 3 (three) acres of Bagayat and less than five acres of jirayat that is something. One University Professor Mr. C. N. Vakil has expressed the opinion that an economic holding should be between 15 to 20 acres of jirayat. These opinions are before Government and they are compelled to take measures on them, in spite of the fact that these are opinions without any intimate personal knowledge of agricultural conditions. The fact is that it is more expensive to cultivate a larger area of land and the outturn will comparatively be less. It may be true in the case of foreign countries that a big holding yields more. But in India the case is different. Each man has got some land and 70 per cent. of the population, as has been pointed out by one honourable member, are agriculturists. They find their living on agriculture. We cannot expect here tractors and other things which are in use in foreign countries. They will be of use in big plots of 50 acres or 100 acres. Mr. Keatinge has expressed similar idea, but I do not think even a sardar holds such an ideal farm.

Before we proceed to consider this bill it is necessary to ascertain what this small holding means. Now, the whole thing is left to be considered after the passing of this Act. We are asked to pass this Act without knowing what a fragmented holding is. In the statement of objects and reasons it is stated :

"The subject of the excessive sub-division and fragmentation of agricultural holdings has engaged the attention of Government for a number of years. The evils resulting from these processes may be briefly stated as follows :....."

Government know what they mean by fragmented holding. The standard that they wish to put may be very high as we rightly fear it will be. It is very difficult to see what it really means.

Another thing is this. The framers of this bill have stated in the statement of objects and reasons :

"The excessive sub-division of land in certain areas of the presidency has gone so far as to amount to a serious hindrance to cultivation resulting in a general diminution of their crop outturn."

What I wish to say is that so far as Karad Taluka of the Satara District is concerned the outturn has not fallen on account of fragmentation of holdings. I wish to bring to the notice of the House that the number of sub-divisions has increased since 1917, because till then the record of rights was not introduced. In the Central Division in the year 1905 the number of sub-divisions was 62,000 nearly and in 1916-17 it has risen to 372,000. This increase is due to the introduction of record of rights and subsequent Phalany party. In that all sub-divisions have increased by leaps and bounds. In the record of rights samaik (joint) holding was placed in the names of the khatedars in the ratio of one-third or one-fifth. This is how sub-divisions have increased. As a matter of fact the outturn has not decreased as a result of this fragmentation. The Honourable Sir George Curtis stated :

“ As regards the facts brought forward by the Honourable Dewan Bahadur Godbole yesterday in his very lucid speech I entirely agree with their importance. I only wish to add that he has underestimated the difficulties of the problem and the extreme complexity of the land tenure covered by these incessant sub-divisions. ”

The increase in the number of sub-divisions is due to the introduction of record of rights. Unless Government make it known to the public what they wish to do they cannot expect the public to support this measure.

The Maharashtra Co-operative Society, an important semi-government body, has given its opinion on the point. They have carried on an investigation in a village near Poona and expressed the opinion that if 10 acres is taken as the unit nearly 200 cultivators out of nearly 280 will have to leave their fields. When a non-official body has expressed one view after going through the actual records it is necessary that Government should have placed that view before this House and ascertained what would be the result of this measure if a particular standard unit is taken as the basis and thus removed the doubt. Unless the House is in possession of this information it is very difficult to give support to this bill. Nobody says that there should be excessive sub-division. The mover is very good and we wish that the bill is also as good as the mover. The yield of the land is getting less and less because the rains are getting less and less, and not because of sub-divisions. That has been admitted by Government.

What does this bill say ? It says that for ascertaining the standard unit a committee shall be appointed, with the Collector as chairman and three persons selected from the district local board as members. I do not know whether all the three members from the district local board will be present ; but from our experience in the mofussil, we know that the voice of the Collector will prevail. Even supposing that the three members from the district local board go against the Collector, there is the Commissioner, who is the sole master, and he will set at naught the opinion of the members from the district local board. The fate of the agriculturists will depend on what the standard unit is.

Then, in the statement of objects and reasons, it is stated that consolidation should be of the fragmented holdings ; but in clause 27, it is laid down : “ that a scheme for any village or for any area in a village shall be made to consolidate and redistribute the holdings of land ”—that means, the whole of the land of the village. It will vitally affect the interests of all persons in the village, unless it is made applicable only to fragmented holdings. Some people fear that this bill may enunciate the vicious principles set forth at page 14 of the Administration Report :

“The science of economic and fiscal theory is recognising more and more fully the right of the public to this share (share in all the unearned rental values of land), and the pre-eminent position, in every scheme of taxation necessary for the maintenance of a modern State, of the land revenue.”

So, if the area of the land is increased, one person by himself will not be able to cultivate it ; he will have to rent it. The fear is that then the principle of introducing higher taxation on the rental values—higher than ordinary taxation—will be introduced. The figures given regarding sub-divisions are very large, but they are not such as to startle us, considering the area of land under cultivation. In the year 1921-22 the area of land under cultivation in the Central Division was 13,959,000 acres. Though the figures of sub-divisions are larger for the Central Division, we have to remember that the area under cultivation in the Central Division is more than the total of the area in the Northern and the Southern Divisions.

Now, we are told in the Administration Report that a special officer has been appointed by Government to devote himself entirely to the preparation of schemes for field embankments or thals. There is scarcity of rain, and if the plots of land are larger the water will run away. Thals are necessary, bunding is necessary, and unless our pieces of land are small, it will be difficult to cultivate. So, the idea of forming larger plots of land is not suited to the conditions here.

The question of capital and labour has been mentioned in connection with this question. I do not think, Sir, that the question of capital and labour should find a place in agricultural problems in India, because in India the agriculturist is the owner of the land he cultivates ; he is both a labourer and capitalist. If he has no capital he borrows : he is unwilling to give up his land.

Sir, we were told by the honourable mover of the bill that the bill was published in June and it was not taken up at the last session, and therefore the public had sufficient notice. But, Sir, the people believe that unless a bill is actually introduced, it is not going to be seriously considered. We know that the Land Revenue Code Amendment Bill has been before the House since the February session ; it has been published, and yet the bill has not been taken up in this Council. So, it is only when the bill is introduced that the people know that it is before the Council. Therefore, I contend that as this bill was not introduced at the last session, this is the first time that it is before the public. At any rate I would earnestly request the Honourable the Leader of the House that, although the bill may be carried through its first reading now, yet he should so arrange that the select committee should not meet for another two months. There are four months intervening between this day and the next sessions, and the public should have two months time to place their views before the select committee ; the select committee should meet in January, consider public opinion and then make its report. I think there is no harm in accepting this suggestion.

[Mr. L. M. Deshpande]

There are many details regarding which I have given amendments, but as the honourable mover was pleased to say that he would not take objection in the select committee that they are amendments of principle, I do not move them now. I would like to point out. . . . .

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I do not know whether he alone can decide that.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : In that case, I would like to move my amendments.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I do not know what those amendments are.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I may say at once, Sir, that I do not propose to take exception to any of the amendments tabled by the honourable member as being amendments of principle.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I presume what the Honourable the Leader of the House means is that there are no amendments of principle.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : May I ask whether the amendments of which notice has been given by honourable members are amendments of principle ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I understand they are not.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : If an amendment making the bill absolutely permissive, is brought forward, will it be allowed ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I should object to that.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE : Yesterday the Honourable Leader said that he would not object to even amendments of principle. Is he going to go back on that ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The Honourable the Leader of the House has said that the amendments of which notice has been given are not amendments of principle.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : I have nothing more to add as any amendment is allowed in the select committee and in the second reading. So I do not like to go into the details of this bill now. I would like however to say that the title of the bill should be "Prevention of Small Holdings Bill" rather than "Small Holdings Bill". But this is not a material matter. With these words I would only support the preamble.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I will give an opportunity to any member if he can finish his speech in ten minutes, because I think sufficient discussion has taken place to enable the House to say whether honourable members should vote for or against this bill.

Dr. B. R. AMBEDKAR : Sir, I am afraid whether I shall be able to finish all that I have to say on this bill within the ten minutes allotted to me by you. However I will try my best and will be very brief.

This bill proposes to solve the two problems which affect the agriculturists of this presidency. One is the problem of scattered farms and the other is the problem of small farms. I do not think that any honourable member who has listened to the speech of my honourable friend the Settlement Commissioner will deny that the scattered farms are an evil and that that evil should be cured as far as possible. I agree with him that there are a great many disadvantages in having scattered farms and so far that part of the bill is concerned I agree that there should be consolidation. Coming to the question of small farms I must say that I differ from the honourable mover of the bill on the question that small farms are unprofitable. Sir, the honourable member Mr. Anderson loaded us almost with figures showing how small the existing farms were and what were the difficulties that were attendant upon the smallness of the farms. I admit there are difficulties in the existence of small farms but I do not admit that small farms are necessarily unprofitable or uneconomic. I do not understand what is the definition of the word "uneconomic" as it is used by the honourable mover of the bill or the honourable member the Settlement Commissioner. Sir, as I understand the term I should like to state that whether the farm is economic or uneconomic does not necessarily depend upon the size of the farm. It depends and in fact it varies with what we call in economics other factors of production. It varies with labour; it varies with capital. If a farmer has not for instance the means to employ increased labour and if he has not got any very large capital to invest then I submit that if his farm is small it would not be proper to call it uneconomic on that account. That being my position, Sir, I would have very much liked to hear from the mover of the bill and also from the Settlement Commissioner that in our country we had a plethora of capital and that we had large agricultural equipment for a highly efficient sort of production. If they had shown that was the case then we could have agreed with them that the small farms made production uneconomic in so far as they prevented the utilization of the equipment we had to the best advantage. But, Sir, I must confess that the honourable member the Settlement Commissioner has altogether omitted to touch that point. I should have liked to hear from him that the farmer had an enormous amount of capital, that they had ploughs and cattles in large numbers and that they could not employ all that because their farms were too small. So far as I have been able to work out the problem I find that instead of the capital available at the disposal of the farmer being very large and being for instance wasted because his holdings were small, the situation is just the opposite of what we are led to believe. I find, Sir, in the Madras Presidency we have for instance one plough for three acres; in the Bombay Presidency we have one plough for 6 acres. In the Punjab there is one plough for every two acres. I am reading from the official figures. These are the figures regarding the capital equipment of the farmer and taking the position which I am taking namely that whether a particular farm is economic or uneconomic is dependent not upon the size of the farm but upon whether it is commensurate with the capital which the farmer possesses, I am inclined to think that under the present circumstances it is better to further reduce the farms. That will be my logical position and I am not afraid to face it. I do not therefore understand what is the use of enlarging the farms if, for instance, the farmer has not got the wherewithal to cultivate the land. I do not understand how the increasing of the area of the soil goes to add anything to his produce if he has not got the necessary labour and capital to cultivate the land.

[Dr. B. R. Ambedkar]

Then we have also got to remember one fact that ours is an old country and that our soil is exhausted. We have been cultivating for thousands of years and no matter what efforts we may take we cannot raise the productivity of our soil to the same level as for instance, America where the soil is virgin. We must reckon with that fact. That being so, Sir, the salvation lies not in increasing the size of the farms, but in having intensive cultivation that is employing more capital and more labour on the farms such as we have. I therefore think, Sir, that that part of the bill which deals with the enlargement of the farms is altogether uncalled for. But assuming that these two things are necessary namely that we must consolidate our holdings and that we must also enlarge our farms I think it is necessary to look into the methods that are proposed to be employed by this bill more carefully than has been done by the mover of the bill. Now, Sir, the methods which are chiefly employed in this bill are first, control of partition of the immovable property and, secondly, the sale of consolidated holdings. Now, Sir, I do not think that there can be any dispute on the point that if these two methods are adopted, a large part of our agricultural population will be landless, and I do not think that it is in the best interests of the country that the poorer classes should be further pauperised in this manner. Sir, I should like to point out that although the Hindu Law is very defective in many ways, yet the Hindu Law of inheritance has been one great saviour of the people. Sir, the social and religious autocracy established by the Hindu Dharma has kept a large mass of the people in perpetual thralldom. If their lot is tolerable under this thralldom it is because the Hindu Law of inheritance has prevented the creation of plutocracy. Sir, we do not wish to add economic slavery to social thralldom. Let men be economically free if they are not socially free. I am therefore totally opposed to the abrogation of that just and equitable system of inheritance. At this stage I should like to make one humble suggestion to the honourable mover of this bill. I am prepared to give my support to the first reading of this bill provided he is not wedded to the method of consolidation and enlargement of holding as provided in the bill. I think, Sir, the better method is to introduce co-operative agriculture for standard areas and to compel owners of small strips included therein to join in cultivation without destroying private ownership. If this is done, if some provision for this is made in the bill, then I would certainly support the bill. (Mr. F. G. H. Anderson indicated dissent). The honourable member Mr. Anderson, the Settlement Commissioner, shakes his head. But I can tell the honourable member, that the method which I am suggesting is not my own, but is a system which is prevalent in Italy, in France, and is being followed in parts of England with great advantage. In this connection, Sir, I would earnestly suggest to the Honourable the Leader of the House to give his most careful consideration to what Mr. Otto Rothfeld says in his book : " Impressions of the Co-operative Movement in France and Italy." I would quote a paragraph from it here :

" As a whole the movement is one with vast potentialities. It has been imitated in France, since the war, with good results, and in Rumania a similar type of co-operation is almost revolutionizing the husbandry of the country. It is possible that in co-operative cultivation in common a solution might be discovered to those problems of Deccan poverty and unimproved cultivation which centre round the disputed issues of " the uneconomic holding " and " excessive sub-division of property." Such a solution at any rate would avoid that revolutionary interference with traditional rights of succession that is so often recommended by light-hearted reformers of non-farming classes and would not bring in its train those consequences in the way of limitation of families which may be anticipated if legislation interferes to disinherit younger children."

So, it will be seen, Sir, that such a system has been actually tried elsewhere and with success. I would conclude by saying that, if the Honourable the Leader of the House is prepared to consider all these suggestions carefully and will not object to any amendments that may be suggested in the select committee on the ground that they are of principle, and is not wedded to the method of consolidation and enlargement of holdings as proposed in the bill, then I have no objection to supporting the first reading of the bill.

Mr. J. W. SMYTH : I move the closure, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I have received a requisition which is signed by 25 members, who wish to speak on this bill. Now, even if every honourable member were to restrict himself even to the fifteen minutes' limit, if imposed, it is clear that the discussion will prolong very considerably, perhaps for five hours more. Even if I were to reduce the limit to ten minutes for each member, it is obvious that I cannot allow all the twenty-five honourable members to speak. Therefore, whatever is done, I am sure to displease some honourable members. I think sufficient has already been said on all the important aspects of the bill, and I would therefore accept the closure. But before accepting that, is the Honourable the Leader of the House likely to finish his reply within ten minutes ? There are only a few minutes now to 7.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Yes, Sir. I think I can finish within ten minutes.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I accept the closure.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I would make it quite clear at the outset, Sir, that I would not object to any amendments that may be proposed in the select committee, to which I wish to refer this bill, on the ground that they are amendments of principle and every honourable member will have an opportunity to move any amendment which he considers desirable to improve the bill or to remove any defects in the bill. But I must, Sir, point out with regard to the vehement and eloquent speech which we all heard from the honourable member from Ahmedabad, that he was labouring under a misapprehension that Government wanted, by this bill, to interfere with the rights of ownerships of the poor agriculturists. I may inform him and this House that Government do not want to infringe upon the right of ownership at all. If any honourable members think there are any clauses in the bill which are objectionable from this point of view, they can move amendments in the select committee and they will be carefully considered and alterations will be made if necessary.

The honourable member has been declaiming violently for the last two days against what he called the unholy alliance made by certain parties in the House who usually kept aloof and apart. It is gratifying to find that he on his part has discovered many virtues in the I.C.S., especially the Collectors whom two or three years ago he was never tired of accusing of grossly neglecting the people's interests. He has asked for the benefit of their experience. He has heard the considered views not of a mere Collector but of a Commissioner the Settlement Commissioner and Director of Land Records—who during his long and distinguished service of over a third of a century has trumped more fields and discussed this matter with more ryots than all members of the House including the honourable member from Ahmedabad.

The honourable member went so far as to suggest that there were motives behind this bill. I should have thought that it was an undignified procedure, to say the least, for the honourable member who claims to stand on a high pedestal of morality and ethics to cast reflections against any measures that may be brought on behalf of Government. I will not deal with the criticisms that he has raised.

Sir, I would like to confine my remarks only to those honourable members who opposed the very principle of the bill.

The honourable member for Satara feared that land by this Bill will be going out of the hands of cultivators into those of sowcars. I tried to examine that question some two or three years ago. We have no definite information. We have no forms or statements which will give that information. Two or three years ago we changed the forms by which this information will be collected now in Government records and I dare say that in the course of a few years the information will be available. Such information as we possess collected by a non-official agency and collected by an intensive study of a particular tract, which is a most satisfactory method, I present for the consideration of the honourable member. I claim, Sir, that if you allow the present conditions to go on, you will drive the people away from the land and actually put the land into the hands of sowcars who do not want to cultivate it with their own hands. Here is a report on the Pardi taluka made by the Economic Enquiry Committee appointed by the Co-operative Institute, and I find the names of my honourable friends Rao Saheb Dadabhai Desai and Rao Bahadur Bhimbhai Naik, and the name of Professor C. N. Vakil on the committee. I think I told the House on Saturday that the committee found that "the smaller plots are allowed to lie fallow for years together." Under the same head the Committee go on to say :

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

"In addition to the Hindu law of inheritance, unequal fertility and sizes, another cause which contributes to this state of affairs is the gradual absorption of large amounts of land into the hands of the village sowcar by means of foreclosures of mortgages, sales, etc., etc." I do not like to speak without my book. I have not got Government figures to corroborate what I say, but here is a testimony which is, as I said, obtained by an intensive enquiry and is non-official. The honourable member, Rao Bahadur Naik, mentioned quite correctly that the effects of fragmentation and sub-divisions are now being fully felt because the Hindu system of joint ownership and joint cultivation has been broken up on account of the spirit of individualism. I think I pointed that out in my opening speech and I said that that spirit of individualism has come to stay and that it is up to us now to take measures in order to prevent the evil effects of that new system in this regard. I may quote further from the evidence placed before the Royal Commission on Agriculture with regard to the experience of the Central Provinces. This is what Mr. Dyer, Commissioner in the Central Provinces and another friend of my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan, said :—

"Chakbandi is the term commonly used in Chhattisgarh to denote the consolidation of holdings. While the operation of Hindu and Mahomedan law tends everywhere towards the sub-division of holdings, the evil of fragmentation is, in this Province, far more serious in the Chhattisgarh Division than elsewhere owing to the evil effects of the now obsolete practice of lakhabhata, which was a device to equalise the holdings of land by a periodical distribution of the fields in the village so as to ensure that each cultivator got his share of the different kinds of land."

I will ask my honourable friend Mr. Swaminarayan whether he does not think that the existing system has led to the impoverishment of the cultivator. I say that there are various other causes which lead to lower production and to the agriculturist's indebtedness, but I say that this is in my opinion the principal cause, and I think it is up to us to try and mend that. It is callous, heartless neglect of the cultivators' interests to ask us to leave the people to themselves in a matter of this character. I have told you that Government have no interest in bringing forward this legislation. It has been mentioned specifically in the bill that Government will make various concessions in carrying out the object of this bill. I have also said that it is going to entail an enormous amount of work on the revenue staff. Do you think that we are undertaking all these burdens for our pleasure? Do you think that the monopoly of looking after the cultivators' interests is in the hands of my honourable friends like Mr. Swaminarayan alone? For five years I have been working on this bill and I would not have brought it forward if I had felt that it was going to do the least bit of harm to my brother, the poor cultivator.

Sir, much has been said about the expropriation of the cultivator. I have already pointed out that it is not a bill to form economic holdings. An economic holding has been put by Mr. Keatinge at 40 acres. I do not propose that the area should be anything like that figure. I do not say that it should be 10 or 12 or 15 acres. It will have to be decided by the committee which is to be formed and on which a large number of non-official members will be represented. Sir, I believe that in the case of bagayat land it will be a very small size indeed. The soil varies from district to district and from taluka to taluka, and therefore it is impossible to lay down any figure in this bill. But let me ask the honourable members that even if it is three or four or five acres, why do you argue that people will be necessarily expropriated? Is there any provision in the bill which prevents joint ownership or joint cultivation? Does it say that the people's rights of ownership are to be interfered with? It only says that you shall not divide land by metes and bounds, you can hold it in common, you can enjoy the fruits of your labours in common. And yet I am told that Government ought to have tried joint cultivation before by means of co-operative effort. May I tell you that two co-operative societies were started in the Central Division—one in Bhambora and one in Arjunsonda, for co-operative farming and both of them are absolute failures? We tried our best to make them successful. Mr. Madan, the Indian Registrar of Co-operative Societies, who is held in very great esteem by the cultivator himself, was in charge but without avail. Do you wish us to go on from year to year trying to repeat these failures.....

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : Have you investigated the causes of the failure of the Arjunsonda society?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Yes, and I am sure if the honourable member Mr. Jadhav had been on the Government benches he would have supported this bill.

An impassioned appeal was made by my friend Mr. Swaminarayan to the honourable members from Sind. He heard what the honourable member Mr. Khuhro had to say and, therefore, I do not wish to quote a letter which a Revenue officer in Sind has only just written to the Commissioner in Sind pointing out how the evil is also growing there.....

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED : No, no.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, I say that this is the proper time to take this measure in hand before it is too late. In my opinion it is a very modest one. I wish the Council to lay down the principle that it is their duty to see that the land which gives maintenance and livelihood to such a large population should be utilised in the best manner possible and that it is not allowed to deteriorate in such a manner that all the people of this Presidency will suffer. I am prepared, Sir, to take the advice of all honourable members whom I shall ask to serve on the select committee. I am perfectly certain that they will give us most valuable assistance in so shaping the bill as to make it thoroughly practical. I am not wedded to any particular clause or method laid down in the bill. We have prepared what we think is right. I have had discussions with honourable members, and I see that some of the sections will require alteration. I only wish the House to recognise that this measure is an honest attempt to tackle a great problem, and that it is the duty of the House to look after their brethren about whom they speak so much. I therefore beg to move that this bill be read a first time.

[Sir Chunilal Mehta]

Bill read a first time. Question put and carried.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : Sir, I beg to move that the bill be referred to a select committee consisting of the following honourable members. I have tried to make the select committee as representative as possible, and I have tried to put in representatives from all divisions. Six members are to form a quorum, and the committee to report by the 30th June 1928 :—

Rao Bahadur B. R. Naik.

Mr. W. S. Mukadam.

Rao Bahadur R. R. Kale.

Mr. P. R. Chikodi.

Mr. V. N. Jog.

Mr. B. R. Nanal.

The Thakor of Kerwada.

Mr. N. E. Navle.

Khan Saheb Abdul Latif Haji Hajrat Khan.

Mr. K. M. Munshi.

Mr. M. S. Khuhro.

Mr. B. G. Pahalajani.

The Secretary, Revenue Department.

The Honourable the Revenue Member.

Mr. F. G. H. Anderson and myself.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) : Sir, I find that only those members who are in favour of the bill have been put on the select committee, and there is none from those who opposed the bill. I therefore propose that the names of Mr. Swaminarayan, Dr. Ambedkar, Mr. B. V. Jadhav and Rao Saheb Dadubhai Desai should be added.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : I propose that the name of Rao Saheb D. P. Desai should be added.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : There are already 16 members on the select committee, and I do not think I should take more. I will take one more, Dr. B. R. Ambedkar.

Mr. G. I. PATEL : I want to move an amendment to this.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The honourable member Mr. Haji Mir Mahomed Baloch has proposed the addition of four names, namely, Mr. Swaminarayan, Mr. Jadhav, Dr. Ambedkar and Rao Saheb D. P. Desai of whom Dr. Ambedkar has been accepted by the Honourable Member.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : The honourable member Mr. Mukadam suggests that Rao Saheb D. P. Desai should take his place. I have no objection.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH : Two of the names suggested have been accepted. If the committee is to be properly constituted, all the four names should be accepted.

Question put that the names of Dr. Ambedkar and Rao Saheb D. P. Desai be added and carried.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH : I claim a division, Sir.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I will accept Mr. Jadhav, Sir.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The motion is :

“ That the bill be referred to a select committee consisting of—

Mr. B. G. Pahalajani,
Mr. M. S. Khuhro,
Dr. B. R. Ambedkar,
Rao Bahadur B. R. Naik,
Rao Saheb D. P. Desai,
Mr. K. M. Munshi,
Rao Bahadur R. R. Kale,
Mr. P. R. Chikodi,
Mr. V. N. Jog,
Mr. B. R. Nanal,
The Thakor of Kerwada,
Khan Saheb Abdul Latif Haji Hajrat Khan,
Mr. N. E. Navle,
Mr. J. W. Smyth,
The Honourable Mr. J. L. Rieu,
Mr. F. G. H. Anderson,
Mr. B. V. Jadhav, and
The Honourable the Leader of the House,

6 to form a quorum, and the committee to report by the 30th of June 1928. ”

Bill referred to select committee.

Question put and carried.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The House is adjourned till 2 p.m. to-morrow, Tuesday, the 11th October 1927.

Tuesday, the 11th October 1927.

The Council re-assembled at the Council Hall, Poona, on Tuesday, the 11th October 1927, at 2 p.m., the Honourable the President Mr. A. M. K. DEHLAVI Bar.-at-Law, presiding.

Mr. R. D. Bell.

Mr. K. S. Framji.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. Questions.

CHOLERA IN SHOLAPUR DISTRICT

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN (Poona and Sholapur Cities): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of attacks and deaths from cholera in each of the talukas of the Sholapur District in the current year;

(b) whether it is a fact that the Mamlatdars of Barsi and Sangola wired to the Assistant Director of Public Health for the immediate supply of the necessary medicines to check the spread of the epidemic which was raging very virulently in those two talukas;

(c) how many days after the receipt of the wires the necessary medicines were supplied to them by the Assistant Director of Public Health;

(d) if there was delay, what was the cause of it;

(e) who was responsible for it, and what steps Government intend to take in this matter;

(f) whether it is a fact that because of this delay the necessary medicines were supplied by the Collector of Sholapur to the Mamlatdars concerned after obtaining them as loan from the municipalities in the district;

(g) whether the Assistant Director of Public Health personally visited the affected areas, and if so when?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) The number of attacks and deaths in Sholapur District by talukas are as given below:—

Taluka				Attacks	Deaths	Remarks
1.	Sholapur	..	..	973	438	The figures are given up to end of August 1927.
2.	Barsi	..	..	1,851	828
3.	Madha	..	..	1,249	530
4.	Karmala	..	..	1,316	501
5.	Sangola	..	..	236	98
6.	Malsiras	..	..	447	150
7.	Pandharpur	..	..	452	184
8.	Sholapur Town	..	..	190	102
9.	Barsi Town	..	..	263	127
10.	Pandharpur Town	..	..	232	213

(b) The Mamlatdar, Barsi, did not wire for potassium permanganate to the Assistant Director.

The Mamlatdar, Sangola, wired on 4th August 1927.

(c) The supply to Mamlatdar, Sangola, was sent on 11th August 1927. The Mamlatdar, Barsi's requisition by letter for potash permanganate received on 7th July 1927 was complied with on 12th July and a further requisition received on 28th July was complied with on 11th August 1927.

(d) and (e) There was a slight delay in the supply of medicines but the blame does not rest with the Department of Public Health. In the circulars issued by the Assistant Director of Public Health in March and June he advised local authorities and all Mamlatdars and Mahalkaries to replenish their stocks of potash permanganate and pills in ampler time. The local authorities failed to act on these circulars. The supply of the Assistant Director is only an emergency supply. If the Local Boards had followed the advice of the Assistant Director and replenished their stock, the requisitions on the Assistant Director would have been less and indents could have been complied with more expeditiously. Moreover, Local Bodies are required to purchase potash permanganate and pills for their own needs and it is expected that they should keep a sufficient stock on hand always.

(f) The Collector of Sholapur had informed the Assistant Director that he was attempting to borrow medicines from Local Municipalities.

(g) Yes. In May, June, July and August. The Assistant Director has to devote his time to all Districts in his charge. As a matter of fact, Sholapur has been given preferential treatment on account of the Ashadhi fair.

Khan Saheb ABDUL LATIF HAJI HAJRAT KHAN: With regard to reply to (g) may I know the date?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: I cannot give the exact date.

DEPUTY AND ASSISTANT DIRECTORS OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION : APPOINTMENT OF MAHOMEDANS

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD (Central Division): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) since how many years the Director of Public Instruction has been granted a deputy and an assistant Director;

(b) whether it is a fact that while a Brahmin and a Parsi have been appointed to one or the other of these places, no Mahomedan has ever been preferred to any of them;

(c) if so, what is the reason of this exclusion?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: (a) There is only one permanent Indian Educational Service post of Assistant Director of Public Instruction. It was created in 1903. A temporary post of Deputy Director of Public Instruction was sanctioned for three years during 1913-1916. The designation of the permanent post of Assistant Director of Public Instruction has been temporarily changed to Deputy Director of Public Instruction from 8th May 1923. The period for which this change has been made is now to terminate on 7th May 1928. A special temporary post of Assistant Director of Public Instruction has been sanctioned from 1st March 1926. The period of the appointment, as at present decided, is to terminate on 31st March 1928.

(b) The answer is in the affirmative.

(c) The appointments were not made on communal considerations but from the point of view of seniority and suitability of the officer appointed and of administrative convenience.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : With regard to reply to (c) may I know from the Honourable Minister whether a senior Mahomedan officer was not available or whether he was administratively inconvenient.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : These appointments were made by my predecessor. I cannot tell the honourable member the reasons. I require notice.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : The Honourable Minister says here :—

“The appointments were not made on communal considerations but from the point of view of seniority and suitability of the officer appointed and of administrative convenience.”

It is why that I asked whether the senior Mahomedan officer was not available or whether it was found administratively inconvenient.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The appointments were made in the time of my predecessor. If the honourable member mentions the name of any particular persons whose claim has been overlooked, I will be able to enquire and give information.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Thank you. I will do so next time.

DISTRICT JUDGE, GODHRA : QUARTERS FOR STAFF

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM on behalf of Mr. H. J. AMIN (Broach District) : Will Government be pleased to state whether they have considered the necessity of providing quarters for the staff of the District Judge while he encamps at Godhra ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : Yes. The construction of the quarters will be undertaken as soon as funds are available.

CHILD WELFARE CONGRESS, GENOVA : DR. SHIKHARE'S REPORT

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether Rao Bahadur Dr. P. V. Shikhare was sent as a representative to the Child Welfare Congress held at Genova in 1925 ;

(b) whether Rao Bahadur Dr. Shikhare has submitted to Government any report on his return from the Conference :

(c) if so, what action Government has taken or propose to take in connection with the recommendations made by Rao Bahadur Dr. Shikhare in the report ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Yes, vide Government Resolution No. 5326, dated the 28th July 1925, copy placed on the table.*

(b) Yes, vide Government Resolution No. 5326, dated the 20th May 1926, copy placed on the table.*

(c) Attention of the Honourable Member is invited to Government Resolution No. 5326, dated the 10th August 1927, copy placed on the table.*

Mr. S. K. BOLE : The resolution referred to by the Honourable Minister says :

The report submitted by Rao Bahadur Dr. Chitale should be published for general information. The question regarding the action which should be taken on the recommendation contained in the report is under consideration.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : What is the question ?

Mr. S. K. BOLE : In the resolution referred to by the Honourable Minister no definite action is proposed to be taken. What is the use of drawing my attention to that resolution ? Is Government going to take any specific action ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : No specific action has been taken as yet.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Do Government propose to take any specific action ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The matter will be considered as soon as the reports from the officers are received.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : When action is likely to be taken ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I cannot say just now.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : It is more than one year, Sir.

“GENERAL CONGRESS OF THE CHILD,” GENOVA : ACTION ON DECLARATION

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware of the Declaration of the Child passed at the first General Congress of the Child held at Genova ;

(b) if so, what action has Government taken to give effect to the Declaration ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) It is presumed that by “the Declaration of the Child” the Honourable Member refers to “the Declaration of the Rights of the Child.” If so, yes, vide page 17 of accompaniments to Government Resolution No. 5326, dated the 20th May 1926, copy placed on the table*.

(b) No specific action has been taken with reference to the Declaration but the orders of Government on Rao Bahadur Dr. Shikhare's comprehensive report relating to the whole subject are embodied in Government Resolution No. 5326, dated the 10th August 1927, copy placed on the table.*

---

* Kept in the Secretary's Office.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : In the Declaration of the Rights of the Child passed at the Genova Congress recently it is stated :

“ The child must be given the means requisite for its normal development both materially and spiritually. The child that is hungry must be fed ; the child that is sick must be nursed and the child that is backward must be helped . . . . . ”

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : What is the question ?

Mr. S. K. BOLE : In view of that declaration what action has Government taken ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Before any steps are taken careful consideration is necessary.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Do Government intend to start a Child Welfare Fund for giving relief such as food and clothing to such children as are ill fed and ill clad ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : There are several associations giving such relief, but I am not able to say whether they are giving food and clothing.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Are those associations organized by Government ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : They are aided by Government.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Do Government intend to institute such a fund ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I refer the honourable member to the latest order contained in G. R. No. 5326 dated 10th August 1927.

CHILD WELFARE CONGRESS, GENOVA : ACTION ON RESOLUTIONS

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware of the various resolutions adopted at the Child Welfare Congress held at Genova in 1925 ;

(b) if so, what action they have taken or propose to take to give effect to the resolutions ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Yes, vide accompaniments to Government Resolution No. 5326, dated the 20th May 1926, copy placed on the table.*

(b) Attention of the Honourable Member is invited to Government Resolution No. 5326, dated the 10th August 1927, copy placed on the table.*

RAILWAY STATION AT KASUDI

Mr. DAWOODKHAN SHALEBHOY (Northern Division) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware of the fact that the President of the Timber Merchants Conference of Godhra applied to the Railway authorities for opening a station at the Inami village of Kasudi in Godhra Taluka for loading and unloading goods ;

(b) if answer to (a) is in affirmative how this application has been disposed of ;

(c) whether they are aware of the necessity for opening this station for loading and unloading ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes.

(b) The Railway authorities advised the President of the Firewood and Timber Trade Association, Godhra, to consult the Collector of the Panch Mahals in the matter.

(c) The Railway authorities state that the scheme to open a station at Kasudi for goods booking involves heavy expenditure, that there is no possibility of its bringing in any appreciable return, and that it might result in a loss of revenue to the Godhra Municipality as there is a possibility of their local taxes being evaded.

LAND LEASES : PANCH MAHALS

DAWOODKHAN SHALEBHOY (Northern Division) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that the Collector of Panch Mahals leased some lands in Godhra to some merchants and other leaseholders with a condition that they should erect buildings within two years from the date of the lease ;

(b) whether it is a fact that before the expiry of this period the leaseholders applied for extension of the period but it was not given and their leases were cancelled ;

(c) whether it is a fact that the merchants applied for similar extension after the expiry of the period of two years and the Collector granted the same ;

(d) why this distinction was drawn between merchants and other leaseholders ?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : (a) Yes.

(b) No. The leases, with the exception of two leases granted to merchants, were cancelled as the leaseholders in question neither erected houses on the land according to the terms of the lease within the prescribed period of two years nor applied for an extension before the expiry of that period.

(c) No. The merchants in question applied within the prescribed period, and their request was consequently granted.

(d) No distinction was drawn between merchants and other leaseholders as such.

SCHOLARSHIPS FOR HINDUS AND MUHAMMADANS

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the proportion of intermediate Hindus to the total population in the presidency proper in each Division and the number of scholarships set apart for their uplift in each Division of this Presidency for each class of instruction ;

(b) similar figures for the backward Hindus and the Muhammadans ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) and (b) The accompanying statements supply the information required :—

(a) Only some of the castes shown as "Intermediate" in the census report have been regarded as eligible for these scholarships. The number is roughly 546 and 112 scholarships only have been awarded.

(b) Scholarships in primary schools for backward classes are not distributed on a population basis.

(c) Scholarships for Muhammadans in Arts Colleges are distributed according to the population of each revenue division as shown above.

(d) These two scholarships are given only in the first year and are meant for the Presidency proper.

SUKKUR BARRAGE : EXECUTIVE ENGINEER MR. MACARTHUR

Rao Sahab D. P. DESAI (Kaira District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether Mr. MacArthur was appointed an Executive Engineer, Sukkur Barrage ;

(b) if the reply be in the affirmative what his qualifications were ;

(c) whether it is a fact that he was a railway guard before he was taken up as Executive Engineer on the Sukkur Barrage ;

(d) His pay and the period for which he has served on the Sukkur Barrage Project ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : (a) Yes. Mr. R. G. MacArthur was appointed as a Temporary Executive Engineer.

(b) Mr. MacArthur alleged to be a Civil and Mechanical Engineer and to have served his time with Messrs. Fleming and Ferguson, Paisley.

In his application Mr. MacArthur had stated that he possessed 7 years' experience in Marine Engineering, construction work and railways and had put in 3 years' service in the Marine Department under the Madras Government being in charge of a bucket ladder and sand pump dredger at Coconada Port.

(c) Government have no information on the point.

(d) He was employed on Rs. 800 per mensem in the Lloyd Barrage Circle from the 16th December 1925 to 25th October 1926 when his services were terminated.

Rao Sahab D. P. DESAI : Will Government be pleased to state why the engineer was appointed without looking into his qualifications ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : His qualifications were looked into, as stated in the reply and the qualifications are given in the reply.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : But that was his own statement ; there were no certificates.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : He produced his certificates, as far as I remember.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Was he a civil engineer ; did he possess any qualifications which qualified him to be employed as a civil engineer ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The reply is clear that he was not.

Mr. NOOR MAHOMED : When were his services terminated : before he left the country or after he left the country ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : When he was in the country, as far as I remember

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA : Why were his services discontinued ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : I think I have answered that question before in this honourable House at some length. I cannot refer my honourable friend to the exact page and volume of the Debates, but the reply was given during the last session or the session before.

Mr. G. I. PATEL : It is stated " Mr. MacArthur alleged to be a civil and mechanical engineer ". What is the meaning of the word " alleged " ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : The ordinary meaning of the word " alleged ", namely that he professed to be a civil engineer.

Mr. G. I. PATEL : Were Government satisfied with those professions and the certificates produced by him ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : So far as I know he produced those certificates and in the usual way Government had no reason to doubt that they were forgeries, and even now I do not think we can prove that they were forgeries.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA : Who was responsible for his appointment ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : He was appointed by Government.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : By what officer of the Government ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : As a matter of fact it was the Chief Engineer who interviewed him, and I happened to be at Sukkur at the time and also saw him before he was appointed.

Mr. G. I. PATEL : May I know the reason which prompted the Honourable Member to use the word " alleged " if he was satisfied with the certificates ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : Subsequently we have reason to doubt whether he had those qualifications.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Why did Government allow themselves to be cheated ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : Government are human and liable to be cheated, just as my honourable friend must have been cheated in the past.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT : I. M. D. OFFICERS

Rao Sahab D. P. DESAI (Kaira District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) how many officers serving in the Bombay Medical Department belong to the I. M. D. ;

(b) their length of service in the Department and the School or College in which they received their education, the degrees of any University either in this country or Europe, held by these officers ;

(c) their present posting and their salary ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) 26.

(b) and (c) The Honourable Member's attention is invited to pages 339-A, 343 and 354-355-A of the Bombay Civil List. As regards the officers mentioned at pages 339-A and 343, their length of service is as follows :—

Assistant Surgeon H. M. La Frenais	..	..	20 years.
Major R. G. Ives	..	..	33 years.
Major W. E. Kirkpatrick	..	..	32 years.
Captain J. G. Williams	..	..	27 years.

The officers received their education at the Grant Medical College, Bombay, at the Medical College, Madras, and the Medical College, Calcutta.

DISTRICT LOCAL BOARD, SATARA : COLLECTIONS

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District) : Will Government be pleased to state in the following form the total amount collected, either from individuals or villagers for public purposes, and that has not been spent and that now forms part of the balance of the district local board, Satara, as it stands on 1st April 1927 :—

Name of contributor (individual or villagers)	Amount received	Date of receipt	Amount collected for what purpose
—	—	—	—

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Attention of the Honourable Member is invited to the reply to his similar question at the last Session of the Council, printed at page 1491 of Part XVIII, Volume XX, of the Council Debates.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : No information was supplied. Is there any difficulty in supplying the information asked for ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : The reply is given there.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : Is there any objection to furnishing the information asked for ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : What is the information required? The honourable member is referred to another reply.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : In that reply also the information was not given ; it was stated that no definite answer could be given as the question was vague and fresh notice was necessary. Now, I am referred to that reply.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : The honourable member should consider the nature of questions put by him.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : The balance of the district local board on the 1st of April 1927 is there ; what are the difficulties in giving the items that make up that balance ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : I would refer the honourable member to the district local board.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : How will they supply the information when Government are not supplying it ? (After a pause). Is the Honourable Minister not going to give any reply ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The Honourable Minister does not choose to reply to the last question asked.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : How are we to know whether the Honourable Minister is in a mood to reply or not unless and until he says he has no reply ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Look at the nature of the question. Information is required about collections from individuals or villagers for an indefinite period. How are we to know : and how is the district local board to know ?

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : Then, say that you are not in a position to reply.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : Has the district local board said that they could not get the information, or is it the Honourable Minister's imagination ? I have asked the question :

" Will Government be pleased to state in the following form the total amount collected, either from individuals or villagers for public purposes, and that has not been spent and that now forms part of the balance of the district local board, Satara, as it stands on 1st April 1927 ? "

The balance is there, and I want to know how the balance is made up ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : The question is absurd. A sum might have been collected for dispensaries several years back, but it cannot be the balance of the district local board. Somebody might have contributed something towards the play-ground of a school or for a public charity ; how could that go to the district local board's balance ? The honourable member ought to realise the absurdity of the question.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : Has the district local board said like that ?

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : May I know whether this question was sent to the district local board with a request to supply the information ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : No.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : May I know the reason why this question was not sent to the district local board ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : In order not to waste the time of the district local board.

MUNICIPALITIES IN SIND

Khan Saheb GULAM NABI SHAH (Thar Parkar District) : Will Government be pleased—

(a) to place on the Council table a statement containing information on the following points in regard to Municipalities in Sind :—

- (1) The total population of each Municipal District.
- (2) Hindu and Muslim population of each Municipal District
- (3) Number of Hindu and Muslim elected members.
- (4) Number of Hindu and Muslim nominated members.
- (5) Number of Hindu and Muslim Members on the Managing Committee.

(6) The religion to which the president and vice-president and chairman of the Managing Committee belong.

(7) The number of chief officers in the major municipal districts in Sind.

(8) The number of Secretaries in the minor municipal districts.

(9) The number of Muhammadan chief officers.

(10) The number of Hindu chief officers.

(11) The number of Hindu Secretaries ;
the number of Muhammadan Secretaries.

(12) The statement of the remaining establishment with different designation of each officer in each Municipality separately :

(13) the number of Hindus in item No. 12 ;

(14) the number of Muhammadans in item No. 12 ;

(b) to state whether they have powers under the Municipal Act to regulate the establishment of the various Municipalities with a view to safeguard the interest of each community by the representation of its members on the establishment of each Municipality ;

(c) to state whether they are aware that Muhammadans have not been getting their share of office in proportion to their numbers in the past and do not still get it ;

(d) to state whether they have taken any steps to ensure the proper proportion of Muhammadans in the office establishment of each Municipality in the past ;

(e) to state whether they intend to take any steps in the matter now ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : (a) (1) and (2), (b), (c), (d) and (e) These parts of the question have already been answered.

(a) (3) to (6) The attention of the honourable member is invited to the reply given to question No. 2 of the honourable member Mr. Jairamdas Doulatram in the last Session of the Council printed at pages 5 to 7 of the second list of questions and answers of that Session.

(a) (7) to (14) A statement which gives the information required is placed on the Council table.*

GANPATI MELA SONGS, POONA

Mr. B. V. JADHAV (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to place on the Council table copies of all the songs intended to be sung by the different Melas in connection with the recent Ganpati festival in the city of Poona and submitted to the District Magistrate for his approval, with the portions disapproved marked therein?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: Copies are not kept either of the songs submitted for approval or of the portions of them cut out by the Committee.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV: Is it not a fact that the District Magistrate or the city police have kept copies?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: My reply is according to the information I have received. Neither the District Magistrate nor the committee kept copies.

POLITICAL PRISONERS

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind): Will Government be pleased to state--

(a) the names of prisoners now incarcerated in any jail in the Presidency who were convicted of political conspiracy or similar State offences;

(b) the year of the conviction, length of sentence passed, the length of sentence served out including remissions earned or due in each case;

(c) whether any and, if so, which of them have completed fourteen years of their life sentence including remissions;

(d) whether they intend to consider the question of releasing such of them as have thus completed fourteen years;

(e) the rule which authorises Government to release lifers before the completion of twenty years;

(f) whether Government have considered the question of transferring to their respective provinces such of the prisoners mentioned in (a) as do not belong to the Bombay Presidency?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON: If the honourable member will be good enough to specify the sections of the Indian Penal Code convictions under which he intends his question to cover, enquiries will be made.

ANCIENT MONUMENTS : BUILDINGS IN SIND

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind) : Will Government be pleased to place on the Council table a list of buildings in Sind which are protected under the Ancient Monuments Act ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : The accompanying statement * furnishes the information required by the Honourable Member.

BOMBAY LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL AND LOCAL BOARDS : MUSLIM AND NON-MUSLIM VOTERS

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) the number of Muslim and non-Muslim voters (separately) in each municipal area in Sind for municipal and Council elections (separately) ;

(b) the number of Muslim and non-Muslim voters (separately) in each district local board area for district local board, taluka local board and Council elections (separately) ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : A statement giving the information required by the honourable member for Eastern Sind, as regards Council elections is laid on the Council table. Information regarding other elections will be supplied later when ready.

ANNA VALUATION, DHARWAR DISTRICT

Mr. V. N. JOG (Dharwar District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) what is the anna valuation of crops for the year 1926-27 in the Talukas of Navalgund, Hubli, Karajgi, Dharwar and Kalghatgi and in the Petha of Nargund of the Dharwar District as made by the Panch, village officers, Mamlatdars and Prant officers;

(b) what is the principle of this anna valuation as observed by these various persons. Is the anna valuation based on the quantity of the yield or the price of the yield?

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU: (a) A statement containing the required information is placed on the Council table.* No detailed valuation of the crops was made in Kalghatgi taluka and in some villages of Dharwar taluka, as the annewari was above six annas.

(b) The anna valuation was in all cases based on the estimated outturn and not on the price of the yield.

MAYANI TANK LANDS : LEASE

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE (Satara District): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that the Mayani tank in the Satara district is without any water from December to June;

* Kept in the Secretary's Office

(b) whether they are aware that the land in the tank during those months used to be let to the surrounding ryots at the rate of Rs. 8 per acre and that this used to bring nearly Rs. 1,600 at the above rate to Government ;

(c) why similar leases were not granted for the current year, and who is responsible for the loss thus caused ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : (a) Yes.

(b) This concession is granted only when there is scarcity of fodder and the Collector certifies that such a concession is called for by the circumstances of the year.

(c) It is not desirable to plough up the tank bed, as it causes proportionately more silt accumulation in the deepest portion towards the dam and disturbs the upper impervious layer of fine silt thus causing more absorption and consequent leakage. The tank bed is not therefore given out for cultivation unless there is scarcity of fodder due to failure of rain. During the current year there was no such scarcity of fodder and hence the tank bed was not given out for cultivation.

Rao Bahadur R. R. KALE : May I know why similar licenses were not granted for the current year ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : The answer is as printed. It is only when there is scarcity of fodder that such licenses are granted. That is the principle involved.

TECHNICAL SCHOOLS

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR on behalf of Mr. N. G. MAJMUDAR (Sholapur City) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they had received any application for starting Technical Schools to teach hand-weaving, dyeing and allied industries ?

(b) if so, what action they are taking in the matter ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) There is no such application pending. The honourable member probably refers to an application made in September 1925, by the Chairman, District Weavers' Union, Sholapur, to maintain permanently the sizing, weaving and dyeing demonstrations set up there.

(b) A sizing demonstration has been working in Sholapur since October 1924. A dyeing demonstration was conducted there from February 1925 to March 1926. The Weaving demonstrations are peripatetic institutions and when the improvements they demonstrate have been explained in one weaving centre they move on to another centre. The work in Sholapur has been very successful and there will be no objection to transferring the sizing demonstration to another centre in due course.

N. J. HIGH SCHOOL, KARACHI : URDU CLASSES.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALUCH (Karachi City) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they are aware that the Sind Madressah-Tul-Islam and the Karachi Academy High School are the only two institutions in Karachi providing special facilities for Muslim students and maintaining Urdu classes also to attract Muslim students with Urdu as their vernacular ;

(b) whether it is a fact that maintaining Gujarati, Urdu and Sinhi classes for Muslim students, the Sind Madressah authorities do not find it possible, for want of accommodation to admit all Muslim students seeking admission ;

(c) in view of these difficulties, is Government considering the question of opening Urdu classes in the N. J. High School ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) Besides the two schools referred to there is an arrangement for the teaching of Urdu in L. R. D. Anglo-Vernacular School and Khalsa Anglo-Vernacular School, managed by the Arya Samajists and Sikhs, respectively.

(b) The Sind Madressah is, no doubt, overcrowded but so far no Muslim boy has been refused admission in the Sind Madressah for want of accommodation.

(c) From the replies given to (a) and (b) above it will be seen that the difficulties are not so great as depicted, and in any case it is not possible for Government to open Urdu classes in the N. J. High School as the requisite accommodation is not available in the school.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (addressing the House in Urdu : asked) : Are Muhammadans admitted into the schools maintained by the Arya Samaj ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Yes.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH : Are there any students in the schools of the Arya Samaj ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I will ask for notice of this question.

Mr. HOOSEINBHOY A. LALLJEE : Are Government aware that the activities of the Arya Samaj are against the Islamic religion ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The question does not arise at all.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH : Are Government aware that in Karachi city there is difficulty as regards the admission of Muhammadan boys in those schools ? What steps have Government taken in this matter ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : No boy has been refused admission and consequently no steps are required to be taken. If the honourable member will give me the names of boys who have been refused admission then enquiries will be made.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH : I will give the names. But I want to know what steps Government have taken in regard to the overcrowding in the schools and the consequent difficulty of admitting boys in those schools ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The difficulty about accommodation has not yet been brought to the notice of Government.

GOVERNMENT SERVANTS : PENSION RULES.

Mr. H. V. PATASKAR (East Khandesh District) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether the question of the revision of the present pension rules applicable to subordinate Government servants is engaging the attention of this Government ;

(b) whether they have submitted their views on the subject to the Government of India ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : (a) Yes.

(b) No.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : In view of the fact that the local Government has been given full powers for the framing or revision of these rules I should like to know what the reasons are for delaying the matter ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : As the House will remember in reply to a question put by the honourable member from Hyderabad, Sind, I stated that the local Governments were asked to meet in Delhi in November to examine the various rules. I believe that the meeting will be held in November for this purpose.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : Will the revised rules be brought into effect from the next financial year ?

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA : I hope so. I think that by that time something will be done in the matter.

TEXTILE INDUSTRY : COTTON, TOWN DUTY

Mr. J. B. PETIT (Bombay Millowners' Association) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they propose to reduce the town duty on cotton consumed by mills from Re. 1 to annas 8 per bale as recommended by the Textile Tariff Board in paragraph 66 of their report ;

(b) if the reply to the above be in the negative, how they propose to meet the contention of the Tariff Board that it is not equitable that the cotton industry in its present depressed condition should be expected to finance Bombay municipal and suburban development schemes ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : The recommendation made by the Indian Tariff Board (Cotton Textile Industry Enquiry) in paragraph 66 of their report is under the consideration of Government.

Mr. J. B. PETIT : When do Government expect to come to a decision ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : I cannot say exactly.

Mr. G. I. PATEL: Has the attention of Government been drawn to the fact that this is a matter in which the Bombay Municipal Corporation is also interested and in view of that do they not think it necessary to take the initiative and declare their attitude earlier on the question?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR: Any decision that we may come to will have to be in consultation with the Municipal Corporation. My honourable friend knows the circumstances in which this tax was imposed and therefore if any relief is to be given to the mills it can only be done I believe in consultation with the Municipality.

Sir VASANTRAO DABHOLKAR: Sir, I want to ask Question No. 1 of the honourable member Mr. H. M. Rahimtoola.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: I do not know on what authority the honourable member Sir Vasantao asks the question of Mr. Rahimtoola. Mr. Hooseinbhoi Abdullabhoi Lalljee has got the authority to put his question.

GOVERNMENT SERVICE : RECRUITMENT OF BACKWARD AND MUHAMMADAN COMMUNITIES

Mr. HOOSEINBHOY ABDULLABHOY LALLJEE on behalf of Mr. HOUSENALLY M. RAHIMTOOLA (Bombay City): Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) to what extent (giving figures wherever possible) effect has been given to Government Resolution of 1925 whereby they have prescribed a minimum percentage of recruitment from members of the backward communities to the public services;

(b) the number of vacancies that have been filled since the above resolution;

(c) the number of members of the backward communities that have been appointed;

(d) the number of Moslems that have been appointed.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: The information has been called for.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD: May I know when this question was sent? I think it is a long standing question.

The Honourable Sir CHUNILAL MEHTA: As far as I remember the question was sent only during this session and as the honourable member can see it will take some time to collect the information from the various places.

HORSE RACING, KIRKEE GYMKHANA

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI (Surat District); Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether a license for Horse-racing was granted to the Kirkee Gymkhana;

(b) if so, when.

(c) whether this licence was published in the Bombay Government Gazette ;

(d) whether this licence included power to run a totalizator, book-makers and a sweepstake ;

(e) whether these were open to the public ;

(f) whether the races, totalizator and sweepstake were advertised by placards openly and publicly ;

(g) whether they are aware that this action of the Kirkee Gymkhana was illegal.

(h) what steps they have taken in the matter ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : (a) Yes.

(b) The last license was granted on 20th June 1927 for the period 1st July 1927 to 30th June 1928.

(c) Yes.

(d) The license allows the working of a totalizator.

(e) The totalizator is to be worked within the Race Course which is open to the public.

(f) Yes.

(g) The action of the Kirkee Gymkhana Club in advertising the sweepstake was illegal.

(h) The Kirkee Gymkhana Club has been warned against a repetition of the offence.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : With regard to (h) why were no steps taken ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : A warning was considered sufficient.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : Was it not a serious offence ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : No, it was not ; nobody realised that it was an offence at all.

Mr. H. B. SHIVDASANI : Have not other people been prosecuted and convicted for the same offence ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : Certainly but under very different circumstances.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA : When was the first license granted ?

The Honourable Mr. J. E. B. HOTSON : I want notice of that question.

PRIMARY SCHOOLS GUJARAT : ADMISSION OF DEPRESSED CLASSES

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Will Government be pleased to state —

(a) the number of primary schools existing in the local board area of all the districts of Gujarat ;

(b) how many of these schools freely admit the children of the depressed classes in their class rooms and how many do not ;

(c) whether Government intend taking steps against those schools which do not admit these children ;

(d) what steps Government intend to take to put a stop to this practice ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : (a) The number of primary schools managed by the District Local Boards in the Districts of Ahmedabad, Kaira, Panch Mahals, Broach and Surat of the Northern Division was as under in the year 1925-26 :

Boys' primary schools	..	..	1,425
Girls' primary schools	..	..	186
			<hr/> 1,611

(b) All schools except 6 schools in the Surat District.

(c) Not as at present advised.

(d) Does not arise in view of the answer to clause (c).

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : May I know from the Honourable Minister whether these six schools are exempt from the resolution of Government?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : These primary schools are under the local authority under whose guidance they work.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : Is it not a fact that if a local authority or the manager of the school refuses to admit the children of depressed classes Government can stop contributing its share of the expenditure ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : There is the resolution of Government.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : Has any action been taken on that resolution ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : No.

Mr. W. S. MUKADAM : May I know if separate schools are there at these places for the depressed classes ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I cannot answer this question with confidence off-hand.

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Why should not Government take action against these six schools ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Government so far as I am advised do not consider the time is fit for effecting social revolutions by the power which they possess.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : The Minister says "I have been advised". By whom ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : My own advice.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Is the Honourable Minister aware that in two of those six schools mentioned they were willing to take the children of the depressed classes, but that they were not willing to sit with the children of the advanced classes ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : I am prepared to take what the honourable member says. He is the president of the district local board.

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Am I to understand that the children of the depressed classes are unwilling to sit with the children of the advanced classes ?

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : It is a fact about the two schools. I know it myself.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM : Can we put questions to private members ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Yes.

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : Will the honourable member take it from me that two out of the six villages were quite willing to allow the children of the depressed classes—one of the assistants was with me, an Assistant Deputy,—he was running after the boys and trying to put them into the school, and yet they did not like to sit with the children of the advanced classes.

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Did the honourable member Rao Bahadur Bhimbhai Naik enquire about the causes of the depressed class children not going to school ?

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : I have enquired.

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : What was the cause ?

Rao Bahadur B. R. NAIK : That I cannot say.

Mr. S. K. BOLE : Was a threat given privately to the children of the depressed classes ? (Laughter).

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Next question.

SCHOLARSHIPS RESERVED FOR DEPRESSED CLASSES

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Will Government be pleased to state the exact number of scholarships reserved by the Government Education Department for the boys and girls of the depressed classes in primary, secondary, technical and arts schools and in arts and professional colleges in the Bombay Presidency ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : There are at present no Government special scholarships reserved for the depressed classes exclusively. The scholarships originally meant for "Depressed Classes" have now been merged in the scholarships for "Backward Classes" which include Untouchables and Depressed classes. Information regarding these Backward class scholarships is given in the accompanying statement.

Statement showing information regarding scholarships reserved for Backward Classes (including untouchables and Depressed Classes) in Educational Institutions in the Bombay Presidency

Institutions	Number of Scholarships	Remarks
1. Primary Schools ..	300	100 each at the rate of 5 per each district in the Presidency proper and Bombay City (including Bombay Suburban District) and tenable in standards V to VII of Primary schools.
2. Secondary Schools ..	644	To be awarded at the rate of 92 per annum and tenable for seven years of the Secondary school course.
3. Arts Schools ..	Nil.
4. V. J. Technical Institute ..	12	To be awarded at the rate of 3 per annum and tenable for four years.
5. Arts Colleges ..	90	To be awarded at the rate of 22 per annum and tenable for four years of the arts course plus 2 more in the First Year course.
6. Engineering College ..	9	To be awarded at the rate of 3 per annum and tenable for three years.
7. College of Commerce ..	3	To be awarded at the rate of 1 per annum and tenable for three years.
8. Law College ..	6	To be awarded at the rate of 3 per annum and tenable for two years.

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Does the Honourable Minister for Education know that the scholarships which are meant for the depressed classes are used for the intermediate classes ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : If there are not enough students of the depressed classes, then certainly they go to the other classes.

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : From what source does the Educational Department come to know that there are no depressed class students ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : From the examination results and the applications.

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : I mean candidates for the scholarships, candidates waiting for the scholarships. Here I hear that in the absence of candidates of the depressed classes, the scholarships are given to intermediate classes.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : If students do not choose to apply, then certainly their case cannot be considered, but they are not intentionally omitted.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : The applications are already there, and still the department gives the scholarships to others.....

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : What is the question ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : The question is : Is it a fact that there are applications ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : So far as I know, there are no applications.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : Is the Honourable Minister aware that free studentships reserved for depressed or backward classes are, by Government resolution, not to be given to members of the advanced classes ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : How does that question arise ?

MOULVI RAFIU DDIN AHMAD : Because these scholarships which are reserved for the depressed classes should not be given to the advanced classes.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Whether the money saved from the scholarships of the depressed classes should be utilised for other purposes, is a question which concerns only the Government.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN : It is for the Director of Public Instruction to find out whether there are any depressed class candidates or applications.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : What I have stated is the result of what I have found out.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : May I know whether scholarships reserved for depressed classes were merged in the scholarships for backward classes ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : They are all merged together and treated as one class, and, therefore, they have been merged into one.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : No : they are in these parts merged in the backward classes, but in Gujarat and elsewhere they are shown separately as depressed classes.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : What the honourable member means by "these parts," I do not know.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : I mean the Maharashtra and the Karnatak. I understand, Sir, from the census that the depressed classes are grouped together amongst backward classes in the Karnatak and Maharashtra. But, so far as Gujarat is concerned, they are shown separately.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The classification for the Educational Department is not the classification for the census report. There is a different classification for the Educational Department.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : Is it or is it not a fact, Sir, that the depressed classes are very much backward in education, and in order that they may come forward they should be given special facilities ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That is a suggestion for action, rather than a question.

Dr. P. G. SOLANKI : Do Government know that the merging of the depressed classes into the other classes is detrimental to the interests of the depressed classes ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Not that I know of.

MEDICAL SERVICES : LEE COMMISSION REPORT

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether they have framed any rules for recruitment to the Bombay Medical Service as per recommendations of the Lee Commission Report ;

(b) if so, will they place the rules on the Council Table ;

(c) if not, when will they frame definite rules ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : The matter is under consideration.

Mr. SYED MUNAWAR : May I know how long will Government take to consider the report of the Lee Commission ?

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : Government are awaiting the orders of the Secretary of State.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : But certain recommendations of the Lee Commission have already been given effect to in the matter of granting additional salaries to I.C.S. and I.M.S. Officers. I want to know what steps Government intend to take in order to expedite the decision on the question affecting the Indian servants of the services.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI : This Government has been sending constant reminders to have the orders expedited.

KARACHI MUNICIPALITY BILL

Mr. N. A. BECHAR (Karachi City) : Will Government be pleased to state—

(a) whether it is a fact that a draft bill intended to provide a separate Act for the Karachi municipality was sent to the municipality concerned in April 1925 for their consideration and recommendation ;

(b) whether it is a fact that a special sub-committee appointed by municipality to consider the bill in every detail made its report in March 1926 but for some reason or other its consideration is delayed in the municipal corporation ;

(c) whether it is a fact that on account of inordinate delay the Collector of Karachi has been repeatedly sending reminders to the municipality to expedite the matter and that in spite of the President's promise to the Collector every time that the consideration of the bill will be over in a month or two, no final decision has been arrived at ;

(d) whether it is a fact that over fifteen members sent a representation to the President deploring the delay and requesting that he might kindly either call a special meeting once every week to consider the bill or to allot a definite time for this purpose at every meeting without any result so far;

(e) whether there is provision fixing a time limit within which the municipality should submit its observations on the bill;

(f) what steps they propose to take to put this bill on the statute book without any further delay;

(g) whether there is any precedent where a municipality has taken and been given by Government two and a half years to offer observations on a measure of this kind;

(h) if not, why so much time is given to the Karachi municipality ?
The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN :

(a) Yes.

(b) Enquiry is being made.

(c) Yes.

(d) Enquiry is being made.

(e) No such time limit is prescribed by law, but it is open to Government to prescribe a limit for receiving opinions on any particular bill.

(f) The municipality has often been asked to submit its views on the provisions of the bill and will be asked again to do so.

(g) No.

(h) As the Karachi Municipality is the body most affected by the Bill, Government do not intend to proceed with it unless they receive the considered views of that body on its provisions.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : May I know if the Government will consider the advisability of introducing the bill for the first reading in order to give a most effective notice to the municipality to submit its report or its observations in time for the purpose of dealing with this matter ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Government will be only too happy to do so if the House so desires.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : How is the sense of the House to be expressed on this question ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Otherwise, the honourable members will say that Government are interfering unnecessarily with the municipality.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : Is it not desirable to give notice to the municipality to submit its report immediately because the select committee will have got three or four months' time to consider same ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : I am willing if the House desires.

SUPPLEMENTARY GRANTS.

Purchase of anti-rinderpest serum, Sind Veterinary Department.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Sir, I move a demand for Rs. 4,000 from 47-Miscellaneous Transferred to 34-Agriculture. The reasons for this demand have been given in the Note*. A provision of Rs. 6,000 was made in the current year's budget for the purchase of sera for the Civil Veterinary Department in Sind, but owing to the widespread outbreaks of rinderpest and other cattle diseases in the Nawabshah, Larkana, Sukkur and other districts, a large quantity of sera had to be used, and the budget provision was nearly all consumed. Therefore, a supplementary demand is moved to meet the necessary expenditure.

Question proposed.

Mr. B. V. JADHAV : I support the demand.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE (Satara District) : Sir, I rise to a point of order. This demand is made on a date when the business of the bills should have been taken up. The day for grants is to be fixed by the Governor as stated in Rule 29. A day is not so fixed and so this demand cannot be taken up to-day.....

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : That applies to the Budget.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That is meant for the budget, and the Honourable the Leader of the House is within his own discretion to readjust the business of Government as he likes.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : Rule 32 (3) lays down that the supplementary or additional estimates shall be dealt with in the same way by the Council as if they were demands for grants.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : That is for the budget discussion that allotment of days is made. The supplementary demands are to be treated like the budget only as regards the manner of procedure in this House.

Dr. M. K. DIXIT : Is not the fixing of days part of the procedure ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : Not for the House.

Question put

“that Rs. 4,000 be transferred from 47-Miscellaneous (Transferred) to 34-Agricultures and carried.

Additional grant for refunds under 7—Stamps.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Sir, I move for the re-appropriation of Rs. 1,11,500 from 47-Miscellaneous to 7-Stamps*. The need for this demand arises from the fact that the stamp duty on cheques and drafts was abolished with effect from the 1st July 1927 and that it is consequently necessary to make heavy refunds. We must, therefore, provide the Superintendents of the Stamp Depôts at Bombay and Karachi with additional funds to meet these demands.

Question put and carried.

† Completion of (1) mhowra godown and (2) spirit store at the Nasik Distillery.

The Honourable Mr. G. B. PRADHAN : Sir, I move that Rs. 31.166 be added to 6-Excise and should be deducted from 41-Civil Works. It is merely an accounts entry. The honourable House is aware that the distillery at Nasik is a commercial transaction and under the new orders accounts have to be kept on commercial basis. This provision was made under Civil Works but it is now to be transferred to 6-Excise and the accounts have to be readjusted accordingly.

[Mr. G. B. Pradhan]

Question proposed.

MOULVI RAFIUDDIN AHMAD : I support the demand.

Question put and carried.

Expenditure on Famine Relief

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Sir, I move for a reappropriation of Rs. 1,80,507 from 43-B, Transfers to Famine Insurance Fund, to 43-A, Famine Relief.

The details of the expenditure under this demand are fully given in the statement* accompanying the demand and I have no remarks to make except with regard to the last item, which is expenditure in connection with the storage of grass fodder at Palghar, Godhra and Dohad, Rs. 1,47,207. With regard to this, I should like to remind honourable members that a short time ago the House sanctioned the termination of a contract for the storage of grass in the Khandesh district, namely, at Nawapur, Chinchpada and Khandbara. At that time it was under contemplation to terminate a similar contract for the storage of grass at Palghar and in the Panch Mahals district, but the question was further investigated and it was found that it would not be profitable to terminate this contract, as Government stood to lose a great deal more by having to pay compensation to the contractors than by continuing the contract for the remaining three years of its currency. The essential difference between this contract and the one which has already been terminated is the fact that there is a good demand in the Bombay market for the grass stored at Palghar and in the Panch Mahals district and therefore, Government do not stand to lose in the same manner that they stood to lose in the case of Khandesh grass, which was a very inferior quality and which had a long lead to Bombay with the consequence there was very little demand for it.

Question put and carried.

† Construction of a bandhara at Hated in the West Khandesh Division.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Sir, I move a demand of Rs. 4,800. It is only a formal transfer from Famine Relief to 41-Civil Works.

Question put and carried.

Expenditure on Famine Relief Works in the Southern Division.

The Honourable Mr. J. L. RIEU : Sir, I move for re-appropriation of Rs. 48,970 from 43-B, Transfers to Famine Insurance Fund, to 43-A, Famine Relief. The reason for this demand is that in consequence of the scarcity that exists in the Bijapur district and the eastern portions of Belgaum and Dharwar districts it was necessary to provide employment for the people and it was considered that the best means of doing this was to undertake certain road works, either repair works or new construction works, which would give the desired employment. Full details are given in the statement* regarding the nature of these works. The demand I am making refers only to the expenditure that will be incurred during this year. It leaves works very largely incomplete, but that does not mean that there will be any loss, because these works are undertaken in sections and therefore, if any section of a road is improved or freshly constructed, it is so much to the good.

It is only this portion of the expenditure that will be debited against the famine insurance fund, as it is necessitated by the special scarcity conditions existing in these districts. When the works are continued, they will, unless there are again scarcity conditions necessitating their being taken up, be debited against the Civil Works budget.

Question proposed.

Mr. J. C. SWAMINARAYAN (Ahmedabad District) : Sir, it is a very good thing that these works were taken in hand for affording relief in famine times, and it is but proper that this expenditure should be incurred. With regard to all the works mentioned here notes have been appended, and in those notes they have been described as important works. But I do not know why a note has been added, namely "If it is decided to complete any of these works....." If these works are not to be completed, what was the use of starting them? I should like to know whether Government have decided to complete these works. If they have, it is all right, and this expenditure is very proper, but from the note their completion appears to be doubtful. I should like the point to be elucidated by the Honourable the Revenue Member.

The Honourable Mr J. L. RIEU : Sir, I should have thought that the remarks which I made in introducing the demand had sufficiently supplied the honourable member with the information which he now asks. I explained in detail that these works would not otherwise have been taken up, that they were taken up in view of the scarcity conditions prevailing, that the cost of so much of the work as would be done this year would be debited against the Famine Insurance Fund and that there would be no loss resulting from this procedure because road work is taken up in sections, and that the question of ultimately completing the works must depend on the provision of further funds.

Question put and carried.

Expenditure due to floods.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Sir, I move for a demand† of Rs. 1,15,000 by re-appropriation from 47-Miscellaneous (Transferred) to 41-Civil Works, partly Reserved and partly Transferred.

Owing to the recent floods, damage has been done to provincial roads and buildings in Gujarat and Sind, as the details in the note show. For this year, therefore, an amount of Rs. 3,50,935 was necessary to put these buildings and roads in good order. An amount of Rs. 2,35,935 was made available by savings from the expenditure in the department and from the reserve of Government under the head 41-Civil Works. The balance of Rs. 1,15,000 is the supplementary demand that I move just now, to be reappropriated from 47-Miscellaneous Transferred for this purpose. I hope the Council will grant the demand.

* Appendix 10.

† Appendix 11.

[Sir Ghulam Hussain]

Question proposed.

Mr. JAIRAMDAS DOULATRAM (Eastern Sind) : Sir, I will take just one minute of the time of the Council. I want to have some information from the Honourable Minister. I would request him to let me know whether he can give any information with regard to the roads in Sind which are under repairs. My information is that up to a few days ago some of the roads were in a very bad condition, particularly the road from Tando Bago to Talhar.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : I cannot give details about the roads, but I have told the House that Rs. 32,500 will be spent on the provincial roads in Sind, which are very few.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI (Kaira District) : Sir, I would like just to ask for some information about Gujarat. The Honourable Minister is already aware that the roads in Gujarat have also played their part in increasing the calamity on account of the floods. The roads obstructed the flood waters, and they were responsible, to some extent, in sweeping away the houses in villages. Now, I want to know whether he is going to issue instructions to his executive engineers to construct culverts at all the places where the roads were breached, in order to ensure for the future that the floods may not overflow the low lying areas. The roads are a sort of embankments and very few culverts are provided on the Public Works roads. It is with this view that I ask this information from the Honourable Minister whether he is prepared to issue instructions to his executive engineers to construct culverts also, and whether there is provision in this amount of Rs. 1,15,000 for the construction of culverts.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Looking to the tall order of my honourable friend from Kaira, the number of culverts, as he says, must be very large, if I understand him rightly. General orders will be issued to the executive engineers to try, as far as possible, out of the money at their disposal, to build some of the culverts. But of course they cannot be expected to build every one of the very large number of culverts that might be required.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : Can you give us the estimate now ?

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : If the honourable member desires that this money should be diverted to other purposes.....

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : It is not my desire to divert the moneys for other purposes, but as it is mentioned that the amount is required for the repair of roads, I just say that while repairing the roads this point should not be ignored, and culverts should also be constructed on the roads.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : I have no idea of the number of culverts. How can I give that information now ? There may be a thousand and one culverts required, but you cannot provide for them out of this amount.

Rao Saheb D. P. DESAI : Can you not issue instructions to your subordinates just to see that in future the roads may not be.....

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : I am most willing to do it provided the Council gives me the money. I will give them the finest roads in India and the best bridges and culverts, provided I get the money.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City) (Addressed the House in Urdu) : Sir, this amount is asked for for the purpose of repairing bungalows. (An Honourable Member : It is for all the provincial buildings.) It may be so. But my experience of Sind tells me that large amounts are being spent annually on bungalows, while the condition of the roads is very bad. After the recent floods the condition of the roads has gone worse and it is not treated in the same way as Gujarat in this respect. The Honourable Minister who comes from Sind ought to have taken the opportunity of visiting the flood stricken parts, which would have convinced him of the necessity of restoring the roads and repairing the havoc caused by the recent floods. I consider that the expenditure that is being incurred year after year is a mere waste, when the urgent requirements of the public have not been met.

The Honourable Sir GHULAM HUSSAIN : Sir, I feel as much as the honourable member who just preceded me for the flood stricken and famine stricken areas of Sind. Though I have not gone to Sind myself, I have inside the Government fought the battles of Sind in order to secure for it equal treatment with Gujarat. I am going to Sind on tour after the Council session, and I propose to visit every flood stricken part of Sind. The honourable member suggested that the bungalows of the officers need not be repaired and they can go out on horses or in bullock carts or something like that. But I wish to inform the honourable member that this money is not required for the repair of bungalows only, but also for the repair of court houses, cutcheries, provincial buildings and so on. If I follow the advice of my honourable friend, I am afraid the court houses will fall down, which will interfere with the administration of justice, the hospitals will fall down, which will result in the turning out of sick people, and thanas will fall, which will result in the policemen not being able to hear complaints for want of a shelter (interruption). It is very easy to play to the gallery, but it will be a policy of penny wise and pound foolish. He says 'Do not spend two lakhs'. If we do not spend this money in time, what will be the result ? Buildings worth crores of rupees and roads on which we have spent crores will become altogether useless, and Government will have again to incur an expense of crores of rupees in reconstructing them. I hope therefore honourable members will sanction the amount in view of the explanation I have given.

Question put and carried.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: The Honourable Minister's reference to the honourable member playing to the gallery was inadvisable and should not be made.

Additional funds required for the Back Bay Scheme.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR: Mr. President, I rise to ask for a supplementary grant* of Rs. 6,45,000 to be added on to 59, Bombay Development Scheme. We have distributed to honourable members a lengthy note explaining the reasons for this demand. But with the permission of this House I will take the liberty of very briefly summarising this note in case some honourable members have not read it. There is an excess of Rs. 9,61,000. There is also a saving of Rs. 3,16,000 making a deficit of Rs. 6,45,000. The main items which go to make up this excess of Rs. 9,61,000 are as follows:

There is a provision in this supplementary demand for Rs. 4,51,000 for the dredger Jinga. The Jinga was purchased by Government in the beginning of 1925 for Rs. 1,37,000, provision for which was then included in the budget which was sanctioned by the Council. It was purchased on the recommendation of the Consulting Engineers who wrote to Government a letter dated the 15th December 1924 as follows:

Mr. G. I. PATEL: For how many years was it used before it was purchased?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR: If honourable members will kindly allow me to continue they will then be able to ask their questions in their speeches and I trust we shall be able to give all the information they may require.

I will now quote the letter of the Consulting Engineers:

"In Back Bay for work in conjunction with the "Kalu" an intermediate Boosting station is an absolute necessity; and we obtained a quotation from Messrs. Simons and Company for a complete plant, the cost of which delivered in Bombay amounts to Rs. 25,00,000; but we think that a plant can be contrived at a much cheaper rate, and we recommend that negotiations be opened for purchase of the Jinga subject to inspection of the machinery by a competent Marine Engineer. Assuming that the inspection is satisfactory and that the Jinga can be purchased for not exceeding £12,000, we estimate the complete booster plant should be installed for not exceeding Rs. 10,00,000."

On this recommendation the Jinga was purchased for not £12,000 but for £10,000 which came to Rs. 1,37,000. I may here mention that the original proposal was to dismantle the Jinga and to renew the pumps, machinery, etc., on new pontoons. But when the hull was examined by an expert he came to the conclusion that it would be cheaper to recondition the hull as he found it in better condition than was anticipated, when the Jinga was bought. Government decided to recondition the hull on the advice I have just now mentioned and to spend Rs. 5,40,000 on it. Since then, the estimate of Rs. 5,40,000 has been increased by Rs. 2,98,000. The reasons for the increase are mentioned in this note. To summarise them shortly, they are as follows. After dismantling the engines, boilers and machinery, it was however discovered that a number of internal members of the hull were in a very much worse state than was originally anticipated. In addition, it was deemed advisable, in view of the excessive vibrations experienced on the "Colaba", to stiffen the hull of the "Jinga" longitudinally. In addition to this, after opening up and cleaning the boilers it was found necessary to carry out more work in the way of re-conditioning than was apparent at the time of the original survey. These are the causes for the excess of Rs. 2,98,000. Therefore, the amount spent on the re-conditioning of the "Jinga" is about Rs. 8,38,000, to which we have to add Rs. 1,37,000, and that gives you the total cost of the "Jinga", against the original estimate by the consulting engineers of about 10 lakhs. Therefore, even with this excess, the total cost is about Rs. 9,82,000. We are asking, as I have already said, for Rs. 4,51,000. The Rs. 4,51,000 is made of two figures. One is Rs. 1,53,000 : that amount was included in last year's budget and it was expected that bills would be paid last year, that is, between the time the budget was passed and the 1st of April ; but since the bills had not been properly checked, the money was not paid. The amount not having been paid, it lapsed, and having lapsed we have to come to this honourable House for a supplementary demand. Then, Rs. 2,98,000, as I have already explained, is the excess on the estimates. The total of these two figures is Rs. 4,51,000.

The next item is the item of Rs. 2,43,000, which is the excess on the original estimate for dry filling of block 8. We had a budget provision for this purpose of Rs. 9,15,000. Since then we have had to sanction a revised estimate of Rs. 11,58,000. The reasons for this excess are also explained at length in this note.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : I want to know whether it was the revised estimate that was sanctioned, or the original estimate.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : According to the estimate of Rs. 9,15,000, there was a budget provision for that amount, and that was sanctioned by the Council during the last budget session.

Mr. P. R. CHIKODI : I want to know whether that estimate was sanctioned.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : The estimate for Rs. 9,15,000 was sanctioned. It was technically sanctioned by Government and included in the budget and sanctioned by the House. Since that time we have discovered that it will cost more, and another revised estimate was submitted by the Chief Engineer and has been sanctioned, and to make up the difference we have come to this honourable House for a supplementary demand of Rs. 2,43,000. The reasons for the excess are explained in the note. They are shortly, that when the estimate of Rs. 9,15,000 was framed it was expected that the dry filling would be to a depth of about two feet; experience since then, that is quite lately obtained, shows that the dry filling will have to be to a depth of three feet. (An honourable member: Why not four feet?) I hope it will not be four feet. But the present advice of the Chief Engineer is that it will be three feet on the average—not three feet in every place, but three feet on the average. And the excess cost is due to this extra amount of filling.

[Sir Cowasji Jehangir]

The next figure is one of Rs. 1,28,000. This is an item which was not provided in the budget. It was found that the excessive rains prevented our officers from using all the rolling stock that Government possessed for the top dressing of block 8. Instead of allowing that rolling stock to remain idle, which meant overhead charges, it was decided to use some of the rolling stock on block 1. That filling would naturally have had to be done later on and provision would have had to be made later; but since the rolling stock was available we made use of that rolling stock for dry filling block 1. The extra cost for the current year on this account is Rs. 1,28,000.

Then there is an amount of Rs. 34,000, which is mainly due to one item of Rs. 25,000 involved in the work of speeding up the work in storm-water drain No. 6, and another item of Rs. 9,000 to meet some unforeseen petty works in connection with storm-water drains in blocks 7 and 8.

Then there is an excess of Rs. 18,000 on the estimate for repairs and maintenance. Complete figures are given in the note, and I will not trouble the honourable House by reading them out. They show why this Rs. 18,000 extra is required.

The next item is one of Rs. 47,000 for miscellaneous unforeseen works. The details of this expenditure are given in the note. Rs. 27,000 of this is an expenditure which I referred to during the budget session as an expenditure that might have to be incurred. It is for putting on a top-dressing on a part of block 8, which we hope very soon to transfer to the military. It is the playground, and in order to tempt the military to take it over before they are bound to take it over under the agreement, we have spent this Rs. 27,000.

The total is Rs. 9,61,000. Honourable members will notice that the excesses are all on items which have already been before the honourable House. There are no new items of expenditure, and the original items have already obtained the previous sanction of this honourable House.

There is an item of Rs. 40,000 for insurance.

Mr. G. I. PATEL: With whom is the insurance placed?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR: There is an item for insurance of Rs. 40,000. The dredgers have always been insured for the last three or four years. When Government re-considered the question of insurance they came to the conclusion that it was safer to again insure the dredging plant, and therefore they have insured them with Lloyds. The rates are favourable.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI : May I know against what risks?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : There are two kinds of risks, silent risk and risk while working.....

Mr. LALJI NARANJI : Against breakages also ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : Against breakages also. We hope that the insurance money for the damage done to the Sir George Lloyd will also be forthcoming. I trust that the money will be forthcoming though I cannot give a definite assurance to-day. Government thought it advisable to insure the dredging plant and we will have to spend Rs. 40,000 during the current year. That makes up the total of Rs. 9,61,000. There is a saving of Rs. 3,16,000 which brings the excess to Rs. 6,45,000. All the details have been explained at very great length in the note and so I do not propose to go into the details of the savings. Every bit of information that honourable members may want is contained in this note. I therefore ask for this demand.

Question proposed.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I find there is an amendment from the honourable member Mr. Swaminarayan to reduce the supplementary demand No. 8 Reserved by Re. 1. I must inform the honourable member that he probably is aiming at raising a general discussion on the subject. If it is so, I might tell him that one rupee cut is tantamount to a vote of censure. Whatever that may be the amendment has been placed in my hand to-day. It will be remembered that at the last session on a supplementary grant a point of order was raised by the honourable member Mr. Deshpande and in consequence of that I was able to get a statement from the Honourable Leader of the House that demands for grants will be placed in the hands of honourable members at least seven days before they are made. I find that Government have carried out that promise in regard to, practically, all the demands before the House to-day. I therefore think that there should similarly be some sort of period of notice for amendments to such grants. The amendment having come to my hand only to-day, I do not consider it to be in time. I disallow it.

Mr. L. M. DESHPANDE : This demand was placed before us on the 5th of October.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I understand that this particular demand was placed before honourable members on the 29th of September.

Mr. HOOSEINBHOY ABDULLABHOY LALLJEE (Bombay City) : Sir, I do not know whether it is worth while for us to ask Government to withdraw this demand, because we find that a large amount has already been spent. But I must say that I feel obliged to Government for bringing up this matter at this stage. I find, Sir, that there are many things which this Council should have been made aware of. I find that expenditure in regard to dredgers has been going on for some time and I must say that I also feel that at the last budget session the actual position with regard to this matter was not disclosed. I may be wrong but I think that Government before incurring such expenditure on an old vessel ought to have given us some further particulars before they proceeded with the expenditure. At the last budget session an amount of Rs. 5,40,000 was provided and I am sorry to say that owing to there being no sufficient time this grant escaped discussion and after that the estimates have gone up and they now want Rs. 8,45,000.

I should like to go into the details of this "Jinga." It has been stated that it was purchased in January 1925 for a sum of Rs. 1,35,000. It has been stated that the vessel was inspected and examined and was found to be satisfactory. That was what I heard the honourable member to say. But, Sir, since January 1925 up to this date I believe this vessel has not been working, that is, for a period of two years and a half. I ask the Honourable General Member whether it is not a fact. I do not know whether repairs have been completed and I hope that after this expenditure has been incurred it will be ready for work. One of the reasons given for the estimates having gone up is :

"After dismantling the engines, boilers and machinery, it was, however, discovered that a number of internal members of the hull, such as some of the main frames and inter-costals, which latter had all to the renewed in the boilers' space, were in a very much worse state than was originally anticipated."

Well, this is what happened after we have been told that the vessel was inspected and found to be good. So far as the hull is concerned that is what is said. The explanation proceeds :

"In addition to the foregoing items, it was deemed advisable, in view of the excessive vibrations experienced with the 'Colaba' to stiffen the hull of the 'Jinga' ".....

Now, Sir, I ask Government as to when they came to know the experience gained by "Colaba." It was known to them that "Colaba" required stiffening long before the Budget and so they should have come forward with this extra grant also for stiffening to the extent of Rs. 2,98,000, in March 1927 when they asked for grants. It cannot be said that they came to know this after the March session and I will not agree if it is said that they found out after the Budget session something with regard to "Colaba" which led them to incur this extra expenditure. Sir, I gave my evidence before the Grimwood Mears Committee on the 20th of August 1926. I have got a copy of my statement with me and in that statement I have referred to "Jinga" and the defect of the "Colaba" at length. I was questioned on that. I do not wish to go into the details by reading the same but I would point out to Government that it was before the 20th of August 1926 that it was found out that "Colaba" required stiffening. If that is so, Government must have known before that this expenditure was required. If that was the fact, why did they not place it before the Council during the budget session? Sir, it was an old vessel and on it they have spent nearly Rs. 9 lakhs and they wish to work this vessel with dredger "Kalu" in the Back Bay. Well, Sir, I have grave doubts whether this vessel can usefully work.

[Mr. Hooseinbhoy Abdullabhoy Lalljee]

I really fail to see why the "Colaba," over which we have spent nearly Rs. 30 lakhs, could not work with "Kalu"? It will be said, and it was said formerly also, that the flotation was not sufficient. But during the struggle that took place before the Mears Committee, Sir Hopkinson has pointed out that flotation could be made by the dredgers themselves and at a very reasonable cost, and when it was pointed out that the "Kalu" could not work well owing to flotations, it was said that she herself could dig out her own flotation. I am, therefore, Sir, of opinion that if Government were really anxious to work the "Colaba," which is now laid up because the "Sir George Lloyd" is also laid up, for this filling of No. I, they could have very well saved this amount because after all what is the value that the Kay Committee has attached to these vessels? Nine lakhs of rupees for all the vessels, "Sir George Lloyd," "Colaba," "Kalu" and "Jinga." Sir, I ask Government in all earnest whether they are justified in spending this huge sum on this old vessel. I ask them, Sir, whether they have calculated the cost of this on the cost of the reclamation that will take place on No. I. Sir, I feel it very much that Government should say that they have come to know of this Rs. 2,96,000 extra cost during the last four months to be spent for this vessel and they have spent the same on a vessel on which nearly Rs. 9 lakhs have already been spent. I ask how so late in the day they have been able to know of 33 per cent. more expense, that is, Rs. 3 lakhs, only during the last four months is to me, Sir, to say the least, a riddle.

Now, Sir, I come to the next item, block No. 8. Sir, the estimate that was placed before the Council was Rs. 9,15,000. Now they have found out that it will cost Rs. 11,58,000; that is, 25 per cent. more. It works out roughly to 25 per cent. They have found out that instead of 2 feet dry filling they will require 3 feet, and the Honourable the General Member said that the Chief Engineer was of opinion that probably 3 feet average will do. Sir, I have had an opportunity to go over to block No. 8 very recently in the company of the Chief Engineer and the other two expert engineers on the special standing committee of the Back Bay, and, as far as I can make out and after the discussion that I had with them, I know, Sir, that we will not only require it to be 2 feet or 3 feet, but we will require it to be more than 4 feet. The shrinkage is so very great that the Government have all along faltered there. But they will not admit it or they will not care to find out exactly what has taken place. I think, Sir, that this clearly shows that all our estimates up to now are not reliable. I say, Sir, we were led to believe and the Council was told that dry filling would be required to the extent of 2 feet, and for that reason probably some of the members may have voted and the Government carried their schemes of Nos. 1, 2, 7, 8 and a little portion of No. 6. But I ask Government, in view of this extra filling that they will require, and according to the experience taught to them now after their experts and the various committees of Sir Joseph Kay, Mr. Neilson, and others, had reported that they would require about 2 feet of dry filling, that they should not say to us frankly what actually now the cost will be? A very important question is raised in this little item. The very principle of the cost of the whole scheme is at stake. Here you find that the cost will be 25 per cent. more for this little portion of dry filling, and that will now go on, for the whole scheme. If I am right that dry filling up to 4 feet will be required, then the cost will go on still more. I ask this House to consider carefully what great issue is at stake when they pass this item. The whole extra cost, I submit, will come to a very high figure. Then, Sir, I also wish to draw the attention of the House to one important fact, and that is that I consider the cost of dry filling, from the tenders that we have got recently, to be lower than that of wet filling and dry filling, and I ask the Honourable the General Member and the Government to consider again seriously whether instead of wet filling he will not think it advisable to go on with the work of dry filling in all the blocks.

Now, Sir, with regard to the third item, I do not wish to say much, because the explanation that has been given seems to be correct.

With regard to the storm water drain, Sir, I am really sorry to have to ask how it is that, after working for so many years on this Back Bay Scheme, such expenses are put down as unforeseen and not as foreseen, what are our experts doing.

Now, Sir, coming to the insurance, this is not one of the items on which the Council can really congratulate the Government. We are insured for "Sir George Lloyd" and we have not yet got our claim. I do not wish to discuss that point because I do not want Government to be handicapped in their claim against the insurance company. But I do feel, when the insurance of "Kalu," "Colaba," "Jinga," and so on, is effected for Rs. 40,000, they will look into the conditions of the policy very carefully. They have said that they have insured these for silent and working risk. I hope it includes accidents to machinery and also will include the amount of working losses, which is not very costly, but when they put down anything for working losses, I hope they will see that the policies are not the policies which the insurance companies present but that those policies will meet the requirements of ourselves as calculated from our experience with the "Sir George Lloyd." I do feel that Government ought to have taken rates from many insurance companies. . . . .

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : We did. That was the lowest.

Mr. HOOSEINBHOY ABDULLABHOY LALLJEE : I accept that statement, Sir, that that was the lowest.

Coming to the saving, I do not know whether to call this a saving or whether these items have been put in the budget for providing for extra unforeseen circumstances just as the similar one that we have here. I make this statement because I feel so from the figures and statements that are placed before us. Take first this instance : a budget provision was made for an anticipated saving from the budget provision for land acquisition. The amount asked for and sanctioned by this Council was Rs. 2,79,500 whereas the anticipated saving amounts to Rs. 1,59,000, that is the actual amount paid will amount to only Rs. 1,20,500. Are we to believe that when Government have to pay only Rs. 1,20,500 that they estimated for something like Rs. 2,79,000 or 133 per cent. more than their actual requirements? Have we not got experts on our staff who can value the acquisition of properties? We have the Improvement Trust, the Municipality of Bombay, the Bombay Port Trust, and we obtain estimates from our engineers. These estimates do actually vary to the tune of 5 or 10 or 15 per cent., never 133 per cent. I further find that under "Land Acquisitions," there is an item of savings of Rs. 53,000. A budget provision was made for Rs. 75,000 for acquisition of land for Back Bay Scheme which included Rs. 10,000 for payment for extra compensation due to references made to courts and awards, etc., and a sum of Rs. 6,000 for Law charges to be incurred. That is to say in all Rs. 75,000 were required. What do we find? The probable requirements are Rs. 4,000 for extra compensation against Rs. 10,000 and Rs. 6,000 for Law charges, i.e., as against Rs. 16,000, we will require Rs. 4,000. Against the value of land Rs. 53,000 we are required to pay only Rs. 18,000; that is  $\frac{1}{3}$  only is really required, although it is said that the Court had awarded 53,000.

Coming to the next item, there is an anticipated saving of Rs. 8,000 as against a budget provision of Rs. 10,000, made for land acquisition in the Suburban Scheme—Kurla-Kirol section—and it was said this was required for payment of extra compensation awarded by the courts in a reference made to them and for other charges incurred therein. Then again it is said that "In accordance with the decision of the court a sum of Rs. 2,000 will have to be paid"—so runs the statement. I cannot understand this, that is, the difference between award of the Court and the decision of the Court. I am sorry I am not a very much educated man but all the same this statement does not seem to be right. The decisions of the Court in land acquisition cases are its awards. What is the meaning of this? How can we swallow such statements and pass such an item? I see further that a provision was made for Rs. 15,000 as against only Rs. 8,000 required now; that is, 90 per cent. more was provided for in the Budget.

There is another important item as regards an anticipated saving of Rs. 4,000 and it is said that while budget provision of Rs. 56,000 included Rs. 6,000 for law charges, Rs. 25,000 was set apart for acquiring land and Rs. 25,000 for payment of compensation. Only Rs. 52,000 are now required for payment for land, mostly already acquired, but not yet paid. Here again I do not understand the figures. I leave it to the Honourable the General Member to explain them.

There is another item of Rs. 10,000 for Danda land, on which it is said that there is an anticipated saving of Rs. 7,000. I do not understand this. The provision of Rs. 10,000 was made for payment of extra compensation for the land in Budget, and law charges. There is no acquisition of land at all here. Only law charges were intended and nothing else, this is really a very serious matter and requires full explanation.

I do not go into the details of the other items as they are almost the same as I have pointed out but it clearly shows that at the time when these budget provisions were made, they were made to meet unforeseen expenses and were made very carelessly, to say the least. In some cases, either land has not been acquired at all or in some cases the least sum has been paid for it than was promised, and I cannot believe that Government were unable to find out what the actual cost of land was going to be. If you go through these items you find in some cases only law charges rather than anything like the acquisition cost of the land ; whereas all the amounts that were asked for during the budget were for land acquisition ; and in most cases, they were put down as payable according to the awards of the court and it is also stated in the note given to us by Government explaining the saving. I wish the honourable members will carefully read these notes and ask Government to explain the same. I, for my part, cannot agree that these are savings or could be said to be saving and therefore, I do not put this down as saving made by the department, but I say that it was not required, and yet it was put into the budget. Well, Sir, I would only say this much that, so far as I am concerned, I am not satisfied with these items of expenditure, and I really want the House not to pass this grant until the Honourable the General Member is able to explain to them the real position in which we are at present. In short, the whole thing comes to this, namely, whether by reason of 3 feet of murum being now required instead of 2 feet, the whole scheme will not become more costly on account of the increased cost. Secondly the Honourable the General Member should explain to the House how he happened to get the Council to agree to a provision of as much as Rs. 2,29,000 for acquisition of land, a very great portion of which he now puts down as a saving. This is an important question, because, in future when such items are put down in the budget and they say that the courts have awarded and that it has to be paid and it turns out that only law charges are to be paid in some cases and still less were lands actually acquired we shall be entitled to say that we cannot rely upon their statements and figures. With these words, I resume my seat.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI (Indian Merchants' Chamber): Sir, this is a grant which raises one very important question both for the Government and for those who are on this side of the House, and, to my mind, the only question is whether wet filling or dry filling is the proper method to get at the object which Government have decided to pursue against the wishes of the public. I have always opposed this scheme, but now Government having gone so far and having spent more than Rs. 10 crores, I do not think it will now be feasible to say that we should withdraw from the scheme. But, Sir, certainly Government, after seeing the facts that were placed before them and the facts that they have themselves placed before the Finance Committee, must seriously consider whether all the expenditure that they are now incurring is necessary. This expenditure will only be necessary if Government decide that wet filling is the proper method which they should adopt. I would refer honourable members to the proceedings of the last meeting of the Finance Committee which have been supplied to honourable members only to-day. The figures given on page 35 of the proceedings show clearly that the cost of dry filling will be  $15\frac{1}{2}$  annas per cubic yard. On page 36, it is stated that office expenses to the extent of  $1\frac{1}{2}$  annas should be added, which will bring the total cost to Rs. 1-2-0 per cubic yard by dry filling, and the cost of wet filling has been worked out at Rs. 1-2-6 per cubic yard. Now, Sir, Government might say that they have spent the money. Really speaking, I take it that the grant that is before the House is not one for money to be spent, but Government have already spent the money; so, it is no use our wasting our energy in opposing this grant. Even if we oppose it, the money has already been spent, and Government have decided that wet filling is the only method which will be profitable to them. Now it is a matter for consideration, when Government know that the cost of wet filling is Rs. 1-2-6 as against Rs. 1-2-0 for dry filling, what kind of filling they should adopt, wet or dry. If they decide that wet filling is more costly, they will have to scrap all the dredgers, the "Kalu," the "Jinga" and the "Sir George Lloyd," which have all been costly items of expenditure. I do not want to discuss the question of the dredgers, because that is not the question before the House, but the cost has been tremendous, it has been ruinous. I do not know whether the House has paid any attention to the note supplied to them by the Secretary of the Finance Department, Mr. Wiles, in which he has tried to convince the House that in spite of the losses of the Development Department our Budget will be able to balance. I say that the Development Department has been the cause of the ruin of the finances of this presidency. I held that view before, and I hold it to-day, and I would certainly appeal to the Government, are they still going to stick to their conclusion to do this by wet filling? I think it is not now necessary to go on with the wet filling. They should scrap the "Sir George Lloyd," because it is not used for the filling of Back Bay. They should also not go in for the reclamation of other blocks. It will be remembered that the Kay Committee, of which I was a member, and which was presided over by a commercial man, have stated that block No. 7 is not a commercial proposition. It is confirmed in the report that is placed in our hands to-day, regarding the working of the Development Department, in which also it is stated that the Kay Committee opposed the reclamation of block No. 7. But, in spite of that, Government have decided to go on with block No. 7. I am not concerned with that, but what I want to show to this House is that it is not possible, economically to go on with wet filling and to continue to work all these dredgers, the "Sir George Lloyd," the "Kalu," the "Jinga" and the "Colaba." With regard to block No. 1, there is one argument which is advanced, namely, that we are losing interest, and if it is finished early we are saved Rs. 50,000 a month. To that my reply is that the outlook is not so rosy as Government make it out to be, because it will not be an easy matter for them to sell block No. 1 under present conditions. It is a matter of opinion, but still there is no hurry. Bombay is not in a hurry to get more land. Now, if by dry filling Government can save money, and Government can deal with a certain factor instead of an uncertain factor, Government must be persuaded by this House to face the loss caused by the scrapping of the dredgers, and pressure must be brought to bear on Government to face the loss. It is no use telling the House after two or three years that the loss is 2 crores or 3 crores. We know that this is the loss. Why not cut the loss to-day, and have the definite and certain factor of dry filling which, as I have shown to the House, will cost Rs. 1-2-0 per cubic yard, including the cost of Re. 0-1-6 for the expenses of supervision of the railway sidings? It is for this reason that I do not want to criticise this provision of Rs. 4,51,000. To my mind, it is all waste of money that they are spending on a ship which originally cost Rs. 1,37,000. I am sure no business man would have taken up such a proposition, to buy a dredger for Rs. 1 lakh and spend Rs. 8 lakhs on renovating it. The reason advanced for the adoption of this course is that a new dredger would have cost them Rs. 25 lakhs. If they were absolutely sure of the economy of wet filling, it would have been better to purchase a new dredger for Rs. 25 lakhs. But they have never cared for the House. They have got their demands passed by their own voting force and by their own influence in spite of all our opposition. And now, in spite of the fact that they are convinced that the cost of dry filling is cheaper than the cost of wet filling, they want to continue to spend money on the dredgers. The tale of all the dredgers is a sad tale. Nobody can deny that the dredgers have not been a profitable concern to work. I see no reason why Government should persist in continuing to use wet filling. There is another item of Rs. 2,43,000 for dry filling, and that again supports my claim that in dry filling you know exactly what the cost will be. There is enough material available for dry filling from the Kandivli quarries. Why should we incur the big expenditure of the establishments for the dredgers? In my last budget speech, I impressed upon the Government the necessity of disposing of the "Sir George Lloyd" and other dredgers. But they have continued with the dredgers; they have not even given the necessary six months' notice to the staff. Leaving aside all that criticism, I think it is but fair that Government, even though they have spent large amounts on the dredgers, should dispose of them. I doubt whether they will find a purchaser for Jinga even for 4 lakhs. They must scrap all these dredgers and go on to dry filling. They must be sure of the estimate they present to the House. Is it not disgraceful that they should go on revising their estimates saying that there has been shrinkage of 2 feet and one foot and so on? Why should they walk on uncertain grounds? Let the House know the exact cost. In the matter of filling of block 8 we have always supported Government on the assurance that we will get out of it 2½ crores. But we are getting ready 19 acres and 25 acres completed. The Government of India seem to be playing with the Bombay Government and they refute the claims of this Government for payment. Still no efforts are being made by this Government and are always given the hope that the money is recoverable. This is a demand for 9½ lakhs as clearly pointed out by the Honourable the General Member and not 6 lakhs 45 thousand, because saving deducted is no real saving from anticipated expenditure but expenditure cancelled. We are not sure whether we will get at least 2 or 3 lakhs from the sale of land. We should stop hereafter wet filling and take to dry filling. Though the Development Directorate has been abolished still there is a big department maintained by Government. If dry filling is to be carried on there is no necessity for maintaining such a big department and its establishment. There are the quarries and dry filling can be carried on at a much cheaper cost and it does not require such a big establishment. I think that the cost of the establishment can be narrowed down very much, as it is a waste. I appeal to Government to pay attention to the remarks of the Auditor General and the Finance Department which has pointed out that the Development is a source of grave anxiety to them and loss of revenue to this presidency. In spite of that they should not go on with wet filling and continue to work the dredgers.

[Mr. Lalji Naranji]

Mr. G. L. WINTERBOTHAM (Bombay Chamber of Commerce): Sir, in view of the full complement from the Development Department in the House today it should be unnecessary for any non-official to say anything in support of this supplementary grant; but I am moved to make a few observations as the result of the remarks that have fallen from the previous speaker. I must say that he appears to have lost touch with the Development Department since he sat on the Kay Committee and it is a matter for regret that he was not able to refresh his memories on the facts by being present at the meeting of the finance committee when all these subjects were fully threshed out for over 2½ hours and where all necessary information was supplied by the officers of the department who had come from Bombay, no doubt at great personal inconvenience to themselves, specially for the purpose. The honourable member Mr. Lalji Naranji urged that all the dredgers should be scrapped and they must concentrate on dry filling. As regards the scrapping of dredgers, the honourable member surely ought to have known that the dredger Sir George Lloyd for all practical purposes has been scrapped, that is to say, it will be of no use to the Development Department. Even if the insurance money is recovered—and it is sincerely to be hoped that it will be—the Sir George Lloyd cannot be reconditioned in time to be made use of in the present scheme, not economically at any rate. That was the reason that prompted Sir Joseph Kay at the last Budget Session to move a cut of Rs. 20 lacs to prevent Block No. 6 being included in the scheme. He foresaw that the “Sir George Lloyd” would not be in commission by the following dredging season, and that Block No. 6 would not therefore be a practicable proposition and he has been abundantly justified by results.

Mr. LALJI NARANJI: That motion was with regard to block No. 7.

Mr. G. L. WINTERBOTHAM: No; it was in connection with block No. 6.

I do not wish to be led away into dealing with matters which will be explained to the House by the Honourable the General Member, but, I cannot refrain from pointing out to the honourable member Mr. Lalji

[Mr. G. L. Winterbotham]

Naranji that his statement with regard to Sir George Lloyd was misleading and that for all practical purposes that dredger has been scrapped.

Coming to the expenditure on the Jinga, I must say that there seems to be some force in the contention of the honourable member Mr. Hooseinbhoy Lalljee that Government ought to have known at an earlier date than only four months ago that this excess expenditure would be incurred. It is difficult to estimate the reconditioning of a ship until dismantling has taken place, but at the same time it ought perhaps to have been possible to estimate more nearly the actual cost at an earlier stage. But even so I think that on this particular question the House has to congratulate the Development Department, not on the expenditure, but on having placed all their cards on the table before this honourable House. In the past we have had to complain that the dealings of the Development Department have been carried on behind a veil of official secrecy. I must congratulate the Honourable the General Member on the change of plan by which nothing is concealed but all the possible information that the House can want is made available for honourable members.

The other main point which the honourable member Mr. Lalji made was : " Give up your scheme of wet filling and concentrate on dry filling " The only thing one can say with regard to that argument is that it is based on the fact that the rates for dry filling have been considerably reduced, but it is only comparatively recently within the last few months that the lower rate of 15 annas plus 1½ annas has been secured and to say that the Development Department ought to have based their plans and their estimates on these rates is simply being wise after the event. Though one can blame them for making mistakes in the past, it is not possible to expect them to base their plans on something which is going to happen in the future. Then I should like to draw the attention of the honourable member to the fact that the only wet filling that remains to be done is in block No. 1. As far as my information goes, it is going to be done by the Kalu in the season which is starting immediately. Whether block No. 2 is to be done by dry or wet filling remains to be considered. From the financial aspect of the scheme, block No. 1 is to be completed as soon as possible. It cannot be done by dry filling for want of the necessary equipment to carry material from the quarries, as all the available plant and rolling stock is needed for the completion of block No. 8. It is absolutely essential that the dry-filling of No. 8 should be completed within the shortest possible time, because it has to be made over to the Government of India and the Government of Bombay will obtain hard cash for it. That is to say, dry-filling is not possible, owing to lack of rolling stock, for more than No. 8 during the coming working season. I should like to inform the honourable member for Bombay City (Mr. Hooseinbhoy Lalljee), that according to my information, whether the shrinkage is going to be 3 feet or more, the eventual cost will be less than the price which the Government of India are going to pay to the Government of Bombay. It does not, therefore, seem germane to the subject to say that the shrinkage is going to be 4 feet and therefore the cost will be much greater than even now estimated. The fact remains that the filling has got to be done, and it must be done as soon as possible. My information, gained from engineers during the course of my visits to block 8, is that it will be completed or practically completed by the hot weather next year. Therefore, Sir, when it comes to criticising the Development Department, let us not be led away from the main facts. The main facts are that it is impossible, if you are going to carry through that portion of the scheme which this Council has already sanctioned as economically as possible, to stop wet filling and turn your attention only to dry filling. The hard facts are there. Therefore, I say that the expenditure on the dredgers had to be incurred and should be passed. As far as I know, all the expenditure which has to be incurred on the dredgers and the boosters has now been incurred, and as far as I understand the position it was essential that the booster "Jinga" should be re-conditioned in time to work with the dredger "Kalu" in block No. 1 this year. Therefore, it seems to me, Sir, that though there are no doubt many points of detail to be explained to the honourable members who come from Bombay, there is nothing actually in principle to which great exception can be taken in this supplementary demand. The additional expenditure has been incurred on schemes which have been sanctioned by the Council. That expenditure is much to be deplored, but as far as I was able to judge, after careful enquiry in the Finance Committee, it was necessary. I therefore think that in discussing this supplementary demand the attention of the House should be directed, as far as possible, not to a wandering discussion of the possible future course of action of the Development Department, but to the actual facts of the case which have been so carefully presented to the House.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH (Karachi City): (Addressed the House in Urdu): Mr. President, out of this supplementary grant, Rs. 4,50,000 is for re-conditioning the "Jinga". Now, we have been told that the cost of dry filling per cubic yard would be only 15½ annas per cubic yard. The total cost of the "Jinga" is stated to be Rs. 10,00,000. I would like to know how much of the filling will be done by the "Jinga" and whether the expenditure of Rs. 10,00,000 on it would give a proper yield when compared to the cost of dry filling. I know that already a sum of Rs. 6,00,000 has been spent on the "Jinga", but if it is not going to be profitable expenditure, I would advise Government not to spend a pie more on the "Jinga" but "pension" it.

Another point which strikes me in connection with the Development Department is this. Out of the four schemes originally sanctioned, namely, Colaba Reclamation, Suburban Development, Industrial Housing and Back Bay Reclamation, three have been dropped, and there is only one scheme remaining, and that is the Back Bay scheme. That being so, I fail to understand why there should be a special Secretary for it on Rs. 3,000, one Deputy, one Chief Engineer on Rs. 3,000, and one Deputy Chief Engineer. I think that there should be no need to have all these officers, when only one of the four schemes is going on.

[Mr. Haji Mir Mahomed Baloch]

There is one superintending engineer and three executive engineers. Is it a fact that without them the work cannot go on? If the Honourable the General Member will take my suggestion he can save money. In the housing department there are the following staff: one executive engineer and three assistant engineers. The executive engineer taken from the Public Works Department getting Rs. 450 is paid Rs. 1,200 in Development Department, whereas according to the Public Works Department procedure only Rs. 50 extra are paid as charge allowance for acting in higher appointment.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT: Order, order. Does the honourable member refer to the development chawls? I think he must restrict his remarks to the item which is before us.

Mr. HAJI MIR MAHOMED BALOCH: I have nothing more to add. I merely wanted to compare the Public Works Department with the Development Department and I hope the Honourable the General Member will look into this.

Mr. R. S. ASAVALE (Bombay City, North): Mr. President, I have to bring to the notice of the House that at the time of the last budget when this question was discussed we sanctioned some amount in the budget for repairs to the dredgers and for filling in of the plots. These plots have been filled in or are being filled in but I am astonished to see that this plot No. 1 was not to be filled by dry filling by trains. I do not know how it has come into the mind of the Executive Engineer now after the budget for 1927-1928 was framed and has been sanctioned. In fact the engineers must have known as to whether the plot required dry filling or wet filling. Now, had it not been for the miscalculation of the engineer in charge of that work this demand for the amount of Rs. 1,28,000 would not have come up before this House.

There is no information whether this work is being carried on departmentally or has been entrusted to a contractor. It is to be seen whether this increase in expenditure is owing to the difference between the departmental work and the work carried out by the contractor. This state of thing ought to have been made clear before the demand is made but it has not been done so.

I believe if the budget was sanctioned in February the work must have been already commenced as per estimates and plans put forward at that time. If it had been done there is a possibility that this great shrinkage would not have occurred. If the work would have been carried on as estimated by the engineers by dry filling I do not understand why there should be so much shrinkage and it could not have been 25 per cent.

I would like to hear either from the Honourable the General Member or the engineer in charge as to the amount shown as excess and whether the amount for storm water drains was not included in the estimates for the current year, and if not, why not? The engineers must know how to frame estimates and why was this not contemplated and put before the House during the last budget session?

[Mr. R. S. Asavaie]

I would also like to know when this dry filling was actually commenced, whether during the monsoon or before that? If the dry filling was commenced before the budget was presented to the House then there is no question. But if it was started after the budget amount was sanctioned and during monsoon the blame lies on the engineer and nobody else. That is why such a large amount as Rs. 9,21,000 is now demanded instead of Rs. 4,51,000. I therefore think that we must always be alert when passing such items and I therefore oppose this demand.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHangIR : Sir, I hope to be able to reply to the discussion in about three or four minutes. The honourable member Mr. Hooseinbhoy Lalljee mentioned two points. He complained that we did not bring this excess on the Jinga to the notice of the House at the budget sessions. I may inform the honourable member that Government were not aware of the extent of the excess at the time. If they had been aware of it they would certainly have brought it to the notice of the House. That could have been done much more easily than it is possible to do it to-day in the form of a supplementary demand. It is not possible to know what the damage or what repairs are required to a dredger until you go deeper and deeper into it. No estimate can be made of the repairs to a dredger until you have really gone to the bottom of the question and therefore at the time of the budget sessions Government were not aware of the fact that there would be such an excess. He also made a point of the fact that the vibrations experienced on the Colaba were known to Government some time ago. This is correct, but that this experience would require further repairs to the Jinga came to the knowledge of Government only a couple of months ago. He also mentioned the question of Colaba being taken into Back Bay. This question has been under the consideration of Government times out of number. We have been advised that the Colaba cannot be taken into the Bay. I assure you that if the advisers of Government thought that this was possible it would have been done. But it is not a practical proposition as the cost would be more than the outturn would justify.

He talked about the shrinkage in block 8. Well, there has been shrinkage in block 8, and our engineers give us advice to the best of their ability and we can only act on that advice to the best of our ability. There is an advisory committee of a few gentlemen, of which my honourable friend Mr. Hooseinbhoy Lalljee is a member. He has visited the Block. He has seen for himself the difficulties of estimating what the shrinkage will be. We were told there would be 2 feet topping when the budget session was in sessions. Experience gained afterwards showed our officers that 3 feet will be required. Even if this estimate does not stand, we will have to complete block 8 and will have to come to the House and tell them what the engineers' opinions are. This is a question, Mr. President, on which no past experience is available. It is practically new ground and we admit it.

Now, Sir, I must thank my honourable friend Mr. Lalji Naranji for the speech he made. His one point was : " Why go in for wet filling ? "

[Sir Cowasji Jehangir]

We have got to go in for wet filling next season in block 1 because we have no rolling stock to spare. I can assure my honourable friend that the question of wet filling versus dry filling will be most carefully considered by Government and all the facts and figures will be placed before the advisory committee before we definitely decide to continue with wet filling in Block 2. I appreciate my honourable friend's statement that the present rates of dry filling are lower. If the present rates stand in the future, we might be able to go in for dry filling and please my honourable friend's heart by scrapping the dredgers.

Mr. G. L. WINTERBOTHAM : May I ask a question ? Does the Honourable the General Member refer to the filling of block 1 ?

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : No. As to block 1 it will have to be filled up by wet filling.

Mr. G. L. WINTERBOTHAM : So, the Honourable Member is referring to block 2.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : Quite correct. As to block 1, we must finish it by wet filling. We have no rolling stock available even if dry filling was cheaper. We are not absolutely convinced that dry filling is cheaper, but in the meantime we must finish block 1 by wet filling with the "Kalu" and "Jinga", and we propose to do so. As to what will happen in the season after, I can express no opinion. I can only say Government will carefully consider everything and place all the facts and figures before the committee.

I thank my honourable friend representing the Chamber of Commerce (Mr. Winterbotham) for the very accurate information he placed before the House, which has enabled me to finish my speech in four or five minutes. I congratulate him on the very useful knowledge he seems to have obtained in the Finance Committee and placed before the House in a very few words. If all members were to follow his very good example of attending the Finance Committee and obtaining accurate information and then placing the knowledge which they gain before the House, the work of Government and of many of us would be much easier.

Mr. President, there is just one point more. My honourable friend Mr. Hooseinbhoy Lalljee said he could not understand what was stated at page 9. What is stated at the bottom of page 9 is this.....

Mr. HOOSEINBHOY ABDULLABHOY LALLJEE : What I said was about the acquisition of land. I wanted to know about that.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR : There was an appeal, and it was possible that the courts might award extra compensation, which would have to be paid in the current year. Therefore, we provided Rs. 10,000 in anticipation of the award. Now we find that the award is not likely to be Rs. 10,000 but only Rs. 2,000. Therefore, there is a saving of Rs. 8,000. That is perfectly clear. As to the acquisition of land, certain lands have been acquired, and in most cases we are in possession. We expected that we might have to pay compensation in the current year. We find we have not to pay compensation in the current year, and thus there is a saving.

Mr. HOOSEINBHOY ABDULLABHOY LALLJEE: Next year you will have to pay.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: For some of the lands we may have to pay.

Mr. HOOSEINBHOY ABDULLABHOY LALLJEE: Then there is no saving.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: In some cases not (After a pause). I am sorry. My honourable friend the Secretary to Government informs me that it is all anticipated actual savings—less amounts to be paid than we expected.

These are the few facts that have been alluded to in the debate Mr. President.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR: I want to know, Sir, whether the engineers and other staff of the "Sir George Lloyd" have been given notice or sent away.

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: Some of them have already gone. Only the absolutely necessary number of men required for the "Sir George Lloyd", I think, are on the boat at present.

(At this stage the honourable member Mr. Bechar asked a question which was not audible.)

The Honourable Sir COWASJI JEHANGIR: I cannot answer a long question like that now.

Question put and carried.

Expenditure in connection with a donation for the X-Ray Department at the Goculdas Tejpal Hospital, Bombay.

The Honourable Dewan Bahadur HARILAL D. DESAI: Sir, I move for a supplementary grant for Rs. 3,305 to be re-appropriated from 47-Miscellaneous—Transferred to 32-Medical—Transferred.

As the statement* placed before the honourable members will show this demand relates to the X-Ray Department at the Goculdas Tejpal Hospital, Bombay. A new block for this department has been built. There was a donation of Rs. 75,000 by one gentleman for the purpose of purchasing an X-Ray apparatus and there was a condition that Government would supply the staff and a sufficient grant to work the department and to maintain it in efficient working order. The building has been built and the cost of purchasing an X-Ray apparatus has been estimated at Rs. 65,000 which will be covered by the donation. The maintenance cost will, as will appear from the statement, be Rs. 11,520 and the cost for the five months of the current official year will be Rs. 3,305.

The importance of X-Ray treatment is well recognised and does not require any further mention from me. I would refer the honourable members to the last paragraph on page 2 of the statement with regard to the benefits that are expected to accrue to the medical profession and the general public and I would ask them to note that Government are prepared to accept the donations for the X-Ray department and adopt the proposals regarding maintenance submitted by the Surgeon-General with the Government of Bombay in that connection. I therefore request the grant of Rs. 3,305 to meet the additional expense involved in the acceptance of this donation during the current financial year. There are no sufficient savings under 32-Medical, and so we have to draw upon the reserve under 47-Miscellaneous—Transferred by way of re-appropriation. I therefore submit that the honourable House will give the grant asked for.

Question proposed.

Mr. F. J. GINWALLA (Bombay City, North): Sir, I do not wish to oppose the grant but I wish to draw the special attention of the Honourable Minister to a few points in connection with this department. •

I would particularly notice the item "one sister" in charge on Rs. 250—10—300 (average 283½). There will be one X-Ray and Electrical Assistant, there will also be a photographer and dark-room assistant and there will also be one subordinate medical service officer. On top of all these officers, it is intended to have a sister in charge. If the Honourable Minister will make enquiries he will find that there is no necessity at all for a sister in charge as the other staff provided will be quite sufficient for the needs of the X-Ray Department. I therefore suggest to the Honourable Minister to reduce the item of the sister in charge. In this connection I would like to invite particular attention to the fact that in the Goculdas Tejpal Hospital there are several Indian nurses who are not given any chance of promotion although many of them are qualified and well fitted to hold the post of sister-in-charge if one were really required. I do not see any reason why an Anglo-Indian sister should be placed over the heads of Indian sisters already working at the hospital. I hope the Honourable Minister will do adequate justice to our Indian sisters there.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI (Western Sind): Sir, we are very anxious to know what the duties of the sister in charge on Rs. 250—10—300 are going to be, and whether it is necessary to appoint a European nurse for the purpose, or an Indian nurse on a lower salary will not do. If it is intended to appoint an Indian medical nurse, I think the proposed pay of Rs. 250—10—300 is rather high, especially when we have got, apart from the honorary surgeon, other officers to assist in the work. This is a matter which the Council need not go into, but it is a matter which the Honourable Minister has not made plain in the note. I hope he will satisfy the Council as regards that item.

It will be noticed that it is proposed to give an additional duty allowance of Rs. 35 to a subordinate medical service officer. It should be considered whether, when there is an X-ray and electrical assistant, it is necessary to have an additional subordinate medical service officer and give him a duty allowance. I think that the whole expenditure of

[Mr. B. G. Pahalajani]

Rs. 3,305 requires to be closely examined, and that the Honourable Minister has not devoted to this matter the care and attention necessary.

Dr. M. D. GILDER (Bombay City, North) : Sir, I rise to support this demand for the grant of Rs. 3,305. The G. T. Hospital does a great amount of casualty work in Bombay ; in fact, it is the only casualty hospital for the South of the town of Bombay, and an X-ray and Electro-Medical Department is an absolute necessity in that hospital, and the amount proposed to be spent upon it, considering all things, is not very much.

I quite agree with my honourable friend Mr. Ginwalla that the pay proposed for the sister in charge is excessive. I should like to know from the Honourable Minister whether these expenses are for the X-ray and Electro-Medical Department and Massage combined, or for the X-ray Department alone. Secondly, I should like to know whether the sister in charge will be on duty for 24 hours or only for a part of the day and whether any efforts have been made to train up an Indian nurse to work in the X-ray Department. With these words, I beg to support demand.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR (Karachi City) : Sir, I rise to support the demand made by the Honourable Minister with regard to the expenditure in connection with the X-ray Department which he wants to set up in the G. T. Hospital. Sir, it is a matter of congratulation and satisfaction that some amount of research and medical work is being done and extended from time to time. But, Sir, I wish the Honourable Minister would kindly pay attention to the other cities besides the city of Bombay.

Mr. B. G. PAHALAJANI : How is that relevant ?

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : This is certainly not relevant.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : I merely wanted to put it in this way. We are asked to sanction expenditure from time to time on matters entirely beneficial to Bombay, and while we are asked to sanction such expenditure we want to draw attention to the fact that the other cities should be equally well cared for.

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : This is not the occasion for it.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : If you rule it out of order.....

The Honourable the PRESIDENT : I think it is irrelevant.

Mr. N. A. BECHAR : If it is not relevant, I will not proceed.
